PRODUCE MARKETS.

SATURDAY EVENING.

INDIGO.—The sales which opened on the 13th inst. closed last night. The total quantity offered was 8,371 chests, of which 5,000 were sold. This unsatisfactory result is no doubt due to the large supply available and increased production. The 8,371 offered, consisted of 2,111 Bengal, Tirhoot, &c., 1,837 Oude and Plant Oude, 3,683 Kurpah, 572 dry leaf Madras and Vellore, 34 Bimlipatam, 1 Manila, 21 Kurrachee figs, and 112 sundries and sweepings. The tone of the sale has been very unsatisfactory, for notwithstanding the large quantity sold, buyers have seemed reluctant to operate to any extent, whilst on the other hand importers have been determined sellers, and frequently for the less current descriptions of both Bengal and Oude that were sold without support very low prices had to be accepted. Compared with July rates from par to 3d. decline for middling shipping Bengal and Oude and good Kurpah, 2d. to 4d. for good and fine shipping Bengal, and 3d. to 6d. for the other grades. Madras par to 3d. decline.

INDIAN TEA.—The auctions have been very heavy during the past week, viz., 26,412 packages Indian, most of which were sold. The market has borne the strain of such heavy supplies well, the tone at the close being brisk and prices steadier than earlier in the week. Closing quotations were about ½d. lower than last week for Souchongs and Pekoe Souchongs, ¾d. to 1d. lower for common to medium Pekoes; steady for good to fine, and rather dearer for finest Pekoes and broken Pekoes. Last week's sales were unusually small, amounting to 10,500 packages. Buyers awaiting the large auctions advertised to take place during the current week:—viz., 25,132 packages; Monday's sale alone comprising 11,365 packages, the largest quantity that has ever been sold in one day. Prices have been well supported throughout, the principal demands being, for Souchongs and leafy broken at 9d. to 10½d. per lb.; Medium Pekoes and Broken Pekoes, from 1s. to 1s. 6d., have been in full supply, and sold at rather drooping prices, but fine and finest have kept firm. Of the arrivals the Darjeelings have been much below the average standard of quality of the respective gardens—Ceylons Teas: 1,538 packages have been catalogued during the fortnight, and though small breaks still preponderate, prices have been well maintained.

COFFEE.—The supplies of East India by auction have been 551 cases 2,376 bags, which only partly found buyers. The common kinds have declined about 2s.; medium to good medium, 57s. to 61s.; fine, 70s. 6d. to 71s.; bold, 77s.; fine bold, 91s.; other kinds dull. Plantation Ceylon, bold, 83s. to 93s.

RICE.—The market is very flat. Some Madras on the spot sold at 6s. 9d.; 3,379 bags Bengal in auction bought in, white at 11s. 6d.; Askoolie, 7s. per cwt.

JUTE.—On Friday about 1,000 lbs. R. B. No. 2 sold at £12. 10s.

SPICES.—The markets are dull.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE

COUGH,
COLD,
ASTHMA,
BRONCHITIS.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Dr. J. C. BROWNE (late Army Medical Staff) DISCOVERED A REMEDY to denote which he coined the word CHLORODYNE. Dr. Browne is the SOLE INVENTOR, and, as the composition of Chlorodyne cannot possibly be discovered by Analysis (organic substances defying elimination), and since the formula has never been published, it is evident that any statement to the effect that a compound is identical with Dr. Browne's Chlorodyne must be false. This Caution is necessary, as many persons deceive purchasers by false representations.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE. Vice Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was UNDOUBTEDLY the INVENTOR of CHLORODYNE, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—See The Times, July 13th, 1884.

DIARRHŒA, DYSENTERY. GENERAL BOARD OF HEALTH, London, REPORT that it ACTS as a CHARM, and is generally sufficient. Dr. GIBBON, Army Medical Staff, Calcutta, states: "2 DOSES COMPLETELY CURED ME OF DIARRHŒA." From Stevens & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Simla, Jan. 5, 1880.

To J. T. DAVENPORT, London. DEAR SIR,—We congratulate you upon the widespread reputation this justly-esteemed medicine has earned for itself all over the East. As a remedy of general utility, we much question whether a better is imported, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and, judging from their sale, we fancy their enjoyment there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances ad infinitum of the extraordinary efficacy of DR. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE in Diarrhœa and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Choleraic Diarrhœa, and even in the more terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power. J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Gt. Russell St., W.C.

We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a deliberate breach of faith on the part of the chemist to prescriber and patient alike.—We are, Sir, faithfully yours, SYMES & CO., Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain, His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE IS THE TRUE PALLIATIVE IN NEURALGIA, GOUT, CANCER, TOOTHACHE, RHEUMATISM.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a liquid medicine which assuages PAIN of EVERY KIND, affords a calm, refreshing sleep WITHOUT HEADACHE, and INVIGORATES the nervous system when exhausted.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE rapidly cuts short all attacks of EPILEPSY, SPASMS, COLIC, PALPITATION, Hysteria.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.—The IMMENSE SALE of this REMEDY has given rise to many UNSUBSTANTIAL IMITATIONS. Be careful to observe Trade Mark. Of all Chemists. 1s. 1d., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d.

THE DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS.

W. THORNHILL & CO., Sole Agents.

The Reputation of the "DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS," originally introduced into England by W. THORNHILL and CO., is now permanently established. The success of their enterprise has surpassed the most sanguine expectations. "DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS" afford the only instance hitherto attained of the absolutely perfect representation of the real diamonds by artificial means. These remarkable stones, by their purity and brilliancy, support comparison with diamonds of the first water, and are undistinguishable therefrom. They are infinitely superior in every respect to real diamonds of inferior quality. DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS were exposed side by side with real diamonds of great value in the Paris Exhibition, 1878, and were awarded a Prize Medal and the highest recompense awarded to imitations. They attracted universal attention and admiration, and forthwith became much in vogue with the grande monde and elite of society. They are now worn at the Court balls, and upon all occasions in London, Paris, and St. Petersburg. They are invaluable for intermixing with and replacing pearls and other costly diamond ornaments. DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS can be worn at all times, even by daylight, with confidence and absolute security. They possess the penetrating brilliancy and lustre peculiar to real diamonds, and the concessionaires guarantee the surprise and pleasure of purchasers. The perfection thus attained is the result of investigations and experiments extending over two generations. The cost, nevertheless, of the DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS is about 1-300th that of real diamonds.

THE "VOICE OF INDIA."

A MAGAZINE THAT GIVES EXPRESSION
TO THE PUBLIC OPINION OF THE PEOPLE OF INDIA.

There are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; and that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing FORTNIGHTLY (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native journals throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally docile and conservative; and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth; but it is a policy of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is specially desired to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1884.

Notes of the Week.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, October 10th; Madras and Allahabad, October 8th; Calcutta, October 7th; Burma, October 3rd.

FROM a private telegram that has been received in London during the past week from Calcutta we learn that the agitation against the Bengal Tenancy Bill is rapidly increasing; and that, though it was at first mainly confined to the zemindars, it is spreading to the ryots, who are beginning to perceive the fatal nature of the treacherous gifts that are forced on them by Lord Ripon and Mr. Ilbert. We commend this fact to Lord Dufferin's notice—though we doubt not that the new Viceroy, once arrived in Calcutta, will soon make himself thoroughly a master of all the facts of this most vital matter.

THE Amrita Bazar Patrika, to hand by last mail, points out the important fact that the agitation against the mischievous Bill is spreading downward. Our democratic contemporary says:—

The agitation in connection with the Bengal Tenancy Bill has assumed a new phase. The middle class tenure holders, who were hitherto silent, have begun to speak out their mind on the subject. The district of Jessore teems with this class of land-holders, and has naturally taken the lead in this matter. The telegrams published elsewhere will show that, during the last week, three successful meetings were held in different parts of Jessore, and that an alarm has seized the middle class tenure holders, who seem to think, that if the bill is passed, they will be thrown completely at the mercy of the zemindars. As a matter of fact, several sections in the bill will go directly against the vital interests of this most important section of the land-holding class, and the Government, we hope, will give them that protection which they so much need. We have received the proceedings of the Jessore and the Kirtipur meetings of the middle class tenure-holders, but we regret we cannot publish them this week. We are glad to know that Mr. Peterson, the Judge of Jessore, allowed all his Amlas and subordinate officials to attend the meeting held there. He even expressed his satisfaction that the people of Jessore were going to hold a public meeting, and discuss such an important measure as the Tenancy Bill, which, more or less, affects the entire population of Bengal. The Jessore meeting, we are told, was very respectably and influentially attended, all the leading men of the town being present. The Kirtipore meeting, we hear, was a gigantic affair, upwards of two thousand people being present. It was a meeting of tenure-holders and ryots, and they discussed the bill both from the ryot's point of view as well as the tenure-holder's.

THE Daily News of Monday last has a leading article on the difficulties awaiting Lord Dufferin in India, which is singularly foolish and ill-informed, even for the Daily News. Its conclusion of the whole matter is, that "The further application of the three F's. to the land in India" is what is chiefly wanted. As the Daily News speaks of the "further" application of the three F's., it appears that the Radicals will not be content until they have extended the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Bill to the other provinces, and to the Feudatory States of India.

WOULD our readers be surprised to hear—what the Daily News condescends to tell them—that:—

The other leading subjects of internal government—such as education and the establishment of native municipalities and district boards—have been settled by Lord Ripon for many years to come. Little remains for his successor but to fill the outlines which the former has laid down.

THAT the Daily News makes this statement in solemn earnest, and not as a ghastly joke, is made clear by its repetition in the same article in another, and even more amazing, form, thus:—

The civilians must, to a very large extent, have made over-charge of schools, roads, water supply, dispensaries, and the like, to native boards or municipalities. It was a matter of absolute necessity. This was Lord Ripon's justification.

POOR Lord Ripon! It is rather hard on him that his Radical friends at home should aver that his "justification" is only to be found in what he ought to have done—but what neither he, nor even Mr. Ilbert, would for a moment venture to say he has done.

AND then, the Daily News is most unjust—and as ungrateful as is the manner of Radicals—in laying all the blame for the "grumbling" in India on the class of our Indian University graduates. It speaks of "therodomontade of a certain section of the Native Press," and the "somewhat wild, because youthful, rhetoric of the young men, chiefly Hindoo graduates of the three Universities, who are the burning, if not the shining lights of the Sabhas or Associations, political and literary, which have been springing up by the score within recent years." And it adds, "There is often in the oratory of these Societies a large residuum of mere wind and vapour." After the delicate compliment which the eloquence of the Rajah Rampal Singh elicited from Lord Dufferin only a fortnight ago, we think the Rajah has a fair cause of complaint against the leading Radical organ.

AND, seriously, these unworthy sneers at the "youthful" rhetoric of our young Indian friends come with a particularly bad grace from the newspaper that has been Lord Ripon's chief and almost only supporter in England. And the Daily News degenerates into mere impertinence when it adds, a few lines lower down, "If the perverid Baboo did not find vent for his steam in a speech or a leading article he would burst." It seems rather a shame that our contemporary should thus ferociously attack a class that has never harmed either Lord Ripon or the Radical party; but, of course, Lord Ripon must be whitewashed, even at the expense of the feelings of those who might not unjustly consider themselves his victims.

FROM the internal evidence of the article from which we have been quoting it is quite clear that the Daily News is blissfully ignorant of the fact that the alarming articles in the St. James's Gazette, of which it speaks, were founded directly on Sir Charles Macgregor's Memorandum.

IN spite of the enormous expenditure lavished on Lord Ripon's Education Commission, and of the acknowledged ability of its members, the results—as summarised in this week's Times telegram from Calcutta—clearly show that it was absolutely and utterly unneeded, and that the money would have been far better spent in endowing a few high-class schools and colleges. There is hardly a point mentioned in the Resolution of the Government of India that could not have been equally well elucidated by any experienced officer, whether English or native, of the Education Department, without any of this bother and expense.

THE Zhob Valley expedition is adding some more items to Mr. Gladstone's butcher's bill. Fifty-six of the recalcitrant Kakar Pathans and five of our own brave Sikhs, killed or wounded in the recent skirmish, go to swell the number of the victims of the scuttling policy. A strong Government, and a contented, thriving people in the Kandahar province, would soon put an end to all these endless frontier wars; but that was a Beaconsfield notion, and therefore abhorrent to the present régime—like the Quetta Railway—until hard facts proved even stronger than Mr. Gladstone's undying hatred.

IN our announcement last week of the forthcoming soirée of the National Indian Association, a mistake was inadvertently made in the date. The festive gathering is to take place on Friday next, October 31; and we are glad to hear that it is likely to be most successful. The Earl and Countess of Dufferin have kindly consented to become Patrons of the Association.

SIR BARROW ELLIS will preside at the dinner which the members of the Northbrook Indian Club give to Lord Dufferin on the 1st prox. This snug little club is admirably managed, and affords an excellent rendezvous for our Indian visitors and their Anglo-Indian friends. Bombay is very strongly represented there; how is it that so few of our visitors from Bengal have joined?

The Times of India has the following obituary till the departure of the mail, Oct. 10:—

The Rev. Father Hermann Haug, S.J., St. Mary's Institution, Bombay; the Maharani Rajrupkuar of Tikari; the Rev. James P. Evers, Wesleyan Mission, Madras; Mr. George Billings, Deputy Collector of Meerut.

The Englishman gives the following on the Calcutta Freight Market, corrected to Tuesday, October 7th:—

We issued our last report on the 23rd ultimo. Since then the usual annual holidays have intervened and have to a certain extent curtailed business. We have hardly any change to report in our rates of freight which quote to-day much the same as they did a fortnight ago; our unmixed tonnage likewise shows very little change, the few ships fixed having been replaced by fresh arrivals; to-day's total amounts to 46,000 tons. Steamers continue to get wretched rates, but judging by last reports they are worse off on the Bombay side, which accounts for the fact that many steamers are offering and looking to our market for employment.

MOST of our readers who are acquainted with the works of Bankim Chandra Chatterjea, the famous Indian novelist in the original Bengali, will be very glad to learn that a worthy presentment of his remarkable genius is now accessible to the English-reading public in the shape of an admirable translation, by Mrs. J. B. Knight, of one of the best of his novels. The Bish-Briksha has enjoyed wonderful popularity in Bengal; and in its wonderfully graphic illustrations of social and domestic life in that province well deserves the position that has been accorded to it as one of Mr. Chatterjea's masterpieces. Mr. Edwin Arnold, in the critical and expository introduction which he has furnished as a preface to Mrs. Knight's translation, pays a high tribute both to the ability and the fidelity of the translation, and to the intrinsic merits of the original story. Mr. Arnold, whose authority on such a question is, of course, unrivalled, records his deliberate opinion that in Mr. Chatterjea Bengal has produced a writer of true genius; and praises alike his vivid narrative and his skill in delineating character. Mrs. Knight's translation is published by Mr. T. Fisher Unwin; and we hope shortly to lay before our readers an account of her excellent work in somewhat greater detail.

WE deal elsewhere with the remarkable utterances of Mr. Cross on the general subject of the Quetta Railway. We regret to observe that last night, in answer to Mr. H. Fowler, the Under-Secretary for India continues the system of what we must venture to call illusory explanations. Mr. Cross said, in needlessly peremptory language, "The fact is, not a single rail has been ordered abroad by the Indian Government during the last ten years, and there is not the slightest shadow of an atom of foundation for the report." That is all very fine; Mr. Cross takes advantage of the friendly question of Mr. Fowler, which foolishly spoke of "rails" instead of "iron and steel work" generally. It is positively notorious—and we challenge Mr. Cross to deny the fact—that contracts for such work as axle-boxes and steel sleepers for Indian railways have been given to foreign firms by the Indian Government, not during "the last ten years," but during the last few months!

Telegraphic Intelligence.

THE ZHOB VALLEY EXPEDITION.

[REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.]

BOMBAY, Oct. 27.—"Intelligence has been received here that on the 23rd inst. General Tanner discovered a body of 500 of the enemy in a strong position near Akhtarza, which they refused to surrender. General Tanner thereupon attacked and completely defeated them, with the loss of fifty-six killed. The British loss was slight, consisting of two Native officers and three men wounded. The engagement is expected to have a beneficial effect."

SIMLA, Oct. 27.—"The Zhob Valley Expedition under General Tanner has had a successful skirmish with the Kakar Pathans. The enemy were dispersed with the loss of fifty killed and wounded. On the British side there were five Sepoys wounded."

"Some further particulars are given by the Calcutta correspondent of the Times of the engagement of the force under General Tanner. It seems that 500 of the enemy having assumed a position commanding the line of advance of the expedition were required to surrender. In reply they discharged their firearms and shouted defiance. General Tanner thereupon attacked their flank with a wing of the 4th Punjab Infantry, and their front with a half-battery of screw guns and three companies of the South Staffordshire Regiment, keeping the other half battery, a wing of the 2nd Bombay Grenadiers, a wing of Rattray's Sikhs, and the cavalry in support. The enemy was completely routed, leaving fifty-six dead on the field. Our casualties were two native officers and three men of the 4th Punjab Infantry wounded. The action occurred on Friday morning. Sir Robert Sandeman considers that it will have a good effect."

OBITUARY.—The Times correspondent telegraphs:—"General Dhare Shum-Saers, Commander-in-Chief of the Nepalese army, and youngest brother of Jung Bahadoor, died at Khatmandoo on the 14th inst., aged fifty-eight. His death was somewhat sudden, although he had been suffering a long time from acute rheumatism, involving sleeplessness and derangement of the kidneys. He had taken a prominent part in Nepal politics since 1846. He accompanied Jung Bahadoor to England in 1850, and commanded a brigade of the Nepalese force sent to assist us during the Mutiny. He succeeded his brother Juggut Shum-Saers as Commander-in-chief in 1879. It is satisfactory to learn that no suttee occurred after his death, although it appears that two of his widows were with great difficulty prevented from immolating themselves. Their wishes, however, were frustrated by the exertions of the Prime Minister, Sir Runodeep Singh."

The following is from the Times' correspondent at Khwaja Ali, dated Oct. 17:—

"The Expedition is now concentrated on the Helmund, having marched over 226 miles of desert in fifteen days, including halts, without loss of life or property. All the members of the expedition are in excellent health and spirits. We shall set out again on the 19th.

"The Ameer's agent has been very ill, but is now better."

The following extra telegram has been received from the Times' correspondent, dated Calcutta, Oct. 22:—

"All the chiefs of the Bori valley have surrendered unconditionally. Shah Jehan having sent a message applying for a safe conduct and an assurance that he would not be transported, Sir R. Sandeman replied, giving the required assurance and inviting him to come in. Shah Jehan, however, insulted the messenger, who returned after a narrow escape with his life. The message was evidently a stratagem to gain time. The Muskheyls and Kiligais, who sent conciliatory messages, have also changed their minds, and have refused to come in. The Hemzadais continue friendly. The force is still advancing."

The following is the usual weekly telegram from the Times' correspondent at Calcutta, dated Oct. 26:—

"Yesterday's official Gazette contained a long Resolution, embodying certain Orders issued by the Government of India and by Lord Kimberley on the report of the Education Commission. The resolution begins by acknowledging the carefulness and impartiality with which the Commission had examined the past history and present state of education in every province, and by recommending a careful study of these reports to the Local Governments and Departmental officers concerned.

"The Viceroy thinks that the result of the inquiry is, on the whole, one on which the Government may congratulate itself. Notwithstanding some mistakes and failures in carrying out the policy of the Despatch of 1854, the progress made since that year is everywhere great and encouraging. The statistics of persons receiving instructions show that the percentage is small everywhere. It is, therefore, of the utmost importance that no loss of power should occur through an adherence to mistaken methods. It is impossible for the Government to find funds to meet a tithe of the demands made upon it for assistance; but the Viceroy believes that the powers given to local bodies under the Self-government scheme will materially lessen this difficulty. The Government generally approve of the leading principles affirmed by the Commission, and the recommendations regarding indigenous schools are especially commended to the local boards. It is not intended to compel aided schools to receive pupils of all castes; but schools may be registered as open only to specified castes. The Government, however, desires to encourage schools open to all castes, and will give the preference to general, as distinguished from special, schools.

"It is recognized that the primary education of the masses through the vernacular has an almost exclusive claims on local educational funds, and that secondary education should be more self-supporting. The principal suggestions of the Commission regarding secondary education are approved. Encouragement should be given to every variety of study, serving to direct the attention of youth to industrial and commercial pursuits. The local government should consider the opinion of the Commission, that English should only be taught in middle schools, and only where there is a real demand and a readiness to pay for it. Indian graduates, especially those who are graduates of European Universities, should be more largely employed on the teaching staff of the Government colleges.

"The Viceroy and Lord Kimberley dissent from the Commission on the subject of the compilation of moral text-books, owing to the difficulty of making such books acceptable to all religious bodies. Efforts should be made to invoke the aid of private liberality in founding scholarships and encouraging technical education. The principle of self-help is strongly insisted upon. The Government thinks that State aid should not exceed a moiety of the entire expenditure. The Local Governments unanimously deprecate any special educational legislation. The Viceroy, for the present, is content to accept their conclusions, relying on their hearty co-operation in the application of the principles now enunciated.

"There has been no material change in the harvest prospects during the past week. Some improvement is reported from Madras, rain having fallen in certain districts where it was much wanted. Complaints of the want of rain continue to come in from several parts of the Deccan and the Southern Mahratta country. Throughout the rest of India the prospects are favourable, save in one small tract in Bengal, where an entire failure of the crops has necessitated the adoption of relief measures. The Lieutenant-Governor will visit the distressed area towards the end of the week. Meanwhile, the local officers are dealing with the difficulty promptly and effectively.

"The question whether the introduction of the so-called "outstill" system in Bengal has had the effect of increasing intemperance was referred to a commission some months ago. This commission visited different parts of the province, and held local inquiries. Its report, which has now been submitted, shows that although a great deal of the increase that has taken place in the consumption of spirits is due to the operation of social, moral, and religious changes among the people, and to the increase in the purchasing power of the consuming classes, drinking has also been much encouraged by the cheapening of liquor, and the facilities for procuring it which the existing arrangements afford. The preventible causes of increase have resulted, not from any inherent defect in the "outstill" system, but from an error in its administration, which can be corrected. The Lieutenant-Governor expresses the opinion that it is the duty of the Government, at any risk to the revenue, to remove these causes; and he has referred to the Board of Revenue the question of the best means of doing so.

"The Select Committee on the Bengal Tenancy Bill is now holding frequent sittings at Simla, with the view of presenting a further report when the Viceroy arrives in Calcutta."

"The Zhoob Valley Expedition has arrived at Shah Jehan's village, which that chief has left with his family. The people are sullen, and unless Shah Jehan makes overtures of surrender his fort will be destroyed. No fighting or active opposition has yet been reported."

"Some of the Burmans who took part in the recent meeting held at Rangoon to protest against Thebaw's barbarities have received threatening letters."

"M. Richaud, the new Governor of French India, arrived in Pondicherry on Tuesday last, and was received with great ceremony. In replying to an address of welcome, he laid great stress on the importance of Pondicherry, and its value as a naval station in time of war."

THE "INDIAN STATESMAN" ON THE TENANCY BILL.

I.

It is a heavy disadvantage to the editor of a daily newspaper that he can seldom command more than mere fractions of his time for the discussion of any public question, however great its importance. We feel this disadvantage keenly in attempting to deal with this Tenancy Bill, while the disadvantage is heightened by the fact that we are forced, from want of space, to be so elliptical in our mode of treating it that "experts" only can at times keep the thread of our discussion. We feel that the Bill is a mistake, that it is simply another of those ambitious and restless efforts of which the people are constantly made victims by legislation that is well-meant, but that would be infinitely better let alone because of the complexity of the interests with which it is dealing. We have no doubt whatever of the perfect honesty of the chief author of the Bill, when we find him writing—

All that is being done in favour of the ryots is to protect them against the horrors of arbitrary eviction, and to secure to them that reasonable share in the profits of cultivation which is essential to the stability of an agricultural community, and their undoubted and ancient right.

And again, when he writes—

It is easy to say that the ryots never possessed the privileges which it is now proposed to recognise * * * but we contend that in the matter of rates of rent and protection from eviction the old law and custom of Bengal made no practical distinction between resident and non-resident ryots, and that all ryots without distinction of class (not being mere casuals, or nomads) were entitled to hold their lands without disturbances so long as they paid rents not less than the established rates. That is the real case which has to be met.

It is an advantage to have the views of the original framers of the Bill stated in terms so precise; but waiving all controversy for the moment, as to the historical accuracy of this statement of the ancient rights of the mere cultivator of the soil—was it really of no moment to inquire, first of all, as to the actual living relations between the cultivator and the owner of the soil? Was it of no moment, before entering upon the vast field of conflicting rights which this Bill opens, to inquire closely as to what the position of the cultivator really is, whether the ryot is really subjected to "those horrors of arbitrary eviction" of which the writer speaks, and whether he is excluded from that share "in the profits of cultivation," which the writer affirms to be his ancient right? As a matter of fact, we as journalists have the strongest reason to believe that the horrors of arbitrary eviction are unknown in the province, and that so far from the ryot being deprived of all share in the profits of cultivation, he has been permitted so unduly to engross them as to have produced a system of subletting and middlemen holdings such as the world never before heard of. The growth of these gigantic evils furnishes absolute proof that the zemindar has unwisely allowed the ryots to sit at rentals so unduly low as to have converted masses of them into middlemen tenure-holders. Where every public interest required the exaction of a full but not excessive rental, the zemindar has mischievously pitched the rates so low, as to produce as mass of middlemen tenure-holders who now constitute one of the chief embarrassments with which the State has to deal. As to arbitrary evictions, we can only say that if the practice of "evicting" existed anywhere on any appreciable scale, we believe we must have heard of it. And we ask naturally, as the zemindar does, for the evidence on which the charge rests.

Passing from the facts of the case—concerning which we complain, that no effort of any kind has been made to this hour to ascertain them—we notice the statement that the ryot has an "undoubted and ancient right to share in the profits of cultivation." Now it may be very just and proper that a right of this order should be possessed; but when we find that the gentlemen who speak in these very confident terms about it have made no inquiry whatever into the actual facts of the ryot's condition in ancient times, and are apparently ignorant of the only authority upon which such right, if it ever existed, could be maintained, namely, the Mahomedan Law concerning the land, and that this ancient right which they claim for the ryot, has simply been deduced by them from the controversies of 1793, and the old Regulation Law which preceded the Settlement, we think we have reason to complain, in the strongest terms, of the proposal to legislate upon an assumption of facts that is absolutely baseless.

The position of the ryot at the time of the Settlement is, we presume, a question of fact, not of opinion. Now it happens that we have an authoritative account of his position in Colebrooke's "Husbandry of Bengal," a book for which we ourselves were searching for twenty years. We knew well that the condition of the ryot could not possibly have been such as Mr. O'Kinealy fondly imagined, but we knew also the extreme difficulty of showing by contemporaneous authority what the position of the cultivator really was in 1793. As to his "ancient rights," we had never been troubled with any doubt upon that score, from the time we discovered that the so-called rental levied upon him by our predecessors, and that the East India Company was alone empowered to levy under their sunnud of 1765 was not rental at all, but the Mahomedan khiraj, and that this khiraj, which in Akbar's reign had been limited for a time, to one third of the gross produce of the land, had risen to one-half—the highest legal limit by Mahomedan Law—a full century before the Settlement of 1793. We need hardly say that an impost of half the produce is a rack-rent that is impossible. For ourselves, from long familiarity with such inquiries, we are satisfied that one-half of the produce was never yet taken anywhere. But what becomes of the ryot's "undoubted ancient right to a share in the profits of cultivation?" For more than a century before the Cornwallis Settlement, the impost had been raised we say, to one-half the gross produce. It was this impost that we were ignorantly levying under the Mogul's sunnud from 1765 to 1793. And it was this impost and nothing else, that Lord Cornwallis sold to the zemindar under the Settlement. These conclusions may not be very welcome to the Rent Commission, but we are content to submit them to the decision of Mr. Ilbert, who has now Galloway's "Law and Constitution of India" in his hand, sent to him by ourselves. The simple truth is that neither zemindar nor ryot had any "rights" at all, for nearly a century before 1793. The Mogul monarchy in the break-up of its authority, and the East India Company in its ignorant and savage extortion, wrung from the wretched provinces not merely all the profits of cultivation, but every accumulation of the past. The only true account of "the ancient rights of the ryot" is the statement that the zemindar was universally required by the sunnud of his investiture to deal considerably with the cultivator. As to "pergunnah" rates ruling the rental, the Collector, whether he was a zemindar, or farmer, or English official, took all that he could wring from the cultivator; and with the impost fixed at half the gross produce, did so under direction of the law.

Mr. Colebrooke confirms our conclusions that the ryot was rack-rented, while Galloway, Briggs, and Baillie all tell us that the ryot's liability was one-half the produce, and had been so for a century before the Settlement. What then becomes of "tenant right," or the right to share in the profits of cultivation?

II.

One of the most natural reflections which this Tenancy Bill suggests is the effect it will have upon the fortunes of those old families in the provinces, which having survived the struggle for existence in which so many of the ancient landholders were engulfed by the Settlement, are now threatened, after a century has gone by, with the same extinction that long since befel their fellows. We have commented on two or three occasions on the fact that the framers of the Bill seem to have lost sight entirely of the familiar truth, that unduly low rentals mean either "careless husbandry," or "subletting and rack-rent." Well known as the remark is, it seems to have entirely escaped notice in the preparation of this measure. With the same strange forgetfulness the probable effects of the measure upon the fortunes of the old families which have survived the ruin in which the Settlement involved their class have been entirely overlooked. There are still in these provinces, particularly in Behar, many families of ancient descent and possessions, the preservation of whose estates is a matter of deep moment, not to themselves merely, but to the whole people. They were an hereditary aristocracy long before the Dewanship of these provinces was confided to the East India Company in 1765, and their preservation and well-being should be an object of the greatest concern to us. In illustration of our meaning there is the old Doornraon family, descendants of a long line of independent princes who were rulers of a kingdom centuries before the appearance of the East India Company in Behar. How monstrous, then, is the impropriety of going into the Maharaja of Doornraon's hereditary estates, and reducing him by this Bill to the status of the mere holder of a rent-charge thereon. Unless Doornraon has been a most oppressive ruler, instead of carrying the conscience of his people with us in a revolution of this kind, there will simply be a general sense of outrage at our dispossessing this ancient family of the landed possessions which they have held for many centuries, to transfer them to a mushroom class of middlemen-landlords who, as mahajuns, or bunias, or tenure-holders, will rack-rent the actual cultivator in presence of the Maharaja himself, reduced to impotency by our restless desire of change. It is not the ancient family of Doornraon only that is to be thus dispossessed of what belonged to it long before the Cumpane Bahadoor was ever heard of, but numberless old families of rank, in whose traditions and status the people themselves take a pride. The Maharajas of Durbhungah, Burdwan, Benares, and a host of other ancient families, are to be dispossessed in the same monstrous fashion, and their lands—concerning the proprietorship of which no doubt was ever entertained, either before the Settlement, or after it—and they themselves to be treated precisely as the auction purchaser of yesterday is to be. No more revolutionary idea ever entered the mind of a legislator than the idea of violently reducing the old landed proprietors of the provinces, to the dead level of annuity-holders. The vulgar mahajun who bought up yesterday the estate of which he has become the owner by usury; the intriguing vakil or amlah whose title is no better, and his possession no older, is to be placed side by side in rank with old families, in whose presence neither has yet dared to walk except barefoot. The total want of sympathy there is with the people locks up and paralyses our imagination as rulers, and so we deliberately devise a measure to erase all distinctions, by reducing all to the level of the middleman upstart who ought never to have been allowed to become a landholder at all.

Long ere this Bill had reached its present stage, the Government ought to have possessed itself of, and published, a classified list of all the zemindars in the provinces, for the express purpose of distinguishing between the old families with whom the settlement of 1793 was made, and the men who have come upon the towjee list since. The Bill is a positive outrage upon old zemindar families, concerning whose lands and estates there is no doubt whatever, and never has been any, while under the radical treatment of the Rent Commissioners—they are no more to us than the men who became landlords but yesterday. It is the almost incredible deadness of our sympathies that makes the proposal of such legislation possible. It would be mischievous anywhere; in India it is simply suicidal, and dangerous in the highest degree.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

"THE KRIEGSSPIEL OR WAR-GAME."*

This is called a game, but is practically a very severe exercise of mental powers and military knowledge, especially for the umpire or umpires. It requires considerable enthusiasm as well as patience and leisure on all hands, because as the forces manoeuvred come into contact, the proceedings are obliged to be at least four or five times slower than would occur in reality, and at the most exciting time—when troops are supposed to be fighting hard—the game becomes chaos and has to be relinquished; for it is purely impossible, or at best a mere farce to estimate the moral and physical attributes of the troops at the point where the action of a brave subaltern or even private, or the reverse, may have intense effect. Probably the most thorough play at the War Game would be in a field hospital, where the players were recovering from broken arms, and the umpires from broken legs. There would then be sufficient leisure for discussion. Still it is a grand game, if we should call it so; it is valuable practice for generalship in all ranks, in fact, the only possible practice in peace time; and however frequently played, or it would be better to say worked, there is always something fresh in war business learnt and strongly impressed by every game. In truth, a few war games well worked out are worth a cycle of ordinary parade drills for studying tactics of war. But it does take time, and a good opportunity of making use of it is in India during the hot weather, and the pegs used for marking the game need not necessarily be the only ones at hand. A capital aid to the game, drawn out by General von Verdy du Vernois, the well known Prussian tactician, has been translated by Major MacDonnell. The case taken is tolerably simple, and might occur on service to any regimental officer whose reputation might thereby be made or lost. The whole course of the simple game, including the orders and the remarks of the umpires, is given. It is furnished with a map, on which the movements of the troops can be traced; although, of course, from reason of expense the map is not so large or as detailed as the original. The map is put into the book facing the commencement, so that it always presents its back to the reader, who constantly requires to consult it. This is a very common error in binding, and a most inconvenient one. The only thing is to cut out the map and paste it in again, so that it faces the reader as he proceeds through the book. Anyone who will take the trouble to do this, and then carefully go through the example given, will be amply repaid by a considerable addition to his knowledge of practical tactics and leading of troops in war.

A GEM.—The Pioneer (Allahabad) publishes the following native petition, the authenticity of which is vouched for by a trustworthy correspondent:—"Respectfully Showeth,—That your honour's servant is poor man in agricultural behaviour, and much depends on season for the staff of life, therefore he prays that you will favour upon him, and take him into your saintly service, that he may have some permanently labour for the support of his soul and his family; wherefore he falls upon his family's bended knees, and implores to you of this merciful consideration to a demnable miserable, like your honour's unfortunate petitioner. That your lordship's honour's servant was too much poorly during the last rains, and was resuscitated by which medicines which made magnificent excavations in the coffers of your honourable servant, whose means are circumscribed by his large family, consisting of five female women and three masculine, the last of which are still taking milk from mother's chest, and are damnably noisy through pulmonary catastrophe in their interior abdomen.

THE CHIN TRIBES OF BRITISH BURMA.

TO THE EDITOR.

SIR,—Among the thousand and one native tribes spread over our vast Eastern dependencies, none so thoroughly retain and strictly adhere to their tribal characteristics as do the wild Chin tribe, inhabiting the mountains of Burma. These singular people, in spite of all the efforts made by their Western conquerors, pertinaciously cling to the primitive customs and habits of their ancestors, which have been jealously preserved and handed down from father to son throughout many generations. An intelligent Burmese magistrate, Maung Tet Pyo, quite lately, and with great care and discrimination, collected from oral tradition the customary law now in use among the people. The collection was submitted to the Judicial Commissioner, Mr. Jardine, who not only regarded it as instructive and worthy of publication in the Burmese and English languages, but he offered to contribute an introduction or preface. Subsequently, and at his instigation Professor Forchhammer, and Colonel Browne, late Commissioner of Pegu, appended a number of explanatory notes, and which annotations, it is needless to say, are a most useful and valuable addition to the collection, inasmuch as they enable anyone to compare the Chin customs with those of other tribes mentioned by Sir John Lubbock, while Mr. Jardine dwells more particularly upon the close similarity they bear to the earlier law of India, and the more widely distributed ancient law which Sir H. S. Maine has illuminated by his deeper learning.

Some of the more remarkable of the Chin customs are those which relate to the domestic relations of women. Chin women resort to the disfiguring habit of tattooing their faces in black and blue, seemingly for no other purpose than that of making themselves less acceptable to mankind in general, and their Burmese masters in particular. This custom, however, is slowly giving way to an enlightenment which appears to be creeping over the country from contact and intercourse with the more advanced Burman. There is no such thing as caste among them, at least as a religious institution; but there are something like guilds or clans, numbering thirty-six, with fixed hereditary occupations, as elephant keepers, bowmen, sword and lancemen, goldsmiths, &c. Marriageable girls are not permitted to look for husbands out of their own clan—must, indeed, if possible, marry their cousins. The customary rule, as given in the collected translation, is that the daughter of a brother shall marry the son of a sister. What is even more remarkable is that an unmarried girl is not under the control of her parents, but of her brother. She is also given in marriage by her brother, and not by her parents. A girl, soon after birth, is assigned to the special care of one of her brothers; if she has no brother, then to one of her father's sister's sons, to whom any future aspirant to her hand is referred, and whose consent must be obtained, otherwise the marriage cannot take place. Even after marriage the husband is bound to treat his wife's brother or cousin with an inordinate amount of respect. Should the husband die the widow, by law and custom, becomes the property of the husband's brother, who, if unmarried, must take her for wife. She can marry no one else, on pain of forfeiture of all her property and tribal rights. The family bond of union is created by common subjugation to the spirit believed to preside over it. This bond exists only through the male members of the family, and is religiously kept alive by offerings made soon after death to the departed spirit of the deceased husband or his ancestor.

The Chin conception of family property rights is that of a fund held in this world to secure the greatest amount of enjoyment and happiness in the world to come; such property it is the great object of all to transmit to the manes of the departed male member by the oldest male survivor. Since women work in the rice fields their labour is of value, and it adds to the general fund. Hence it comes about that a suitor for a woman's hand must first pay her brother, as her guardian, a sum proportionate to the value of her labour, otherwise he is not permitted to wed her. The preliminaries for marriage are—First, a day and hour of meeting is arranged for the purpose of drinking beer at the suitor's house. A pig is slaughtered, and the liver is placed on a brass dish for inspection by the wise men of the place. If any peculiar spots or marks are seen on it, the marriage is postponed and the ceremony just gone through must be repeated on some future day. The damages a suitor is made to pay for breach of promise consists of five pots of beer, a bullock, a pig 3ft. in girth, a spear, a fork, a bag, and a piece of cloth ornamented with shells. The Chins are too primitive to demand gold or money in payment. With regard to the inheritance of property, curiously enough the youngest son succeeds to it, as in the tenure known in this country as Borough-English. The elder sons of the family are expected to fight the battles of the country or serve the king, in other ways, who provides for them, while the youngest son remains at home to take care of his father and the estate to which he eventually succeeds. At the father's death it is he who must prepare the necessary sacrifice to the spirit. "It is his duty to carry the ghost post on his head, and to remain by the corpse."

The funeral wake is also prepared by him, and for the due celebration of which many animals are slaughtered, and much beer laid in for drinking at the funeral. Mr. Jardine believes that the origin of the Hindu law of marriage and inheritance is the outcome of old customs and traditions like those of the Chins. He, however, quite accepts the view propounded by Sir H. S. Maine, particularly that relating to the partition of property, and he lays stress on the parallel in sentiment and ceremony with the Roman and Hindu Sacra. "The Romans," writes Sir John Lubbock, "believed that their fathers' spirits fed on the ghosts of the food offered, and that the son alone would, or could, make them partake of it." Mr. Jardine, with Sir H. S. Maine, disbelieves in this, and distrusts the reasons given by the Brahmans in Hindu law books, as the writers are known to be simply describing ordinary, widespread secular customs, to account for which they invented far-fetched theological reasons. The archaic collection to which I have referred constitutes Chin customary law, and which throughout abounds in curious folk-lore; it may also be regarded as a history of myths, most acceptable to all scholars who, like the Latin poet, feel a happiness in tracing institutions to their simpler forms.—I remain, sir, yours, &c.,

BOMBAY TO CALCUTTA.

TO THE EDITOR.

SIR,—In the Allahabad Pioneer Mail of the 1st inst. I read:—"There was another break on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway on the 22nd ultimo, near Burhanpoor, thirty-five miles South of Rhundwa, owing to an affluent of the Taptee river being in flood. The train carrying the overland mails was delayed several hours, and the mail steamer had to be detained in consequence."

The affluent alluded to appears to have no name on the Indian Atlas (four miles to an inch). The broken bridge must be eight miles N.N.E. of Burhanpoor. Three petty hill torrents have proved their power during these rains to break the communication between Bombay and Calcutta. The Bookri stream appears to be the most formidable.

Is it not time for our great Imperial Government to commence the construction of the railroad from Nagpoor to Jubulpoor, so urgently advocated by the best military authorities?

On that great military line which connects North and South India the streams can easily be bridged, and the bridges will not be liable to be swept away unexpectedly by any sudden fall of rain.—Your obedient servant,

BOYCOTTING INDIAN TEA.

TO THE EDITOR.

SIR,—It may not yet be too late to ask who or what occult committee is responsible for the "boycotting" of Indian tea at the International Health Exhibition? When we call to mind the circular sent so freely to Anglo-Indians (much too late, by the way) asking them to co-operate in collecting Indian products, especially connected with beverage and diet, it would seem there must have been some hitch in the internal organisation of the Exhibition, which has resulted in Indian teas, condiments, &c. being put beyond reach of the millions of consumers who have thronged this world's fair. You will see I refer to sales and not to mere barren show; and it is in respect of the sharp contrast in the treatment accorded to China and Indian teas respectively that someone should be called to account. Whereas facilities and expenditure have been lavished in order to give free trade in China tea the sale of Indian tea has been interdicted. Hence, the best possible opportunity for effectually educating the national taste on behalf of this choice product of our own Empire has been ostentatiously disregarded. The serving of cups of tea is mere trifling; had the millions been permitted to take quarter pounds of Indian tea away with them, as they were enticed to do in the case of China tea, some good would have been done. Who is to blame for the embargo on Indian teas?—Yours, &c.,

W. MARTIN WOOD.

October 27th.

P.S.—Similar complaint must be made also on account of Indian condiments, which ought to have been sold freely, that is, seeing that China edibles were almost thrust on the visitors.

DINNER TO DR. LEITNER.—The friends of the Punjab University and the committee of the German Athenæum entertained Dr. Leitner at a dinner in the Langham Hotel on Friday evening, prior to his leaving for India. Sir Lepel Griffin presided, and among those present may be named Sir William M'Murdo, Sir William Robinson, Sir O'feur Cavenagh, Sir Frederick Goldsmid, Professor Rogers, M.P., Mr. Thornton, Rev. H. Wace, Mr. Boulger, Mr. Douglas, Mr. MacColl, Mr. Brandreth, Mr. Saunders, Mr. Boulnois, Dr. Hess, Dr. Badenoch, and other gentlemen. Sir Lepel Griffin, in proposing the toast of Dr. Leitner's health, dwelt on his services in the founding of the Punjab University and of its child, the new Oriental Institute at Woking.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

It is proposed to erect a new Government House at Simla at a cost of Rs. 5,50,000, or else make substantial additions to Peterhoff.

THE Duke and Duchess of Connaught are now on a pleasure tour in the Punjab. They have visited Rawal Pindi, Khyrabed, Peshawur, and other places in that part of the province. They will return to England next spring, meanwhile visiting Kashmere.

CAPTAIN HEXT, Director of the Indian Marine, is at Simla. It is stated that the Government of India have consulted with him on the subject of the proposed docks at Calcutta.

THE publication of the Blavatsky correspondence has called forth from various branches of the Theosophical Society expressions of belief in the Mahatmas and of confidence in Madame Blavatsky.

THE Ameer of Afghanistan has recovered from his late illness and resumed his public duties.

THE Simla public offices close about the 8th proximo.

It is probable that Mr. H. M. Durand will as Foreign Secretary to the Government of India during the absence of Mr. Grant on twelve months' leave.

THE Calcutta papers demand an inquiry into the collision on the Eastern Bengal Railway, not being satisfied with the authorities' conclusion that the fault lay with the engine-driver Cummings.

THE contest for the Northern India Lawn-Tennis Championship which recently commenced at Simla, several crack players having come from afar to compete, has been postponed, on account of the rain, till next spring.

THE Lieutenant-Governor of the N.W. Provinces, accompanied by his Personal Staff and the Chief Secretary to Government, will leave Naini Tal on the 17th inst., and arrive at Lucknow on the 24th. The Secretariat Offices close at Naini Tal on the 11th, and reopen at Allahabad on the 20th.

It has now been decided that the Secretariat Offices of the Government of Bengal will close at Darjeeling on the 25th inst., and reopen in Calcutta on the 1st proximo.

NAWAB SALAR JUNG of Hyderabad arrived in Simla on the 7th inst., and was entertained in the evening at dinner by the Viceroy.

THE Lieutenant-Governor of the N.W. Provinces, in addressing the Naini Tal Volunteers recently, said that some sweeping reforms were shortly to be introduced into the Volunteer force, and these he trusted would place the movement on a firm, broad and substantial basis.

MR. MACDONALD, of the Civil and Military Gazette, has, it is stated, accepted the appointment of Editor of the Englishman.

THE Englishman states that the Bangabasi, one of the most virulent of the Bengal vernacular papers, has a nominal circulation of upwards of 12,000 copies.

THE Calcutta Trades Association propose to make another representation to the Government of India regarding the late rule passed, making compulsory the stamping of duplicate receipts.

THE Rohilkund and Kumaon Railway has been unfortunate in its opening. Owing the heavy and continuous rain, passenger and goods traffic has to be suspended until further notice.

A DIFFICULTY AT HURNAL.—Some difficulty is experienced at Hurnal with regard to the efficient guarding of the thirty thousand coolies employed on the Sibi Railway there. The coolies receive a wage of fifteen rupees per month, and sepoy but six or seven, so that the higher rate of wages is attracting sepoy, who are deserting.

A POSTAL convention has been concluded between the Government of India and the Phulkian States in the Punjab—Jhind, Pattiala, and Nabha.

BOMBAY.

FAREWELL addresses will be presented to Lord Ripon when he passes through Bombay on his way home.

ARRANGEMENTS are being made to give a public welcome to Lord Dufferin on his arrival in Bombay.

HIS Excellency the Governor of Bombay intends to visit Sind and Kattywar next month, returning in time to receive Lord Dufferin on his arrival here.

A GOVERNMENT resolution has been issued with reference to the appointment of an executive committee in connection with the Bombay International Exhibition. Twelve of the members are to be appointed by the guarantors and four by the Government. The guarantee fund now amounts to Rs. 23,00,000.

THE vacancies in the Bombay Municipal Corporation have been filled by the election of Dr. Khory and Mr. Damodhar Thackersey Molje.

THE Government of Bombay has approved of plans of new Presidency Magistrates' Courts in the City. The new buildings are estimated to cost Rs. 3,75,000, and to occupy nearly five years in construction.

THE Government has also sanctioned the erection of new police offices in Bombay, and has given instructions for the preparations of plans, &c.

ON representations from the Municipal Corporation, the Bombay Government has sanctioned the appointment of two paid assistant surgeons at the Goculdas Tejpal Hospital, instead of a junior surgeon.

THE Poona Observer has apologised for the imputations cast upon Major Hogg, Colonel Wise, and Captain Humfrey in connection with the Poona racing scandal. It is therefore probable that Major Hogg will sue the proprietor and publisher for defamation.

A MEDICAL adviser to the Viceroy will not be appointed until Lord Dufferin's arrival in India.

At a meeting of the leading inhabitants of Ahmedabad it has been decided to request Lord Ripon to honour the city with a visit before his departure from India.

THE contributions to the Bombay International Exhibition Guarantee Fund now amount to Rs. 22,83,600, including the Government and Municipal subscriptions. We notice that in the last list of contributions the names of five local banks appear, the amount against each name being Rs. 5,000.

Up to date Rs. 4,636-8 have been subscribed to the Poet Dulpuram Memorial Fund.

THE members of the Anjumani-i-Ahab of Bombay have forwarded a petition to Government praying that a Mahomedan may be appointed Sheriff this year.

THE Times of India says:—A correspondent who seems to have as little sense of poetry as of reverence sends us the following doggerel:—

“All Viceroys are the same, no doubt,
They're kin and kith, they're kith and kin,
And we must let a duffer out Before we get a Dufferin.”

MADRAS.

THE VICEREGAL COUNCIL.—The Madras Mail states that the Viceregal Councillorship filled by the Hon. Mr. H. S. Thomas during the last two years is going a-begging. Messrs. Garstin, Whiteside and Wilson have declined the honour. It is thought probable that Dr. Maclean will go.

THE BANGALORE RIFLE MEETING.—The rifle meeting commenced on the 7th inst. The weather was fine, and competitors numerous, some volunteers shooting well. The best scores made up to date were in the Rifle Derby—Sergeant Colston, 33; Rifle Oaks—Volunteer Miller, E.I.R.V., 35; Rifle Guineas—Sergeant Godfrey, R.E., 32; Rifle Leger—Sergeant Allen, N.V.R., 33; Alexandra Stakes—Corporal Ralph, R.S.F., 31; Prince of Wales's—Corporal Stephens, N.V.R., 25; Native Derby—Naique Kristnaje, 9th Bombay N.I., 32; Native Oaks—Naique Syed Hamed, 21st Madras N.I., 33; Native Guineas—Havildar Ugerbeg, 25; British Army Contest—Sergeant Deen, Hampshire, 63; Volunteer Contest—Captain Saise, E.I.R.V., 50; Empress Stakes—Major Tindall, 33.

MR. GRANT DUFF'S TOUR.—The Governor of Madras has written and just published a long minute, descriptive of four tours since last October.

THEOSOPI.—The following telegram has been received at Adyar from the London council of the London Theosophical lodge:—“Assure the parent society of our loyal support under the unscrupulous attack on Madame Blavatsky; of our belief in her integrity; and of our gratitude for her services in the cause of Theosophy.”

DEPARTURE OF TROOPS FOR QUETTA.—The 4th Madras Pioneers, which are under orders for Quetta, left Bangalore on the 5th inst., in two special troop trains. Colonel Hodding commands. The strength is—eight European officers and 731 rank and file.

THE EURASIAN AND ANGLO-INDIAN ASSOCIATION.—The fifth anniversary of the Eurasian and Anglo-Indian Association of Southern India was held in the People's Park at Madras on the 7th inst. There was a large attendance. Mr. White, the president, in a long address, claimed that the Association had done very much for the community it represents, and had solved the Eurasian problem by proving that Eurasians can do well by taking to the soil of India, as in the case of the Mysore colonier.

A RAJAH CHARGED WITH FORGERY.—We learn from Calicut that Vira Rejan Rajah, a nephew to the Zemorin, ordinarily known as the Unni Tambaran, has been charged with forgery before Mr. C. Kunhi Kannan, the temporary Deputy Magistrate. It is alleged that the Rajah produced as an evidence, before the District Court at Calicut, a document executed on a paper impressed with a year subsequent to that in which the document professes to have been executed. This was detected by Mr. Ross, the Acting District Judge of Calicut. We also learn that an application has been made to have the case transferred to the file of a European magistrate. The feeling at Calicut is that the case should be tried by a covenanted magistrate, as the Rajah is enormously wealthy.—Madras Times.

BURMA.

THE extension of the Rangoon steam tramway to the suburbs was formally opened by the Chief Commissioner on the 2nd inst. The trial trip was successful.

A RANGOON telegram says:—Another gang of dacoits is committing depredations on the railway line. There is great alarm. A reward of Rs. 500 is offered for each dacoit apprehended.

A RANGOON telegram, dated the 3rd inst., says:—Two out of the four Burmans, who have been committing a series of robberies and some murders at Oakan on the railway line and its vicinity, have been shot in an encounter with a party of police, under Captain Raikes, the Deputy Commissioner.

AYYAR.—We hear of another case of murder in the interior. A Mahomedan money-lender was found murdered in his house, and cash to the value of Rs. 6,000 stolen, as also a number of bonds and title deeds. Eight men have been arrested, and the Deputy Commissioner and the Superintendent of Police have gone to the scene of the outrage.—Arakan News.

MOULMEIN.—It is rumoured that the Chief Commissioner has been pleased to offer an advance of Rs. 5,000 to the Municipality. This will perhaps enable them to have the roller landed.

RANGOON.—Colonel Street, Commissioner of Pegu, returned on the 2nd inst. from Prome.

MAJOR-GENERAL PRENDERGAST, commanding the British Burmah Division, left on the 2nd inst. for Prome, en route to Thayetmyo. He was accompanied by Mrs. and Miss Prendergast and his aides-de-camp, Captains Donald and Aldworth.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

THE Government have decided that probationers for the Staff Corps may be granted sick leave to sea within Indian limits for a maximum period of six months, drawing a moiety of staff pay with Indian pay and allowances.

THE 4th Madras Pioneers left Bangalore on the 5th inst. by two troop trains for Bombay en route for Quetta, under the command of Colonel Hodding. All the bands in garrison played the regiment to the railway station, where a large concourse of people cheered the popular 4th lustily when leaving.

THE members of the Calcutta Naval Artillery Volunteers available left the Sealdah Station at seven A.M. on the 26th ultimo, for Barrackpore, for field-gun practice on the Jafferpore Range, and for carbine practice.

By the removal of the East Lancashire Regiment to Ferozepore, instead of the Northumberland Fusiliers, Colonel Prendergast, at present in command of the station, will be able to retain the command. Ferozepore is one of the very few stations in India to which there is a separate command allowance of Rs. 250 a month attached.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL BUCK having proceeded on the 2nd inst. to take over command of the British Burma Division, Colonel L'Estrange has resumed command of the Hyderabad Subsidiary Force until the arrival of General Prendergast, who is expected about the 1st November.

THE Indian Government steamship Olive, 2,270 tons, Captain W. J. Powell, arrived in Bombay harbour on the 2nd instant from Kurrachee, which port she left on the 29th ultimo, with the following officers and troops, &c.:—Lieutenant Bishop, 2nd Gloucestershire Regiment; Lieutenant Elliot, R.A.; 4 men, 1 woman, and 2 children, 2nd Gloucester Regiment; 5 native officers and hospital assistants, 56 rank and file, 3 women, 2 children, and 11 followers. It will sail to-day for Kurrachee, with the following officers and troops of the 4th Madras Pioneers:—Colonel G. C. Haddington, Lieutenant-Colonel J. H. M. Barnett, Major E. G. Blenkinsopp, Captain J. K. Porteous, Lieutenant G. B. Stevens, Lieutenant E. L. Holloway, Lieutenant C. R. Keate, Lieutenant F. Churchill, and Surgeon-Major D. J. McCarthy.

THE 1st battalion South Lancashire Regiment are to give about 130 volunteers to various regiments. Besides these, there are over 90 men who accepted the Rs. 120 bounty to prolong their service in India, 138 time-expired men, and a few invalids, to remain behind on the departure of the regiment from Peshawur.

THE three soldiers of the Manchester Regiment who committed an outrage at Mooltan on the night of the 22nd ult. have been tried by the Deputy Commissioner at Lahore. Private Byrne has been committed on a charge of murder to the Chief Court. He was brought to Lahore on Friday last under a military escort, and awaits his trial in the Central Jail. The other two men, Macdonald and Carnegie, have been sentenced to six months' imprisonment each for mischief.

SHORTLY after the murderous attack by a soldier at Kasuli, on his comrades, commanding officers in India were asked to give their opinions on the question, whether Thomas Atkins in this country should be deprived of the ammunition hitherto left in his charge. The result of this reference, a contemporary says, is somewhat conflicting; but the balance of the opinions given is in favour of still leaving ammunition in the hands of our soldiers, and weighty reasons are given. Orders on the subject will, no doubt, be issued before long by the military authorities.

THE INDIAN TROOPING SEASON.

The following are the movements of Her Majesty's Indian troopships for the season of 1884-85:—

The Malabar arrived in Bombay on the 10th inst., with drafts, and will sail for England on the 22nd October with time-expired men.

The Crocodile will arrive on the 21st October with T and U Batteries, No. 1 Battery E Division, and No. 1 Battery London Division, R.A., and drafts, and will sail for England on the 1st November with I and O Batteries 1st Brigade, R.A. for England, No. 6 Battery Western Division, and No. 5 South Irish Division, 1st Battalion South Lancashire Regiment, and 1st Battalion Essex Regiment, for Aden; 8th Battery Eastern Division, and No. 7 Battery London Division, and time-expired men, &c., from Aden to England.

The Serapis will arrive in Bombay on the 29th October with the 2nd Battalion Highland Light Infantry and drafts, and will sail for England on the 11th November with the 13th Hussars and time expired men, &c.

The Junna will arrive in Bombay on the 7th November with the 3rd Dragoon Guards and drafts, and will sail for England on the 21st November with time-expired men, &c.

The Malabar will arrive in Bombay on the 25th December with drafts, and will sail for England on the 6th January, 1885, with time-expired men, &c.

The Crocodile will arrive in Bombay on the 7th January with drafts, and will sail for England on the 17th January with time-expired men, &c.

The Serapis will arrive in Bombay on the 14th January with the 1st Battalion East Surrey Regiment and drafts, and will sail for England on the 27th January with time-expired men, &c.

The Junna will arrive in Bombay on the 25th January with the 2nd Battalion Royal Irish Regiment and drafts, and will sail for England on the 6th February with time-expired men, &c.

The Malabar will arrive on the 12th March with drafts, and will sail for England on the 21st March with invalids and time-expired men.

The Crocodile will arrive on the 23rd March with drafts, and will sail for England on the 1st April with invalids and time-expired men.

The Serapis will arrive on the 31st March with drafts, and will sail for England on the 10th April with invalids and time-expired men.

The Junna will arrive in Bombay on the 9th April with drafts, and will sail for England on the 19th April with invalids and time-expired men.

SCINDE, PUNJAB AND DELHI RAILWAY.

We should imagine that the small knot of £5 shareholders in the Scinde, Punjab and Delhi Railway Company must regret their unreasoning and unseemly conduct at the last meeting. That they were but a small minority was proved by the proxies, which were over 1,400 for the directors, and only 8 for the £5 shareholders, or nearly 200 to 1. It is quite usual for companies to issue debentures with calls unpaid on the share capital, and it is not uncommon for loans to be raised on the credit of the uncalled capital, so that the disappointment of the £5 shareholders in the Scinde has been made, in our opinion, too much of, and, as more than one speaker remarked at the meeting, the Secretary of State for India could scarcely be expected to pay 5 per cent. on calls when he could raise money by debentures at 3½ per cent. It is also noticeable that those who used the most intemperate language at the meetings were the men who were, it is stated, ready to raise the £200,000 by debentures, in co-operation with the board just before the first meeting, although they denounced immediately afterwards the proposal of the directors in a manner for which there was neither provocation nor excuse. We cannot do better than conclude with the reproduction of Sir William Andrew's concise statement:—"On July 7, 1870, the Secretary of State for India authorised the raising of £2,000,000 capital guaranteed 5 per cent. interest. On Oct. 5, 1870, the company, at a public meeting, sanctioned the raising of the above. On November 14, 1870, shares were allotted in the usual manner, without any pledge, pro rata, to existing shareholders, leave being given to pay in full; this privilege continued from Nov. 14, 1870, to Feb. 27, 1874. On Feb. 15, 1871, an advertisement in the papers announced that the privilege would be withdrawn on and after Feb. 27, 1871, a circular to the same effect being sent to every shareholder on the register; this left out of the £2,000,000, or 100,000 shares, £216,540, or 14,436 shares, with £5 paid. Since the above date no call has been made on these shares, nor any sum received in anticipation of calls. In December, 1881, in answer to a question at a general meeting of the proprietors, the chairman said: 'I am afraid the Government will not allow a call to be made upon the £5 shares. They must call for money speedily, but I fear it will not be obtained in that way.'

This appears effectually to dispose of the whole case.

Home News.

LORD DUFFERIN.—The Earl of Dufferin, K.P., left Belfast on Tuesday afternoon by the Larne and Stranraer route for Balmoral. On Wednesday he resumed his journey from Glasgow by the morning mail. The Countess joined him at Perth, having travelled from London by the night express. At Ballater a carriage was in waiting to convey Lord and Lady Dufferin to Balmoral. The drive along the north side of the river was enjoyable owing to the genial weather. The Earl and Countess of Dufferin arrived in town on Sunday, from paying their respects to her Majesty at Balmoral. Lord Dufferin, who will take his departure for India on the 12th proximo, has taken reception rooms and offices at Brown's Hotel, Dover-street, where he will transact urgent business prior to leaving for Calcutta.

SIR BARROW ELLIS will preside at the banquet given to Lord Dufferin by the members of the Northbrook Club on November 1. The dinner will take place at the Town Hall, Westminster.

COUNCIL DRAFTS FOR INDIA.—Tenders for £150,000 bills on India were received at the Bank of England on Wednesday last, when £77,600 were allotted on Calcutta, and £76,000 on Bombay, tenders at 1s. 7½d. per rupee receiving about 50 per cent. of the amount applied for and above in full. The following telegraphic transfers were also disposed of:—£42,600 on Calcutta, £10,000 on Bombay, and £10,000 on Madras, tenders at 1s. 7 13-32d. per rupee receiving about 50 per cent. of the amount applied for and above in full. The total amount of bills and telegraphic transfers sold from the 1st of April to the 21st of October was £7,539,246, realising £6,184,603. Tenders for £150,000 will be received next week.

MR. LALMOHUN GHOSE.—At the National Liberal Club, on Thursday morning, Mr. Lal Mohun Ghose entertained at breakfast a number of his friends who are favourable to his candidature as a Liberal candidate for an English constituency. Mr. Ghose explained the circumstances which induced his countrymen to desire that he should endeavour to obtain a seat in the House of Commons, and expressed his intention to offer himself, when the opportunity occurred, as a supporter of the Liberal party. Messrs. Gourley, M.P., Firth, M.P., Arthur Williams, P. W. Bunting, Chesson, and Canon MacColl took part in the discussion which ensued, and on the motion of Mr. W. Digby, O.I.E., seconded by Mr. P. W. Clayden, it was resolved that a general committee be formed for the purpose of promoting Mr. Ghose's candidature. Several places which seemed likely to present an opening for making the experiment were mentioned. On the motion of Mr. R. K. Thomas a vote of thanks to the host was passed by acclamation.

NOTICES, DIVIDENDS, MEETINGS, ETC.

CHARTERED MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA, &c.—A meeting of the shareholders of this bank was held at the offices, 65, Old Broad-street, on the 21st inst., Mr. J. N. Bullen presiding. The report of the directors stated that there had been a net profit for the half-year ended June 30 last, of £67,684, after providing for bad and doubtful debts. This amount had to be added to the sum brought forward of £6,761, making together £74,445. This amount had been appropriated as follows:—£40,000 had been added to the reserve fund, increasing it to £90,000; £18,750 to the payment of a dividend for the half-year at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, leaving £15,695 to be carried forward.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.

There was little business done in bar silver on Wednesday, the quotation remaining unaltered. The Indian rates for telegraphic transfers are firm. The China exchanges and Rupee Paper show no change. India takes silver very sparingly, the shipments by the P. and O. steamers Pekin and Khedive being £25,000.

On Thursday the Eastern exchanges were weaker. Bar silver and Mexican dollars were quoted at 50½d. and 50¼d. respectively. Rupee Paper was very quiet, and prices unchanged. The P. and O. steamer Paletta sailed for the East, with £214,080 in bar silver and dollars, of which £142,500 in bar silver was for Colombo, £55,000 in silver coin for Penang, £10,500 in silver coin for Hong Kong, and £6,800 in silver coin for Shanghai. The General Werder arrived with £2,400 in specie.

On Friday the business done in silver was very limited, pending the receipt of fresh arrivals. There is no change in the quotation. Rupee Paper was weaker, the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. fell ¼ to 82½, while the Four per Cents. are unaltered at 80 80¼. The Eastern rates of exchange are—Bombay 1s. 7 5-16d., a fall of 1-32d., Calcutta 1s. 7¾d., Hong Kong 3s. 8½d., Shanghai, 5s. 0¼d.

On Saturday little business was done in the Silver Market owing to the scarcity of supplies. Rupee Paper remains dull, and prices show no change. With the exception of a fall of 1-16d. on Calcutta to 1s. 75-16d. The Eastern rates of exchange are unaltered.

On Monday the Silver Market was weak, in sympathy with the depressed exchanges. A little Bar Silver was sold forward at 50½d.; but the market is really under that figure. Dollars have fallen to 50d. per ounce. Both the Indian Exchanges are now quoted at 1s. 7¼d. Hong Kong fell ¼, to 3s. 8¾d. Four-and-a-Half Rupee Paper fell ½, to 81½, and the Four per Cents. ½, to 79½, 80½.

Tuesday's Silver Market showed no alteration. The consignment of Bars per Magellan realized 50½d. per ounce, but no dealings in Mexican dollars were reported. Indian Exchange rates again relapsed to 1s. 7 3-16d., and China rates are dull at 5s. in Shanghai, and 3s. 8½d. in Hong Kong. Rupee Paper also has shown a renewed fall in quotations, the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. closing at 81½ 82, and the Four per Cents. at 79½ 80.

Miscellaneous.

FOREIGN TRADE AT COLOMBO.—The French Consul at Colombo, in a letter addressed to the Rouen Chamber of commerce, says that "trade is entirely in the hands of English and German firms. There is not a single French retail house even in the town of Colombo, with its 1,500 Europeans and 100,000 native inhabitants. There are 65 English and German firms, and with regard to the sale of goods imported from Europe there is such a plethora of them sent from England and Germany, and sold very cheap, especially cotton goods, that there would be no opening for French articles of the same kind to be sold by commission. There is, however, plenty of room for French goods of other kinds, but they would have to be imported and sold by a French house. I have, however, for the 18 years during which I have been here, pointed out to my compatriots that they cannot hope to succeed unless they form syndicates and send to each important English town a representative with instructions to open and manage a firm of their own. There could be no difficulty in finding plenty of such representatives among the young men educated at the Chamber of Commerce Schools. As the cost of opening and keeping up these business houses would be borne by the syndicate, the burden would not be heavy to the individual merchants, and these firms would then be able to compete in regard to lowness of price with the English and Germans, especially in such articles as wines, preserved meats, vegetables, and fruits, all of which are now sent into the English colonies via England itself. So, too, with Rouen cottons and Tarare muslins, the latter of which are generally passed off as of the 'Bishop' make from England."

RUSSIAN RAILWAYS IN ASIA.—The Morning Post learns by private information from Baku that on the 26th ultimo contracts were signed at Stranovodsk for the supplying of sleepers for the extension of the Transcaspian railway to Askabad, and that the rails are already being conveyed thither by the Caucasus and Mercury Company from the Volga. From Kizil Arvat, the present terminus of the railway, to Askabad, is a distance of 135 miles. Owing to the easy character of the country the railway is not expected to cost more than £4,000 a mile, although the gauge will be five feet. The outlay will thus be £540,000, to cover which a special grant has already been made by Professor Bunge, the Minister of Finance. The first section of the railway from Port Michaelovsk on the Caspian to Kizil Arvat is 144 miles long, and cost £4,500 a mile, but this included the expenditure on the Port of Michaelovsk, and was completed by General Annenkoff in less than a twelvemonth. Fort Bami, which ranks next to Askabad as a military and administrative centre in the Transcaspian territory, is the first large point that will be touched after the locomotive pushes beyond Kizil Arvat. It is situated about thirty-five miles to the east of the latter place, and is garrisoned by the 5th Transcaspian Rifle Battalion. Quite a town is growing up here, numerous shops being erected by Persian and American traders. Large settlements of Turcomans follow at intervals, until Geok Tepe is reached. Twenty-five miles more of railway, passing through a thickly populated and fruitful country, will bring the locomotive to Askabad, 209 miles from the Caspian and about 890 to the Pishin Valley. The Russian contingent will arrive at Kizil Arvat in two or three weeks' time, and then the undertaking will be pushed on with rapidity, so as to get the work out of hand by next autumn. Even should this intention not be realised the line will be completed to Askabad some time before the Quetta extension is finished.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1884.

MINISTERIAL VERACITY.

WE are glad to see that Mr. Onslow successfully brought Mr. Gladstone to book last week about the disgraceful way in which the Prime Minister had slandered the Government of his dead rival in regard to the Indian Vernacular Press Act of 1878 in his Midlothian speeches last September. In one of those speeches Mr. Gladstone distinctly stated his belief, and was cheered for it by an Edinburgh audience, that that Act had been passed in obedience to orders telegraphed out from Lord Beaconsfield's Government at home. Of course every one who knows anything about the subject, or has taken the trouble to consult the Blue-book of 1878, is perfectly well aware that that belief of Mr. Gladstone's is exactly the opposite of the notorious facts—that the movement that led up to the Vernacular Press Act was commenced (and well-nigh carried through) by Sir George Campbell in Lord Northbrook's time, and that it was absolutely forced on Lord Lytton and Lord Beaconsfield by the almost unanimous voice of all competent authority in India. Even now the Prime Minister, while admitting the undeniable facts in reply to Mr. Onslow's question, does so in as grudging a manner as possible, and couches his admissions in such artful language, that those who know nothing about the subject will not notice how fatal the admissions are to any reputation for accuracy or fair dealing.

Unhappily, as we have seen in India, this sort of thing is contagious. When we recollect that Mr. J. K. Cross is an English statesman—and that, as we need not say we have no doubt, in his private capacity he would shrink from equivocation and falsehood as from poison—it is really difficult to understand how he could have given the answer to Mr. Agnew on Monday evening regarding the Quetta Railway, that is recorded in our Parliamentary Report. If the official reports of the Director-General of Indian Railways, that of Colonel Trevor in 1880-81, and that of Colonel Stanton in 1881-82, were sealed and inaccessible volumes, Mr. Cross's answer, so convenient to the Government and the Radical policy, might be put down to ignorance. But we have ascertained that those Reports are in the India Office Library. And now let us compare some of their statements with Mr. Cross's words in the House of Commons last Monday :—

MR. CROSS.

"The facts of the case are correctly stated in the extract from the letter of the hon. member for Mid-Lincoln (Mr. Stanhope), except in the following important particulars :—

"The surveys which he (Mr. Stanhope) described as made were not completed even to Quetta.

"As to the earthworks which he describes as being to a considerable extent done, some were partially constructed, but in most cases they were not even begun. . . . No permanent way had been placed upon the earthworks north of the Nari Gorge; there was therefore no opportunity of pulling up the rails."

Official Report, 1880-81.

The line was "surveyed throughout, and partially staked out" in 1880.—Report, 1880-81.

At time of battle of Maiwand, engines were running from Sibi on to Nari Gorge; and from Nari Gorge onward, 12½ miles of bank nearly laid and plate-laying commenced. Buildings more or less completed at the following stations :—Sibi, Nari Gorge, Khelat-i-Kila, Gunda-kinduff, Kuchali, Zindaziab, Dulojal, Spintangi, Harnai, Nasik, Sharigh (i.e., to within 3 stations of Quetta). "Defensible store-yards" had been constructed at all these places and also at Kach (one station nearer Quetta). A "service-road" had been constructed from Sibi nearly to Kach, and on to Quetta and Gulistan i-Karez (on the road to Kandahar).—Report, 1880-81.

So much for what Mr. Cross says had been done on the Quetta Railway, and for what had really been done. Next as to the fate of this line. Mr. Cross, speaking at Edgeworth, near Bolton a few weeks ago, airily declared that Mr. Hulton had been entirely mistaken in supposing the line had been taken up by the Radicals, and now again he speaks jestingly of "the delusion that a wicked Liberal Government did take up a railway in India which a good Conservative Government had laid down." Well, what are the facts, as shown in the official reports? Colonel Stanton, R.E., in the Report for 1881-82, says :—"At one time it was intended to make the line from Sibi into the Pishin Valley, and a good deal of work at the lower end was done. At the end of July, 1880,"—please mark the date, gentle reader—"the works were precipitately abandoned, and, although work was again started during the following cold weather, work on this line was finally stopped at the beginning of 1881." In the earlier report, for 1880-81, Colonel Trevor adds to this statement that the works were "shortly after (i.e., after the expedition against the Marris in October, 1880) discontinued, and the spare stores sent back to Sibi. The existing buildings were not dismantled, however, and such parts of the line as had been already laid were not lifted."

Here, then, in this obscure corner of Colonel Trevor's report for 1880-81, do we at last find the clue to all this extraordinary mass of contradictions on Mr. Cross's part! Anglo-Indians have been staggered at the boldness and precision with which Mr. Cross, on behalf of the Government, has been declaring that they had not torn up the rails on the Quetta beyond Sibi and Nari Gorge; and now we find out how he manages it. It turns out to be perfectly true that the Government did not tear up these rails—because they would not take the trouble to do so, but deliberately abandoned them to the surrounding tribes of freebooters!

It may be presumed that the "defensible storeyards," being useful to the Pathans as fortresses, have been preserved; but what of the rails, sleepers, and, above all, all the completed buildings at all the stations? The Pathans must have been amazed at all this "loot," deliberately left behind by a scuttling enemy.

With regard to the "stores" brought back to Sibi as being more of the nature of "portable property," what inquirer will ever be able to track their fertilising stream? But a delightfully ingenious method of dealing with their original cost was sanctioned by Lord Ripon; we learn, at page 38 of the report for 1880-81, that—"The works on this section (Kandahar Railway, Upper Section) having been finally stopped under the orders of Government, the outlay incurred, including loss from re-valuation and depreciation of stores was transferred to the Military Department as a war-charge!" Capital! This beats Mr. Gladstone's double-entry, in his Edinburgh figures, of the Afghan war-charges; for here we have these iniquitous war-charges, so revolting to the Radical mind, largely increased (and their odium consequently magnified) by the very self-same operation that enables Lord Ripon to get rid of the inconvenient "stores" accumulated (and paid for) by his predecessor! Nor does the ingenious device end here. We find, in the accounts for the lower section, that the burden of the costs of that section on Lord Ripon's Budget is dexterously lightened by a "credit obtained for engines and rail-carriers transferred to Punjab Northern State Railway, Rs. 3,03,357." And a further credit is taken for "Stores of the upper section transferred to this (lower) section in period under review, Rs. 3,77,938."

Here, then, from the Quetta Railway provided by Lord Lytton's Government, we find a series of magnificent wind-falls furnished, first, for the Pathans in the shape of rails, sleepers, buildings, stations, "defensible store-yards," &c., &c., kindly "abandoned" to their tender mercies, not "dismantled" or "lifted," but left almost as a going concern; and, secondly, for the impecunious Government of Lord Ripon, who sells a part to the far-distant Northern Punjab, debits another part to the memory of Lord Lytton's Afghan War, and credits his own Government with the balance!

And then Mr. J. K. Cross says that the British public has been "possessed of delusions" on the subject of the Quetta Railway.

SIR RICHARD GARTH'S MINUTE ON THE REVISED BENGAL TENANCY BILL.—II.

THE telegrams from Calcutta concerning the alleged action of Lord Ripon's Government, in consequence of the publication of the Chief Justice's Minute on the Tenancy Bill, have given an additional zest and interest to that State Paper on which we offered some comments last week. Of course the statement that Sir Richard Garth is to be recalled was an exaggeration. The publication of a State Paper may be inconvenient, but as it appears, from the subsequent telegrams, that the Lieutenant-Governor's report on the revised Tenancy Bill was communicated to the public with equal promptitude, it would, perhaps, be necessary to deport Mr. Rivers Thompson and Sir Richard Garth by the same steamer if deprivation of office were to be the penalty for the premature publication of an official report. If it is wrong to publish an official report prematurely, how much more wrong must it have been to publish and circulate a document marked "Private," as in the case of Mr. Secretary Mackenzie's wanton attack on Sir Richard Garth?

But the telegrams explain that Lord Ripon and his colleagues have professed to take offence at the fact that the Chief Justice in his Minute has illustrated his argument by referring to the facts of a case which is yet pending in appeal before the High Court of Calcutta. If it is admitted, for the sake of argument, that it would have been better to have referred to the facts of some decided case, it must be mentioned, on the other hand, that, to the best of our belief, the case is not now before the High Court for the first time, and all the facts, chiefly historical facts, have been long known to the public through the medium of Law Reports and the Government Administration Reports, which the Chief Justice cites amongst the sources of his information. But it is the application of these historical facts which appears to have rankled in the mind of Lord Ripon and his partisans. The Chief Justice desired to call attention to the important point that the Government does not appear to be bound in any way by the provisions of the new Bill. It is well to note that this is not the first time that this objection has been taken to the Bill. Mr. Roper Lethbridge, in the paper which he read before the East India Association in October, 1883, observed that he "found in the first chapter of the original Bill a very significant, a most eloquent proviso that nothing in the Act shall affect any enactment regulating the procedure for the realisation of rents in estates belonging to the Government, or under the management of the Court of Wards, or of the Revenue Authorities." It is curious to observe that in the Bill, as revised last year by the Select Committee, this provision has retired from the prominent place which it held in the first chapter of the original Bill, into the more obscure position of the last section of the last chapter of the revised Bill. It is from this obscurity that Sir Richard Garth has now dragged it; and he amplifies it by referring to the established Rule of Law that the Crown is never bound by an Act of the Legislature unless it is expressly named. The Chief Justice then goes on to point out, that although in the new Tenancy Bill the Government is proposing to put fresh restrictions on the power of ordinary landlords to enhance their rents, it had not hesitated very recently to pass two separate Acts through the Bengal Legislative Council, in order to enable it to enhance the rents of the ryots in the large and valuable estate known as Jellamutta, in the District of Midnapore. What is sauce for the goose should be sauce for the gander. The Jellamutta estate belongs to its proprietors under the laws of 1793, and the chief benefit of the enhanced rental will go to the proprietors, when the new settlement with the ryots comes into force. And, as a matter of fact, it is within our personal knowledge that the ryots are fully able to pay the enhanced rents, their lands being some of the richest in Bengal, since they have been protected from the sea by huge embankments constructed by Government out of the revenues of the State. Therefore, it is not so much that the Government was wrong in legislating specially about Jellamutta; but the Government is guilty of grievous inconsistency, and want of principle, when it attempts to legislate for all the other landed proprietors of Bengal to prevent them from obtaining the real rents, whether enhanced or otherwise, of their lands, without the interference of Judicial Courts and revenue or registration officials in supersession of the existing rights of freedom of contract.

Whilst Sir Richard Garth, with due humility, refers us to the superior knowledge of Bengal Revenue law, which his friend and colleague, Mr. Justice Field, possesses, he has run his pen through many legal defects in the Bill which should have not escaped the notice of that eminent, but according to Lord Bramwell, little-known lawyer, Mr. Ilbert, who is responsible for the technical drafting of the Bill. The Chief Justice points out that the omission to define the various kind of tenancies mentioned in the Bill must certainly lead to confusion and uncertainty.

Our readers will remember the eloquence with which Lord Bramwell denounced the use of ambiguous language in such cases. The Chief Justice further points out that where a definition has been attempted by Mr. Ilbert, it is in some cases inaccurate and misleading. For instance, a tenure-holder is described as a person who has acquired the right to collect rents. Sir Richard Garth shows us that it would be just as correct to describe a tradesman who has bought a shop as a person who has acquired a right to collect debts. The right to collect rents is merely one of the incidents of the position, when the land is sub-let to tenants; as it is one of the incidents of a tradesman's position that he has a right to collect debts when he has customers from whom they are due. With equal terseness and acumen Sir Richard Garth analyzes the legal objections to the new presumptions regarding the twelve years' occupation of lands; the futile provisions intended to prevent sub-letting, but virtually tending to encourage it, and the sections concerning the transferability of occupancy tenures; but it is inexpedient to fatigue our readers with the technical details of these questions. It will be sufficient to observe that Sir Richard Garth reserves to himself the right of again addressing the Government on any details of the Bill which he considers objectionable. He tells the Government that his opinion regarding the Bill is unchanged. "I thought it right in the year 1882, and I think it right now, to warn the Government as earnestly as I can against a policy, which, in my opinion, will ruin or seriously injure the large majority of the zemindars, and will be scarcely less injurious to the cultivating ryots. It seems to me inconsistent with the good faith of the British nation, which the native community have hitherto had reason to respect, to deprive the zemindars of their rights and position, and to sacrifice their fortunes in order to enrich a large body of mahajans and middlemen, who will neither be responsible to the Government for the revenue, nor be likely to prove as good landlords to the ryots, or as faithful servants to the Crown as the ancient landed aristocracy of Bengal."

THE ARMY CHARGES UPON INDIA.

THE correspondence just issued in a Parliamentary paper on East India (Army non-effective charges), includes an important despatch from the Indian Government, which urges that a change is imperative in the present system of dividing the non-effective charges between England and India. The Indian Government maintain that the existing system should be changed for two reasons. First, because under the operation of the system the charges thrown upon the Indian revenues are so uncertain as to create a financial position for India which was truly described by the Government of India in their despatch of February 8th, 1878, as "intolerable." Secondly, because although they are prepared to admit that if the arguments upon which the present system is based are held to be sound, they deny that these arguments are sound. On the first plea the Indian Government are decidedly of opinion that if, in addition to the very considerable difficulties which already attend the administration of the Indian finances they are to have hanging over their heads vague and uncertain demands for large sums of money by the English Treasury, it is impossible to conduct the financial administration of India with any degree of confidence. Apart, however, from the uncertainty of the charges which may accrue under the present system, the Indian Government maintain that the system itself is unjust.

There is no doubt an appearance of fairness, and we venture to think that it is only an appearance, about the present system.

An officer or soldier serves, say, for twenty in the army, of which ten years are passed in India and ten years in England. What, it may be urged, can be fairer than that India and England should contribute equally to the pension of this officer or soldier? Without doubt, if we once accept the principle that the division of charge should be made by a rateable distribution on an actuarial basis, the conclusion that each country should pay part of the pension in the exact proportion of the services which have been rendered to each is perfectly fair. But we maintain that in practice the rateable distribution is exceedingly unfair to India. It presupposes that there is a partnership between the two countries. And so, to a certain extent, there is, but there is no freedom of contract. It is a partnership in which the rich and powerful partner is able to prescribe the condition under which the business shall be carried on, with very little reference to the wishes or to the means of the poorer and weaker partner. We would invite attention to paragraphs 44-47 of our Military Despatch, No. 401, of 29th October, 1881. We would also invite attention to the following passage in Mr. Cross's letter to the Treasury of 2nd March, 1883. Speaking of the increase in the non-effective charges Mr. Cross says: "Part of the increase is due to measures carried into effect by the British Government for purposes unconnected with India, such as the abolition of the purchase system, and consequent grant of pensions to officers, the compulsory retirement of officers on attaining certain ages, the reorganisation of the Army Medical Department, and other steps which, by compelling India at once to become liable for the capital value of such pensions so far as they are due for service in that country, hinders the non-effective charge from falling in the manner expected when the arrangement was originally made."

The argument as regards the abolition of the purchase system appears to us to be particularly strong. That system existed in England from the days of William III. It was a system with which India was but little concerned until the Crown took over the direct government of the country. It certainly appears to us exceedingly unjust that the Indian revenues should be called upon to bear any charge in order to get rid of this peculiarly English abuse.

Mr. Cross, in the letter from which we have quoted above, speaks only of those military reforms which were "carried into effect by the British Government for purposes unconnected with India." We maintain, however, that even in respect to those reforms which may be said to have increased the efficiency of the Indian, equally with that of the English army, the position of India is very disadvantageous. In respect to most, if not in respect to all, of these reforms, the main question which had to be considered before they were undertaken was, we conceive, this: Is the increase of military efficiency to be gained by the reform so considerable as to more than counterbalance the increased burthen which will be thrown on the taxpayers? That is, without doubt, a very important consideration from the English point of view, and we do not doubt that on the occasion of every proposed reform involving increased expenditure, the military and financial arguments bearing upon the question have been fully weighed with reference to the military and financial situation of England. But we submit that an equal degree of consideration is not, and, indeed, cannot be shown to the Indian aspects of the case. The Secretary of State for War in England, and the Government of which he is a member, have to consider any proposed change in the organisation of the army from the Imperial and not exclusively from the Indian point of view. If no military reform could be carried out without the assent of the Indian authorities a position would be created which, we freely admit, would be intolerable. This is true enough. Nevertheless, we submit that it is equally true, if the division of expenditure between India and England is to be regulated on a purely arithmetical basis, and is to proceed on the assumption that the two countries are partners, having equal interests in respect to their joint undertaking, that the Indian authorities should have an equal voice in respect to the desirability or otherwise of carrying any proposed reform into effect. At present the Indian authorities are so far from having an equal voice in the decision on such matters that it may be said, without exaggeration, that they scarcely have any voice at all. It has rarely, if ever, happened that the Government of India has been consulted before any reforms in the organisation of the British Army have been effected, even although the execution of those reforms may have resulted in considerable burthens being thrown on Indian revenues. It may, of course, be urged that the presence of the Secretary of State for India in the English Cabinet affords a sufficient guarantee that due weight will always be given to arguments based on the wants and interests of India. The Committee of the House of Commons, from whose report we have already quoted, said that "the Secretary of State for India in Council has the constitutional right of refusing to pay for objects in which he considers that India has no interest." Great importance is, we venture to think, to be attached to a statement emanating from so high an authority on such a subject, and recognising that the constitutional position of the Secretary of State for India is different to that of any other member of Her Majesty's Government. We do not know whether the right to which the Committee alluded has ever been exercised on any important occasion. We have certainly never heard of a case in point. It is obvious that until the right is exercised it can be of little practical value to India. We doubt, therefore, whether as a matter of fact the presence of a Secretary of State for India in the English Cabinet ensures that regard for Indian interests in the execution of military reforms which India has a right to expect if the distribution of military charges between the two countries is to be regulated, as at present, on the assumption that they are partners in a joint undertaking.

From another point of view, we venture to think that the fallacy of the partnership theory is apparent, when once the arguments on which that theory is based are closely examined. The military requirements of England and of India are so different that it is impossible that there should be any true partnership in the sense in which we are now using the word. Take the case of short service. It is clear at a glance that the responsible authorities of India must of necessity view this question from a wholly different standpoint from that adopted by the authorities of England. The ultimate basis of good government at home is not to be sought in a strong and efficient army, but in the patriotism, loyalty, and contentment of a free people. The army is not maintained to preserve internal order, although it may occasionally be used to assist the civil power in suppressing disorder. It is maintained to repel invasion and to fight the foreign foes of England. The English Government has therefore endeavoured to copy the main feature of the German military system, which is this that the peace establishment of the army should be kept as low as possible, and that it should mainly be regarded as a means of training soldiers, who, when trained, should be passed into the reserve. It is neither necessary, nor is it desirable, nor is it financially possible, to keep the whole military force of England, or of any other European country, under arms in time of peace. The greatest amount of economy and of military strength is to be found in that system which maintains the lowest possible peace establishment capable of expansion to the highest possible numerical strength in time of war. Hence the adoption of the short-service system in England, and, generally, in most European countries.

It is evident that the responsible Indian authorities have to approach this question from an entirely different point of view. A reserve of British troops available for service in India would, no doubt, be very useful; but the Indian Government cannot look upon its peace establishment mainly in the light of a school or training ground for the reserve. On the contrary, the first and most important feature in any military organisation suitable to the wants of India is that a relatively high peace establishment should be maintained in order to preserve internal order. We are unwilling to use the commonplace argument that India is held by the sword, because, although it is true, we do not consider it is the whole truth, and, moreover, we disagree with many of the conclusions which are frequently drawn from this argument. There can, however, be no doubt that British rule in India rests on force, moral and physical, and, as an inevitable consequence of this condition of things, such a question as that of short service in the army, with the attendant issue involved in the constitution of a reserve, must be approached, when considering Indian requirements, from a point of view wholly different from that which would be adopted in considering the requirements of England. Under these circumstances we do not see how any partnership, properly so-called, is possible.

We maintain, therefore, that the system under which the military charges are distributed between India and England is faulty in principle. We wish to renew the proposals made by the Government of India in their despatch of 8th February, 1878, to appeal to the British Government for an impartial review of the relative financial "capacity of the two countries," and to urge that the settlement between the two Governments should "take the form either of a capitation rate based on the effective force maintained in this country, or of a yearly lump sum to be fixed in some relation to the established strength of that force."

SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM.—The following is the number of visitors to the Indian collections. TAXATION OF GOLD AND SILVER PLATE.—In prospect of the proposed exhibition, in 1886, of the art industries of her Majesty's Indian and colonial possessions, strong representations are being made by the Chambers of Commerce of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay to the Home Government, with a view to the abolition of the gold and silver duties, in April next. The subject will be brought before Lord Dufferin immediately upon his assuming the position of Viceroy, Indian manufacturers not being prepared to send their goods for the purpose of exhibition unless they have facilities offered for the sale of their productions.

invaluable medicine, and one which I have used on the success. In fact, the marvellous effects produced upon the mind and body of an Arab Sheikh, who was impervious to all native medicines, when I administered to him five

MERCHANTS, MANUFACTURERS AND SHIPPERS

OF THE UNITED KINGDOM,

COLONIES & FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

THIS WORK gives a vast amount of information respecting the business carried on between the United Kingdom and the Colonies and Foreign Countries; showing the description of goods, and the amount thereof, exported to each Colony or Country abroad, the British Ports whence shipments are made, the MERCHANTS, FACTORS, and SHIPPERS at the various Ports and Towns in England, the Manufacturers of the Principal Goods
exported, and the MERCHANTS and OTHERS
ABROAD WHO ARE IMPORTERS OR BUYERS OF BRITISH GOODS.

It also gives complete information as to the various descriptions of goods, and the amounts thereof, imported from abroad into this country, with the names of the Merchants and Shippers,
and also the Manufacturers at the Principal Towns
of the various Goods imported.

The Work is divided into three principal divisions,
the first of which comprises the various Foreign Countries and British Possessions throughout the world to which British Manufactures are exported.

Under each of these is given, first:—A Statistical Account of the Country, the Financial Position, Business Relations with this Country, with, in the case of Foreign States, the names of the British and other Consuls, the name of the Minister in this country, Consuls, Vice-Consuls, &c., at the various Ports and Places in this country; the
PRINCIPAL BANKERS, the MERCHANTS, COMMISSION
MERCHANTS, BUYERS OF ENGLISH GOODS, and the Manufacturers, &c., at the Principal Towns of the various goods imported; the various Ports in each country; also the Ports in this country whence Shipments are made; Tariffs, &c., &c.; a Tabular
Statement showing the Exports from this country during the last three years; a List of the Merchants and Shippers in the various British Towns;
List of Steamers and other Vessels sailing from the Ports; also a List of the various Manufactures that are exported from this country.

The second division comprises an Alphabetical
List of the Exporters from this country, stating the class of goods exported by them.

The third division of the Work embraces the names and addresses of the actual Manufacturers, or Manufacturers' Agents, of the articles exported, describing as clearly as possible the specialities of each Manufacturer.

The Times, September 20th, 1884.

"It is almost exhaustive as a guide to the shipping, and manufacturing industries, both export and import,

Daily Chronicle, September 12th, 1884.

"Merchants and manufacturers of all kinds will find the Directory a valuable guide, whether their interests
are concerned in exports or imports."

Daily News, September 17th, 1884.

"It abounds in information of the kind which merchants, manufacturers, and exporters are constantly in need of. Its scope, however, is not confined to the classes who in this country have business with the colonies and foreign parts, but includes also the principal merchants abroad, so that the book becomes a tolerably complete guide to the import and export industries of all countries with which Great Britain has any mercantile relation, and vice versa."

European Mail, September 26th, 1884.

"In collecting the names of foreign and colonial firms
—a task of considerable difficulty, as will be understood
—Messrs. Kelly have had the assistance of the British consuls, many of whom have given personal testimony to the important service this Directory fulfils in commercial circles abroad."

THE "VOICE OF INDIA."

A MAGAZINE THAT GIVES EXPRESSION

TO THE PUBLIC OPINION OF THE PEOPLE OF INDIA.

THERE are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing FOURTHLY (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native press throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally docile and conservative; and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth; but it is a policy of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is specially desired to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1884.

Notes of the Week.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, October 17th; Madras and Allahabad, October 15th; Calcutta, October 14th; Ceylon, October 15th; Burma, October 12th.

By the permission of the Right Hon. the Earl of Dufferin, a deputation waited on his Excellency to-day at 2 p.m. from the London Committee, formed to oppose the Bengal Tenancy Bill, for the purpose of presenting a memorial from the Committee, and of personally explaining to his Excellency the main grounds on which the committee base their objections to the Bill. The deputation consisted of Mr. C. T. Buckland, Chairman, and Mr. Roper Lethbridge, C.I.E., Secretary of the Committee; together with the following representative members:—Sir George Yule, K.C.S.I., C.B., late Bengal Civil Service and Member of the Supreme Council of India; Mr. J. Pitt-Kennedy, late Officiating Judge of the High Court of Calcutta; Mr. J. D. Ward, late Bengal Civil Service and Judge of Dacca; Brigade-Surgeon J. Berry White, Chairman of the Jokai Tea Company; and Mr. J. Dacosta, late of Messrs. Ashburner and Co., Calcutta, late Merchant and Zemindar in Bengal.

THE week's telegrams from India show that the condition of the Police Force of India will be one of the many serious questions, neglected during the recent turmoil of sensational legislation, that will have to be taken up at an early period by Lord Dufferin. The question has been one that has constantly attracted the notice of the Vernacular Press, and no reform would be more popular among all classes of our Native fellow-subjects than an attempt to establish a system that should command more general confidence.

THE disorder and anarchy so long brewing in Hyderabad, under the fostering feebleness and imbecility of the régime now happily coming to an end at Simla, threaten to come to a crisis even before the arrival of Lord Dufferin. The terrible riots in the city, and the movement of troops from Golconda, throw a lurid light on the condition to which four years of Radical folly and weakness have reduced our Eastern empire. Lord Dufferin will not land in India one moment too soon.

TROOPS, too, called out at Agra! Several persons wounded, though happily there were no lives lost. We trust that this will be held to be the last achievement requisite for earning Lord Ripon's dukedom; but anxiety will still be felt for the next five or six weeks.

No further news is reported of the massacres at Mandalay, nor of the British subjects there done to death. But more murders, dacoities, and the like are happening daily in Burma, as a sort of farewell to the departing Viceroy of India.

THE first sessional soirée of the National Indian Association, held at No. 11, Chandos-street, Cavendish-square, on Friday evening last, was a great success—as we anticipated it would be, now that Lord Dufferin's appointment to the Indian Viceroyalty affords such happy prospects of renewed cordiality between the various sections of Her Majesty's subjects in India. Much interest was caused by the presence of Mr. Amir Ali and his bride, and of Miss Chuckerbutty (the sister of the successful candidate for the Civil Service who stood highest on the list this year), and several other Indian ladies. The Sikh Sirdars were also present; and among our Indian visitors we observed the Raja Rampal Singh, Mr. Banerjia (brother of Mr. Surendranatts Banerjia), Mr. Sethna, Mr. Abdul Majid, and in fact nearly the whole Indian colony here. There was also a very large attendance of Anglo-Indians; among others may be named Sir George Campbell, M.P., Mr. Thornton, C.S.I., Mr. Roper Lethbridge, C.I.E., and Mrs. Roper Lethbridge, Mr. E. B. Powell, C.S.I., and Mrs. Powell, General Keatinge, General Macdonald, Mr. J. B. Knight, C.I.E., and the Rev. James Long. The rooms were full, and there was some excellent music, as well as an exhibition of some Indian needlework and other objects of interest. Altogether, Miss Manning and Lady Hobhouse may be congratulated on having organised a very enjoyable réunion. We should not omit to mention that there were also present many English friends of India, including Canon Harford, Mr. Cropper, M.P., Mr. Percy Bunting, and others.

WE learn that the paper to be read at the November meeting of the East India Association will be by the popular Chairman of its Council, General Sir Orfeur Cavenagh. At the December meeting of the same Society Mr. Roper will read, at the request of the author, a paper on the Civil Service question by Mr. Ginwalla, of Broach.

MR. LANGTON PRENDERGAST WALSH, son of Colonel Prendergast Walsh, has been appointed H.M.'s Consul and British Agent at Berbera. This appointment was made by Government in recognition of Mr. P. Prendergast Walsh's valour as a volunteer at Tel-el-Kebir. Mr. Walsh is now organising a Police and Custom House Service at Berbera, and the sanitary state of the town is much improved since he took charge. Mr. Walsh is also introducing Criminal and Civil Courts and other improvements.

We take the following items of personal intelligence regarding our Indian visitors from the Journal of the National Indian Association for November:—

Mr. B. S. Mankar, of Bombay, has passed the Primary Examination in Anatomy and Physiology of the Royal College of Surgeons of England. Mr. Aurung Shah (Assam) and Mr. James Tarini Coomar Mitter have passed the First M.B. and C.M. Examination of the University of Glasgow, and Mr. Promath Nath Roy the Third M.B. and C.M. of that University. Mr. K. P. Gupta, M.R.C.S. Edin., has been examined and approved for a certificate in Sanitary Science by the Examiners in State Medicine in the University of Cambridge. Mr. George Nundy, B.A., LL.D., of H.H. the Nizam's service, has been appointed an Honorary Assistant Commissioner in Berar Commission. Arrivals.—Sirdar Thakur Singh, a brother of Kumar Shiva Nath Singh, of Tajpore, cousin of the Maharaja Dhulip Singh, and his two sons, Sirdar Marendar Singh and Girdi Singh; and Mr. A. C. Homji, of Bombay; the Hon. Syed Ameer Ali, on leave from Calcutta; Dr. Shams Uddin J. Sulaimani; Mr. Abur Raza, for Law; Mr. Manik Lal Dutt, the Gilchrist Scholar of this year. Departures.—Surgeon H. E. Banatvala, Indian Medical Service, by H.M.S. Jumna; Khan Bahadur Bomanjee Sorabjee, C.E. Also for Bombay, Dr. Simeons, of Goa, who during his tour of eighteen months in Europe, besides obtaining the medical diplomas already mentioned in this journal, and a Sanitary qualification, was made at Rome a Knight of the Order of the Sepulchre, and a member of the Scientific Society of the Arcades.

Surgeon F. S. Chatterji, M.B., has invested a sum of Rs. 5,000 in Four per Cent. Government Securities for the foundation of a Scholarship to be awarded to the best student in the Calcutta Medical College of native Indian extraction, in the subject of practical and theoretical Histology.

Miss Chundermukhi Bose, M.A., has been appointed Assistant Lady Superintendent of Bethune Female School, Calcutta.

Mr. A. Borroahi, Collector of Noakhali, is compiling a dictionary of the Bengali language as spoken in different parts of the country.

We regret to hear of the death of Kumar Jevansing, younger brother of H.M. the Maharaja of Bhowanagar, who for a time studied at Cambridge, and whose interest in scientific studies showed promise of usefulness.

THE Times of India has the following obituary till the departure of the mail, October 17 :—

Major Cabrow, R.F.; Lieutenant-Colonel W. G. Trevor, 16th Bombay Native Infantry; Surgeon-Major H. B. White, senior medical officer of the station hospital at St. Thomas's Mount, Madras.

THE Englishman gives the following account of the Calcutta Freight Market, corrected to Oct. 14 :—

During the week since last mail, there has been a general tendency on the part of owners to work off their ships, and meeting the demand freely at the rates offering, we have to record a considerable amount of business. Fixtures for the American market occupy a most prominent place, no less than nine vessels having been placed for New York and Boston. For the home markets, London, Liverpool, and Dundee, eleven others have found employment. There was also somewhat more enquiry for steam tonnage, and a fair amount of engagements has been put through. Our unfixed tonnage stands now reduced to 19,000 tons.

WE take the following on the Calcutta Tea Market from Messrs. W. Moran and Co.'s Report :—

Our last report was issued on the 23rd ultimo, since which date business was suspended until the 9th instant, when 23,000 packages were brought forward; of these about Rs. 2,200 were withdrawn for shipment. Of the total quantity offered the general quality showed a slight falling off, through from the three principal districts there were several very desirable invoices for which there was good competition; for thin and inferior liquouring parcels there was less inquiry, and on the whole there was a distinct decline in prices, on "Finest" fully one anna per lb. and on "Medium" and "Good" to "Fine" half an anna per lb. The commoner sorts also declined proportionally, and owing to the large supply were somewhat neglected even at these lower rates. Further sales which will amount to, say, 20,000 chests are advertised for the 16th instant. Weather reports are more satisfactory, and the timely fall of rain will allow of manufacture being carried on to a later date than we expected.

THE same firm gives the following account of the Calcutta Indigo Market :—

Referring to the estimate of the crop in our last circular we leave the figures unchanged for the present. From the closing returns that have come to hand from Behar, we are inclined to think that the estimate of 67,500 maunds will be fully borne out, and possibly somewhat exceeded, although the total is not likely to differ very materially from the figures given. The reports from most of the Benares Provinces, and also from the Doab, have latterly been decidedly less favourable owing to heavy and continuous rain; indeed, the rainfall during September and the earlier part of this month has been far above the average, and, although we have not yet received sufficient information to enable us to properly check the estimates previously given, we would remark that it may be necessary to modify them later on, and we incline to the opinion that the total is more likely to fall short of than exceed the estimates printed in our last. Heavy rain has fallen in Champaran and parts of Tirhoot, and moisture for next year may be considered secure, but other parts of the latter district, and also Chuprah, have not yet had rain enough for that purpose, and prospects continue indifferent. Owing to the excessive rain the drying of the Indigo has been much retarded, and no parcels of Oudes have yet come to market, nor do we now expect any arrivals of importance for at least another fortnight.

SIMLA, Oct. 10.—The Select Committee's report on the Bengal Tenancy Bill will probably be presented at the meeting in the Legislative Council in Calcutta on the 24th November. This will probably be the first meeting of the Council this season in Calcutta. The report in some of the Madras papers that the Viceroy had declined the further services of Mr. Thomas in the Council is totally devoid of foundation. Mr. Thomas's tenure of appointment in the Council has expired in ordinary course, and the rule in such a case is, that unless the member is in charge of a special Bill, or unless his further presence is thought desirable on any special ground, he is not reappointed.

INDIAN DANGERS.—The Saturday Review says of the language of the articles in the St. James's Gazette, in which certain Indian dangers have been pointed out, that if it be alarmism, it is not the alarmism of the amateur. It goes too far; it commits too deeply for that. No newspaper with any sort of character for judgment or discretion to lose could act "on its own hook" in making so startling a suggestion as that which has been made, still less in urging it in such terms. Any conductor of such a newspaper would, in mere self-protection, it is safe to say, require any specific counsels of this kind, and certainly their accompanying words of warning, to be vouched by the highest possible expert authority before admitting them to a place in its columns.

Telegraphic Intelligence.

SIMLA, Oct. 31.—"The Afghan Boundary Commission is now on its way to Lashjowain. The Ameer has ordered a proclamation to be issued at Herat directing the people to accord friendly treatment to the members of the Commission."

TEHERAN, Oct. 31.—"Sir Peter Lumsden and his companions have arrived safely at Meshed. The city being one of the holy places of Persia, scarcely inferior in point of sanctity to Kerbela itself, the Mohurram is celebrated with unusual fervour by the Shia devotees who assemble there. When the Commissioners arrived the holy day celebration was at its height, and it was necessary to pass the night outside the city. To-day Sir Peter Lumsden made his official entry into the city, escorted by the contingents furnished by the Shah."

The following is the usual weekly telegram from the Times' correspondent at Calcutta, dated Nov. 2 :—

"The annual report of the Inspector-General of the Bengal police has this year attracted more attention than usual owing to the fact that several cases of gross misconduct and abuse of their powers on the part of subordinate police officers have been recently brought to light. One case in particular, in which a sub-inspector in the Purneah district is charged with having arrested a highly respected European gentleman on an evidently trumped-up charge, and treated him with the grossest indignity, occupies daily a large space in the local newspapers, and has aroused much indignation.

"It appears from the report mentioned that last year ten native policemen were convicted of torture, threats to torture, and extortion. Four of these cases were of a serious nature, and one resulted in death. The Lieutenant-Governor, reviewing the report, remarks that it is most unsatisfactory to find that in spite of the punishments inflicted this form of offence still continues, and is not confined to police officers of the lower grades. These remarks might be applied with equal truth to every province; for there is no doubt that throughout India the policeman is often more of a terror than a protection to the people. What is needed in order to stamp out this heinous species of crime seems to be a more candid recognition of its existence, greater strictness of supervision on the part of European police officers, and increased severity on the part of the Judges in awarding punishment to policemen convicted of abusing their powers.

"Another interesting minute lately issued by the Bengal Government is that reviewing the last year's administration report of the Presidency, or Metropolitan division. Some of Mr. Thompson's remarks on the spirit of the native Press merit quotation. He says:—'No doubt last year was one of exceptional excitement, unfavourable to calmness and moderation; and no one could be less desirous than I am of judging the native Press on the evidence which such times afford. Indeed, it must be admitted that the absence of calmness and moderation was not peculiar to the native Press last year, and that the English journals lost much of the self-restraint and good-feeling which are usually their honourable characteristics. But English journalism in Bengal has, with insignificant exceptions, recovered its proper function of temperate criticism, while native journalism as a rule is still disfigured by a spirit of reckless hostility, of ready acceptance of unfounded rumours, and of proneness to impute unworthy motives to the Government and its officers. Many utterances of the native and Anglo-native Press during the year were such as to bring the papers containing them within the scope of the criminal law.'

"After mentioning that in three instances applications were made to Government by native officers to sanction the prosecution of calumnious articles in vernacular papers, and after enlarging on the benefits of a free Press honestly conducted, Mr. Thompson proceeds:—'But when it is seen that day after day the Anglo-native and vernacular Press abuses its opportunities and the forbearance of Government to propagate among a credulous people libels on individuals officers, false imputations on the courts of justice and disloyal comments on the Government itself; then it becomes a serious question whether, in the interests of the country and of the mass of readers and their circle of auditors who are thus being misled, toleration may not be pushed too far.'

"The persons who were convicted of complicity in the serious riots which occurred at Salem two years ago have all been released by order of the Madras Government. The judge who tried them recommended that the sentences should be reconsidered after two years if the people of Salem behaved well in the interval, and, as profound peace has prevailed there since 1882, the Government has acted upon the recommendation.

"A somewhat serious affray between Hindoos and Mahomedans occurred at Agra last week. It took its origin from an encounter between a Hindoo religious procession and certain Mahomedans who were celebrating the Mohurram festival. Several people were wounded, but no lives were lost. The military were called out to restore order.

"There are further signs that the recent agitation against the annual removal of Government to the hills is likely to bear some fruit. A committee is about to assemble at Calcutta to consider what offices which have hitherto been removed every year to Simla may be in future permanently fixed at Calcutta. It is believed that the cases of the Inspectors-General of the post office, telegraphs, and railways, and their respective establishments will be first considered.

"It is stated that the news of the recent indignation meeting at Rangoon has greatly alarmed the Burmese Government, and that the Ministers are looking anxiously for some indication of the views of the Indian Government. It is also said that they are ready to throw off their allegiance to King Thebaw and to declare for the Mengwoon Prince at a moment's notice. Dacoities are increasing in all directions, and it is reported that more murders have been committed in the Palace, but so much secrecy is observed that information on this point is uncertain. The exodus to British territory continues steadily."

BOMBAY, NOV. 2.—"Serious disturbances between the Arabs and the police occurred at Hyderabad during the celebration of the Mohurram Festival. Eleven of the police were killed and several wounded. The Arabs looted the police stations and pillaged some houses, causing a panic in the city, where all the shops and houses were closed. The Nizam, with great promptitude, summoned troops from Golconda. The Arabs then dispersed, and order is now restored. A Council was subsequently held, at which the Nizam was present, and a committee of inquiry was appointed."—Reuter.

The following is from a special correspondent of the Daily News, dated Meshed, Oct. 31:—

"Sir Peter Lumsden arrived here to-day. Every honour was paid to the Commission on its arrival by the Governor-General of Khorasan. Splendid tents were erected in a garden, and ceremonial visits will be exchanged. To-morrow the Commission proceeds to Sarakhs."

Home News.

"THE ARMIES OF THE NATIVE STATES OF INDIA."—The four articles on "The Armies of the Native States of India," which attracted considerable attention when they appeared in the columns of the Times in August and September last, have been reprinted in an octavo volume and published by Messrs. Chapman and Hall.

COUNCIL DRAFTS FOR INDIA.—Tenders for Rs. 15,00,000 in bills on India and telegraphic transfers were received on the 29th ultimo at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—In bills on Calcutta, Rs. 7,88,000, average rate 1s. 7.243d.; and Bombay, Rs. 3,10,000, average rate 1s. 7.2d.; in telegraphic transfers—Calcutta, Rs. 5,00,000, average rate, 1s. 7.25d.; and Bombay, Rs. 2,50,000, average rate 1s. 7.25d.; or a total of Rs. 18,48,000. Tenders for bills on Calcutta and Bombay at 1s. 7.3.16d. will receive about 50 per cent., and 'above in full'; and for telegraphic transfers on Calcutta and Bombay at 1s. 7½d. about 50 per cent. Later in the day six lakhs of transfers were specially sold at 1s. 7.9-32d., five being allotted on Calcutta and one on Bombay. From April 1 to last week the total amount of remittances disposed of reached Rs. 7,75,54,467, and realised £6,359,276.

LORD DUFFERIN.

The Earl of Dufferin has declined to accept an invitation of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce to dine with the Chamber before his departure for India, but has consented to receive a deputation from the Chamber on November 6th.

The Earl of Dufferin had an interview with the Premier at his official residence in Downing-street on Thursday last.

Lord Dufferin was entertained at dinner on Saturday night at the Town Hall, Westminster, by the members of the Northbrook Indian Club prior to his departure for India. In the unavoidable absence of the president, Lord Northbrook, Sir Barrow Ellis, K.C.S.I., occupied the chair. A number of the most distinguished members of the club, with one or two specially invited guests, supported him. Among those present were the Marquis of Salisbury, Lord Kimberley, Lord Napier of Magdala, Lord Reay, and Lord Lawrence; Sir Henry Rawlinson, Sir Thomas Brassey, M.P., Sir Henry Havelock-Allan, Sir Lepel Griffin, Sir George Campbell, M.P., Sir Richard Couch, Sir Charles Brownlow, Sir Richard Pollock, Sir Frederick Goldsmid, Sir Joseph Fayer, Sir Douglas Forsyth, Sir Henry Daly, Sir Louis Jackson, Sir Joseph Caird, Sir Andrew Clarke, Sir Alexander Arbuthnot, Sir George Kellner, Sir Robert Stuart, Sir Michael Westropp, Sir William Andrew, Sir Ashley Eden; Mr. Cross, M.P., the Hon. C. Lawrence, and the Hon. E. Drummond; the Nawab Shums-ud-Dowlah; Kumar Sham Singh, Rajah Rampal Singh, Mr. Jehangir Dosabhoi Framjee, Mr. Bhowanagree, Generals Dickens, Allen Johnson, Foster, Beynon, and Trevor; Colonels Yule and French; Messrs. Maclean, Edwin Arnold, Roper Lethbridge, Seymour Fitzgerald, Bou'ger, Juland Danvers, Ashburner, Thornton, Pedder, Melville, Leitner, and many other gentlemen both native and English. The proceedings were private. After the toast of "The Queen-Empress" had been drunk with the usual honours, Sir Barrow Ellis proposed in appropriate terms that of the guest of the evening, to which Lord Dufferin replied in a speech of about half-an-hour's duration. His reference to the experience he had acquired in Turkey, and to the necessity of trusting to our own vigilance and valour in dealing with even a friendly government of Russia, was received with enthusiastic and renewed applause. No further speeches were made, and the company separated at an early hour. Lord Dufferin, however, remained some time later in conversation with different native gentlemen. According to present arrangements, the new Viceroy will leave England for India on Thursday, the 13th inst. His Excellency will travel by way of Bombay, and will proceed to that port in the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company's new steamer Tasmania, embarking at Tilbury somewhere about noon. The Earl will be accompanied by Lady Dufferin, Lady Helen Blackwood, and the Hon. Miss Thynne, and by the following members of his suite, Mr. Mackenzie Wallace, private secretary; Lord Herbrand Russell, Major Cooper, Mr. Balfour, and Mr. M'Ferran.

NOTICES, DIVIDENDS, MEETINGS, ETC.

BOMBAY GAS COMPANY.—The directors of the Bombay Gas Company (Limited), in their report for the half-year ending June 30th, state that the loss on exchange on remittances amounting to £34,716 was £6,926 at a fractionally higher rate than 1s. 8d. per rupee. Of this sum £4,526 had been charged to profit and loss, and the balance of £2,400 written off the exchange equalisation account, thus leaving £3,200 at the credit of the latter. The profit balance, including the sum brought forward, is £10,799. After placing £2,200 to the reserve fund, the balance for appropriation will be £8,599, out of which the directors have declared an interim dividend of 3½ per cent., tax free, and payable on and after the 1st of December.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.

On Wednesday the Peshawar left for Bombay with £25,000 in bar silver. Bar silver and Mexican dollars remained at the last quotations, viz., 50½d., and 50d. per ounce, but the market is quite flat. To-morrow it may be tested by the amounts that have arrived by the West India packet. The unsatisfactory sales of India Council drafts helped to increase the weakness of quotations. Four-and-a-half per Cents. Rupee Paper fell ½, to 81 8½, Four per Cent., ¼ to 79½. The Bombay exchange came again at 1s. 7.3-16d.

On Thursday Rupee Paper was somewhat steadier, closing at 81½ for the Four-and-a-half per Cents., and 79½ for the Four per Cents. The Medway only brought about £25,000 of bar silver, but yesterday's price was not obtainable, and 50½d. had to be accepted for the consignment. The Mexican dollars by the same steamer had been mostly sold for arrival, and the small balance was placed at the previous quotation, 50d. The Elbe from Brazil has arrived with £9,544 in specie. Advices from Holland state that 800,000 Dutch guilders have been withdrawn from currency and melted down into bars. The Eastern exchanges are weaker.

On Friday bar silver was quoted at 5s. 7.16d. per ounce, and dollars nominally at 50d. The depreciation is rapid, and affords striking evidence of the increasing stagnation of Eastern trade. Eastern exchange still continues to fall. Bombay was quoted at 1s. 7.5-32d., and the Calcutta rate fell 1-16d. to 1s. 7½d. Shanghai rate was quoted at 4s. 11½d., but no further change took place in the Hong Kong quotation, which is still 3s. 8½d. Rupee Paper was steady at 81½d., 81½d., and 79½d. for the Four-and-a-half and Four per Cents. respectively.

On Saturday the price for bar silver, 50 7.16d. per ounce, was all but nominal, and no business whatever was done in Mexican dollars. The exchange rate from Calcutta has fallen to 1s. 7.3-32d., but Shanghai remains at 4s. 11½d., and Hong Kong at 3s. 8½d. Rupee Paper is unaltered.

On Monday the Four per Cent. Rupee Paper declined ¼ per cent. to 79½. The Four-and-a-half per Cents. were unaltered at 81½. Bar silver declined 1-16d. to 4s. 2½d. per ounce.

OBITUARY.

Colonel William Gordon Trevor, of the 16th Regiment Bombay Native Infantry, died on the 8th ult. at Bombay. He entered the Indian Army in 1854, became captain in 1868, major in 1876, and lieutenant-colonel in 1890. He served with the 80th Foot in the Indian Mutiny campaign of 1858-59.

Mr. Christopher Beckett Denison died suddenly on Thursday last in Ireland. He was the second son of the late Sir Edmund Beckett, of Grimthorpe, Yorkshire. He was born in 1825, and was educated at Uppingham and Haileybury, from which latter college he in 1845 entered the Civil Service of India. After holding various offices in Bengal, the Punjab, and Oude, he retired from the service in 1865. He sat as a Conservative for the West Riding from 1868 to 1880, in which year he and Viscount Lascelles unsuccessfully contested the Eastern Division of the Riding against Sir Andrew Fairbairn and Sir John Ramsden.

THE "INDIAN STATESMAN" ON THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

The Indian Mirror fears that the zemindars of Bengal are not likely to join in any movement in honour of Lord Ripon upon his retirement from the Viceroyalty, "on account of the Bengal Rent Bill." We think better of the zemindars. They know very well moreover, as the Mirror says that Lord Ripon is in no way responsible for the Bill. From first to last, it is purely a conception of the local (Bengal) Secretariat. A promise had been long made by the local Government to give the zemindar proper legal facilities for the recovery of his rental, but it unfortunately happened that when this promise was apparently coming to fulfilment, the Secretariat was in the hands of comparatively young men with very little, if any, experience of district life, and who held that the zemindar was very extortionate, and that the true cause of the difficulty he experienced in realising his rents was their exorbitancy. It was natural in these circumstances that they should bring in this Rent Bill. Lord Ripon confided in them as 'experts,' and they have misled both him and Mr. Ilbert.

"The Bill," adds our contemporary, 'is an inheritance of which Lord Ripon could not rid himself, but it is almost certain that Lord Dufferin will pass the Bill into law almost as soon as he takes charge of the Viceroyalty.' We think not. We hope to see the Bill withdrawn, not because there is no need of legislation; for we believe there is very great need of it. But the present Bill has been drafted from first to last under a total misapprehension of the facts. Instead of the zemindar being an oppressor, many causes have co-operated to have him show a moderation in his demands that has certainly produced very great mischief. What we all want to see is the actual cultivator sitting at so moderate and so fixed a rental that every incentive is given to his industry, and that sales and transfers of the occupancy enjoyed by him should become as rare as they are now mischievously common. The Bill should be withdrawn, and a new Bill drafted to meet the two special evils of the ryot's refusal to pay his rent, and of the sub-letting practices which create simply a vast class of middlemen tenures pretty certain to result eventually in rack-renting. The difficulties in the way of successfully arresting the latter evil are very great, but there is no reason why the zemindar should not be at once invested with just legal power to recover the very moderate rental he is claiming.

As to Lord Dufferin passing the Bill, Lord Dufferin will never pass it if he once knows the facts. As an Irish landlord he has been familiarly acquainted with "tenant right" disputes for the last twenty years at least. Long before Mr. Gladstone brought forward his first Irish Land Bill in 1870, legislation of the same order had been contemplated and actively discussed. Lord Dufferin took a very prominent part in the controversy upon the subject that raged early in 1867. Two very long letters from him that appeared in the Times in January and February, 1867, on this very question, have been declared to be the ablest contributions that had been made to the discussion of the question up to that time. They occupied seven or eight columns of the Times, and the concluding passage of the second letter runs as follows:—

I have now finished my ungracious task. To many I shall have appeared to take the part of the rich against the poor, the strong against the weak; while the general drift of my argument will have run counter to the instincts of that great Liberal party to whose principles I am attached, and to whose enlightened policy Ireland has been so much indebted. But questions affecting the present condition of that country are beyond the cognizance of party politics. Where truth and justice are concerned, the distinctions between rich and poor are in abeyance. My object has been to establish truth and to advocate justice. The doctrine that Ireland is to be saved by the sacrifice of the rights of property is a violation of both. To those who doubt it, I commend the well-known lesson taught in a heathen age by a barbarous people:—"When young Cyrus presided over the mock tribunal established in his school, two boys of unequal size pleaded before it, each wearing a cloak that seemed to fit him; but the long cloak belonged to the little fellow, who had been forced to exchange it for the exiguous mantle of his big companion. Cyrus confirmed this act of violence on the plea of expediency. But the unjust judge was flogged by the yet higher authorities, for failing to perceive that what is unjust can never prove expedient—a doctrine embodied in a nobler precept,—Ye shall not do evil that good may come."

It only remains for me to thank you, Sir, for your kindness in allowing me to address your readers at such unreasonable length. A better proof could not be given of the warm interest taken by the people of England in the prosperity of Ireland than that so large a share in the columns of the Times should have been allowed to the consideration of her interests.

There is no one in India perhaps who can to-day recall this old controversy except Lord Ripon, but it will be reassuring to all classes to know that Lord Dufferin will come to the study of the question here better prepared perhaps than any other man that could have been selected for his high office. We are tempted to advise Lord Ripon to have nothing more to do with the Bill. He has been utterly misled, as has Mr. Ilbert also, as to the facts on which the Bill professes to be founded—and he should land the task over to his successor, who will be more fortunate in many respects than himself.

REDUCTIONS IN MILITARY EXPENDITURE.

It perhaps will hardly be believed that whilst the annual cost of a native infantry regiment is Rs. 1,60,285, the Commander-in-Chief of India and his personal staff alone cost the country no less than Rs. 2,32,540 per annum. Taking the separate items from the budget we find them to be as follows:—Commander-in-Chief, Rs. 1,00,000; military secretary, Rs. 18,000; Persian interpreter, Rs. 15,960; three aides-de camp, Rs. 19,680; one temporary aide-de-camp, Rs. 1,450; one native aide-de-camp, Rs. 5,400; one medical officer, Rs. 12,500; one apothecary, Rs. 3,480; seven clerks, Rs. 15,240; six servants, Rs. 460; hospital establishment, Rs. 360. The above, which are purely salaries, make a total of Rs. 1,92,530. But this is not the whole of the expenditure incurred on behalf of his Excellency. There is an extra Simla allowance of Rs. 2,010; travelling allowances, Rs. 18,000; postage charges, Rs. 200; office rent, Rs. 1,100; miscellaneous contingencies, Rs. 12,300; tour expenses of the Commander-in-Chief, exclusive of ordnance and transport charges, Rs. 6,000. These extras make up the total of Rs. 40,010, and this and the above salaries give the sum of Rs. 2,32,540 as previously mentioned. Taking some of the items seriatim the first that must strike everybody is the very large salary which is paid to his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, no less than Rs. 8,333 per month. We do not imagine that any officer in the German army receives anything like such handsome pay. For the actual work done by the Commander-in-Chief, it seems to us that such a rate of pay is simply preposterous. Rs. 7,000 per month would, we consider, be amply sufficient for the chief of the army in India, which will give him Rs. 84,000 a year. Another reduction which, we think, might be made without any detriment to the efficiency of the service, is the abolition altogether of the appointment of Military Secretary, for the work that is performed by that officer could be much better done in the Adjutant-General's Office with the existing establishment. Another appointment which might also well be done away with is, we consider, that of the Persian Interpreter, whose duty consists in translating about a dozen petitions a month, and passing them on to the Adjutant-General's Department for report. This arduous work could, probably, be as well done by a munshi on Rs. 100 a month. It is difficult to say what services the three regular aides-de-camp and one extra aide-de-camp render to the Commander-in-Chief, but most of them are of a purely formal nature. But even granting that his Excellency requires some personal assistance to be always at hand, in the discharge of his public duties, we think one aide-de-camp on a consolidated pay of Rs. 500 a month would be quite sufficient. We would retain the native aide-de-camp, as his appointment is of a purely political nature, but we would abolish the other three aides-de-camp. We consider that the appointment of a special medical officer on his Excellency's personal staff is also unnecessary, as well as the apothecary and hospital establishment, for surely with his handsome pay the Commander-in-Chief can afford to employ the Civil Surgeon at the stations in which he may reside. As we have said above that the Military Secretary's services might be dispensed with, there can be no occasion to keep the seven clerks who are employed in his office, for two soldier clerks on Rs. 100 a month each, appointed to the Adjutant-General's office, and told off to do the special work of the Commander-in-Chief, would be quite sufficient. If this were done, the items of extra Simla allowance, travelling, office rent, and miscellaneous contingencies, might almost entirely be abolished. The most inexplicable item on the list is the Rs. 6,000 for the tour of his Excellency, which is described as "exclusive of ordnance and transport charges." But whenever the Commander-in-Chief goes on tour, he either travels by rail or marches, and all his expenser, therefore, must be included under either ordnance or transport charges. The total of the items that we would allow to remain would, therefore, stand as follows:—Commander-in-Chief, Rs. 84,000; one Aide-de-Camp, Rs. 6,000; one native Aide-de-Camp, Rs. 5,400; two soldier clerks, Rs. 2,400; extra Simla allowance to office establishment, Rs. 1,500; travelling charges of ditto, Rs. 1,000; postage, Rs. 200; miscellaneous office contingencies, Rs. 1,200. These sums together amount to Rs. 1,02,800, and if we deduct this from the present cost of Rs. 2,32,540, we find a saving under this one item alone of Rs. 1,29,740. The general answer to such propositions for reduction is that if you reduce the pay you will not get the same stamp of men, but any one who knows the officers of the British army is well aware that numbers of them are to be found who do not regard making money as the chief object of their profession, and who would consider Rs. 7,000 a month quite an adequate compensation for discharging the duties of Commander-in-Chief in India.—Englishman.

RUSSIAN V. ENGLISH GOVERNMENT.

In referring to the honours and appointments conferred upon Major Alikhanoff by the Russian Government some of the native papers recently entered into a comparison of the respective merits of Russian and British rule, much, of course, to the disadvantage of the latter. We are not in the confidence of the Russian Government, and cannot, therefore, say what motives prompted them in exalting Major Alikhanoff; but if the truth were known we should probably find that they were actuated by any but the benevolent intentions with which they are credited by some people in this country. In any case, this isolated instance of liberality proves nothing beyond that the Russians have found Alikhanoff a suitable instrument in carrying out their policy, and have astutely utilised his services in positions of trust which he has proved himself competent to fill. The British Government have nothing to fear from a comparison of their treatment of alien peoples with that of the Russian Government. In fact, the more the people of India are led to make such comparisons the better it will be for British supremacy. Unfortunately, the vernacular papers do not, or will not, see what tells against Russian rule, and whilst ever ready to laud an incident, such as the appointment of Alikhanoff, they pass by in silence occurrences which go to show how despotic and cruel Russia really is. We perhaps can assist this class of writers to a proper comprehension of the subject by drawing attention to a few facts mentioned in the newspaper accounts of the Czar's recent visit to Poland. This unfortunate country has been under Russian rule for many years, and the benign principles upon which the Government is conducted have had full time to produce the results which might be expected. Let us see what those results are. The correspondent of the Times tells us that the railway from St. Petersburg to Warsaw was for the entire distance of 700 miles completely in the possession of Russian troops. Bivouacs and sentinels were stationed at every eighth of a mile or less, and the platforms of all the stations were crammed with noisy soldiery, with a military commandant over the civil and other authorities of the station. The railway from Warsaw to Novogeorgiosk, a strong fortress about an hour's ride from the city, where some military manoeuvres took place during the Czar's visit, was even more rigorously guarded. "The closer together and more concentrated became the sentinels supported by a line of hired peasants with sticks in the rear," remarks the correspondent, "the more conscious we became of a nearer proximity to the presence of the Czar of all the Russias and King of a large portion of Poland." In the fortress itself the correspondent and his friends were "hustled about with Cossack whips and infantry bayonets in crossing the bridges, and had to put up with many similar inconveniences before being able to drive round the positions." It was, however, near Skierniewice where the meeting of the three Emperors took place that the greatest precautions were taken. Addressing his communication from Ruda, one station from Skierniewice, the writer says:—"The line of railway is guarded on either side by a line of infantry posts in front, a line of Cossack pickets in rear, with couched lances as though an enemy were in view, and besides this, at longer intervals still further behind, there is a line of peasants or disguised police. Never was such precautions taken to guard even the Emperor of all the Russias. Masses of people are being pushed back roughly three hundred yards or more in the streets of the villages en route by the Cossack patrols. The Imperial train is expected here from Novogeorgiosk to Skierniewice. Not an inch of ground can escape the vigilant eyes of the unprecedented number of military railway guardians. Private gardens and entries all along the route are strongly guarded. I saw a soldier raise his rifle to fire on some girls, who approached too near in their own garden, but they hastily retreated into the house." Let us turn from this picture to another, which is brighter and more attractive, and in which the colours are not so glaring. The son of the Queen-Empress of India is now on a visit to Cashmere, and on his way thither he paid a visit to the extreme northern limits of the Empire to districts inhabited by some of the most fanatical of Her Majesty's subjects. What do we find? That the line of railway was guarded by masses of troops, that the people were kept from approaching within 300 yards of the place, not where the train stopped, but through which it passed, and that innocent females were threatened with the rifle for walking in their own gardens? No. His Royal Highness travelled with his consort in the simplest manner possible, and was on every hand received in the most cordial manner by the simple inhabitants, who did their utmost to show their ruler's son honour. His guard during his visit to the Khyber, the most dangerous part of his journey, consisted of a body of the natives of the country, not larger than would probably have accompanied any officer of his military rank, and at other times there was no greater show of military force than was necessary for ceremonial purposes. Let our native friends ponder over these facts, and see if they cannot find in them a striking proof that British rule with all its shortcomings is infinitely to be preferred to the crushing despotism of Russia with its contemptuous disregard of all principles of Liberal Government.—Times of India.

THE NEED OF A RESERVE.

There are a great many questions connected with the army, both in this country and in England, which press for settlement; and although Rome was not built in a day, and improvements and changes in army organisation cannot be carried out, as popularly supposed, by a stroke of the pen, still it must be confessed that the delays in introducing that which everybody considers desirable are somewhat disappointing. A few years ago the question of introducing a reserve system for the native army would have been scouted as wild and impossible. But various writers on military subjects have gradually familiarised the army and the public with the idea, and there are at this moment probably few experienced regimental officers who would not support what was once looked upon as an extravagant notion, that some kind of reserve is necessary for the native army. A great deal has been written on the subject, and already the literature in this branch of army reform is assuming very considerable dimensions. But it will be generally allowed that, provided no political danger is encountered, few armies are better constituted than those of India for the application of a limited reserve service. A large number of men annually leave the army for various reasons—some with short service for reasons of a domestic or family character, and others, because they pass the invaliding board only to recuperate themselves in their native villages, and after a brief space to take up again the rôle of the healthy husbandman. It is not possible that any one who looks at the experience of the last few years can say that a reserve is not wanted, or, at least, some means for bringing up the strength of the Native Army to the necessary level for war, and for sustaining it at a proper height. There is, of course, the danger that the lessons of the late war may be forgotten, and the time and the men pass away before anything is done. Those who put forward the plea of political danger could never have understood the proposals which had been made from time to time for forming a reserve to the army. All that is proposed in the schemes hitherto brought forward is that a certain number of men, after their training in the army, shall be placed in reserve, a part of which will be liable to be called out for active duty, and a part liable for cantonment duty only. In fact, the plan is merely to utilise a portion of the large number of trained soldiers who are now annually passed into the civil population.

In the extracts from the report of the Army Commission which were published in this country, the reserve proposed by that Commission was of a very limited nature, and was divided into two parts—the first reserve for active service, and the second for garrison duty. The terms of service were necessarily altered, and it was considered that after twelve years' service with the colours a soldier would pass to the first reserve, in which he would serve for nine years, and then be transferred to the second reserve, or pension list, and he would then only be liable for garrison service on emergency. The first reserve, as proposed, would consist of 19,000, and the second reserve of 33,000 infantry. This gave 200 men per infantry regiment in the first reserve, and 320 men per regiment in the second reserve. It is needless to say that this plan, proposed by the Army Commission, and supported by a large body of regimental officers, has never been carried out, but has shared the same fate as the other recommendations of the Commission, good, bad, and indifferent.

The subject has, however, again been revived by the United Service Institution of India choosing the subject of "A system of reserves for the native army as at present organised" for the Gold Medal Essay of the Institution for 1883-84. The medal has been won by Captain Barrow, of the 7th Native Infantry, who has presented the army with an able and carefully-argued paper. The evils entailed by our present lack of reserves are well known to all those who were engaged in the Afghan war. The only means of increasing the strength of regiments was by recruiting. Battalions entered upon the war numerically weak, and the recruits enlisted were of no use, the greater number of them being unfit to join the ranks until the campaign was over. The present Deputy Adjutant-General Colonel Collett, an officer of great staff and regimental experience, has recorded his opinion in a very plain and practical manner. He tells us that the Punjab was overrun with recruiting parties bidding against each other, and that regiments had to send their best non-commissioned officers and men, and even British officers, to recruit. The result was a number of half-trained raw lads to supply vacancies in the ranks.

Captain Barrow considers that we cannot call out reserves for little wars, or even for the moderately big ones, and concludes that we cannot reduce the peace establishment. With the last conclusion most people will agree, although they may not be in accord with Captain Barrow in his view that the reserve could only be used in a life-and-death struggle of large proportions. We admit that to call out the whole reserve for anything short of a great campaign would be a mistake; but we consider that it would be quite as great a mistake not to call out the regimental reserves when their battalions were proceeding on service which, to our Indian experience at least, might be of considerable magnitude. If Captain Barrow had any knowledge of the strain on the Native Army caused by the campaigns of Umbeyla and Abyssinia, he would, we think, modify his opinion. Besides, if the reserve is never called out, there will be no real test of the efficiency of the system; for calling men together for the purposes of brief training, and calling them up to proceed on active service against the enemy, are two very different things. And if a further argument is wanting, it may be found in the fact that if the reserve is never used the reason for its existence would not be apparent, and it would assuredly fall a victim to the exigencies of financial pressure.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE VICEROY leaves Simla on the 10th November, and visits Umritsur, Delhi, Agra, Muttra, Benares, and Darjeeling, arriving at each place on the 13th, 14th, 18th, 21st, 25th, and 29th, respectively, finally reaching Calcutta on the 2nd December.

THE Duke and Duchess of Connaught have arrived at Srinagar, and are being royally entertained by the Maharajah of Cashmere.

It is officially notified that H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught has passed the lower standard examination in Hindustani.

SIR DONALD STEWART leaves Simla on the 5th inst. for Umballa. His Excellency will subsequently proceed on a short tour of inspection, reaching Calcutta on the 28th November.

THE Peshawur Frontier Bank, Limited, has suspended payment, and its assets are being liquidated.

MR. JOHN BRIGHT, writing to a Bengali author who had forwarded him a copy of his works, says that to him it is a great mystery that England should be in the position she now is in relation to India. "I hope," he adds, "it may be within the ordering of Providence that ultimately good may arise from it."

THE Government of India have decided that local Governments in future may require candidates for the statutory Civil Service to pass an examination prior to appointment. The Bengal Government have arranged for an examination of candidates to fill the two vacancies allotted to the Bengal Presidency.

COLONEL CHAPMAN delivered a lecture at Simla on the 11th ult. on the subject of the employment of reserve soldiers. The Viceroy and the Commander-in-Chief were amongst the audience.

THE Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has issued a circular to all Commissioners of Divisions regarding the precautions to be taken for the prevention of suffering from scarcity in the districts where the rainfall has failed.

THE Select Committee's report on the Bengal Tenancy Bill will probably be presented at the meeting in the Legislative Council in Calcutta on the 24th November.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE NEW VICEROY.—The Englishman says: "It is to be hoped that the different associations in Calcutta, including also the Defence Association, will take time by the forelock in preparing their addresses of welcome to the new Governor-General, Lord Dufferin, on his arrival. We may also suggest that his lordship should be asked to enter the town from the railway station by the same route as that followed by their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, namely, along the north side of Dalhousie-square by the new range of Government offices, and then along the east side of the same square and Old Court House-street, entering Government House by the east gate. We feel almost certain that if this route was adopted the residents and shopkeepers along the line would ornament the street and their houses in almost as handsome a manner as they did on the arrival of the son of the Empress."

FURTHER recruiting at Darjeeling for the Assam Frontier Police has been forbidden, the men recruited there last year having proved of inferior physique. Dogras, a race of hill Rajpoots, are now being recruited from this force. Some 86 of them were enrolled last year.

THE MULTAN OUTRAGE.—The three soldiers of the Manchester Regiment who committed an outrage at Multan on the night of the 22nd ult. have been tried by the Deputy Commissioner. Private Byrne has been committed on a charge of murder to the Chief Court. He was brought here on the 11th ult. under a military escort, and awaits his trial in the Central Jail. The other two, Macdonald and Carnegie, have been sentenced to six months' imprisonment each for mischief.—Indian Daily News.

TEA NOTES.—The weather has been seasonable in Sylhet. The prospects of tea are not favourable in Cachar. The weather is warm and rain is wanted. Hot weather is the news from Kamrup. Rain is wanted for tea and sali; sugarcane is doing well. Darrang has experienced very hot and sunny weather; rain is badly wanted. Tea is doing fairly well. The weather has been very hot in the early part of the week in Goalpara, rainy and cloudy in the latter. Jute is being cut. Tea and sugarcane are doing well in Nowgong. Rain is much wanted for the sali dhan. Cholera is reported from several districts.—Indigo and Tea Planters' Gazette.

OUR correspondent with the Zhob field force telegraphs that Shah Jehan has visited the Bori Valley with the object of inciting the people against us. His mission, however, was a failure, and the Bori chiefs have since "come in" to the British camp.—Bombay Gazette.

THE Government of India has issued a Resolution accepting the invitation of the Prince of Wales to take part in the Indian and Colonial Exhibition to be held in London in 1886.

CONSIDERABLE excitement has been caused amongst the planting community of Bengal by the arrest, without a warrant, on a groundless charge of stealing a calf, of Mr. Richard Charles Walker, of Purneah, a gentleman highly respected in the district. Mr. Walker was honourably acquitted of the charge, and the native sub-inspector of police, who was responsible for the arrest, has been suspended pending inquiries into his conduct.

BOMBAY.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR left Poona on the 14th ult., and will visit Purandhur, Sattara, and other places, arriving at Mahabaleshwar on the 17th or 18th inst. His Excellency hopes to arrive in Bombay on the 1st November, and on the 5th will proceed to Kurrachee, Cutch, Kattywar, &c, returning to Bombay to receive the Earl of Dufferin on the 24th proximo.

THE Bishop of Lahore arrived in Bombay from England by the last mail.

THE amount subscribed to the Frere Memorial Fund in India up to date is Rs. 17,944.

THE charge of defamation brought by Major Hogg, of the Poona Horse, against the Poona Observer has been withdrawn on the defendants making a full apology and unreservedly withdrawing all the imputations made on the complainant's conduct in connection with the recent race dispute at Poona.

ANOTHER charge of defamation, arising out of some comments made upon the magistrate's decision in Major Hogg's case, has been brought by Mr. Cursetjee Dhunjeeshaw against the proprietor and printer of the Deccan Herald.

At a meeting of native gentlemen held in Bombay on the 12th ult. it was resolved to request the Sheriff to call a public meeting for the purpose of taking steps to commemorate in some suitable form the services rendered by Lord Ripon to the natives of this country.

WE understand that Mr. Nana Morojee has been offered the post of Dewan to H.H. the Maharajah Holkar. He left Bombay for Indore on Tuesday evening.

THE Bombay Government have made a grant of Rs. 2,500 in aid of the English translation of the Mahabharata, which is being undertaken by Babu Protap Chandra Raj, secretary to the "Datanya Bharata Karyalaya."

THE smoking concerts of the Minnesingers Society will be resumed at an early date. Mr. Wyer has undertaken the conductorship for the ensuing season, Mr. J. R. Johnston remaining as honorary pianist, whilst Mr. Roughton has taken over the honorary secretaryship from Major Dundas.

A VACANCY having occurred in the representation of the Byculla Ward in the Municipal Corporation in consequence of the absence in England of Mr. E. R. Freeborn, Dr. R. Blaney has been put forward as a candidate for the vacancy by a large number of influential voters.

THE NATIVE COMMUNITY AND LORD RIPON.—A meeting of native gentlemen held on Sunday at Mazagon Castle, the residence of Sir Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy, Bart., it was resolved to request the sheriff to call a public meeting of the native inhabitants of the city, for the purpose of taking steps to commemorate, in some suitable form, the services rendered by Lord Ripon. It was evidently the feeling of the meeting that an Industrial School, bearing Lord Ripon's name, should be established, and a statue should be erected if sufficient funds were forthcoming. A provisional committee was formed to take steps to convene an early public meeting. An opinion was confidently expressed that large sums of money would be forthcoming to enable the committee to carry out the several objects for which the public meeting is to be convened.

A MEETING of the editors and members of the native Press was held on Sunday at the residence of the late Mr. Morarjee Goculdaz, Girgaum Back Road, and it was unanimously resolved to present an address to Lord Ripon expressive of their acknowledgments of the valuable and enduring services rendered by him to the native Press.

THE inhabitants of the different zillas of this Presidency intend to submit to his Excellency the Right Hon. the Noble Marquis of Ripon a valedictory address through the Poona Survajnik Sabha. The noble Viceroy will be invited to come here for a day or two.—Poona Observer.

THE G. I. P. RAILWAY.—The statement of traffic for the week ending the 11th ult. shows an increase in receipts of Rs. 91,649.

THE B. B. AND C. I. RAILWAY.—The approximate return of traffic for the week ending the 11th ult. shows a decrease in receipts of Rs. 4,554.

STATEMENT OF SILVER BALANCE IN THE MINT.—The value of silver in the Mint on the morning of the 6th October was Rs. 30,40,080; in addition silver received during the week, Rs. 15,43,298. New coin paid during the week, Rs. 1,328. The balance left was Rs. 45,81,540. There is in addition silver bullion worth Rs. 6,51,760 belonging to private individuals deposited in the Mint vaults, awaiting assay.

MADRAS.

MRS. SCHARLIEB has been appointed to lecture in midwifery to the lady students of the Madras Medical College.

THE BANGALORE CUP.—The Bangalore Cup, fired for on the 16th ult., was won by the Oxfordshire Regiment. The Hampshire Regiment was second, and the Bangalore Volunteers third. The shooting of the Oxfordshire team and the Volunteers was excellent at 600 yards. Sir Frederick Roberts was present, and took great interest in the event.

THE N.E. MONSOON.—The north-east monsoon fairly set in on the 16th ult. at Madras. Early this morning there was a good deal of lightning, and considerable rain.

THE MEINGOON PRINCE has been interviewed by a special correspondent of the Bombay Gazette at Pondicherry. The Prince is determined to make for Saigon as soon as an opportunity offers. He disavows any ill-feeling towards his brother and sister, the King and Queen of Burmah, and declares that he entertains no resentment against the English.

THE BOMBAY EXHIBITION.—The Madras Mail deprecates the holding of the Bombay Exhibition in the same year as the London Exhibition, and concludes its article on the subject by remarking that Bombay had therefore better reconsider its decision, and refrain from continuing in a course of action which may prejudice the London Exhibition and militate against the success of the Bombay venture.

MARRIAGE OF A MADRAS CIVILIAN.—The Lewis McIver, well known in connection with the Salem riot trials, has married a niece of Sir Moses Montefiore. This step is expected to give yet another step to Mr. McIver's juniors in the Civil Service—the fourteenth in the current year.

ANOTHER case of a soldier running amuck is reported. In this instance, Private McCormack shot a comrade, Corporal Ford, at Bangalore.

THE Indian Daily News says:—"The fact of 15lbs. of gold, all of it raised in Mysore, having been shipped to England from Madras in the course of the last month, appears to have turned the heads of the Madrasis. A local paper founds an article on the text of these shipments—an extraordinary jumble about King Solomon and Ophir, Josephus and Job, San Francisco, Australia, and Bonanza—which strongly suggests that the editor at any rate has been driven off his balance by wild imaginings of the great eventualities to which the small beginning of 15lbs. of gold in a month—value Rs. 21,700—might possibly point.

THE BANGALORE BREACH OF PROMISE CASE.—The breach of promise case, Sherwood v. King, was called on the 10th ult. Mr. Gordon, solicitor, addressed the Court on behalf of the plaintiff. The judge, after hearing the arguments, promised to deliver judgment on the 20th ult.

MADAME COULOMB is to deliver a lecture shortly at Madras on the working of the Theosophical Society.

NATIVE JOURNALISM.—The Calicut Observer made its debut on the 4th instant. It is a fairly well-printed paper, in English, and is rather amusing, for the last column would be blank were it not partially occupied by the following notice:—"This is only the beginning of our paper. We were not sure how much matter was required to fill up our paper, and thinking we had sufficient, we did not exert ourselves to get more. We therefore beg our readers will excuse us this time for the space left blank, and we hope to make ample amends in future."—Mail.

BURMA.

THE MANDALAY MASSACRES—Rangoon, Oct. 12.—Yesterday afternoon the Town Hall was crowded with thousands of people of all classes and nationalities, including Burmese, met together to express their indignation at the Mandalay massacres. Placards had previously been posted all over the town denouncing King Theebaw. Several gentlemen addressed the meeting. The following resolutions were carried by acclamation:—"That this meeting desires to bring to the special notice of Her Majesty's Government the misery and distress which the misgovernment in Upper Burmah under its present rule, culminating in the recent massacres, are entailing on the inhabitants of that country." "That considering that this province of British Burmah has a population of the same nationality as Upper Burmah and that the tranquillity and prosperity of the two countries are intimately associated with and bound up in each other, this meeting desires to urge upon Her Majesty's Government the absolute necessity of immediate interference." "That whilst this meeting has no desire to dictate to Her Majesty's Government, it is of opinion that immediate action is necessary, and strongly recommends the annexation of Upper Burmah, or failing that, that it should be placed in the position of a protected state within the Empire, with a prince other than the present ruler on the throne." A memorial to Government is to be submitted with these resolutions. A counter demonstration by interested parties failed. Only printed slips were circulated declaring that no massacre was committed. Their story is that the prisoners endeavoured to break out of jail and killed the jailor, hence the troops were called out, and in quelling the rebellion several prisoners were killed. Great excitement prevails, and the King's agent is very uneasy.

EFFORTS are being made to get up a counter-demonstration to the mass meeting to denounce the Mandalay massacres.

OCT. 13.—To day's papers agree that the successful demonstration of Saturday surpassed all expectations. The Gazette says that those who did not get to the Town Hall an hour before the advertised time of the commencement could find no standing room. The large attendance of Burmese proves their appreciation of British rule, and their desire to put an end to misrule and cruelties in Upper Burmah. Considering that the King's agent, timber monopolists, and elders had used threats and persuasions to prevent Burmese attending, their doing so in such numbers was surprising. All the resolutions were printed and read in English and Burmese, so they fully understood the objects of the meeting. The Times says the muster of Burmese and their hearty support of the resolutions frees Europeans from any possible charges of Jingoism. Supported by all classes and creeds, the objects of the meeting are purely humanitarian, and the meeting having been so enthusiastically unanimous, it is difficult to see how the Government can ignore its protests.

CEYLON.

H.E. THE GOVERNOR, with Lady and Miss Gordon and suite, arrived in Colombo from Kandy by the afternoon train on the 2nd ult. being met at the station by a number of officials, a guard of honour of the R.D. Fusiliers being in attendance. On the 4th ult. Sir Arthur presided at a general meeting of the Ceylon branch of the Royal Asiatic Society.

ON the 15th ult. the Governor was to open the session of the Legislative Council, and his opening speech is looked forward to with a good deal of interest and some anxiety. We shall be greatly disappointed if he has no "good news" to tell us regarding railway extension. As the Planters' Association have unanimously chosen Mr. Downall as their representative in Council, the only seat that will be vacant is that hitherto occupied by the Collector of Customs. At the last session this official did not take his seat, as there was a probability of an amalgamation between his office and that of Treasurer. This has not been carried out, so it is rather difficult to understand why the seat is to be left unfilled.

THE Ceylon Planters' Association had a general meeting in Kandy on the 6th ult., when Mr. Downall was unanimously chosen as the planting representative in Council, a vote of thanks to the late member, Mr. J. L. Shand being accorded. The sub-committee on the cacao disease presented their report, which, we are glad to say, was a reassuring one, showing that matters are not so bad as was feared, and that the recent severe and continued drought was largely responsible for the sickness among cacao plants. Helopeltis is shown to be the chief though not the only pest which attacks the plant; shelter is absolutely essential and shade advisable. Some discussion took place on a motion of Mr. Shand's regarding the management of the Ceylon railways by the Government, especially in view of the recent refusal of the Governor to make any alterations in the running of trains on the Matale line. Mr. Shand thought that there should be some unofficial control in the working of the railways, and the Chairman spoke rather strongly of the want of consideration shown by Government for the convenience of the public, going so far as to throw doubt on the veracity of the Governor's statement of a saving having been effected on the Matale line. The new Badulla Association was affiliated to the parent body.

THE COLOMBO LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.—The Legislative Council was opened on the 5th ult. The Governor's speech states that the Government note issue has been decided upon. Another large reduction in the military vote has been granted. New taxes (will be imposed through stamps and customs. Irrigation works are to be carried on.

Miscellaneous.

THE SALEM RIOTS.—A telegram from Madras states that the persons who were imprisoned at the end of last year for participation in the Salem riots have been released by order of the Madras Government.

GENERAL SIR GEORGE GRAVES, who relinquished the position of Adjutant-General of the Indian Army on the 30th ult., has been selected for a divisional command in that country.

Among the awards of gallantry recently published, a silver medal, for a gallant attempt to save the life of a boy who fell overboard in the Red Sea was awarded to Major J. E. Goodwyn.

H.M.S. "CROCODILE."—The troopship Crocodile left Bombay on the 1st inst. for Portsmouth.

THE VICEROYAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.—At a meeting of the Legislative Council on the 9th ult., the Rangoon Waterworks Bill, and the Bill amending the Indian Salt Act were passed. In moving that the latter Bill be passed, the Hon. Sir Auckland Colvin stated that, owing to further information from Bombay, it had been determined to omit the second section. This will probably be the last meeting of the Council at Simla this season.

AN IMITATOR OF CAPTAIN WEBB.—A daring attempt was made on the 18th ult. by Captain G. H. Farrell, orderly officer to the Nizam, to swim across the Hoossain Sauger Tank, a distance of 2 miles. It was a lovely afternoon, and the bund presented a most animated appearance. Crowds of natives had been assembling since the morning, and by 4 o'clock p.m. it was a most imposing sight to see hundreds of people standing on the confines of the tank, watching eagerly the bold undertaking. The start took place at a quarter to 5 o'clock, the water being unusually rough. The Nizam arrived with his suite at a quarter past 5 o'clock, and came on a second sluice which commanded a fine view of the tank. His Highness watched most attentively the progress of the brave swimmer, whose daring attempt he had encouraged by his presence. As evening closed Captain Farrell was seen approaching the shore, and at a quarter to 7 o'clock he swam right to the front of the sluice, saluted the Nizam, and jumped into the boat amid the shouts of the natives and the hurrahs of the other spectators present. We believe he intends swimming around the tank, a distance of about 12 miles.

THE OUTRAGE ON AN ENGLISHMAN.—A telegram from Puneah to the Indian Daily News says:—Yesterday (October 7) the Magistrate's Court was the scene of great excitement, being crowded by almost the whole of the European community of the district, both official and non-official, and several native gentlemen of standing were also present to express their sympathy with Mr. Richard Walker, a much-esteemed indigo planter of the district. He had been arrested without a warrant, or any charge being preferred against him by a native Sub-Inspector of Police, who asserted that he was in possession of stolen property. After being subjected to insulting language and many indignities, he was sent under a police escort to the station of Puneah where the Magistrate, after promptly holding an inquiry, exonerated him and suspended the Inspector, pending the investigation of a charge brought against him by Mr. Walker, under Section 220 Indian Penal Code, and minor counts. Mr. Walker is an Honorary Magistrate, and a Lieutenant of Volunteers, and one of the few gentlemen who remained in the district during the Mutiny when it was deserted by the majority of its European inhabitants. He took part in the action fought near the native town of Puneah, for which and other services he has received the Mutiny medal and a letter of thanks from the Government of India, and is deservedly respected by both the European and Native communities of the district. The facts, as deposed in the case, are substantially as follows:—In September last Mr. Walker lost a young bullock from his herd, and from information received discovered it in possession of one Mohur Gope, who produced the animal and begged for forgiveness. Mr. Walker, not wishing to compound a felony, reported the facts to the police, when Mohur put in a counter-charge against Mr. Walker's cowherd for stealing the same bullock. A sub-inspector of police, Lalooram Paray, had previously made an inquiry into a charge against Mr. Walker's gomastah, and had, on that occasion, said in the presence of the district superintendent that Mr. Walker had fabricated false evidence in order to screen his servants. He was then called to order by the district superintendent, and warned that proceedings for defamation would be instituted against him. This same sub-inspector was deputed by the police to inquire into Mr. Walker's case. He went to the factory accompanied by five constables, but Mr. Walker protested in writing against his conducting the inquiry, on the ground that he was already prejudiced against him. Unheeding this protest, after a brief consultation with his constables, he rushed into Mr. Walker's office-room and there arrested him. When asked on what charge, he shouted into his ears—theft, theft, theft! By this time a crowd of natives had gathered round the house, and the inspector, taking Mr.

Walker out, said in Hindustanee, loud enough for the bystanders to hear, ab to up bay-ajut hoai, ab baki ka raha. He then ordered the constables to remove Mr. Walker to Puneah, and to be careful that he had no opportunity of consulting a lawyer before being sent to the lock-up. When they had reached the cross roads just outside the factory compound, the inspector ordered him to undress in order that a description of his person might be taken. To this indignity he refused to submit, and his ryots and other servants who had followed warned the police that they would not permit any such outrage on the person of their master. Mr. Walker restrained, with no small difficulty, his people from rescuing him from police custody. On arriving at Puneah, Mr. Walker insisted on being at once taken before the Superintendent of Police, who expressed his surprise at his arrest, particularly because he had instructed the sub-inspector to return both charges under form C. Late at night Mr. Walker was released on bail of Rs. 100. The result of the proceedings I have already stated.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

THE Government of India have sanctioned the formation of a camp of exercise for the regiments comprising the Hyderabad Contingent Force. The camp is to be formed at Joulua on or about the 1st January, 1885, and, it is understood, will last for three weeks. The following regiments and batteries of the Contingent will take part in the exercises:—The 1st, 2nd, 4th Regiments of Cavalry; the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd Regiments of Infantry, and Nos. 1, 2, and 3 batteries of Field Artillery.

SURGEON-MAJOR G. C. CHESNEY, in medical charge of the 4th Ghorkas, proceeds home on furlough this month.

CAPTAIN G. H. LANE, Royal Munster Fusiliers, having been removed to the 1st Battalion, has been ordered to proceed home to join, doing duty with troops.

THE 30th Punjab Native Infantry will march from Meerut on the 15th instant, en route for Peshawur, where they to arrive about the 16th December.

REST camps at Delhi and Bandikui have been formed, with effect from the 1st instant. The formation of rest camps at Mhow and Neemuch has been ordered.

COLONEL D. SHAW, Madras Staff Corps, late Commandant 3rd Infantry, Hyderabad Contingent, has been ordered to do general duty at Thayetmyo, British Burmah.

MAJOR A. G. HUTCHINS, General List, Madras Infantry, has been appointed Officiating Deputy Quartermaster-General, Madras Army, vice Major D. J. S. McLeod, on furlough.

CAPTAIN W. H. E. DOBIE, Royal Artillery, having joined at Calcutta from sick leave, has been posted to the charge of the Ferozepore Arsenal, vice Willoughby, proceeding home for instruction in gunnery at Shoeburyness.

THE orders for the grant of a special bounty to soldiers who may prolong their service with the colours in India are to continue in force to the 1st of April next. The bounty is not admissible to non-commissioned officers and men on, or probationers for, the Unattached List.

THE leave granted to the following Bombay officers has been extended:—Major A. R. T. McIlrae, Infantry, 196 days, private affairs; Surgeon-Major Arnott, M.D., 61 days, medical certificate; Captain Monteith, S.C., three months, medical certificate; and Surgeon-Major Walsh, six months, medical certificate.

THE services of Major A. T. S. A. Rind, Deputy Assistant Commissary-General, 2nd class, having been placed at the disposal of the Foreign Department for employment with the Boundary Commission, his place will be filled up in the Commissariat Department, Captains Sandys and Hervey most probably obtaining a step.

REGARDING the grant of short leave to sea, or out of India, to probationers of the Staff Corps, on medical certificate, the Government of India has decided that such leave is to be specially limited to six months; during which time an officer may draw half of his staff pay, with Indian pay and allowances, exactly as if the leave were taken in India.

FURLOUGH to Europe for one year on private affairs has been granted to Lieutenant-Colonel W. F. F. Waller, V.C., Joint-Administrator of Sangli; and to Captain W. A. Wetherall, Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General for Musketry, 3rd Circle Bombay Presidency. Lieutenant W. Elliot, R.A., 1st subaltern, No. 1 (Native) Mountain Battery, has been allowed furlough to Europe for 182 days, in consequence of ill-health.

THE Commander-in-Chief in India, accompanied by the Quartermaster-General, the new Adjutant-General, the Military Secretary, and Captain Owen, aide-de-camp, will leave Simla on the early morning of the 5th proximo for Umballa, where he will remain, as the guest of the General commanding the Division, until the morning of the 7th, when he leaves for Meerut. His Excellency will reach Delhi on the 11th, paying flying visits to Ulwar, Bhurtore, and Muttra, and arrive at Agra on the 13th, there to halt until the morning of the 16th. A few hours will be given to Aligarh; about a day each to Bareilly and Shahjehanpur, and Lucknow will be reached on the morning of the 19th, for a halt until 6 a.m. on the 22nd. Then to Cawpore for two days. A short stay will next be made at Benares and Dinapore, His Excellency reaching Calcutta by the mail-train due there at daylight on Friday, the 28th November. General Sir Charles Macgregor runs down to Nussereabad, and joins the Chief at Meerut.

THE command of the 40th Native Infantry will fall vacant on the 18th instant, when Colonel Rowcroft will complete seven years as a commander of a regiment. Lieutenant-Colonel H. Morton, who has served for over twenty-six years with the regiment, will obtain the vacancy; Major Sir C. Broomhead being second-in-command.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

INDIAN TEA.—The following is from Messrs. G. White and Co's. Indian Tea Memoranda from 23rd to 30th Oct:—There has again been a large quantity brought to auction, which has comprised a good general assortment of useful teas, though the quality as a rule has been inferior to that sold at the commencement of the month. During October 100,000 packages of Indian and Ceylon have been offered against 104,000 packages for the same month last year; but for September and October there have been 182,000 packages against 176,000 packages for the same period of 1883. The market closes this week with an easier tendency especially for common and thin-liquoring Pekoes, for which a ½d. and in some cases a 1d. per lb. reduction has had to be accepted to make sales.—Ceylon: The supplies continue on a moderate scale, and with a steady demand, prices have ruled firm for all full-flavoured and useful descriptions.

COFFEE.—From Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson's market report:—The supply at auction since the date of our last has been 621 casks, 121 barrels, 113 bags, which chiefly sold; low middling and palish, 54s. to 59s.; middling, 60s. to 64s.; good middling to fine, 65s. to 75s.; bold, 73s. to 85s.; fine, 86s. to 98s. 6d.; a few lots extra fine bold, 106s. to 107s. 290 cases, 2,126 bags East India bold Coorg at 78s. to 85s.; good middling, 61s.; low middling to middling, 54s. to 59s. Naidobatum, rather bold, 74s. to 75s. 6d.; medium, 58s. 6d.; other kinds included bold at 70s. to 84s.; middling, 56s. to 60s. 10 bags Johore: Liberian berry, 46s.; in the cherry, 44s. 197 half-bales Mocha were bought in above the value.

COTTON.—Messrs. Robert Barbour and Brother have published the following, dated Manchester, Oct. 31:—"The volume of trade in this district has decidedly increased during the month. The Indian demand has improved in quantity, if not in price, and some business continues to be done for China, notwithstanding the still unsettled political difficulties. The serious decline which of late has taken place, but especially within the last week, in Eastern exchanges, combined with the advance of the Bank rate, has had a restrictive effect on the operations of buyers, necessitating reduction of limits. Prices, on the whole, are abnormally cheap, and, although quotations vary with the individual position of producers and thus show considerable irregularity, the bulk of the month's business has been at rates about 1½d. lower in shirtings and from ½d. to ¾d. less in twist than those current at date of our last. The firmer tone manifested in the raw material has reflected a nominal strength to this market, quotations being advanced, but so far as we can observe without any real following."

A MARRIAGE took place on Tuesday, October 21st, at Little Portland-street Chapel, Langham-place, between Syed Ameer Ali, M.A., barrister-at-law and member of the Legislative Council of India, and Isabelle, second daughter of Mr. H. Kobustamm, of Gloucester-place, Portman-square. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. Voysey, assisted by the Rev. G. Wicksteed.

LORD DUFFERIN AT THE NORTHBROOK CLUB.

By far the largest and most influential gathering of the combined Indian and Anglo-Indian communities in London that has ever come together assembled at the Town Hall, Westminster, under the auspices of the Northbrook Indian Club, to do honour to Lord Dufferin, and to bid the new Viceroy God-speed on his great and difficult mission. It had been intended to hold the dinner in the rooms of the Club at 3, Whitehall Gardens; but the enthusiasm with which the idea was taken up, both by the Indian and by the English members of the Club, soon outstripped the accommodation afforded there, and it was heartily agreed that the extraordinary nature of the occasion warranted such a departure from custom as is involved in the temporary migration of a club to a large public building like the Town Hall at Westminster. The result amply justified the decision of the Committee. The absence of Sir Richard Temple in America, of Lord Northbrook on his road home from Egypt, and of Lord Lytton in the country, deprived the event of three prominent Anglo-Indians; but with these exceptions, it may truly be said that there was not a single important Indian community or interest or office unrepresented at the banquet.

The political significance of the gathering was unmistakable, and is of the happiest omen. The presence of Lord Salisbury by the side of the excellent chairman, and that of Lord Kimberley by the side of the guest of the evening, we hail with enthusiasm—as indicating that the strong common-sense of Englishmen, and the “Imperial instincts of a proud and ancient race,” have at last asserted themselves, to suppress for ever the miserable folly, born of the frenzy of 1880, of making our Empire the shuttlecock of party. And if anything were wanting to show that the rapprochement on Indian questions, guaranteed by Lord Dufferin's appointment, is not confined merely to Conservatives and Liberals, it was afforded by the presence of Sir George Campbell, proving that even an advanced Radical can be a non-party man when the Empire is at stake. It is, we repeat, of the happiest omen when public men holding the views of Sir George Campbell and Mr. J. K. Cross are found on such an occasion shoulder to shoulder with proved patriots like Lord Napier of Magdala, Sir Henry Rawlinson, Sir Lepel Griffin, Sir Alexander Arbuthnot, and scores more who were present. Nor was less unanimity shown by the various sections of our Indian fellow-subjects now in England. We believe that there was hardly a single absentee among our Parsee and Muhammadan visitors, and if there were a comparatively smaller number of Hindoos present, it will be remembered that the fact of the entertainment taking the particular form of a dinner rendered the presence of so many Hindoos and Sikhs all the more significant.

The proceedings were “private,” in the sense that no reporters had been invited to attend, and we shall, therefore, not attempt to draw aside the decent veil that properly covers the private hospitality of a club. The real event of the evening has, however, been noticed in most of the London papers of yesterday morning; it was, of course, the remarkable demonstration of strong and apparently unanimous feeling that greeted Lord Dufferin's telling reference to the frontier question. Every part of His Excellency's thoughtful and admirably delivered speech was received with warmth, and when he referred to his work in Egypt and Turkey, to the cordial relations established and confirmed between himself as the Ambassador of England and His Imperial Majesty the Sultan, and to the value of the Muhammadan sympathy thus gained, the enthusiasm of the audience, especially among the Indian portion of it, was great. But when, in passing naturally to his St. Petersburg career, and his friendship with M. de Giers and other famous Russian statesmen, Lord Dufferin avowed, nevertheless, his conviction that “the defence of a frontier must depend not on the forbearance of a foreign Power, however friendly, but on our own vigilance and valour,” ringing cheers, again and again repeated with ever-increasing emphasis, and taken up with equal warmth by the Indian as by the English part of the audience, must have shown His Excellency that, in striking the key-note of Empire, he had awakened a responsive chord in the heart of every loyal subject of the Queen, irrespective of race, creed, or colour. We venture to predict with some confidence that we shall hear very little more of disloyalty in India for the next five years to come. With a brave and true man at the head of affairs, we believe that the owls and bats of sedition, insignificant alike in numbers and in reputation, will seek the obscurity that is congenial to them; and any enemies of the British raj, whether from without or from within, will find both Englishmen and Indians alike prepared to give a good account of them.

MR. BLUNT ON COMPETITION-WALLAH CIVILIANS.

MR. WILFRID SCAWEN BLUNT has published another article in the October number of the Fortnightly Review, which is devoted to what he calls “Race-hatred” in India. Those who wish to see the condition of India through Mr. Blunt's spectacles should certainly read the whole of what may be conveniently called this eccentric article. Mr. Blunt's views are decidedly eccentric, and in proof of this it may be sufficient to cite his opinion that the presence of English ladies in India is one of the principal causes of Race-hatred, i.e., on the part of the natives towards the English. Whether Mr. Blunt derived his opinion on this question from native authority, or conceived it from his own imaginings, it is not easy to say. He is certainly personally responsible for avowing his own predilection for that state of things, when in times, now happily long past, the English settler took to himself a quasi-wife from amongst the daughters of the land. But on this delicate question it will be best for our readers to consult Mr. Blunt's own statements. Our present object is to direct public attention to another cause of "Race-hatred" which Mr. Blunt has succeeded in discovering; and it will, perhaps, be rather a surprise to some people to learn that the introduction of the competition system, in the appointment of the members of the Civil Service in India, has had this disastrous and totally unexpected effect. But lest we might be suspected of misrepresentation we must beg to let Mr. Blunt state his case in his own words. He says:—

Another cause of the bad relations between the Indians and their English masters has been explained to me to be this. Under the East India Company, the official hierarchy, being the servants of a commercial corporation, were mainly recruited from certain families, already connected by ties of service with India, and imbued with traditions of rule, which though far from liberal, were on the whole honourable to those who held them, and not antagonistic to native sympathies. The officer of the Company looked upon himself as the protector of native India against all comers, his own countrymen as well as others; and it was generally found that where European planting and native interests clashed, the collector or magistrate was inclined to favour the latter rather than the former. As a rule, he belonged to a rank of life superior to the non-official Anglo-Indian, and the distinction of class was felt. Indeed, it often happened that there was more sympathy of breeding between the Company's servants and the well-born Hindu or Mahomedan gentleman than between the same servant and the English 'adventurers of the towns, or the English indigo-planter of the country districts. With the adoption, however, of open competition for the Civil Service, another class of official has been introduced into India, who is distinctly of a lower social grade, and who in so far exercises less authority over his trading fellow-countrymen, and, the natives say, is less kind and considerate towards themselves. A young fellow, say the son of an Ulster farmer, is pitchforked by a successful examination into high authority in Bengal. He has no traditions of birth and breeding for the social position he is called to occupy; and is far more likely to hobnob with the commercial English of his district, than to adapt himself to the ceremonial of politeness, so necessary in Oriental intercourse. He is looked upon by the European planters as one socially their inferior, and by the well-bred native as little better than a barbarian. He is lowered, therefore, I am told, in the social scale, and is far more frequently under the influence of his tagrag English fellow-countrymen than in former days. I cannot say that I have met with men of this description myself, but I have heard of them frequently, not only from the natives, but from the English too, as a new difficulty of the situation. What I did notice was, that throughout the agitation on the Ilbert Bill, the planters had a considerable backing in the official world. It was evident that the two societies were united in a way which would have been impossible in old times in their opposition to the native hopes.

As many of the competition-wallah civilians have acquired a fair knowledge of English law it may be some satisfaction to them to observe that Mr. Blunt admits that he never met any of the class whom he describes; and he, therefore, depends entirely on hearsay and second-hand statements, or opinions not amounting to evidence. He has had a recent rival in Mr. Chamberlain, who has sought to beguile the House of Commons with evidence, as he calls it; but which, on examination, turns out to be a collection of unattested copies of ex parte statements of interested persons, irregularly or illegally recorded before incompetent official authority. Mr. Blunt obviously relies chiefly on the statements made to him by well-bred natives! Has Mr. Blunt ever heard the story that when the competition-wallahs began to flow into the Service, so that their front ranks were mingled with the rear ranks of the disciples of Haileybury, the well-bred natives not occasionally made some unfortunate mistakes in deciding the scions of the old civilian families (for whom Mr. Blunt has such a regard), in the belief that they were competition-wallahs? If the well-bred natives were not Mr. Blunt's authority it may be asked who the English people were from whom he derived his information? He surely did not condescend to mix in the society of the English adventurers of the towns or with those persons whom he describes as the tagrag of his English fellow-countrymen? But Mr. Blunt is, unfortunately, not always consistent even with himself. The old class of civilians, whom he praises with the fervour of a laudator temporis acti, were, as he remarks, "the servants of a commercial corporation." And he adds that there was more sympathy of breeding between the old servants of the Company and the well-born Hindu or Mahomedan gentleman. Mr. Blunt is a breeder of Arab horses, and apparently he would have it believed that whilst the sires of some of the old civilians were of English blood the dams were of an Oriental strain. Does he really believe that half-caste civilians, the servants of a commercial corporation, were a superior race of rulers to those able men who now fill almost the whole ranks of the Civil Service of India? We do not admit for a moment that the old civilians were half-castes or tinged with Oriental blood, but it apparently serves Mr. Blunt's purpose to praise them, so that he may depreciate their competition successors. Mr. Blunt is anxious to replace the competition civil service by natives of India, and it is, therefore, his policy to decry the competition-wallahs. But it would be much more to the point if he could show that the natives of India are well qualified to step into the places of the competition-wallahs, or how the English Government could be carried on by a set of men whose chief characteristic, according to Mr. Blunt, is "Race-hatred" of the English.

LORD RIPON'S ADMIRERS.—A well-attended meeting of the citizens of Ahmedabad was held on the 13th ult. at the Nagar-hett's Mansion, as previously announced, to consider the question of inviting Lord Ripon to Ahmedabad. All classes of the population were represented. Rao Bahadur Nagarsheer was in the chair. Rao Bahadur Bechurdass Ambaidass, C.S.I., Khan Sahib Cowasjee, Muncherjee, Rao Saheb Runchorlal Chotalal, Rao Saheb Mahiputram Rupram, and other gentlemen made suitable speeches, recounting the noble measures introduced by Lord Ripon and praising the schemes of local self-government generally. A committee consisting of influential gentlemen was appointed to send a letter of invitation to the Viceroy and to make the necessary arrangements. The Secretary of the Poona Sarvajanic Sabha, who was present on the occasion, expressed his delight that the inhabitants of Ahmedabad appreciated the administrative measures of the great statesman, who in his short time of Viceroyalty had done so much for India, and hoped that such appreciative demonstrations would not only give satisfaction to the retiring Governor-General, but would give some notion of the gratefulness of the people of India to the coming Viceroy. Throughout the proceedings cheers were repeatedly given expressing admiration for Lord Ripon and his policy. The proceedings terminated with the customary vote of thanks.

WORK FOR LORD DUFFERIN.—It is becoming a serious question as to whether the Indian Government should not adopt some means to prevent the native Press from publishing falsehoods directly calculated to prejudice the people against British rule. This is systematically done, not merely by the little rags of newspapers which are published at provincial towns, but by leading organs of native opinion. Among these latter, the Indian Mirror deservedly takes a high place, and yet its editor prints a letter which he must have recognised as distinctly disloyal. This effusion, which comes from Moradabad, begins by deploring the culpable conduct of the Government in winking at the tyrannical conduct of European officials. As an instance of the shameful doings of these alien despots, it is there related that a European civil officer who lately took up duty at Moradabad, one day brutally assaulted with his fists a native inspector of police, a man of good social position. The only offence of which the inspector had been guilty was that he did not salaam to the sahib as the latter was sitting on his horse. The infuriated Englishman instantly got off, abused the frightened native roundly, and, "without waiting a single moment for his answer, made him feel the full force of his fists." Nor did white tyranny stop even there. Within the course of an hour or so the inspector was fined by his assailant ten rupees for showing want of respect. Of course the whole story is false, it being absurd to suppose that any European magistrate would publicly behave in such a scandalous manner, with the certainty of bringing the whole native Press down upon him. But the yarn will be implicitly believed by native readers, much to the prejudice of our rule.—Globe.

Most people resident in India have felt the torment of a mosquito bite, but few may be aware of the complicated nature of the mosquito's instrument of torture. According to a recent authority, the "bill" of the little insect contains no less than five distinct surgical instruments. These are described as a lance, two neat saws, a suction-pump, and a small C. r. l. s. engine. When the mosquito commences operations the lance is first pushed into the flesh; then the two saws, placed back to back, begin to work up and down to enlarge the hole; then the pump is inserted, and the victim's blood is syphoned up to the reservoirs carried behind; and finally to complete the cruelty of the performance, the mosquito drops a quantity of poison into the wound to keep it irritated.

KELLY'S DIRECTORY

OF THE

MERCHANTS, MANUFACTURERS AND SHIPPERS

OF THE UNITED KINGDOM,

BEING A GUIDE TO THE

Export and Import Shipping, and Manufacturing Industries of the United Kingdom, with the

COLONIES &amp; FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

THIS WORK gives a vast amount of information respecting the business carried on between the United Kingdom and the Colonies and Foreign Countries; showing the description of goods, and the amount thereof, exported to each Colony or Country abroad, the British Ports whence shipments are made, the MERCHANTS, FACTORS, and
SHIPPERS at the various Ports and Towns in England, the Manufacturers of the Principal Goods
exported, and the MERCHANTS AND OTHERS
ABROAD WHO ARE IMPORTERS OR BUYERS OF BRITISH GOODS.

It also gives complete information as to the various descriptions of goods, and the amounts thereof, imported from abroad into this country,
with the names of the Merchants and Shippers,
and also the Manufacturers at the Principal Towns
of the various Goods imported.

The Work is divided into three principal divisions,
the first of which comprises the various Foreign Countries and British Possessions throughout the world to which British Manufactures are exported.

Under each of these is given, first:—A Statistical Account of the Country, the Financial Position, Business Relations with this Country, with in the case of Foreign States, the names of the British and other Consuls, the name of the Minister in this country, Consuls, Vice-Consuls, &c., at the various Ports and Places in this country; the
MERCHANTS, BUYERS OF ENGLISH GOODS, and the Manufacturers, &c., at the Principal Towns of the various goods imported; the various Ports in each country; also the Ports in this country whence
Shipments are made; Tariffs, &c., &c.; a Tabular
Statement showing the Exports from this country
during the last three years; a List of the Merchants and Shippers in the various British Towns;
List of Steamers and other Vessels sailing from the Ports; also a List of the various Manufactures that are exported from this country.

The second division comprises an Alphabetical
List of the Exporters from this country, stating the class of goods exported by them.

The third division of the Work embraces the names and addresses of the actual Manufacturers,
or Manufacturers' Agents, of the articles exported, describing as clearly as possible the specialities of each Manufacturer.

The Times, September 20th, 1884.

"It is almost exhaustive as a guide to the shipping and manufacturing industries, both export and import,

Daily Chronicle, September 12th, 1884.

"Merchants and manufacturers of all kinds will find the Directory a valuable guide, whether their interests

Daily News, September 17th, 1884.

"It abounds in information of the kind which merchants, manufacturers, and exporters are constantly in need of. Its scope, however, is not confined to the classes who in this country have business with the colonies and foreign parts, but includes also the principal merchants abroad, so that the book becomes a tolerably complete guide to the import and export industries of all countries with which Great Britain has any mercantile relation, and vice versa."

European Mail, September 26th, 1884.

"In collecting the names of foreign and colonial firms
—a task of considerable difficulty, as will be understood
—Messrs. Kelly have had the assistance of the British consuls, many of whom have given personal testimony to the important service this Directory fulfils in commercial circles abroad."

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE

COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Dr. J. C. BROWNE (late Army Medical Staff) DISCOVERED a REMEDY to denote which he coined the word CHLORODYNE. Dr. Browne is the SOLE INVENTOR, and, as the composition of Chlorodyne cannot possibly be discovered by Analysis (organic substances defying elimination), and since the formula has never been published, it is evident that any statement to the effect that a compound is identical with Dr. Browne's Chlorodyne must be false. This Caution is necessary, as many persons deceive purchasers by false representations.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was UNDOUBTEDLY the INVENTOR of CHLORODYNE, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to. See The Times, July 13th, 1884.

DIARRHŒA, DYSENTERY. GENERAL BOARD OF HEALTH, LONDON, REPORT that it ACTS as a CHARM, one dose generally sufficient. Dr. GIBSON, Army Medical Staff, Calcutta, states: "2 DOSES COMPLETELY CURED ME OF DIARRHŒA."

From Symes & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Simla, Jan. 5, 1880.
 To J. T. DAVENPORT, London.
 DEAR SIR.—We congratulate you upon the widespread reputation this justly-esteemed medicine has earned for itself all over the East. As a remedy of general utility, we much question whether a better is imported, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and, judging from their sale, we fancy their sojourn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances ad infinitum of the extraordinary efficacy of DR. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE in Diarrhœa and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Choleraic Diarrhœa, and even in the more terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power.

IS THE GREAT SPECIFIC FOR CHOLERA.

We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a deliberate breach of faith on the part of the chemist to prescribe and patient alike. We are, Sir, faithfully yours, SYMES & CO., Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain, His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the TRUE PALLIATIVE in NEURALGIA, GOUT, CANCER, RHOCHACHIE, RHEUMATISM.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a liquid medicine which assuages PAIN of EVERY KIND, affords a calm, refreshing sleep WITHOUT HEADACHE, and INVIGORATES the nervous system when exhausted.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE rapidly cuts short all attacks of EPILEPSY, SPASMS, COLIC, PALPITATION, Hysteria.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.—The IMMENSE SALE of this REMEDY has given rise to many UNBROKEN LOUS IMITATIONS. Be careful to observe Trade Mark. Of all Chemists. Is. 1jd., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d.

THE "VOICE OF INDIA."

TO THE PUBLIC OPINION OF THE PEOPLE OF INDIA.

THERE are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing MONTHLY (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native journals throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally docile and conservative; and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth; but it is a policy of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is specially desired to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

Notes of the Week.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, October 24th; Madras and Allahabad, October 22nd; Calcutta, October 21st; Burma, October 17th.

THE week has been a sad one for India; for by the premature death of Mr. Fawcett she has lost one of her ablest and most disinterested friends in the House of Commons. Differing as we did from Mr. Fawcett on many details of home (English) politics, it is at this moment a melancholy satisfaction to us to remember that on Indian questions we have nearly always been at one with him—notably on such important points as the imposition of the Egyptian war-charges on the poor taxpayers of India. We are also glad to remember that, on very frequent occasions of late, when we have been warning our young Indian friends not to attach themselves to any extreme or disreputable faction in English politics, we have invariably mentioned the name of the Right Hon. Henry Fawcett as one who might safely be accepted as a guide, and whose opinions commanded the respect even of those who differed from him.

THE Times' telegram of Monday brings intelligence of rumours of a serious aggression on the part of the Amir of Kabul on the Badshah of Chitral. Considering the relations that exist between Chitral and Kashmir, the indication of the Amir of Kabul's wish to possess himself of a most important strategic point on the Chitral frontier is evidently a matter for the most serious consideration of the Government. It is a most unfortunate thing that, at the very moment when our political horizon is everywhere clouded in the most threatening manner—to say nothing of our three expeditions already on hand, in the Soudan, in South Africa, and in the Zhoob Valley, of our Frontier Commission in Afghanistan, and of unrest in Burmah—the Government of this Empire seems to be able to think of nothing but “jerrymandering,” “log-rolling,” and the other miserable tricks of the American Caucus, to retain office in Downing-street. Surely, Downing-street will not be such a very desirable residence when all is lost that makes office honourable?

THE Calcutta correspondent of the Times draws attention this week to the alarming fact, noticed by us last week, that no less than three serious disturbances, involving the calling out of troops and an immense amount of suffering and alarm among the natives of the country, have recently occurred in three important centres of India. From every point of view the public anxiety increases, and there is generally felt an earnest desire soon to see the firm hand of Lord Dufferin at the helm in Calcutta.

WE deal in our leading columns with the great Sonapore Meeting against the Bengal Tenancy Bill, held last Tuesday. The Times' correspondent notices other meetings for a like purpose, held in various parts of the province. We trust that the presidents of these numerous meetings will take care that a statement of their proceedings is laid before Lord Dufferin on his arrival. The Times' correspondent is doubtful of the value of the suggestion, thrown out by his Highness the Maharajah of Darbhanga, that a “roving Commission” should be appointed to investigate the facts of the case and the circumstances of the country. But we have not the slightest hesitation in saying that the Maharajah is right. No Bill will be accepted as satisfactory by either ryots or zemindars that is not founded on fuller and more perfect information than any hitherto possessed by the Government of India. And, above all, what is wanted is a public, bonâ fide investigation, with opportunities for cross-examining witnesses, and the like—not a hole-and-corner confabulation of half-a-dozen officials pegs and cheroots, such as we wot of.

LORD RIPON is determined to deserve a dukedom, even if he cannot command one; so he is going to make a Vice-regal progress before giving up office, for the purpose of “delivering a series of speeches,” and of course receiving farewell addresses. His Excellency's Viceroyalty has been strong in speeches; so he is wise in “sticking to his last,” and perhaps his soft words may still butter some of the parsnips.

A CORRESPONDENT writing to the Indian Statesman says:—

That the majority of the zemindars of Beerbhoom are by no means wealthy. It seems to be recognised that this district is one of the poorest in Bengal, there being no trade or manufacture therein worthy of the name. A large proportion of the landed proprietors live elsewhere, while among the resident zemindars there are very few who have an annual income of Rs. 10,000 a year. Again, by the operation of the Hindoo and Mahomedan law of inheritance, these small zemindari have been sub-divided so often that the present proprietors are obliged to accept poorly-paid appointments in Government and other service, to enable them to support their families. To add to their embarrassments, the crops for the last two years have been very scanty, and they could hardly recover sufficient rent from their tenants to pay Government revenue. Beset by difficulties, they were invited to attend a meeting which was to have been held under the presidency of the Commissioner of the division, for the purpose of raising subscriptions in aid of the sufferers. The zemindars are not, we fear, in a position to meet the difficulty by adequate donations.”

A PERUSAL of what follows—which is from the Indian Statesman—will convince the reader that if legislation is required on the land question in India, it is on the khas mehal estates of the Government:—

One of the two expressly avowed objects of the Rent Bill is to save the ryot from the “horrors of eviction,” and the other is to secure for him a “beneficiary interest in the profits of cultivation,” as Mr. Mackenzie calls it, or “tenant right,” as Mr. O'Kinealy has it. These, we say, are the two avowed objects of the measure. Now, we have shown conclusively that the ryot is already appropriating nearly all the profits of cultivation. The zemindar is called by “irony” his landlord, but is getting little more than a pepper-cora rent from the land. But what about evictions? One would certainly suppose from what Mr. Mackenzie says about saving the ryot from the “horrors of eviction” that he was really suffering those horrors; but when we ask “Where” we can get no answer. The fact is that “evictions” are unknown in these provinces, except on the khas mehal estates of the Government, which raises its rent 400 per cent. upon the ryot, as in Noabad, and then sells his homestead when he refuses to pay. There are no other “evictions” in the provinces that we can find, and it is hard that the zemindar should be punished for a crime—for it is a crime—committed not by himself, but by the State landlord, who moreover is still to be at liberty after this Bill becomes law, as it now is, to evict its tenants at pleasure. If “evictions” were being made in any part of Bengal, we are satisfied that we should long since have heard of it. According to the Administration Reports annually issued by the High Court of Calcutta, the total number of ejectment suits throughout these provinces from 1875 to 1880 were as follows:—

	CIVIL COURTS.	REVENUE COURTS.	TOTAL
1875	... 1,753	251	2,004
1876	... 2,192	238	2,420
1877	... 1,332	310	1,642
1878	... 829	454	1,283
1879	... 1,274	337	1,611
1880	... 1,480	349	1,829
Total	... 8,860	1,939	10,799

Average number of cases per year ... 1,799

We need not tell the reader that statistics of this order amongst an agricultural population of 60 to 70 millions mean that the practice of ejectment—the horrors of eviction, as Mr. Mackenzie has it—is unknown. The figures show an average number of 43 ejectment suits a year, in each of the 42 districts of the provinces. In other words, “eviction” is a mode of oppression that exists only in Mr. Mackenzie's imagination, as rack-rent is another. And it is on these two gigantic delusions that this Bill entirely rests.

The Times of India has the following obituary till the departure of the mail, October 24 :—

Lieutenant J. C. W. D. Nicol, 25th Madras N.I., and probationary Sub-Assistant Commissary General; General Dhree Shumshere, Commander-in-Chief of Nepal; Surgeon-Major W. J. Hastings, Civil Surgeon, and Superintendent of the Jail, Madras; Mr. Thomas Johnstone-Lysle, Civil Engineer, Allahabad; Honorary Surgeon John Tyrrell, Madras Medical Department, retired; Mr. William Wilson Linton, solicitor, High Court, Calcutta.

The Englishman gives the following account of the Calcutta Freight Market, corrected to Oct. 21 :—

As might have been expected after an unusually heavy week of business, there has been very little done since last mail, and engagements have been confined to steamers. We have had only a few arrivals, and our unfixed tonnage stands rather higher than last week, viz., 23,000 tons. Owners are now holding the unfixed vessels at higher rates, but as shippers are mostly provided with a good deal of tonnage, it is doubtful whether any material advance is likely to take place.

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

The reports on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending the 15th instant are as follows:—

There was rain in all districts of Madras during the week, and some improvement is noticed in those parts of the Presidency where prospects have hitherto been unsatisfactory. Rain has fallen generally all over the province of Mysore, and the condition of the crops has been improved. In Coorg prospects continue favourable. Rain is still urgently wanted in several parts of the Deccan and Southern Mahratta Country, and crops are reported to be withering in the eastern talukas of Poona and parts of Belgaum. Fodder is also scarce in several talukas of Dharwar and Belgaum; elsewhere in the Presidency prospects are generally good. There was no rain in the Central India and Rajputana States during the week, but prospects continue good. In the Berars and Hyderabad the condition of the crops is very favourable. No rain fell in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, except in Partabgarh and in the Punjab. In the former the kharif crops have been injured in some districts by heavy rain, but in the latter their condition is very favourable. The rains have ceased in the Central Provinces, and the prospects of the kharif are fair. In Bengal the autumn crop, which has been improved by the late rain, is expected to yield well if there is heavy rain shortly. In Assam prospects are generally good. The last report of the Meteorological Department, dated 16th instant, states that rain has fallen over the whole of the Madras Presidency, with the exception of Kurnool, Bellary, and Cuddapah districts, and that slight showers are reported from Mercara and from two districts in British Burma; elsewhere there has been no rain. Harvesting continues in Madras, and ploughing and sowing for the rabi are in progress in Bombay, Bengal, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Punjab, and the Central Provinces. The kharif is being harvested in Bombay and the Punjab. The public health is generally good. Prices are fluctuating in Bengal and the Punjab; elsewhere they are generally stationary.

BREAD REFORM EXHIBITION.—A meeting of the Executive Council of the Bread Reform Exhibition was held at Humphrey's Hall, Albert Gate, on Thursday, October 30th. The applications for space received by the Committee show that the Exhibition would have to be carried out on such an important scale that the present available space is inadequate. It was, therefore, resolved to postpone the Exhibition until next March, when the annexe of the new hall will be completed, which will double the present area. As one of the objects of the exhibition was to establish a fund to provide penny breakfasts and dinners on a self-supporting basis for poor school children, and as it was desirable to provide this fund as soon as possible, on account of the approaching winter, it was resolved that a small preliminary exhibition of staple-foods, and a loan gallery of pictures, objets d'art, &c., should be held, open from November 22nd to November 28th. Mr. Humphreys has kindly consented to give the use of his hall free, for the benefit of the fund. There will be a grand evening fête for this purpose, at Humphrey's Hall, Albert Gate, on November 26th, under the patronage of the Duchess of Beaufort, Duchesses of Cleveland, Duchess of Roxburghe, Marchioness of Ailesbury, Dowager Marchioness of Conyngham, Marchioness of Drogheda, Marchioness of Hastings, Marchioness of Ormonde, Dowager Countess of Harrington, Countess of Belmore, Countess of Clarendon, Countesses of Effingham, &c.

Telegraphic Intelligence.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM]

GREAT MEETING AT SONEPORE TO OPPOSE THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

We have received the following special telegram from his Highness the Maharajah of Durbhanga, the chairman of the great meeting held at Sonapore last Tuesday, to express the feelings of the province of Behar against the Bengal Tenancy Bill :—

An enthusiastic meeting of the Behar landowners was held on the 4th instant at Sonapore. The Maharajah of Darbhanga presided, and over two thousand zemindars were present. There was hardly room enough in the great Shanyana, and numbers had to stand outside. A great many ryots also attended. Every district was represented, and numerous letters of sympathy were received. Among those present were the following :—His Highness the Maharajah of Durbhanga, the Maharajah of Deo, Babu Sham, Sevendra Sahee, of Manjha; Babu Sidhenwaree Prasad, of Chainfore; Babu Tantradhary Singh, of Madhubnee; Nawab Takee Khan, the Honourable Hurbuns Sahoy, Rai Jai Krishna, and representatives of the Maharajah of Doornoon, Huthwa, and Ticaree Rao. The following resolutions were passed :—

"That this meeting strongly protests against the principles and provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Bill, which have been repeatedly pronounced by the highest judicial authorities of the Crown to be a clear invasion of the vested rights of the zemindars, as confirmed to them by the solemn declarations of the Permanent Settlement and by the Royal proclamation of Her Majesty the Queen, Empress of India.

"That considering all the facts bearing on the question of the Rent Law necessary to be ascertained are not yet before Government—as was admitted by the Government of India by their letter dated 5th May.

"This meeting is of opinion that the Government of Bengal should have appointed a competent commission for holding the fullest inquiry on the point, or points, involved before replying to that letter, and that in sending the reply it should not have disregarded the many weighty opinions against the principles and provisions of the Bill.

"That a memorial in the terms of the above resolutions be presented to His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General in Council."

The following is a summary of the President's speech :—After expressing his thanks to those who had attended he reminded them of their having expressed in their last meeting their indignation at the memorandum published by the Bengal Government, which regarded the Tenancy Bill as no breach of the pledges given at the time of the Permanent Settlement. He laid special stress upon the able Minute of the Chief Justice, and criticised the hostile remarks that have been made on it. He next referred to the very able minute of Mr. Justice Field, a member of the first Rent Commission, whom he described as one of the best jurists in the country; and he went on to say that the opinion of such high judicial authorities ought finally to settle the question.

He then quoted remarks of Sir Richard Temple and Sir Ashley Eden, and showed that the condition of the peasantry was daily improving. He also quoted a similar passage from the annual report of the Commissioners of Patna, and said that under the circumstances there was no necessity of having a Land Bill similar to that of Ireland, which country was in a state of anarchy, and wherein special measures were needed. He also referred to the necessity of having a roving commission, which ought to have been appointed long before. These facts ought to have preceded theories. The reports of the Divisional Commissioners were valuable in one way, as very few, if any, were in favour of the Bill in its entirety. But the judicial officers ought also to have been consulted, as for the last few years executive officers have had nothing to do with the trial of rent suits. The dissenting members of the Select Committee had noted the absence of statistics, and it was the duty of the Government to have collected information, either through a roving commission or by any other means. Of opinions he said they have already more than enough.

The following is the usual weekly telegram from the Times' correspondent at Calcutta, dated Nov. 9 :—

"The Mahomedan festival of the Mohurram, which is always an anxious time for the local authorities in places where the Mussulman element is strong, has this year produced disturbances in three cities. I have already mentioned the riots at Agra, which were promptly suppressed by the district magistrate. A still more serious affray has occurred at Cambay, not, as at Agra, between Hindoos and Mahomedans, but between rival Mahomedan sects, the Shias and Sunnis. The efforts of the Dewan and the officials having failed to pacify the rioters, troops and guns were ordered out. They were charged by the mob, who were eventually repulsed after a fight, in which several men were wounded.

"But the most serious disturbance of all occurred in that hotbed of Mahomedan fanaticism, Hyderabad. The immediate cause of the affray appears to have been action on the part of the police in stopping the passing down a certain street of an elephant, on which was seated the son of a powerful noble named the Nawab Sultan Nawab Jung. The Arab retainers of the Nawab resented this action and fired on the police, killing seven and wounding four. Accounts differ as to whether the police wantonly insulted the Nawab's son, or whether the Arabs disregarded police authority and were the aggressors, and this question will doubtless be sifted by a commission of inquiry which is about to sit. Whichever of these versions as to the origin of the affair may be correct, this at least is certain—that the turbulent Arabs who swarm in Hyderabad attacked and looted a police station and several houses, and held some streets for a time. Salar Jung appears to have acted promptly, calling out troops, including the new Golconda Brigade, who succeeded in restoring order. The troops were kept under arms all night, but no recurrence of the riot took place.

"It is to be hoped that the Nizam's Government will seize this favourable opportunity of removing an ever-present source of danger to the peace of Hyderabad—namely, the permitting nobles to entertain large bodies of well-armed Arab retainers and other mercenaries.

"The opponents of the Bengal Rent Bill have held several meetings of protest in various parts of the province during the past fortnight. The most important took place at Patna on Tuesday, the Maharajah of Durbhungah presiding. The speeches and resolutions were very similar to those of previous meetings, but the president laid especial stress on the necessity of appointing a roving commission of inquiry before the Bill was advanced further. It may be doubted, however, whether any practical good would result from such a step, and it certainly seems to be one which the Government is reluctant to adopt.

"Thanks to the timely rain, and thanks in no small degree to prompt and effective action on the part of the Bengal Government, all danger of famine in this province is now at an end. The Lieutenant-Governor returned to Calcutta on Thursday, after a tour through the various districts of the Burdwan division, in the course of which he satisfied himself that, although the crops in many places were scanty, there was no longer any cause for anxiety. The number of people on relief works has varied from 251 in the beginning of September to 6,159 in the middle of that month. Since then it has continued to decline. Able-bodied men requiring help will now be transferred to the works of the new Bengal Nagpore Railway, but it is not likely that their number will be larger, as even the worst tracts will probably yield some harvest, varying from a quarter to one-half of the average return.

"It will be recollected that in the course of the Ilbert Bill discussions last year reference was frequently made to the danger incurred by residents outside the Presidency towns of having false charges brought against them. According to a return lately issued by the Bengal Government it appears that the percentage of intentionally false cases during 1883 was 7.1 of the total number of cases tried. The Lieutenant-Governor, while remarking that this about the lowest percentage yet reached, adds that it is still far too high, representing as it does the infliction of a large amount of suffering on innocent persons.

"Some months ago native feeling in this province was much, and not unreasonably, excited by foolish action on the part of the district magistrate and the superintendent of police of Nuddea in instituting a criminal prosecution against some schoolboys for a trumpery piece of misbehaviour, which after all was only a breach of good manners and of school discipline. The assistant magistrate who tried the case very properly dismissed it, and the Lieutenant-Governor awarded a sharp reproof and substantial punishment to the two erring officials for their indiscreet excess of zeal. It might have been fairly hoped that the matter would now be allowed to drop to oblivion. Certain native newspapers, however, which lose no opportunity of attacking Mr. Rivers Thompson, and which were loud in asserting that he incited the prosecution, now persist in declaring, without a jot of proof, that his published censure of the magistrate and the police officer was issued by him unwillingly and under direct orders from the Viceroy. As a matter of fact, there is absolutely no foundation for this statement. The Viceroy never interfered in the matter, and Mr. Thompson acted entirely on his own motion. The persistency with which certain leading native journals continue to reiterate this absolutely groundless assertion affords a good example of the reckless spirit which animates a large proportion of the native Press.

"Lord Ripon leaves Simla to-morrow and visits several places of interest in Northern India on his way to Calcutta, where he will arrive on December 2. Great preparations are being made, chiefly by native associations, to welcome him at his various halting places. It is understood that his progress will be made the occasion for delivering a series of speeches, indicating the policy of his Viceroyalty. The Bombay Corporation are preparing a farewell address, and subscriptions for a memorial have been opened in that city. Steps are also being taken to give a fitting reception to Lord Dufferin.

"The news of the death of Mr. Fawcett reached Calcutta on Friday evening. All the English newspapers of yesterday contain laudatory notices of him. The native journals have not yet referred to the occurrence, doubtless owing to the fact that none of them receive early telegraphic news. It cannot, however, be doubted that all of them will join in expressing their sense of the loss India has suffered by the death of one whom all classes and races recognized as a true and warm friend of this country, and who was commonly described as the member for India."

"According to the Lahore Civil and Military Gazette Mr. Griesbach, the geologist with the Boundary Commission, describes the route between Quetta and the Helmund as presenting features very similar to those in the Pishin Valley and Candahar—namely, a system of precipitous, deeply eroded ridge, extending from north and south to north-east and south-west. Extensive post-tertiary deposits fill the intervening valleys. The south-west extremity of the Ghazarband range is composed of sandstone shales and grits of the Flysch facies of eocene rocks. A series of low hills and valleys stretch between Canjpai and Nushki, which from their composition appear to be merely continuations of the Kojah Amran range, but near Galiahah the formation is distinctly younger, the epoch being mostly trap-rock, which in places bursts through the cretaceous limestone overlying it, and locally converts it into white marble.

"The same paper mentions a trans-frontier report which, if true, is of considerable importance. It is that the Governor of Badakshan has applied to the Badshah of Chitral to sell the district of Latku to the Ameer, and on meeting with refusal has gone to Cabul to consult the Ameer on the subject. Should the Afghans succeed in obtaining that district it will give them command of both ends of the Dura pass, between Badakshan and Chitral—an easy pass, estimated not to exceed 14,000 feet in height, and which the military authorities consider would be the probable route of one of the invading columns in the event of a Russian attack upon India. It would hardly be politic on the part of the Indian Government to permit a doubtful ally like the Ameer to possess himself of this point of vantage."

The following extra telegrams have been received during the week from the Times correspondent:—

"QUETTA, Oct. 29.—Colonel Ridgeway's expedition is within two marches of Lash Jowain, and has opened communications with Sir P. Lumsden. The people are friendly and Ameer's officials obliging. The party is in excellent health."

"CALCUTTA, Nov. 6.—The opposition to the Zhoib Valley expedition appears to have entirely collapsed. Several of the chiefs have surrendered to the British, and Shah Jehan's son-in-law has been captured. Shah Jehan himself has fled, and has, it is believed, taken refuge among the Ghilzais."

SOCIETY OF ARTS.—The first meeting of the 131st Session of the Society of Arts will be held on Wednesday, 19th November, when the opening address will be delivered by Sir Frederick Abel, C.B., D.C.L., F.R.S., Chairman of the Council. Previous to Christmas there will be four ordinary meetings, in addition to the opening meeting. The following papers (among others) will be read during the session:—"The International Health Exhibition," by George Buchanan, M.D., F.R.S.; "Electric Lighting in America," by W. H. Preece, F.R.S.; "Education at the International Health Exhibition," by J. G. Fitch, M.A.; "The Employment of Hydraulic Machinery in Engineering Workshops," by Ralph H. Tweddell; "The History and Manufacture of Playing Cards," by George Clulow; "The Musical Scales of Various Nations," by A. J. Ellis; "The Painless Extinction of Life in the Lower Animals," by B. W. Richardson, M.A., M.D., F.R.S.; "Marine Biological Laboratories: their Organisation, Work, and National Importance," by Professor E. Ray Lankester, M.A., F.R.S.; "The Preparation of Butterine," by Anton Jurgens; "Recent Improvements in Coast Signals," by Sir J. N. Douglass; "Prospective Sources of the Timber Supplies of Great Britain," by P. L. Simmonds; "The Influence of Civilisation upon Eyesight," by R. Brudenell Carter, F.R.C.S.; "The Evolution of Machines," by Professor H. S. Hele Shaw; "Tempered Glass," by Frederick Siemens. The first course of Cantor lectures will be on "The Use of Coal Gas," by Harold B. Dixon, M.A.; the second course will be on "Climate, and its Relation to Health," by G. V. Poore, M.D.; the third course will be on "The Distribution of Electricity," by Professor George Forbes; the fourth course will be on "Artists' Colours," by J. M. Thomson, F.R.S.E., F.C.S., Lecturer on Chemistry at King's College, London; the fifth course will be on "Carving and Furniture," by J. Hungerford Pollen; the sixth course will be on "Photography and the Spectroscope," by Captain W. de W. Abney, R.E., F.R.S.; the seventh and concluding course will be on "The Manufacture of Toilet Soaps," by O. R. Alder Wright, D.Sc., F.R.S., F.C.S. A special course of lectures will be delivered under the Howard trust, on "The Conversion of Heat into Useful Work," by W. Anderson, M.I.C.E. The two juvenile lectures will be given on Wednesday evenings, December 31, 1884, and January 7, 1885; particulars will be announced in the Journal.

ARE THE ZEMINDARS OPPRESSORS?

I.

THE charges made against the zemindar, by implication, in the framing of this Tenancy Bill, are: 1st, that he has oppressed the ryot by unduly severe rentals, and 2nd, that he subjects them to the cruelty of eviction. It is true that these charges are not formally and expressly made, but throughout the long discussions that have taken place upon the subject since 1879, it has been assumed by the framers of the Bill that so prevalent are these two practices that it is necessary for the Government to interfere for the protection of the oppressed class. When Mr. Mackenzie apologetically writes—"All that is being done in favour of the ryots is to protect them against the horrors of eviction, and to secure to them that reasonable share in the profits of cultivation which is essential to the stability of an agricultural community, and their undoubted and ancient right,"—the inference is obvious that the zemindar does subject his tenantry to the horrors of eviction, and that he rack-rents them. Now, we ask the Viceroy, with all respect, whether it is really right that charges of this nature should be assumed to be true without inquiry of any kind into the facts—and that, in spite of all remonstrance, a Bill of the most sweeping order should be brought forward that will practically revolutionise the whole system of land tenures throughout the provinces. The zemindar calls in vain for an inquiry, while the strongest presumptive proof exists that the charges are untrue. The Bill that is brought in, moreover, to remedy these alleged practices is so wide-reaching that there is not an incident in any of the tenures of the provinces that will not be affected by it. Suppose it were even true that the zemindar did oppressively increase the rental upon his tenants, and was given to the practice of evicting them, why is our legislation not confined to these specific evils? The zemindar complains that the provisions of the Bill violate the agreement made with him in 1793 at all points, and earnestly petitions for inquiry into his complaint. The Government simply replies that the Bill does not violate the Settlement, and proceeds with the measure as before. Practically the whole zemindar class have the stigma put upon them that they are oppressive and cruel landlords, and that they have so stretched the powers and rights conferred upon them by the Settlement that it is necessary to remodel it altogether. For this is really what is being done, and it is being done in defiance of the reasonable demand for an inquiry, as though the facts were matter of such notoriety that we might as well inquire whether the sun was shining or under an eclipse. The position is so monstrous that we do really believe it would be impossible to match it in modern times under a civilised Government. There would be no difficulty whatever in ascertaining what the general conduct of the zemindars is towards their tenantry, and what the general character of their relations with them. But the notion has been taken up that before the Permanent Settlement of 1793 the ryot was very much better off than he is now, and that the zemindar has used the powers which he obtained under that Settlement to reduce the cultivator to a condition of great misery, by selfishly engrossing to himself all the profits of cultivation, and indeed something more, and that so extreme has the oppression become that it is absolutely necessary for the Government to interfere in his behalf. In doing so, and perhaps trenching a little upon the letter of the Settlement—we may as well be hung for a sheep as a lamb, and so a bold attempt, it is thought, may as well be made to resettle everything while we are about it, upon the views held by Mr. Mackenzie and Mr. O'Kinealy as to what a settlement of land ought to be. Without any exaggeration this is precisely what is being done. All inquiry into the relations that really do exist between the zemindar and ryot is declared to be superfluous, and all inquiry to what the position of the latter was at the time of the Settlement and before it, compared with what it is now. There is such high-handed injustice in a course like this, that it is most difficult to know how to meet it. It is of no use to be violent, for violence would only recoil upon the party already injured, and it is of as little use to be quietly and respectfully remonstrant. "You are an oppressor and a thief," say the framers of this Bill to the zemindar. "You have taken from the ryot by violence or chicanery what we have determined shall be given back to him. He was indefinitely better off, poor fellow, before we made this miserable Settlement with you by which we handed him over to your tender mercies, and as your tender mercies are cruel, we are going to strip you of what you say is yours and give it to him, for we know very well to whom it belongs, or, at all events, ought to belong." Put it into plain English, this is precisely what the Government is saying. It is in vain, we say, that the zemindar asks for inquiry. What evidence do you want, says Mr. O'Kinealy, of the oppressive rental levied upon the ryot? Have we not already the facts? It is of great importance that the public should know, and that the Government itself should recognize the sort of evidence upon which the necessity of this Bill is affirmed. We shall, therefore, take a crucial passage from Mr. O'Kinealy's note of 16th June, 1880, to which we have been privately challenged to reply, and show how absolutely worthless are the impressions on which the Bill is based. At page 443, then, of Vol. II. of the report of the Rent Law Commission we read as follows:—

"I would ask the members of the Committee to consider how far it is advisable to give any further facilities for enhancement, without protecting the ryots from the ejection theory which has more or less developed within the last seven or eight years. The Government jumma of the Permanent Settlement was about Rs. 2,85,87,772, and eight-tenths of the gross rental. One-third of the land was waste, it is said. On these conditions, if the whole of Bengal had been under cultivation, the gross rental would be Rs. 4,76,46,203. According to the Board of Revenue it was in 1877 equal to Rs. 13,03,78,935. In other words, the rates of rent which were intended to be fixed by the Permanent Settlement have been trebled, and the ryots are now being compelled to pay an excessive exaction of Rs. 8,27,32,733 yearly. If this annuity be valued at twenty years' purchase it appears that we have deprived the cultivators of the enormous sum of £165,000,000 sterling, and given it to the zemindars who still cry for more."

Now we have been privately challenged, we say, to reply to this very note of Mr. O'Kinealy's by gentlemen who confidently tell us that until we have done so it is idle to oppose the measure. As the Note is a volume in itself it is impossible for us, in these columns, to attempt to review it, but we have read it carefully, and can only say that we have done so with amazement and despair. Were the Note submitted to some such Committee as the House of Commons resolves itself into on the third reading of a Bill, there is not a paragraph of it that we should not challenge if we were on that Committee. It is impossible to do so in a newspaper, and it was with almost childish delight that we found Mr. O'Kinealy condensing into the above passage the general impressions with which he had approached the inquiry and played his part in the framing of this measure. We ask, therefore, the attention of the Government to an examination of Mr. O'Kinealy's statement. Its honesty is unimpeachable, while it shows with lightning clearness the absurd impressions from which this Bill has originated. The zemindars have been promised over and over again proper legal facilities for the recovery and fair enhancement of their rental, but a Bill for the purpose is no sooner brought forward than it transpires that Mr. Mackenzie and Mr. O'Kinealy believe rents to be already exorbitant, and that instead of giving the zemindars facilities for their recovery and enhancement the Government should modify the existing facilities and do its best to stop fresh enhancements altogether. And such is our fatal system of Government that the mere accident of these two gentlemen being at the right hand of the local Government suffices to inaugurate the revolution with which we are threatened. In any other country their "impressions" would have gone for nothing, nor the "impressions" of any twenty men. Their representations would have been heard, and if thought reasonably well founded would have been followed by an exact and searching inquiry into the facts—the inquiry which the zemindar has so earnestly demanded, and which, if the Government is wise, it will institute now. The impressions entertained by these two gentlemen, who are the authors of this legislation, would have been subjected, we say, to the test of inquiry by any other Government in the world. We ask Mr. Ilbert and the Viceroy pointedly whether it is not so? In what other country in the world would a measure of this sweeping order have been brought forward on the strength of vague impressions entertained by two comparatively young members of the public service as to the relations subsisting between landlord and tenant therein? It is literally what is being done here, and in the teeth of the strongest presumption that their impressions are erroneous, as Mr. O'Kinealy has given us the opportunity of showing.

The first of Mr. O'Kinealy's errors is that he compares the jumma of 1793 with the rental of 1877—in other words, he compares the assessment which the zemindar was required to pay to the Government in 1793 with the rental which the zemindar was receiving in 1877. It is enough that we merely indicate the error. What Mr. O'Kinealy undertakes to establish is, that rentals have been so heavily enhanced by the zemindar since 1793, that we ought not to allow him to enhance them any further. But instead of comparing the rentals of 1877 with the rentals of 1793, he compares the present rentals with the old assessments paid by the zemindar. We presume that he has done so by an oversight, but this oversight at the very beginning of his statement upsets the whole of his figures. Mr. O'Kinealy makes the blunder at starting of comparing the rents of 1877 with the assessment which the zemindar was made to pay to the Government in 1793, instead of the rentals of 1793 being measured by the assessment of Rs. 2,85,00,000, there is the strongest reason to believe that the rentals were well on to double that amount. Mr. O'Kinealy starts therefore with this gigantic initial error, and it vitiates of course the whole of his subsequent calculations. Bad as this error is, his next is the assumption that two-thirds of the land were under cultivation. "One-third of the land was waste, it is said." It is difficult in this case to acquit Mr. O'Kinealy of bad faith. He must know as well as we do that he has reversed the proportions of the cultivated and the waste land. A whole host of authorities tell us that from one-half to two-thirds of the cultivable land had been reduced to jungle, partly by the century of extortion that had preceded the Settlement, and partly by the dreadful famine of 1770, in which ten millions of the people of these provinces were computed to have died of hunger and disease. Mr. O'Kinealy must know that in assuming the extent of the waste lands to have been but one-third of the provinces, he was selecting the lowest estimate he could find for his purpose. For at page 422 of his own Note, he himself quotes the famous Fifth Report to the effect that the waste lands in the Company's provinces were "estimated at one-third by Lord Cornwallis, at one-half by others, and at two-thirds by some."

Mr. O'Kinealy's assumption that two-thirds of Bengal were under cultivation in 1793 cannot be allowed for a moment. In the absence of the exact inquiry that ought long since to have been made, the highest estimate that can be allowed would be one-half. The population of the provinces was, estimated by Colebrooke in 1794 to be twenty-seven millions where it is to-day between sixty and seventy millions, and if we estimate the cultivated area at one-half the present acreage, it is as much as we are entitled to do. Making these two corrections only in Mr. O'Kinealy's figures—and they are after all of a minor order compared with what follow—they show the utter worthlessness of his impressions. For if the rental was Rs. 4,00,00,000 in 1793, and the area under cultivation but one-half the present area, the gross rental would to-day be Rs. 8,00,00,000, and not Rs. 4,76,00,000, as Mr. O'Kinealy makes it. But what utter trifling with a great question is it, when estimates of this order are put forward as evidence that the present rental of Rs. 13,00,00,000 is excessive, when the questions of prices, wages of labour, increase of the population, introduction of railways, and growth of a vast export trade are all ignored. We shall show almost immediately that the true rent of these provinces cannot fall short of sixty to eighty crores, estimating it at one-third to one-fourth of the produce.

II.

We have noticed above Mr. O'Kinealy's preposterous conclusion that the cultivators of these provinces had been "deprived of the enormous sum of £165,000,000 sterling" under the Permanent Settlement, and that this sum had been given "to the zemindars, who still cry for more." We pointed out that instead of comparing the rentals of 1877 with the rentals of 1793 he had compared the present rentals with the old assessments paid by the zemindar, and we presumed, we said, that he had done so by an oversight, but that this oversight at the very beginning of his statement upset the whole of his figures. We showed in the next place that he had unwarrantably assumed but one-third of the land to be "waste" at the time, the strong presumption being that the area under cultivation in 1793 did not exceed one-half the area now occupied. Not only has the population increased from 27 millions to upwards of 60 millions, but so vast an area is under cultivation for export produce that we may conclude with certainty the present cultivated area to be at least double what it was in 1793. Making these necessary corrections we should arrive at the conclusion that while the rentals of 1793 amounted to between four and five crores of rupees they fell upon but one-half or less than one-half the area of land now under cultivation. For the population was less than one-half what it now is, and the export trade was so trifling as not to be worth taking into the account. No people ever grow more food than they actually require for their numbers, and independently of the immense acreage in Bengal now under the growth of export produce there must be double the area under food-grains alone that there was in 1793.

But these are minor errors of Mr. O'Kinealy's altogether, as we shall show presently. Before doing so, however, we must notice his statement "that the rates of rents were intended to be fixed by the Permanent Settlement." A very general delusion exists upon this point, Mr. O'Kinealy, like so many more, mistaking a settled "share of the produce" for a settled money rental. The khiraj was a settled share of the produce, and the settled money rental was nothing more than a commutation of that share for fixed periods, calculated upon the prices prevailing at the time. Rents were not fixed by the Permanent Settlement of 1793 in the sense Mr. O'Kinealy and so many with him suppose. As we have shown, and as Mr. Justice Field has shown, it was not the rental that Lord Cornwallis transferred and sold to the zemindar, but the Mahomedan land-tax of the khiraj, concerning which we have the most exact information and directions as to its levy. In Baillie's "Appendix" we have the precise conditions laid down in the imperial firman of Aurungzebe to the Amils for the levy of the impost:—

"They shall settle for such a rate that the ryots may not be ruined by the lands; and they shall not on any account exact beyond the value of half the produce, notwithstanding any particular ability to pay more. In a place where neither asher nor khiraj is fixed they shall take what has been agreed for, provided that in khiraj it does not exceed half the produce in money, that the ryots may not be ruined."—(P. 75.)

A permanent khiraj settled in money is unknown to the Mahomedan law. The general directions of that law receive full expression in the firman we have just quoted:—

"We have caused to be issued this sublime mandate in order that the Amils now in office, as well as those who may be hereafter employed in the affairs of the protected dominions of Hindoostan, from one extremity to the other, be informed on all points concerning the tribute as to the quantity and mode directed in the enlightened law."—(P. 72)

The only restriction upon the collector (amil or zemindar) that we believe is to be found in the whole law of procedure as to the share of the produce to be taken is contained in the sixteenth direction of the same firman, which runs as follows:—

"Every one who is not the hereditary proprietor of such khiraj land, whether infidel or Mussulman, having bought it or taken it in mortgage, shall receive the profits with permission of Government. From whatever is produced on that land they shall exact the settled rate of tribute, provided it be not more than half of the produce, in which case they shall reduce it; but if it is less than the third they shall increase it as far as they may deem fit."—P. 78.

We have italicised the concluding lines of this passage because they contain the ground on which so many erroneous impressions have been entertained as to settled pergunnah rates. It was the custom under Mahomedan procedure to fix the khiraj for longer or shorter periods of time, at rates that were supposed to be the money value of one-half the produce, and those rates were not to be disturbed unless they were found to fall short of one-third of the produce, when the amil (collector) or zemindar was at liberty to increase the rates up to the limit of one half the produce. There is not the slightest difficulty in ascertaining what the law of the khiraj was. Colonel Galloway, General Briggs, Neil Baillie, the Ain-i-Akbara, the Futwa-Alumgherie, and the imperial firmans that are to be found in considerable number, all show that at the time when the company received its sunnud of 1765, that sunnud carried with it the grant of the khiraj on the land, and it was this khiraj that Lord Cornwallis ignorantly made over to the zemindar in perpetuity. The endless controversies of the period arose from Mr. Shore, Mr. Grant, Lord Cornwallis, and their predecessors failing to make exact inquiry into the Mahomedan law on the subject, under the impression that the land revenue was an ancient Hindoo tax, burdened with incidents of all kinds of intricacy. And our officials, from that day down to Mr. Mackenzie, Mr. O'Kinealy, and Mr. Reynolds, are under the same delusion. The only restriction the zemindar is under by law to this hour is the restriction that he may not increase his claim upon the ryot, where that claim amounts already to one-third share of the produce. Wherever the rental, as we call it, falls short of that proportion of the produce he has the constitutional right to increase it, as he may see fit, up to one-half the produce.

The utter purposelessness, however, of all these discussions, and the truly amazing delusions under which not only the Rent Commission, but both the Local and Supreme Government lie, become at once apparent, when we point out that instead of the zemindar taking one-half, or one-third of the produce as rental (khiraj), it is susceptible of the simplest proof that he is not taking more than 1-15th to 1-20th. While Mr. O'Kinealy and Mr. Mackenzie are working themselves into a frenzy in the belief that the zemindar is a rack-renting oppressor, it is susceptible, we say, of the clearest and simplest proof that it is little more than a pepper-corn rent that he is really taking. We cannot help the exposure which this fact makes of the discreditable ignorance out of which this Bill and these discussions have arisen. It is easy to show conclusively that the lands now under cultivation cannot produce a gross harvest of less than 250 crores a year; while the whole body of our officials of both Governments have persuaded themselves that the thirteen crores which the zemindars claim out of these 250 crores as rent are a rack-rent. The disclosure we are now making reduces the Bill of course to an utter fiasco, and covers the whole official body with shame. They have been pursuing the zemindar with reproaches as an oppressor, only to discover that with such timidity has he asserted his claims that he is taking but 1-20th of the produce—where the young lions of the Secretariat continue roaring at him that he has taken everything, and left the ryot stripped and bare. There is the simple fact, that the produce of these lands cannot be less than 250 crores a year—and the zemindar, who is unable as landlord, to get 1-20th of the produce, is a rack-renting oppressor! We should be glad to see Mr. Mackenzie or Mr. O'Kinealy reply.—Indian Statesman.

THE TENANCY BILL IN A NUTSHELL.

The Government, having sagely determined to dispense with all inquiry into the weight of the present rentals levied by the zemindars, and to trust the intuitive discernment of Mr. A. Mackenzie and Mr. O'Kinealy, that those rentals are excessive—although neither of these gentlemen has had any experience of district life whatever—we have been moved by the Mahatmas, we suppose, to inquire into the facts for ourselves, and the result of our inquiry is the conviction that the present rentals represent about one-twentieth of the gross money value of the annual produce of Bengal. The Government will understand that our estimates are, in general, based upon Dr. Hunter's Gazetteer of Bengal, which, we presume, was intended to be a work of reference and authority. We have not trusted implicitly, however, to Dr. Hunter, but have checked his statistics by methods familiar to economic writers upon such subjects, and the general result of our inquiry is—that the annual harvests of these provinces may be approximately estimated in money at 200 to 250 crores of rupees. The following estimates will now speak for themselves:—

	Rs.
Gross money value of the annual harvests of Bengal, Behar, and Orissa	2,50,00,00,000
The zemindars' right under the Cornwallis Settlement is one-half the gross produce as rental	1,25,00,00,000
The Government proposes, by this Tenancy Bill, to strike down the present oppressive rentals to one-fourth the produce, or	62,50,00,000
The oppressors are themselves meanwhile ineffectually attempting to realise the enormous exaction of	13,00,00,000

We have here then at last the facts of the case "in a nutshell." This astonishing Government of ours, having made up its silly mind, without inquiry of any kind, that the zemindars are a body of rack-renting oppressors, has now to suffer the humiliation of the public Press pointing out to it the delusion it is under as to the facts. Five years of passionate conflict have not sufficed to awaken it to the knowledge, that in legislation of the kind which is attempting, not a step can be safely taken that does not rest upon ascertained facts. In the densest ignorance of what it is really doing, it has brought in a Bill to abolish all freedom of contracts whatever between the landlord and tenant in these provinces, from a foregone conclusion that the landlord was greatly abusing the rights conferred upon him by the Settlement of 1793, to rack-rent the ryot. So absolute is its conviction upon the subject, while so profoundly ignorant at the same time of the facts with which it is dealing, that it brings forward a Bill to restrict the rental by statute law to one-fourth of the gross produce of the land, while the zemindar is positively claiming but one-fifth of one-fourth. The estimates we have given above show clearly the heavy wrong that has been done to the zemindar by withholding from him the necessary legal power to recover the moderate rentals he has been attempting to levy. Instead of abusing his powers, the zemindar has shown a moderation that has produced nothing but mischief, from the room it has given for the growth of the immense mass of middlemen interests to which his moderation has given rise. What, then, are you going to do? To persevere with this Bill, and the wild pretences upon which it is founded, is, or ought to be, impossible. The strong Secretariat bias that exists against the zemindar has led to the constant refusal to give him that assistance from the law to which we pledged ourselves by the Settlement, until the ryot has made up his mind to pay no rent at all. We presume that the official gentlemen at Simla who constitute the Council, and the Secretaries, have sufficient acquaintance with economic subjects to know that the rental in settled and civilised countries is believed to average about one-third of the gross produce, or the same proportion at which the khiraj was fixed by Akbar under the great settlement of the Hindoo minister Todur Mull. The true rental of these Lower Provinces at this moment bears probably about this very proportion to the gross annual produce, or about eighty crores of rupees. The zemindar is really entitled to one-half, and in such strange and total ignorance of the most ordinary facts around us do we administer the country that we have the head officials of the local Government and the Supreme Legislative Council employed for years together in settling a new rent law without one single man amongst them all asking for the facts on which they are going. It is left to the journalist at the eleventh hour to point out that they are going to relieve the tenant by fixing his rent at one-fourth the produce, whereas his oppressive rack-renting landlord is ineffectually trying to obtain one-twentieth! What stronger testimony could we have to the moderation of the zemindar, or what more conclusive proof of his consideration for the tenant, than these strange figures supply? Instead of the ryot needing protection, he has used his freedom of contract with the zemindar to keep down the rental to rates that makes himself the virtual landlord of the soil. No more wild crusade was ever seen than this attack upon the zemindar body by the Bengal Secretariat. The young lions of that institution have about as much real knowledge of the relations subsisting between the landlord and tenant in these provinces, as they have of the agriculture of the fixed stars. It has been in vain that the district officers protested that they were wrong, as they protest to this hour. The Bill is a gigantic delusion and imposture throughout, and should be withdrawn instantly, that exact inquiry may be made of the order we have so strenuously insisted upon.

We shall show presently, from Colebrooke's Husbandry, in what complete ignorance of the sacrifice they were making, Lord Cornwallis and his Council decreed the Settlement a century ago. The very year after it was passed Mr. Colebrooke pointed out that the gross value of the produce of the Bengal districts was 40 crores a year, without taking any account of the vast item of dairy produce. And the same crass ignorance of every fact prevails to this hour. The greatest legislative feat of the age, we venture to say, is this attempt of the Bengal Secretariat to reduce the zemindars' rental from 13 crores a year to five times that amount, on the ground that the 13 crores are certainly a rack-rent! The exaction of 13 crores has been most cruel; so let us decree them 62. Lord Ripon and Mr. Ilbert will perhaps understand now why it is that we so urgently demand inquiry. Has it never struck either of them as certain that if the agricultural rental of the United Kingdom, in spite of its poor soil, is about 40 crores a year, 13 crores a year must be a very low rental for an agricultural population of 60 millions, cultivating the richest soil in the world? Let either of them ask Mr. Mackenzie or Mr. Reynolds for an intelligent explanation of the fact—How is it that 13 crores are a rack-rent in these wealthy provinces, when 40 crores are not so in the small acreage of England growing nothing but food?—Indian Statesman.

DEPUTATIONS TO LORD DUFFERIN.

On Tuesday last a deputation of the London committee of landholders and others interested in the welfare of the agricultural community of Bengal and Behar, waited upon his Excellency to present a memorial from the committee, in which they expressed the concern and apprehension with which they regarded the scope of the proposed alteration in the law of landlord and tenant in Bengal, as contained in the provisions of the Tenancy Bill now before the Legislative Council of India. The committee consists of a large number of gentlemen formerly connected with the Bengal Administration, as well as of many zemindars, planters, and merchants formerly resident in that province. The deputation was limited to seven representatives of these various classes and interests:—Sir George Yule, K.C.S.I., C.B., late Bengal Civil Service and member of the Supreme Council of India; Mr. C. T. Buckland, late Bengal Civil Service and senior member of the Board of Revenue, Calcutta; Mr. Roper Lethbridge, C.I.E., late Press Commissioner of India; Mr. J. Pitt-Kennedy, late officiating Judge of the High Court of Calcutta; Mr. J. D. Ward, late Bengal Civil Service and Judge of Dacca; Dr. J. Berry White, late Civil Surgeon in Assam and tea-planter; and Mr. J. Dacosta, late merchant and zemindar, Calcutta. After each of the members of the deputation had briefly addressed his Excellency in opposition to the Bill, Lord Dufferin thanked them for the clear expression of their views, assuring them that he approached the important subject with an open mind, anxious only to see justice done to all classes; and the proceedings terminated with hearty thanks to his lordship for his courteous reception.

On the same afternoon a deputation from the Committee of the Council on Education in India waited on Lord Dufferin, by appointment, to lay before his Excellency a memorial. The memorial, after referring to the state of the education question in India, and especially to the appointment of the Imperial Commission on Education in the beginning of 1882 and the recommendations of that Commission, called particular attention to one feature of the policy recommended by the Commission—namely, the policy of calling forth private effort and liberality for the support and extension of education, supplemented and encouraged by the system of grants-in-aid. In conclusion, the memorial pointed out to his Excellency the fact that education in India had suffered much in the past from the want of any legislative measure on the subject, and that the present time was peculiarly advantageous for its introduction, and the demand for it urgent. The education of the masses was a necessity for the future well-being of the country. Even the higher education of a few made the ignorance of the multitude the more deplorable, and also the more dangerous to society. Lord Dufferin showed much interest in the subject, and spoke of its important bearing on the welfare of India, and assured the deputation that it would receive his early and earnest attention on his arrival in India.

On Thursday last a deputation from the East India Association had a private interview with Earl Dufferin. Sir Orfeur Cavenagh, the chairman of the association, presented a memorial from the council congratulating his lordship on his appointment, and calling his attention to various subjects that would require the gravest consideration. They particularly referred to the extension of the railway system, and the construction of works of irrigation and inland navigation; the abolition of the duty on gold and silver plate, and the general encouragement of native manufactures; the removal of race antagonism, the formation of agricultural banks, the general introduction of the principles of municipal government, the conditions under which admission to the covenanted and statutory Civil Service is obtained, and the organisation of the native army and the expediency of offering suitable openings for advancement to native officers. Lord Dufferin, in reply, said he had been very glad to receive the deputation, because the association they represented was in no sense a party one. The suggestions made in the memorial should have his best consideration.—Lord Dufferin also received a deputation at Brown's Hotel from the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, consisting of the following members of Parliament:—Mr. Slagg (who introduced the deputation), Mr. Jacob Bright, Mr. Armitage, Mr. Grafton, Mr. Hutton, and others. They drew attention to railway extension in India, and to the development of art. Special stress was laid upon the existing railways with Burma, and more diplomatic arrangements were advocated with Mandalay, in view of the attitude of the French both in Burma and Siam, the possible railway extension through Burma to China, and the probable development of trade with the Shan States. They congratulated Lord Dufferin on his appointment. Lord Dufferin, in reply, expressed his extreme pleasure at having the goodwill of Lancashire on his appointment. He would pay every attention to the representations of the deputation, especially as to the railway extension in India, and to the well-being of the people. He considered that a pacific policy was of the highest importance, and that was in accordance with his own tastes and views.

COUNCIL DRAFTS FOR INDIA.—The tenders for Rs.15,00,000 in bills on India and telegraphic transfers were received on Wednesday last at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were:—In bills—on Calcutta, Rs.2,97,000, average rate 1s. 7 065d.; on Bombay, Rs.11,91,000, average rate 1s. 7 08d.; and on Madras, Rs.12,000, average rate 1s. 7 0625d. In telegraphic transfers—on Calcutta, Rs.14,25,000, average rate 1s. 7 125d.; and on Bombay, Rs.6,00,000, average rate 1s. 7 125d. Total, Rs.35,25,000. Tenders for bills on all Presidencies at 1s. 7 1-16d. will receive about 18 per cent., and above in full, and for telegraphic transfers on Calcutta and Bombay at 1s. 7½d. about 75 per cent. Special allotments of bills for Rs.52,000 for Bombay and a similar amount for Madras were subsequently made at 1s. 7 5-32d. From April 1 to last night the total sales of drafts had reached Rs.8,00,02,467, realising £6,555,624.

Mr. LALMOHUN GHOSE will address the Liberal Five Hundred at the Lecture Hall, Greenwich, on Wednesday next.

THE GWALIOR GATEWAY AT THE SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM.—The final consignment of the carved stone-work at the gateway presented to the South Kensington Museum by his Highness the Maharajah Scindiah has recently arrived in London, but owing to the great size and weight of the pieces of masonry it has been found impossible to assign a suitable place to it in any part of the present buildings. The Indian collections being located in the galleries of the Royal Horticultural Gardens until the completion of the western wing of the South Kensington Museum, no site can be found on which the gateway can be incorporated with the permanent buildings. As it would be a regrettable circumstance if, for this reason, this magnificent gift could not be exhibited to the public for some years, we are glad to learn that it has been proposed that the authorities of the museum should be requested to allow this imposing example of Indian art workmanship to be lent to the Commissioners for the great Indian and Colonial Exhibition which is to be held in London in 1886, on the grounds of which there would be space to erect it. The place of honour would be assigned to it in the Indian Department, and the Maharajah's gift would attract a wide notice, and doubtless be duly appreciated.

At the Anglo-Indian Club, Harley-street, on Saturday, the following resolution was passed:—"That this meeting of Indian residents in London, in the name of the people of India, beg to express their deep regret at the death of Mr. Fawcett, and condole with Mrs. Fawcett and family."

THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS.—In the House of Lords a conversation took place with respect to the transfer of the Madras Government to the Hills during the hot weather, in the course of which the Earl of Kimberley stated that Lord Lawrence, one of the most hard-working Viceroys, had always advocated the removal of the supreme Government to Simla during the hot season, and a similar change was as necessary for the Government of Madras. In this view the Duke of Argyll, the Duke of Buckingham and Chandos, and the Marquis of Salisbury expressed concurrence, and the subject dropped.

NOTICES, DIVIDENDS, MEETINGS, ETC.

A general meeting of the shareholders of the new Oriental Bank will be held at 40, Threadneedle-street, on Monday next, November 17th, at 1 P.M.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.

On Tuesday the price of refined bar silver fell ¼d. to 50½d. per ounce, at which rate a small amount of business was done, but there still continues to be an absence of dealings in Mexican dollars. Indian exchange rates remain at 1s. 7 1-16d., Hong Kong at 3s. 8½d., Shanghai have receded to 4s. 11½d. Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Rupee Paper was unchanged at 81½, but the Four per Cent. were ¼ lower at the close to 78½, 79½.

On Wednesday Rupee Paper and Indian Stocks were unaltered.

The market for bar silver was steadier at 50½d. per ounce. Business in Mexican dollars continued so completely at a standstill that no price is obtainable for them. Bombay telegraphic transfer rate is unaltered, but Calcutta is harder at 1s. 7 3-32d. to 1s. 7½d. The Hong Kong and Shanghai rates are 3s. 8½d. and 4s. 11½d. respectively. The Nepaul has left with £15,450, including £15,000 in bar silver, two-thirds being from Bombay and the balance for Calcutta.

On Thursday the Eastern exchange rates were unaltered, but the Bank of Bengal discount rate, which was fixed at four per cent. on the 17th of July, has been reduced to three per cent. Bar silver remains at 50½d. per ounce, and the market was very quiet. The complete absence of business with Mexican dollars, which has had to be recorded for days past, continues. Four-and-a-Half Rupee Paper closed at 81½, and the Four per Cents. at 79½.

On Friday a trifling amount of business was done with bar silver, but the same absence of business with Mexican dollars has to be reported, and as the remittance per French steamer is not looked for until towards the end of next week, no actual price for coined silver can be obtained from the brokers at present. Exchange rates in India are scarcely so firm as they were, the Calcutta and Bombay quotations being 1s. 7 1-16d. and 1s. 7 3-32d. respectively. Four-and-a-Half Rupee Paper closed at 81½, and the Four per Cents. at 79½.

There was no alteration in Saturday's silver market. Indian exchange rates are quoted at 1s. 7 16d. in Bombay and Calcutta. Rupee Paper was unchanged, and was very quiet all day.

On Monday bar silver declined to 50½d. per ounce. Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Rupee Paper was unaltered at 81½, but Four per Cents. declined ½ to 79½. The Eastern exchanges were unaltered.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

THE VICEREGAL COUNCIL.

At a meeting of the Legislative Council on the 23rd ult., the Hon. C. P. Ilbert obtained leave to introduce a Bill amending the law in force in the Panch Mahals. The object of the Bill, Mr. Ilbert stated, was to regulationise that locality so as to bring the law in force in it into harmony with that in force in the neighbouring district of Khajra. The Bill was introduced on the proposal of the Bombay Government.

The Hon. J. W. Quinton introduced a Bill making certain technical amendments in the Oudh Estates Act; also a Bill amending the Excise Act of 1881, so far as it relates to the North-West Provinces and Oudh.

The Hon. T. C. Hope obtained leave to introduce a Bill amending and consolidating the law regulating the construction and working of railways. Mr. Hope observed that the existing body of railway laws provided for a variety of questions arising out of the construction of railways, but it not only did so in a haphazard manner, but it did not deal adequately with many such questions affecting the actual working of railways as arose between the railways and the public. Such subjects were those relating to the obligation of railways to work in safety and convenience the interests of landowners, the institution of proper inquiries as to accidents, the regulation of fares, to systematise the keeping of accounts. In the constitution of some railways little or no provision had been made for many of these matters. Others had been incidentally dealt with by the railways in their contracts, but the general result was a considerable degree of chaos where simplicity was required. Then, again, several companies had urged the passing of an Arbitration Act, and Government itself had sometimes found the necessity of compulsory arbitration in the public interests. The present Bill proposed to deal with those various matters. It was only a rough draft prepared in the Public Works Department. Before further action was taken with regard to it the Bill would be submitted to the opinions of the local Governments and Chambers of Commerce and various railway companies.

The Hon. C. P. Ilbert said that the Bill had been scrutinised in the Legislative Department, but a better opportunity for further considering it would arise when the external criticism invited had been received.

The Viceroy wished it to be understood that he was not committed to the Bill as it now stood. He was glad to observe that it was proposed to consult the public bodies before proceeding further with it. He was entirely of opinion as to the desirability of amending the railway laws.

The Council adjourned sine die.

THE Viceroy probably leaves Calcutta on his return to England two days after Lord Dufferin's arrival. His Excellency travels by the Olive from Bombay, and will probably spend some time on the Continent before going home.

The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has ordered a full and formal inquiry by the magistrate of the district into the Arrangatta railway accident.

A LETTER has been addressed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal to the Commissioner of the Presidency Division censuring the latter for not stopping at an initial stage the proceedings in the Krishnagar students' case.

THE Select Committee on the Bengal Tenancy Bill are meeting three times a week at Simla, in order, it is suggested, to finish their report before the departure of the Viceroy for the plains.

THE Lieutenant-Governor has gone through the papers connected with the Nuddea students' case. He censures Mr. A. Smith, the Commissioner, and reduces Mr. Taylor, the Magistrate, and Major Ramsay, the District Superintendent, by one grade—the former for six months and the latter for twelve months.

THE title of Maharajah Bahadoor, conferred upon the Maharajah of Cooh Behar, has been declared hereditary.

GREAT satisfaction is expressed at the appointment of Mr. Mackenzie Wallace to be Lord Dufferin's private secretary.

IN the course of November the following members of the Government of India will be on tour:—H.E. the Viceroy, H.E. the Commander-in-Chief, the Hon. Mr. T. C. Hope, and the Hon. General Wilson.

HOAXING THE "STATESMAN."—The Bombay Gazette is authorised to contradict, without reserve, the statement that the Viceroy had asked for the removal of Sir Richard Garth, and it adds:—"Nor is there any truth in the statement that the Home Secretary was censured on account of the memorandum which Sir R. Garth in his Minute characterised as a scurrilous libel. Mr. Mackenzie's memorandum, which was a confidential document, was written two years ago, and the whole case was submitted to the Secretary of State, who saw no reason to interfere. Our contemporary, the Statesman, has evidently been hoaxed."

DHERE SHUMSHERE, Commander-in-Chief of the Nepal Army, died at Katmandu on Tuesday night, the 12th instant. His illness was acute rheumatism, involving much sleeplessness and derangement of the kidneys. He had been suffering for a long time. Death occurred more suddenly than had been anticipated, but Dhere Shumshere was conscious to the last. Two of his five wives wished to become suttee, but were successfully dissuaded. Due military precautions against disorder were taken, but no disturbance has occurred or is expected now. The Prime Minister of Nepal remains well in health, but feels his brother's death keenly.

THEIR Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught are now at Nowboog, in Kashmir, enjoying the splendid scenery and a glorious climate. There has been fair sport so far.

SOME changes has been made in the winter tour of the Commander-in-Chief, who will leave Simla on November 2nd instead of the 5th. His Excellency, who will not visit Bareilly, Shahjehanpur, or Dinapore, is timed to arrive in Calcutta on November 26th.

COLONEL E. F. CHAPMAN, R.A.—Colonel E. F. Chapman, R.A., Military Secretary to the Commander-in-Chief, is about to resign his appointment, as he has been medically recommended not to stop in India another rainy season. Colonel Chapman probably goes home in February to regimental duty. Colonel Chapman will not be easily replaced on the head-quarter staff, and Sir Donald Stewart has not yet chosen his successor.

BOMBAY.

AN apology having been tendered and the offending article unreservedly withdrawn, the charges of defamation brought against the Deccan Herald, in respect of the Poona racing dispute, have been dropped.

THE charge brought by Messrs. Latham and Co., of Bombay, against their manager, Walter Bennett Williams, who was accused of criminal breach of trust in respect of Rs. 4,000, has been dismissed.

H.E. SIR FREDERICK ROBERTS, Commander-in-Chief of the Madras army, arrived in Bombay on the 20th ult. by the Raichore mail train. His Excellency, who comes to Bombay to meet Lady Roberts on her arrival from England, will be the guest of Mr. Justice Kimball during his stay in the city. Captain Hamilton, aide-de-camp and acting military secretary, accompanied his Excellency to Bombay. He has obtained six months' leave of absence, and will shortly proceed to Cairo on active service.

THE Port Trustees at their last meeting sanctioned an expenditure of Rs. 19,655 to cover the cost of a system of lighting the approach and entrances of the Prince's Dock.

CAPTAIN H. M. TEMPLE, Second Assistant to the Governor-General's Agent at Baroda, has been appointed Boundary Settlement officer in Bundelcund and ex officio Assistant to the Political Agent at Bundelcund.

THERE was a grand display of gas lighting at Wudhwan on the 22nd ult., the palace and city gates being splendidly lit by that means. The apparatus was brought from England by the Thakore, to whom great credit is due. It is thought that the whole city will soon be lighted with gas.

IN consequence of the conduct of the inhabitants of the village of Khared in the Ankleshwar Taluka of the Broach District in suppressing evidence of a murder which occurred in their village, a punitive police force, consisting of one fourth-class head constable and four third-class constables, is to be quartered in the village for the period of one year at an annual cost of Rs. 601-5-9.

FROM the Bombay Presidency season reports for the week ended October 2, it appears that there has been good rain throughout the Deccan and Southern Mahratta Country, excepting at Kaladgi, where it is much wanted; more rain also is required in parts of Poona, Sholapore, Belgaum, and Dharwar. The crops were slightly injured by excessive rain in parts of Nasik and Khandesh. Kharif harvest and rabi sowing are in progress in most districts. There is fever in parts of fourteen districts; cholera, small-pox, and cattle-disease in a few districts.

DR. AGLIARDI, the titular archbishop of Cezarea, is expected at Bombay about the end of November, as Apostolical Delegate to India. His mission will probably be to settle disputes of long standing between the jurisdictions of the Archbishop of Goa on one side and the Vicar Apostolic on the other.

OF the subsidy of Rs. 3,000 per month paid by the British Government to Messrs. Shepherd and Co., the agents to the B.S.N. Company, for the conveyance by steamers of the daily mails to the coast towns, Goa contributes Rs. 200 as her share for the early delivery of letters effected by this new arrangement.

THE following sums have been subscribed to the Dulpotram Dayabhoy Memorial Fund in addition to the Rs. 4,636-8 already acknowledged; Hon J. B. Peile, Rs 100; Mr. S. Tagore, Judge Sholapore, Rs. 20; the Prag Dayan Wurdhah Subha, Rs. 12-4-0. The total now reaches Rs. 4,768-12.

MAHOMEDAN EDUCATION.—A large gathering of influential Mahomedans of all sects assembled at the Zakria's mosque on the 20th ult., at 10 a.m., to witness the prize distribution to the successful students of the Madrasai Hashamia. Maulawi Mahomed Siddik, the principal of the Madrasa, read the report, stating that the annual examination was commenced in the beginning of September and was concluded about the end of that month. The examination was conducted in Arabic, Persian, Urdu, and Gujarati, and classes in medicine and mathematics were examined. He further said that the number of students since the last year showed an increase, for at the last year's examination the number of boys was somewhat less than five hundred, while the number of students examined this year was 517. The progress of studies was also fairly carried on. In conclusion he thanked those gentlemen who had taken the trouble to examine the institution. Passages from the Koran, verses in Persian, Hindustani, and Gujarati were recited by some of the successful students of the Madrasa. Prize-books were distributed to the successful students, and a shawl was presented to the principal, and pieces of cloth to every member of the teaching staff. Sherbet, nose-gays, and rose-water were distributed, and the meeting dispersed.

VISIT OF THE DEWAN OF BARODA.—His Excellency Khan Bahadur Kajeesaheb ShaSudin, C.I.E., Dewan of Baroda, arrived at Bombay during the Dewalee holidays, and returned by a morning train on the 20th ult. from the Church-gate station. The Dewan's health has much improved since his return from Mahabaleshwar. It is probable that Lord Ripon will visit Baroda before handing over charge to Lord Dufferin. In that case his Highness the Gaekwar will return the compliment by coming to Bombay, to bid the Viceroy a last farewell.

PROGRAMME OF THE GOVERNOR OF BOMBAY'S TOUR.—The following will be the programme of the approaching tour of Sir James Fergusson, the sea portions of which will be performed in I.G.S. May Frere. His Excellency will be accompanied throughout by the Military Secretary (Captain G. H. Dean) and an A.D.C. Major-General Merriman, who starts with the Governor's party, will not proceed beyond Kurrachee:—

Nov. 5th.—Leave Bombay, 8 p.m.

MADRAS.

JUDGMENT was delivered in the Bangalore breach of promise of marriage case on Monday in favour of Miss Sherwood, the plaintiff, the damages being assessed at Rs. 500.

THE BANGALORE RIFLE MEETING.—The Army versus Volunteers contest was won by the former team, who scored 1,022 points against 968 points scored by the latter. The Lord Lindsay contest was won by G. Troop Team of the 12th Lancers. Private Shaik Emam, 9th Bombay N.I., wins the Hyderabad Medal for the highest aggregate in match 14. Match 14, 800 yards, was won by Havildar Lalkhan, 9th Bombay N.I., with 30 points. Match 20 was won by Niaque Coustan D'Souza, 9th Bombay N.I., with 46 points. The Viceroy's Cup, 1,000 yards, was won by Sergeant Whitty, G.I.P.R.V. Match 25 was won by Sergeant McKay, R.E., with 49 points. Sir Frederick Roberts distributed the prizes on the 12th ult., and delivered a long address, in which he spoke highly of the shooting of the 9th Bombay team. Some of the competitions were fired for on the 18th, and this closed the meeting of 1884. Match 35 was won by the 15th Madras, with 427 points; the 9th Bombay being second with 421 points. Nine teams competed. Naique Ameen Khan, 15th, the best shot of the combined teams, wins a purse of Rs. 25. The native championship of the meeting falls to Havildar Coustan D'Souza, 9th Bombay, with a total of 332 points in matches 13 to 19. He also wins the Southern India medal and Rs. 75. Naique Abdul, 9th Bombay, wins the first prize in the match for the highest aggregate. The volley firing for natives was won by the 15th Madras. Volunteer Domingo, of the G.I.P.R., wins the championship for Europeans. The weather has been very monsoonish.

WHAT is fame? asks the Madras Mail. A copy of the pamphlet containing the report of the proceedings at the public meeting in Madras on the 3rd July, which was addressed to Mr. J. G. Biggar, M.P., at the address given in Dod's "Parliamentary Companion," has been returned to the Madras Committee by the London Post Office, superscribed "Not known!"

MR. H. ST. A. GOODRICH, of Exeter College, Oxford, Acting Collector of Bellary, has, in obedience to a telegram from the Chief Secretary to Government, proceeded to Ootacamund to see the Governor. The Madras Mail conjectures that his Excellency will offer him the vacant seat in the Viceregal Legislative Council, which, coupled as it is with peculiar conditions, has been going a-begging among his many seniors. Mr. Goodrich has put in rather less than seventeen years' service. He has commended himself to the Governor as a "highly educated man, with rare intelligence."

It is announced by the Madras Mail that the Government of India has sanctioned an estimate, amounting to Rs. 3,85,600, chargeable to capital, of the cost of four engines and 200 high-sided open goods waggons required for working the Madras Harbour Works traffic of the South Indian Railway. The Supreme Government has also sanctioned an estimate of Rs. 73,464 for the proposed rectification in the alignment of the beach line between the General Hospital and Penitentiary, Madras, and an estimate of Rs. 10,682 for a forty-two feet turn-table at Pallaveram; tank-house and water-columns at beach. These works have been rendered necessary on the South Indian Railway to meet the probable increase in traffic, on account of the demand for stone in the reconstruction of the Madras Harbour.

THE NIXON CASE.—The result of the appeal that was made by Mr. R. B. Nixon, against the judgment of Mr. Justice Kernan, having failed, and the month that he was allowed to make it in having expired a fortnight ago, he was arrested on Tuesday, and conveyed to jail, there to undergo the six months' simple imprisonment awarded by the Judge. In former days Mr. Nixon was widely and very favourably known in Madras, and regret is felt by those who are not his creditors that he drifted into irregularities of which the High Court was bound to take severe cognisance.—Mail.

BURMA.

BASSEIN.—The Deputy Commissioner recently administered a very salutary lesson to three young Burman reprobates for writing a scurrilous and obscene epistle relative to the antecedents of a certain young Burmese damsel, and posting it upon the door of the house in which the girl resided. They were originally tried by the Honorary Magistrates, who, on finding the offence proved, and thinking the men deserved more severe punishment than they were empowered to inflict, sent the case up to the Deputy Commissioner. The Honorary Magistrates, it is presumed, had no cause to regret their proceeding, for immediately sending off to the jail for the triangle and two experienced whippers, and summoning the pupils of the Government school to which the offenders belonged, the Deputy Commissioner ordered his court prosecutor to proclaim to all assembled the heinousness of the offence of which the accused were guilty, and cautioned them to take warning by the manner in which he intended to punish similar offences. Each of the three urchins was then tied up and received 30 lashes. A little more whipping instead of accommodating these scoundrels in well-fed ease in jail will bring even a mature Burman to his senses.

RANGOON.—The Chief Commissioner has promised to submit the indignation meeting's memorial regarding the Mandalay massacres to the Government of India.

THREATENING anonymous letters have, it is stated, been received by the two Burmese speakers at the late meeting to protest against King Theebaw's misgovernment and by a Burman honorary magistrate who subscribed to the expenses. There is some excitement in the province as to the probable action the British Government may take, and trade naturally suffers from the uncertainty prevailing.

CELESTIAL HOTEL-KEEPERS IN RANGOON.—We cannot help observing the decided success of one or two of the so-called Chinese hotels that started here some months ago. One in particular, that belonging to Take Lee, has so far prospered that he has been enabled to open a second and much larger and comfortable house in Soolay Pagoda-road. Here again we have an example of the success attending the Celestials. Without attempting to draw comparisons which are always invidious, it is impossible to refrain from remarking, that many in Rangoon, with but the veriest trifle of a capital, might succeed as easily if they would only throw energy and zeal into the matter, but this is just what they will not do, hence the poverty of a certain class of the community.—Rangoon Times.

THE ANTWERP AND LONDON EXHIBITION.

The following Resolution of the Bombay Government regarding the appointment of an interim Committee for collecting and forwarding articles to the Antwerp and London Exhibitions was issued on the 23rd ult.:—

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.

BOMBAY CASTLE, 15TH OCTOBER, 1884.

His Excellency the Governor in Council is pleased to appoint the undermentioned gentlemen to form an interim Committee for the purpose of collecting and forwarding articles to the International Exhibition to be held at Antwerp in 1885, and to the Royal Indian and Colonial Exhibition to be held in London in 1886:—

PRESIDENT.—The Honourable F. Forbes Adam.

MEMBERS.—John Gordon, Esq.; Haji Karim Mahamad Suleman, Esq.; E. T. Leith, Esq., LL.M.; Dr. D. MacDonald, M.D.; Nanabhai B. Jijibhai, Esq.; E. C. K. Ollivant, Esq., C.S.; Major A. B. Portman; and Vrijbhukandas Atmaram, Esq.

SECRETARY.—Mr. J. Griffiths.

2. Mr. J. Griffiths will, while holding the appointment of Secretary to the Committee above named, draw an allowance of Rs. 250 per mensem in the event of the proposal submitted with the letter from this Government No. 3,492, dated 24th ultimo, being sanctioned by the Government of India.

3. The Accountant-General should be requested to honour promptly the drafts of the Committee signed by two members to the extent authorised by Government Resolution, Financial Department, No. 3,110, dated 19th September, 1884.

4. The Government grant sanctioned in the Resolution above quoted is intended rather for the transport of exhibits to Antwerp than for the purchase of goods, which, it is hoped, will be forwarded by the owners on their own account.

W. P. SYMONDS,
Acting Under-Secretary to Government

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1884.

THE SONEPORE MEETING AGAINST THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL: AND THE DEPUTATION TO LORD DUFFERIN.

TUESDAY last, November 4th, was a memorable day in the history of Mr. Ilbert's last surviving bantling, the Bengal Tenancy Bill. On that day the representatives of the whole of Behar, both zemindars and ryots, to the number of over two thousand, were gathered together at Sonapore to protest against the Bill; whilst simultaneously here in London the chosen representatives of all the most important sections of the Anglo-Indian community of Bengal and Behar waited upon Lord Dufferin in deputation, for the same purpose. There can be no doubt whatever of the powerful effect on English public opinion produced by the combination of these two most significant demonstrations; and whilst the new Viceroy is most certainly justified in preserving (as he told the deputation) "an open mind" on the subject, and the most perfect freedom of action, pending that complete and careful examination of the question in all its bearings which can only be carried out on the spot, his Excellency cannot fail to be deeply impressed by the reality and the unanimity of alarm with which the Bill is regarded by all those most closely affected by it, as well as by those most competent to form a disinterested opinion about its mischievous tendencies.

The lucid and interesting telegraphic summary of the proceedings of the Sonapore meeting, for which this journal and some of our daily contemporaries are indebted to the courtesy of the chairman, his Highness the Maharajah of Darbhanga, puts in a striking light the representative character of the gathering, as embracing the whole of the great province of Behar; and to all who are familiar with that province, the list that is given of the leading noblemen and gentlemen present will speak for itself as to the great weight and authority attaching to the resolutions that were passed. A remarkable feature of this meeting—as of most of the more recent meetings in Bengal—was the attendance in considerable numbers of jotdars and ryots, who already perceive clearly enough the fatal nature of the gifts that Mr. Ilbert would force upon them.

The Bengal ryots, as a body, are far too shrewd not to understand that Mr. Ilbert's pet doctrine of "Free Sale," if carried into law, will inevitably result in handing them over to the tender mercies of the money-lender—into whose hands all these saleable occupancy-rights will soon pass, leaving the ryots as mere serfs or (at the best) as rack-rented sub-tenants. It is indeed possible that in some of the indigo districts of Behar the money-lender will be outbid by a more merciful purchaser, the indigo planter, who will buy these occupancy rights, not so much for the purpose of squeezing cruel rack-rents out of the sub-tenants, as with the object of forcing them to sow indigo; but it is notorious that the ryots do not look with much favour on even this more merciful alternative, whilst the more thoughtful and far-sighted of the planters will not incur the odium of this procedure, and are extremely averse to any change in the law that will give such a power to the "weaker brethren" in the planting community, thereby imperilling the good feeling that at present obtains between planters, zemindars, and ryots in those districts.

The rapidity with which the alarm at the treacherous boons offered by Mr. Ilbert has spread among the ryots of the province, has been remarkably evidenced by the recent telegrams from various rural centres that have appeared in the Indian Mirror, a journal that professes to be an organ of the ryots, and that has certainly been not unfriendly to the Tenancy Bill. Very frequently of late have appeared in its columns such telegrams as the following one, which is dated Joyrampore, October 4 :—

An enthusiastic meeting of Durputonidars, Jotdars, and ryots was held at Joyrampore in Nuddea on Friday, the 3rd-October. A resolution was passed expressing dissatisfaction at the tendency to ruinous litigation of the proposed rent law, and asking for a representative of the middlemen in Council, and praying to be exempted from stamp fees in rent suits, and claiming reduction of the limit of enhancement of tenure-holders' rent from a double to a fourth of the rent previously paid.

The Indian Statesman, too, and many other Bengal papers have borne testimony to the anxiety which the proposals of this Bill have already produced among the very classes whom it was fondly supposed to be intended to benefit. But still more remarkable is the agitation which has sprung up among the tenants on the estates of the Government itself. With cynical audacity Mr. Ilbert has, throughout this controversy, maintained that what is sauce for the goose is not sauce for the gander—that an arbitrary and tyrannical law is needed to keep the landlord in his place when that landlord happens to be a private individual, but that such a law would be too dreadful for the landlord to bear if the landlord happens to be the Government! But now the cry is coming up from many districts of Bengal that no ryots are so hardly treated as those on the estates that are managed by Government, and that, if whips are needed for the zemindar, scorpions at the least will be required for the Government.

Precisely the same point, the injury threatened to the ryot by this ill-advised measure, that was so strongly brought out at the Sonapore meeting, was also insisted on by the deputation that waited on Lord Dufferin last Tuesday. The memorial presented by that deputation, on behalf of the London committee, quoted numerous authorities in condemnation of the Bill, as now diverted from its original intention; and dwelt on the fact that Mr. Ilbert himself, in his "Statement of Objects and Reasons," calmly admitted that one of the effects of his measure might be to leave the sub-tenant "with little or no protection from the law"! We think it an exceedingly fortunate thing for the Bengal ryot that the new Viceroy of India is a statesman of Lord Dufferin's calibre and experience. A weaker man, or one with a less firmly-established reputation, might not improbably be tempted to look with favour on proposals that hide their ruinous tendencies under the specious guise of benevolence. To a weak Viceroy, desirous of making a name for himself by sensational philanthropy, the civium ardor prava jubentium is as the divine law; and to such there would be something very attractive about a Bill that pretends only to rob the rich zemindars in order to benefit the poor ryots. Nor, in face of such a brilliant speciousness, would it avail much to urge that some 97,000 out of your 236,000 "rich" zemindars, enjoy a rent-roll (when they can realise it) of less than ten pounds per annum—nor to urge that the inevitable effect of your boon to the poor ryots will be infinitely to pauperise and degrade them—for these are minor details, unworthy of the attention of those philanthropists of the Radical Clubs, whose praise has been so much sought after of late. Happily for ryots, no less than for zemindars, Lord Dufferin does not stand in need of the ill-informed plaudits of either Radicals or Tories; nor, even if the case were otherwise, does his previous career permit the belief that he would condescend to win those plaudits by claptrap or cant. The fate of the Bengal Tenancy Bill will be decided on its merits. And those merits will be determined, not by the credulity of London Radicals—nor by the avariciousness of Indian financiers, eager to introduce the tax-gatherer to a newly-enriched class of money-lending landlords who shall be unprotected by the Permanent Settlement—but by the hard facts of the case.

THE NIZAM'S VISIT TO AURUNGAHABAD.—Preparations are being made for a visit of his Highness the Nizam to Aurungabad some time next month, but whether he will go or not is a question. It is expected, or rather it is hoped, that Lord Ripon might be induced to pay the famous Caves of Ellora and Ajanta a visit, and his Highness is no doubt anxious to do him honour before he quits India. We believe that Nawab Sa'ar Jung was the bearer of an invitation to Lord Ripon from the Nizam, but it has not yet transpired whether his lordship has accepted it. All the same, however, great preparations are being made at Aurungabad for the reception of the departing Viceroy, as well here for the Nizam's trip. It was only the other day that in a spirit of "economy" a number of horses and carriages belonging to the Nizam were disposed of by public auction. Now we hear that horses and carriages have been ordered from Madras—horses to the value of Rs. 25,000, and carriages Rs. 50,000. Some of the horses and carriages are to go direct to Aurungabad from Madras for the visit.—Deccan Times.

The centenary of Sir Moses Montefiore has been commemorated by a medal, bearing on the obverse his bust with a Hebrew inscription round it, and on the reverse the words, "A universal tribute of respect and esteem to Sir Moses Montefiore, Bart., Philanthropist, from his admirers and friends, centenary, 27th October, 1884." As this medal was essentially designed to commemorate the fact of his having attained the age of 100 years, it is extremely unfortunate that the date of the 27th of October should have been inscribed upon it instead of the 24th of October. Sir Moses was born on the 24th of October, 1784, and therefore was a hundred years and three days old on the 27th of October, 1884. It appears, however, that the day on which, according to Jewish computation, Sir Moses attained his hundredth year was the 8th of the month Hesvan, and it must be assumed that the 8th of the month Hesvan in 1784 occurred on the 24th of October. But, however this may be, it is, of course, an utterly impossible thing to reconcile one hundred years of Gregorian or Christian time with one hundred years computed according to the new moons. The inscription, therefore, is misleading and should have been simply the 8th Hesvan, or the 24th of October. There is no doubt that Messrs. A. D. Loewenstark and Sons, who have produced and published the medal, must have been actuated by a desire to preserve a record of the Jewish day, and to do it with greater emphasis they have adopted the Christian date of that day. Medals, however, frequently survive for many centuries, and although it may appear a small matter whether on a given day a benevolent gentleman was three days older or three days younger, the circumstance to which we have drawn attention may hereafter cause some trouble to the readers of Notes and Queries in a future century.—Broad Arrow.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

—o—

THE Government of India have sanctioned the establishment of a dispensary in the cantonment of Neemuch and the appointment of a hospital assistant thereto. This dispensary is to be used for the treatment of persons not connected with the garrison, and the cost thereof will form a charge against the cantonment fund.

MAJOR-GENERAL SIR HUBERT MACPHERSON, K.C.B., V.C., having returned from sixty days' privilege leave, has resumed command of the Allahabad Division.

THE Lahore correspondent of the Times of India telegraphed on the 20th ult. :—Lieutenant Fleming, of the Carabineers, has been brought to Umballa under arrest from Bombay, charged with an offence under section 497 of the Indian Penal Code, preferred by Mr. Davies, of the traffic department, Sind, Punjab and Delhi Railway. The accused has been admitted to bail.

THE Government of India have sanctioned the provision of free passages from Aden to Kurrachee and back for soldiers of the Aden Troop of cavalry and their families, when proceeding on furlough to Sind and the Punjab.

THE date of the departure of the Commander-in-Chief from Simla has been changed from the 5th to the 2nd November. The programme of his Excellency's tour will be correspondingly affected. Sir Donald Stewart arrives in Calcutta on the 26th November.

LIEUT.-COL. J. A. TILLARD, R.A., who has been appointed Assistant Adjutant General, Madras, in succession to Lieut.-Col. W. H. Caine, R.A., whose period of service in that appointment has expired, arrived in Bombay by the troopship Crocodile on the 20th ult.

THE command of the Royal Irish Rifles (83rd) has fallen vacant on the expiration of Colonel E. Meurant's term of appointment. His successor is Lieutenant Colonel F. Karlake. Both officers took part in the Indian Mutiny campaign and in the Transvaal war of 1881.

THE wing of the 1st Battalion Worcestershire Regiment, consisting of 11 officers, 2 warrant officers, 304 rank and file, 30 women, 60 children, and 6 horses, is expected to arrive in Bombay on the 27th instant from Khundwa, by a troop special train. The troops on arrival will be landed at the Sassoon Dock, and will embark on board the I.M. steamer Olive.

THE garrison of Peshawar, as regards British troops, now consists of about 280 men of the Wiltshire Regiment ; 200 of the Dorset, and 150 men, without arms, of the South Lancashire Regiment. The last are a particularly useful lot for a frontier garrison.

It has been decided that the allowances sanctioned in India army circulars, clause 60, of 1883, for the charge of transport in charge of regiments and batteries will only be passed when such transport is in permanent charge. When the transport is temporarily attached to a regiment or battery marching on relief no allowances are admissible.

THE following promotion, &c., has been sanctioned by the Government of India in the Military Account Department :—Lieutenant-Colonel C. T. P. Luxmore, military accountant, 2nd class, 2nd grade, is appointed to officiate as military accountant, 2nd class, 1st grade, with effect from the 29th September, 1884. From the above date those officers of junior grades who are officiating in higher grades will revert to their substantive appointments in the department.

THE following additions have been made to the Regulations of the Indian Army :—"Para. 2,795 B. No recruit enlisted after the 1st January, 1885, will be permitted to marry, or, if already married when he enlists, to have his wife to reside in the regimental lines, for three years after his enlistment. This order is to be clearly explained to every candidate for enlistment." "Para. 2,795 C. The restriction as to marriage will not apply to recruits enlisted for a regiment under orders for Burmah, or to men of less than three years' service already serving in such regiment."

COLONEL ROWCROFT, on vacating the command of the 40th N.I., has been posted to Jhansi for duty.

The military authorities at Simla appear to have hit at last upon a khakee dye that will withstand the abuse of the Indian dhobie. A circular has been issued from army headquarters to officers commanding regiments, stating that a khakee dye, invented by a Mr. Leeman, has been thoroughly tested by a British infantry regiment during the past hot season, and that the dye has withstood the washing and bleaching process successfully.

LIEUTENANT-COLONELS Charles Mathew Griffith and Henry Charles Baskerville Tanner, of the Indian Staff Corps, are promoted to colonelcies.

On the 15th ult. his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief presided at the distribution of prizes at the Lawrence Military Asylum at Sanawar. General Wright, C.B., commanding the Sirhind Division, was also present, and inspected the boys, who are now drilled every day, and are much the better for it. The school is already showing signs of improvement under the energetic management of the Rev. A. Hildersley, the new principal. Sir Donald Stewart expressed himself highly satisfied with the reforms that are being carried out.

MAJOR-GENERAL T. E. HUGHES, Director-General of Ordnance in India, has started from Simla on his 'cold-weather tour. His first halting place will be Rawal Pindi, where he will meet the Inspector-General of Military Works, and discuss the wants of the local arsenal. General Hughes will afterwards visit Ferozepore and Kurrachee, and eventually reach Calcutta about November the 25th. After disposing of the most important office work there he will proceed by sea to Madras, and thence journey to Bellary, Secunderbad, Poona, Kirkee, Bombay, returning to Calcutta by way of Allahabad and Cawnpore.

THE 1st Battalion South Lancashire Regiment proceeds to Aden in a very depleted state as regards officers. Lieutenant-Colonel White and Lieutenants Phillpott and Campbell remain at Peshawur; Captain Turnbull goes home on medical certificate; Captain Richardson joins the garrison class at Poona on November 1; Captain Grimes goes to the Cape to the 2nd battalion; Lieutenant Vans Agnew has gone off to Burmah on probation for the Madras Staff Corps; and the following officers are at home:—Majors Wilkinson and Linton, Captain Mansel and Lieutenant O'Brien. Besides the above, Lieutenants McSwiney and Seward are probationers for the Bombay and Bengal Staff Corps respectively.

SHOULD Colonel Bushman accept the appointment of Assistant Adjutant-General at head-quarters, going on half-pay and so giving the command to Lieutenant-General Abadie, both Captain Lord William Beresford and Brevet Major Chisholm will, a contemporary remarks, obtain the Majorities, the former being seconded, and so giving the latter promotion; the Adjutancy will thus be vacant. Lord William Beresford has over 17 years' service, whilst Major Chisholm will only have 13 next January; consequently he may be considered tolerably lucky. Both officers have served all their time in the 9th Lancers, the former obtaining his troop in 1876, and the latter in 1878, his appointment as Adjutant dating from November, 1882. These promotions will not give any step to the sub-alterns unless a Captain is appointed to succeed to the Adjutancy.

THE Lahore paper says:—"The intended movement of the wing of the West Yorkshire Regiment from Umritsur to Sealkote for instruction during the cold season will not now take place. To remove the British portion of the garrison of a big city like Umritsur, with a population half Sikh and half Mussulmen, for a great portion of the year for purposes of training, may well be deemed inconsistent with the object which led to the placing of that garrison, namely, to counteract the constant tendency of the rival Hindoo and Mahomedan elements to mutual repulsion. Where one-half the people of a city slaughter cows, and the other half worship them, the cow-worshippers may be expected to rise periodically against the cow-slayers, and make their blood mingle with their sacrifices; and nothing tends more powerfully to tone down this kind of religious zeal than the sight of the stolid and unsympathetic countenance of Tommy Atkins.

No. 5 Battery 1st Brigade, Western Division, and No. 9 Battery 1st Brigade, Eastern Division, Royal Artillery, will this season proceed to Roorkee, for the purpose of carrying out the annual combined instructions of Royal Artillery and Sappers and Miners, in siege operations and practice. The batteries will proceed by rail, and will leave their stations so as to arrive at Saharunpore by the 12th November, where a small siege equipment will be received by the Lieutenant-Colonel Commanding, and they will march with this to Roorkee. The Lieutenant-Colonel to command the Royal Artillery, with an adjutant and clerk, will be detailed by the Deputy Adjutant-General Royal Artillery in India. Cattle for moving the siege guns, &c., will be provided by the Commissariat on the requisition of the Lieutenant-Colonel commanding, under the orders of the General Officer Commanding Meerut Division. Under the orders of the General Officer commanding the Meerut Division one or two companies of the regiment of British Infantry stationed at Roorkee will be placed at the disposal of the Commandant Sappers and Miners, in order that they may take part in the construction of the batteries and siege works.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

INDIAN TEA.—From Messrs. G. White and Co's. Report:—"The smaller supplies placed on the market at the beginning of the week appear to have restored the confidence of buyers a little, and the sales have passed with better spirit and at firmer rates for all useful descriptions. Some invoices of Darjeelings, showing considerable improvement in quality on that of previous shipments, have been sold at full prices on account of the scarcity of fine flavouring kinds, especially Ceylons. The figures just published are satisfactory, as the deliveries for October were 6,160,000 lbs. against 5,662,000 for the same month last year; and for the past four months were at the rate of seven and a half millions per annum in excess of the corresponding period of 1883. Latest telegrams confirm previous statements that the original estimates will not be reached, although the shipments are in excess of last season at the same date. These figures, however, vary considerably, as there is a discrepancy in the Calcutta circulars of the export for the month of September of nearly two millions. It would be much more satisfactory if the Calcutta statistics could be properly adjusted each month so that they might be reliable instead of being as at present misleading.—Ceylon: Only a small quantity offered without any special feature to note.

COFFEE.—From Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson's market report:—"There have been only 363 casks, 68 barrels, 137 bags, plantation Ceylon offered for auction, which went as follows: Pale and low middling, 54s. 6d. to 57s. 6d.; middling dull to colory, 58s. 6d. to 64s. 6d.; good middling to fine, 65s. to 75s.; bold, 70s. to 86s., as in quality, with a few lots fine up to 99s. 2,605 bags East India were partly disposed of: low middling Wynaad, 54s. 6d.; good middling, rather bold, 64s. 6d. to 67s.; medium Coorg, 56s. 6d. to 58s.; bold 76s. 6d. 146 bags Liberian included good bold 52s. 6d. to 55s. 74 packages Jamaica part sold: Ordinary, 39s. 6d. to 40s.; fine ordinary to low middling, 46s. 6d. to 49s. 299 bags Manila part sold at 43s. 6d. to 44s. 6d. for yellowish and pale.

LORD DUFFERIN.—With regard to the questions discussed by the deputations that waited upon him on Thursday last, the Daily Chronicle hopes that Lord Dufferin "will recognise the importance of adopting a sound public works policy, and that before he leaves India he will have materially aided the development of what he described recently as the elaboration of a railway system which will ultimately connect the Indian with the Chinese Empire. On the Burmah question Lord Dufferin also proved that he takes the view which the majority of his countrymen adopt. 'I am well aware,' he said, 'how desirable it is, from a political point of view, that we should be, as it were, in as advantageous a position in that region as any other Power which may be establishing itself in the Eastern hemisphere.' France is seeking to extend her influence in Burmah, and we must take care that it is not extended to our detriment. Lord Dufferin also assured the deputations that they might have confidence, not only in his natural love of peace, but in his horror of war, and in his determination to pursue a cautious and moderate policy."

PERSONAL REMINISCENCES OF GEN. SKOBELEFF,

BY

V. I. NEMIROVITCH - DANTCHENKO.

TRANSLATED FROM THE RUSSIAN

BY

E. A. BRAYLEY HODGETTS.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

Contemporary Review.—"It is most interesting, as well as instructive throughout."
Graphic.—"The subject is of abounding interest. Mr. Brayley Hodgetts deserves hearty thanks for bringing such a life so clearly before the public."
St. James's Gazette.—"The new Biography of Skobelev is deeply interesting, and the translator has done well to make it known to the English public."
Truth.—"Let me strongly recommend to you 'Personal Reminiscences of General Skobelev.' It is so brilliant a book as to be worthy of its subject."

A RIDE TO KHIVA,

BY

CAPTAIN FRED BURNABY,
Royal Horse Guards.

Says page 13:—"Two pairs of boots lined with fur were also taken; and for physic—with which it is as well to be supplied when travelling in out-of-the-way places—some quinine and Cockle's Pills, the latter a most invaluable medicine, and one which I have used on the natives of Central Africa with the greatest possible success. In fact, the marvellous effects produced upon the mind and body of an Arab Sheikh, who was impervious to all native medicines, when I administered to him five

KELLY'S DIRECTORY

OF THE

MERCHANTS, MANUFACTURERS AND SHIPPERS

OF THE UNITED KINGDOM,

BEING A GUIDE TO THE

Export and Import Shipping, and Manufacturing Industries of the United Kingdom, with the

COLONIES & FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

THIS WORK gives a vast amount of information respecting the business carried on between the United Kingdom and the Colonies and Foreign Countries; showing the description of goods, and the amount thereof, exported to each Colony or Country abroad, the British Ports whence shipments are made, the MERCHANTS, FACTORS, and SHIPPERS at the various Ports and Towns in England, the Manufacturers of the Principal Goods exported, and the MERCHANTS AND OTHERS ABROAD WHO ARE IMPORTERS OR BUYERS OF BRITISH GOODS.

It also gives complete information as to the various descriptions of goods, and the amounts thereof, imported from abroad into this country, with the names of the Merchants and Shippers, and also the Manufacturers at the Principal Towns of the various Goods imported.

The Work is divided into three principal divisions, the first of which comprises the various Foreign Countries and British Possessions throughout the world to which British Manufactures are exported.

Under each of these is given, first:—A Statistical Account of the Country, the Financial Position, Business Relations with this Country, with, in the case of Foreign States, the names of the British and other Consuls, the name of the Minister in this country, Consuls, Vice-Consuls, &c., at the various Ports and Places in this country; the PRINCIPAL BANKERS, the MERCHANTS, COMMISSION MERCHANTS, BUYERS OF ENGLISH GOODS, and the Manufacturers, &c., at the Principal Towns of the various goods imported; the various Ports in each country; also the Ports in this country whence Shipments are made; Tariffs, &c., &c.; a Tabular Statement showing the Exports from this country during the last three years; a List of the Merchants and Shippers in the various British Towns; List of Steamers and other Vessels sailing from the Ports; also a List of the various Manufactures that are exported from this country.

The second division comprises an Alphabetical List of the Exporters from this country, stating the class of goods exported by them.

The third division of the Work embraces the names and addresses of the actual Manufacturers, or Manufacturers' Agents, of the articles exported, describing as clearly as possible the specialities of each Manufacturer.

The Times, September 20th, 1884.

"It is almost exhaustive as a guide to the shipping and manufacturing industries, both export and import, of Great Britain and Ireland."

Daily Chronicle, September 12th, 1884.

"Merchants and manufacturers of all kinds will find the Directory a valuable guide, whether their interests are concerned in exports or imports."

Daily News, September 17th, 1884.

"It abounds in information of the kind which merchants, manufacturers, and exporters are constantly in need of. Its scope, however, is not confined to the classes who in this country have business with the colonies and foreign parts, but includes also the principal merchants abroad, so that the book becomes a tolerably complete guide to the import and export industries of all countries with which Great Britain has any mercantile relation, and vice versa."

European Mail, September 26th, 1884.

"In collecting the names of foreign and colonial firms—a task of considerable difficulty, as will be understood—Messrs. Kelly have had the assistance of the British consuls, many of whom have given personal testimony to the important service this Directory fulfils in commercial circles abroad."

Notes of the Week.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, October 31st; Madras and Allahabad, October 29th; Calcutta, October 28th; Burma, October 24th; Ceylon, October 28.

AN extra supplement to the Gazette of India of the 11th of October runs to the inordinate length of 694 pages! Herein we get a vast mass of official papers on the Bengal Tenancy Bill, with the letter of the Government of Bengal reviewing them. We have no hesitation in saying that if the amendments and suggestions formulated in that letter were carried into law, they would tend to make the Bill far more unjust to the landholders than it was before. And as to the original object with which legislation was at first proposed—to facilitate the punctual recovery of rents by the unfortunate victims of the Sunset law—it will be further off than ever.

HAPPILY—for this as for so many other reasons—we shall soon have at the helm in India a statesman strong enough to insist on justice being rendered to all, and one by no means likely to sanction a breach of the Permanent Settlement merely to please a Radical colleague, or to increase the taxable area in a country already heavily taxed in proportion to its wealth.

THE new Viceroy, accompanied by the Countess of Dufferin, Lady Helen Blackwood, and his personal staff, left London for Bombay in the Tasmania on November 12th. We heartily wish his Excellency God-speed in his mission, an Indian reign worthy of his great talents and reputation, and a happy return.

LORD STANLEY OF ALDERLEY has once more done good service to India by supporting in the House of Lords the Madras petition against "government by hill-picnics." We are glad to observe that the petition was presented by an ex-Governor of the Presidency, Lord Napier and Ettrick, and we are sure that the prayer of the petitioners will derive additional force from the practical knowledge of the facts possessed by his lordship.

LORD KIMBERLEY's reply was worthy of Mr. J. K. Cross. It was to the effect that "government by hill-picnics" had been originated by a great and good Liberal statesman, and must, therefore, be beyond criticism. This reply epitomises the present creed of the great and good Liberal party.

If the rumour be true that Mr. Gladstone only succeeded in "choking off" Lord Ripon so promptly by the promise of a dukedom, we shall doubtless be told that every great and good Liberal statesman has a natural claim to be made a duke, if he only submits to be "choked off" while there is yet time for someone else to undo his misdeeds before the usual catastrophe.

THE MARQUIS OF SALISBURY, as a practical politician, hinted at a compromise that commends itself to common-sense. He would not, by any inexorable law of the Medes and Persians, bind down the Indian governments to perpetual residence in a hot climate. But on the other hand he would not sanction the lotos-eating and lawn-tennis of the great and good Liberals; he would prefer to see a considerable part of the time during which the governments are every year absent from their capitals spent in the acquisition of a personal knowledge of the country and its people, by means of extended tours. Of the enormous advantage of such tours—provided they are made in a simple way, like that in which Lord Lytton traversed the famine-stricken districts of Western and Southern India in the summer of 1877, and not in the locust-like visitation of an enormous encampment—no one who knows anything of India will entertain the slightest doubt. Lord Salisbury has hit the right nail on the head. We shall be surprised if Lord Dufferin does not accept the hint, and insist on his entourage seeing more of the country than has been the fashion during the last three or four years.

BUT these tours must not be "Royal Progresses," such as that of which the Times' correspondent used to tell us two years ago. These "Progresses" have been known to sweep a clean path through a province, leaving neither sheep, nor fowl, nor forage behind unrequisitioned, and dragging in their train every bullock-cart within a mile of two on each side of the line of march.

WE observe, from the Times' telegram of Monday, that Lord Ripon has commenced his final tour through Northern India. On Wednesday, in replying to a native deputation at Umballa, he said he was gratified to know that the reins of Government were about to pass into hands so worthy as Lord Dufferin's.

THE Indian Planters' Gazette says:—

Government (through the Pioneer) has no sympathy with a man who has, like Mr. Newberry, the courage to confess an error in judgment when, in hastening to repair it, he runs counter to a proposed Government measure, but no one should be more careful than the Pioneer itself to observe the good old advice given to those who live in glass houses. We have seldom read anything more unfair than that journals remarks on Lord Ulick Brown's report, which it describes as "in point of fact a root-and-branch condemnation of the proposed measure, and more than this, a vehement attack on the motives and policy of the Bengal Government." From this we can gather a Liberal Government's idea of how to govern India. Officials when asked to report on any measure are not to give the reasons for their opinions. In this case it was impossible for Lord Ulick to show how he had arrived at his conclusions without adducing how thoroughly peculiar were the views of the Bengal Government and how subversive of all national faith in British honour. The Pioneer's term for an expression of opinion is "license." Well, let it be so. But there is only one view to be taken of this Bill. British faith was pledged by Lord Cornwallis.

The Times of India thus speaks of Mr. Blunt in reference to his recent article, "Race Hatred," in the Fortnightly Review:—

A rich Radical globe-trotter known for his sentimental views is likely to be received with great cordiality by the native community. The road to popularity in India is extremely simple. A man has only to attack his own race, sneer at their creed, and abuse the Government to be regarded as the friend of the people.

WE have received from Admiral Sir Thomas Symonds a list of armour-clads of the English, French, and Italian navies, which completely refutes Sir Thomas Brassey's speech, in which he is reported as stating "he could confidently say, as regards the important class of battle-ships, that we stood at the present moment in a commanding position," unless we are to understand that no attention is paid to ships building and fitting. From the list—which is compiled from official sources—we find that the French have fifty-nine armour-clads built and building, and that we possess a like number. Of armoured cruisers they have eight and we four. Added to which nineteen of our most modern ships are only armoured about one-third the length of their waterline, while the French ships are armoured the whole length; and the heavy guns of our commissioned fleet are of an obsolete type, while the French carry breechloaders. The Italians have twenty-two armour-clads of the first and second class. We are glad to see that this important question is to come before Parliament, and trust that immediate attention will be given to the deterioration of the British fleet. All praise is due to Admiral Sir Thomas Symonds for his noble advocacy of this question, which till recently was treated as the subject for pessimists.

MR. LALMOHUN GHOSE has accepted the invitation of the Greenwich Liberal Five Hundred to contest that borough as second Liberal candidate at the next general election, and as such had to decline the offer of addressing the Liberal Five Hundred of Lambeth.

THE Englishman gives the following account of the Calcutta Freight Market, corrected to Oct. 28:—

We have to report upon another very quiet week in our freight market. As will be seen from the list of engagements below, only a very limited amount of business has been done at previous rates, and there is no indication of higher rates of freight being paid. Our unfixed tonnage stands at 21,000 tons.

We take the following on the Calcutta Tea Market from Messrs. W. Moran and Co.'s Report:—

Auctions were held on the 16th and 23rd insts. At the first series of sales 18,732 packages were offered and about 18,000 changed hands; the only alteration to notice was a slight decline in the values of common to medium Pekoes and common Souchongs. On the 23rd inst. 11,787 chests were catalogued, of which 11,200 found buyers. There was more animation shown generally, and a rise mostly noticeable on the commoner classes, of from a quarter to half an anna per pound.

THE same firm gives the following account of the Calcutta Indigo Market:—

Only a few small parcels of Native Indigo have so far arrived, and we do not as yet hear of any parcels of importance being on the way. The season is likely to open a good deal later than was the case last year, and very probably the public sales will not commence before the middle of November. A good many boiling musters have come to hand, but scarcely sufficient to give any reliable indication as to the quality of the crop.

THE Times of India has the following obituary till the departure of the mail, October 31:—

Khan Bahadoor Dustoor Noservanjee Jamaspjee, high priest of the Parsees in the Deccan; Major Walker, Assistant Adjutant General of Musketry, Lahore Division; the Very Rev. Father Cherubim, vicar of St. Francis Xavier's Church, Cochin.

Telegraphic Intelligence.

The following telegrams have been received from the Standard correspondent:—

"CALCUTTA, Nov. 14.—Lord Ripon's Valedictory Tour has excited much enthusiasm among the natives. The Viceroy is generally received with considerable warmth on his descent from the hills at the chief native centres in the Punjab and North-West Provinces. On the present occasion, however, the natives have assembled in great numbers to greet the returning Viceroy on his last progress towards the capital.

"Complimentary addresses have been presented at Umballa, Umritsur, and Delhi. Ovarions are being arranged at Benares and Calcutta. In the West extensive preparations are being made to fête Lord Ripon on his homeward journey."

"TEHERAN, Nov. 14.—According to information which reached Meshed on the 11th, Colonel Ridgway and the Indian section of the Afghan Frontier Commission had arrived at Kusan, on the Heri-Rud, all safe.

"They have probably before this time encountered Sir Peter Lumsden and the European contingent advancing from Meshed."

The following is from the Times' correspondent at Quetta, dated Nov. 15:—

"The Afghan Frontier Commission was one week's march from Herat on November 7. The health of the party was excellent. No serious complications had presented themselves. The Governor of Herat, with 700 horse, was to meet Colonel Ridgway on the 10th."

The following is the usual weekly telegram from the Times' correspondent at Calcutta, dated Nov. 16:—

"Lord Ripon's final tour through Northern India has commenced, and has so far been marked—as was expected—by the presentation of a series of adulatory addresses from native associations. He left Simla on Monday last and arrived in the evening at Pinjore, where he stayed two nights as the guest of the Maharajah of Puttiala. On Wednesday he proceeded to Umballa, where a native deputation met him at the railway station with an address expressing appreciation of his administration and regret at his departure. The measures specially mentioned were the Local Self-Government Acts, the repeal of the Vernacular Press Act, and the appointment of a native to act temporarily as Chief Justice of Bengal. Lord Ripon's reply was vague and general. He had tried, he said, to do his duty to Queen and people. He would always take a deep interest in India, and he was gratified to know that the reins of government were about to pass into hands so worthy as Lord Dufferin's.

The Viceregal train left Umballa on the same night and arrived at Umritsur on Thursday morning. After a visit to the Golden Temple the work of receiving and replying to addresses was again commenced. The topics touched upon were similar to those dealt with at Umballa, but the Viceroy replied in fuller detail, dwelling chiefly upon the subjects of education, the Vernacular Press Act, and Local Self Government. On Thursday afternoon he left Umritsur and arrived in Delhi on Friday morning. He was there met by the Duke of Connaught, and still remains in the city. The flood of flattering addresses from political and semi-political bodies will doubtless continue to follow him through the North-West Provinces, but it will be curious to watch whether the Bengal province, which his measures touch most deeply, will show equal enthusiasm in speeding the parting of his Excellency.

"The Calcutta Corporation, in which the Young Bengal party has a commanding majority, has determined to present a farewell address to the Viceroy, but the British India Association, which represents the landed aristocracy, shows no sign of moving. The native newspapers, following the lead of two or three journals published in Calcutta, are agreed in crediting Lord Ripon with the best intentions and with an especial wish to advance native interests, but are almost equally unanimous in lamenting his weakness. While thus practically damning him with faint praise, they continue to urge their countrymen to get up farewell addresses and testimonials, apparently with the view, not so much of expressing gratitude to the departing Viceroy as of impressing his successor with the advisability of carrying on Lord Ripon's policy in a more resolute manner.

"The Commission appointed to inquire into the recent disturbances in Hyderabad does not seem to give entire satisfaction. Sultan Nawaz Jung, whose retainers were implicated in the affray, has protested against the Commission, on the grounds that it is wholly composed of persons in the Nizam's service, that it has assembled with undue haste, not giving him time to prepare an answer to the charges brought against him, and that it is unfair for it to conduct its proceedings in secret and to refuse to allow him to appear by counsel, which refusal, he says, will render it impossible to cross-examine the police witnesses.

"Some excitement has also been caused by a report that the Kotwal, or head of the police, intends to prosecute the editor of the Deccan Times for imputing cowardice to him during the riot.

"The only other domestic event of interest during the past week has been the publication of the draft of a new Bill for consolidating and amending the law relating to railways. The chief features of this measure are that it will give the Government power to prescribe the details of the construction of new railways and rolling-stock, and to make rules regarding the conduct of the traffic, the fares, accommodation for passengers, statistics and so on."

"The note of alarm on the subject of the Russian menace which was lately sounded at home has found an echo in this country. It is admitted by every one who has studied the question that at present Russia could seize Herat and Cabul by a coup de main and place a considerable force on the Cashmere border before we could move a man to prevent her. The danger of the situation is recognised by the native newspapers as clearly as by their European contemporaries, and some of them go as far as the most extreme alarmists in holding that the appearance of the Russians within striking distance of India would be followed by serious troubles in this country.

"Whether this last source of danger has not been exaggerated is perhaps open to question, but I think it clear that it is not entirely illusory. There are problems of foreign and domestic policy awaiting Lord Dufferin which will demand his best energies for their solution, and it is to be earnestly hoped that he will not allow his attention to be distracted from them to sentimental theories and experiments for which the country is not yet fitted."

"The hopes of the establishment of a steady trade between India and Tibet by way of Darjeeling have been quenched, at least temporarily, by the recent treaty between the latter country and Nepal. The Nepalese, jealous of any alternative route, have insisted that the trade shall pass through their country, as heretofore. This necessitates a long detour and will greatly hinder the development of trade. The richest provinces of Tibet lie due north of, and at a distance of a few marches only from, Darjeeling; the passes are comparatively easy, and at Darjeeling the trade would be brought into direct railway communication with Calcutta. Therefore, in the interests of England, India, and Tibet, it is to be hoped that the Darjeeling route will shortly be reopened.

"Mr. Macaulay, Secretary to the Bengal Government, in the course of a recent trip into Sikkim, a native State through which the Darjeeling-Tibet routes pass, had an interview with the Rajah, who is understood to have expressed a cordial desire to co-operate in the work of opening the roads and establishing a regular trade."

"The Zhob Valley expeditionary force has now practically accomplished its object. Shah Jehan has fled, and his fort has been blown up. The Musa Kheyl chiefs have surrendered to the authorities at Dera Ghazi Khan.

"It would probably be wise before withdrawing the force to restore Shah Baz Khan, the hereditary chief, who was dispossessed by Shah Jehan, and who has shown himself friendly. Shah Jehan has acquired a reputation for piety and fanaticism, and there is, perhaps, some reason to fear that he may use this reputation to our detriment among the Ghilzais, with whom he is said to have taken refuge."

THE STUDY OF ARABIC.

Captain Burton, in recently reviewing the "Book of Sindibah," which is a translation from the Arabic, makes the following remarks on the neglect of England to encourage the study of that beautiful and useful language. He says—"Of late years she has systematically neglected Arabism, and, indeed, actively discouraged it in the examinations for the Indian Civil Service, where it is incomparably more valuable than Greek and Latin. Hence, when suddenly compelled to assume the reins of government in Mohammedan countries—as Afghanistan in times past and Egypt at present—she fails after a fashion which scandalises her few (very few) friends. When the late regrettable raids were made upon the gallant Soudan negroes, who were battling for liberty and escape from Turkish task masters and Egyptian tax-gatherers, not an English official in camp was capable of speaking Arabic. Even our energetic opponent, Mohammed Osman Dakanah, "of the Beard," will go down to posterity as "Mohammed Osman Digma. But is not this again vox clamantis in deserto?" As not one in ten thousand Englishmen have the faintest idea that gallant Osman's surname has anything to do with the fact of his having a noticeable beard, it does not appear to matter particularly whether his name gets a little corrupted or not; but Captain Burton is quite right to enter a vigorous protest against the want of encouragement to study Eastern languages, of which so many complaints have been urged against the English Government. One would have thought that in India it would be a common thing to see officers devote their leisure time to the study of Persian and Arabic. But it is not so. Persian is one of the easiest of languages to master, and when mastered is a source of perpetual pleasure to the student, who cannot fail to be delighted with the wit and wisdom of Sheik Sadi, and the never-ending, always fresh stories of the renowned Kalila and Dumnah. But as a knowledge of Persian has been popularly supposed to lead to banishment to the Persian Gulf, in the position of an acting Political, it has not hitherto found much favour with the studious youth of the army. One of the most accomplished linguists that ever came to India is a young officer who joined the Bombay Army in 1877. He has in the space of seven years, during part of which time he was on service in Afghanistan, passed the ordinary examination in Hindustani, Mahrathi, and Guzerati; while he has taken a degree of honour in Persian, Urdu and Arabic. This is, we believe, a feat unparalleled in the history of linguistic acquirements in India. Other men have learned more languages, and of course we do not forget Sir William Jones, but we think that no army officer has nearly approached this record in such a comparatively brief space of time, and with the interruption of a campaign. And even Captain Burton will be surprised to hear that an officer who has shown such an extraordinary aptitude for languages is only quartermaster of his regiment—a post not generally supposed to require any extraordinary amount of talent to fill. At the present time, when British interests are so closely mixed up with people whose language is Arabic, one would have thought that suitable employment could have been found for an officer who had performed the very difficult task of taking a degree of honour in that language. As regards Persian, we are glad to see that the study of it has revived, and that a fair number of officers present themselves for examination. Formerly a knowledge of Persian was the stepping-stone to honourable employment of every kind in this country, and it will be a good thing if Government promote the study of it by advancing those who are at the pains to qualify in it. A young officer who resolutely overcomes the many inducements to idleness offered by regimental life in time of peace, and sets to work to acquire Eastern languages conclusively shows that he has in him the making of a useful member of the great Indian service. But Government should not be backward in recognising and advancing merit of this sort. The love of study is not a plant of such universal production in the Indian army that it can be regarded as a spontaneous growth. It should be fostered and encouraged if it is to flourish for any appreciable extent.

MADAME COULOMB AND THE THEOSOPHISTS,

On Saturday night, the College Hall, Madras, was half filled by an audience comprised of all classes of the community, including many natives, on the occasion of an "entertainment" given by Madame Coulomb, formerly on the staff of the Theosophical Society. As an entertainment it can hardly be said to have been successful, and as an exposure of Madame Blavatsky we know that many of the audience were rather disappointed. The Rev. Mr. Goudie presided, and introduced Madame Coulomb, who, he said, had no quarrel with occult science. Her motive was, in the interest of truth, the exposure of certain false phenomena which had been displayed as belonging to the occult world, and used spiritually. This was her first appearance as a lecturer.

Madame Coulomb now commenced her "entertainment," which mainly consisted of a lecture directed chiefly, in a sarcastic vein throughout, against Madame Blavatsky. It was partially inaudible, even to reserved-seat holders. She said that necessity compelled her to take the course she was now pursuing. The fable of Koot Hoomi was not suitable for the nineteenth century. Reason should accompany our researches after truth. We should see whether these phenomena of the Mahatmas were possible. Was there a law in chemistry, or any other branch of science, by which a letter could be written by a Mahatma, and then travel instantly hundreds of miles to Madras, appearing here on ordinary paper and exactly as written in the Himalayas? The Mahatmas had been described by Mr. Srinavassa Row, a judge in Madras. (Here the chairman read Mr. Srinavassa Row's description.) The Mahatmas, as believed in by the Hindus, said Madame Coulomb, were real flesh and blood; by Madame Blavatsky's Mahatmas were made of bladders and masks. To the sham Mahatmas the Hindus bowed their heads to the ground. Blind faith had even made them confess their weaknesses, and state their wants. The Hindus, she admitted, entered into the matter bona fide, and did not suppose they were being made dupes of. How much better would it have been for them to look into the matter scientifically! Why did these blessed Masters, the Mahatmas—who had left aside all worldly cares to contemplate the Supreme Being—select a Russian lady and an American gentleman as their means of communication with the outer world? Why were not the natives of the country given the preference? If the Mahatmas had such power as was claimed for them, why need Madame Blavatsky have recourse to masks and bladders, paper and sliding panels? One real phenomenon recently would have convinced a whole audience of the truth of Theosophy; but immediately that was demanded, of course it was found that the Mahatmas would not work. She appealed to her Hindu friends not to be misled. The Hindus had accepted the Theosophical doctrine blindly. They had no idea of where they were going; and because a few of their community joined the Theosophists, hundreds followed. Who were these Mahatmas? Would a Mahatma who had given up all worldly things to the contemplation of the Supreme Being, descend to such nonsense as boring holes in coins just to please rajahs and other dupes of Madame Blavatsky? Madame Coulomb then proceeded to explain the "phenomena," confining herself, she said, to the truth. She first called upon the chairman to read, from a Theosophical pamphlet, some reasons why so many precautions were taken in selecting houses for the headquarters of the Theosophists. Madame Blavatsky and her servants were necessary for all the phenomena, and there was another person in the secret ready at hand. It was requisite to "specially magnetise the house," all persons being sent out, excepting Madame Blavatsky and her servant; of course Madame Blavatsky, as priestess, must be present, as there were certain aaragments to be made in fixing up the panels and masks, &c. Allusion was next made to Mr. Sinnett's conversion to Theosophy, and an extract was read from his book giving a description of the phenomena of the falling of a letter from a Mahatma on to his table at Bombay. This phenomenon, said Madame Coulomb, was performed by means of an ingenious trap fixed in the ceiling of the room in which Mr. Sinnett sat. Then followed an account of Mr. Ramaswamy's interview with a Mahatma in Sikim, "the same as he had seen on the balcony of the headquarters at Bombay." The Bombay Mahatma, Madame Coulomb averred, was none other than M. Coulomb. The incident of the two vases of flowers which appeared in an almirah on its being opened by Colonel Olcott was explained. The vases had been bought for Madame Blavatsky by Madame Coulomb for Rs. 13, and were introduced to the almirah through an otherwise unused window at the back of the almirah. The whole business was one of panels, and traps, and confederates. Koot Hoomi had just come.

(Here some amusement was caused by the appearance on the stage of a tall figure, with a mask well surrounded with hirsute appendages, and wearing a long white robe. About 6½ feet high, it slowly passed across the stage and disappeared.)

This was Koot Hoomi, who had been shown on the roof of the bungalow at head-quarters. The mask and dress formed the identical Koot Hoomi which Mr. Sinnett had done poojah to. Madame Coulomb next produced the mask and dress, after it had been taken off the person who had worn it on the stage, pointing out that the head was made up of bullock's bladder, while two sheep's bladders served the Master for chests and shoulders. She had herself helped to make it. The next phenomenon was that of the musical box, which had been worked to the great wonder of credulous natives. Madame Coulomb had her lecture written, but here departed from her notes to converse with the audience rather than lecture. She had been blamed, she said, because she did not believe all this business. How was she to "believe" in things she made with her own hands? How could she pretend to believe in a sort of god she sewed up herself?—(laughter). The Hindus would go back a thousand centuries if they went on believing what the Theosophists told them. The Hindus should raise themselves by education and not superstition. She could not understand how B.A.'s and B.L.'s, and people with all the letters of the alphabet after their names, could believe in Theosophy. She did not believe in it and was turned out of the Society in consequence. The Hindus ought to be horsewhipped for being so foolish. She apologised for the non-performance of some of the "phenomena" she had intended to include in the entertainment as she was not so used to it as Madame Blavatsky, and some of the apparatus did not work properly. She had hoped to show a "shrine," but she might be able to do so on the occasion of another entertainment.

After a few words from the chairman the audience dispersed at 10.15—Madras Mail.

Home News.

SIR LEPEL GRIFFIN.—Sir Lepel Griffin, K.C.S.I., Agent to the Governor-General in Central India, left London on Tuesday evening for India to resume charge of the Residency at Indore.

MR. LALMOHUN GHOSE.—On Wednesday last Mr. Lal Mohun Ghose delivered an address to the Liberal Five Hundred of Greenwich in the Lecture Hall, in connection with the representation of the borough. Mr. Ghose spoke for upwards of an hour in a manner that excited great enthusiasm. After he had left the meeting a resolution accepting him as the second Liberal candidate was adopted unanimously.

COUNCIL DRAFTS FOR INDIA.—Tenders were received on the 12th inst. at the Bank of England for £150,000 in Government bills and telegraphic transfers on India. The amounts allotted were—In bills on Calcutta, £14,795, on Bombay, £14,100, and on Madras, £6,300. In telegraphic transfers, nil. Tenders for bills at 1s. 7 1-16d. will receive in full. The amount to be offered for tender next Wednesday will again be £150,000. According to a statement issued by the India Office the amount of bills and telegraphic transfers sold is as follows:—From the 5th to the 11th of November, Rs. 36,29,070, realising £288,946, making a total since the 1st of April of Rs. 836,31,467, realising £5,844,570. Special allotments were subsequently made of £12,900 in bills on Calcutta at 1s. 7 1-16d.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.

The price of bar silver falls almost daily, notwithstanding that metal is scarce. On Tuesday some trifling parcels were placed in the market, and the best price obtainable was 50d. per ounce, showing a decline of 1-4d. Meanwhile there is no business to be reported and no quotation can be given. The only change in the Eastern exchange rates is a slight fall in the Shanghai rate to 4s. 11 1-4d. Rupee Paper is unaltered.

On Wednesday £25,000 in bar silver was sold at a further decline of 1-4d., the price being 49 3-4d., which is still higher than the parity of Indian exchanges. These also were flat, and the unfavourable sale of Indian Council drafts did not tend to strengthen them. There was still an absence of business in Mexican dollars. Shanghai rate of exchange was unaltered, but the Hong Kong quotation declined to 3s. 8d. The weakness in the Money Market and the renewed weakness in the Silver Market stopped business in Rupee Paper, which closed weak at 80 1-2 1-4 and 78 1-2 1-4 for the Four-and-a-Half per Cent. and Four per Cents. respectively.

On Thursday the Calcutta and Bombay exchange rates were reported at 1s. 6 3-4d. and 1s. 6 15-16d. respectively, and as the Indian price for refined bar silver did not exceed 49 3-4d. per ounce it was expected that the recent arrival by the Neva, amounting to about £66,000, would change hands at that rate for the East. A Continental order, however, was received, and as much as 49 13-16d., and subsequently 49 1-2d. per ounce, which was the final price. Rupee Paper closed at 80 1-2 1-4 for the Four-and-a-Half per Cent., and 78 1-2 1-4 for the Four per Cents.

On Friday the greater part of £50,000 worth of bar silver was received, ex Britannia, from Chili, and was sold at 49 11-16d. per ounce, the bulk being secured for the Continent. The Indian exchanges were unaltered, but the Hong Kong quotation has fallen to 3s. 7 3-4d. per dollar. Rupee Paper continued very quiet at 80 1-2 1-4 for the Four-and-a-Half, and 78 1-2 1-4 for the Four per Cents.

Saturday's Silver Market was very quiet at 49 11-16d. per ounce, all arrivals having been cleared yesterday. Indian exchanges are a trifle harder at 1s. 6 31-32d. in Bombay and 1s. 7d. in Calcutta. The market for Rupee Paper was rather firmer at 80 1-2 1-4 for the Four-and-a-Half per Cent. and 78 1-2 1-4 for the Four per Cents. The Indian Council sold five lakhs of bills on Bombay at 1s. 7 1-16d. per rupee.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

COLONEL W. LOCKHARDT, C.B., Staff Corps, has been permitted to return to duty.

LIEUTENANT SIR R. COLLETON, Bart., Royal Welsh Fusiliers, has proceeded on privilege leave.

COLONEL J. T. BUSHBY, Bengal Staff Corps, now on furlough, is about to retire from the service.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL G. A. Way, late D.A.A.G., Eastern Frontier District, has been posted to Jubbulpore for general duty.

THE unmarried trained army schoolmistresses, including widows, have been granted an increase of pay when serving in India of Rs. 10 a month.

CAPTAIN W. CHRISTIE, paymaster 13th Hussars, has been allowed to exchange into the 2nd Battalion Norfolk Regiment with Major G. Shields.

LIEUTENANT G. TOWNLEY, 2nd Punjab Volunteer Rifles, and Lieutenant C. F. White, 3rd Punjab Volunteer Rifles, have resigned their commissions.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL SIR HUGH GOUGH, V.C., K.C.B., has joined his appointment at Multan, in command of the Brigade, relieving Brigadier-General Hudson, C.B.

MAJOR G. R. GAMBIER, J Battery 2nd Brigade Royal Artillery, Allahabad, has been ordered to proceed to Meerut to join the K Battery A Brigade Royal Horse Artillery.

THE J Battery 2nd Brigade Royal Artillery leaves Allahabad on the 1st November for Rawul Pindi by march route, and will probably arrive at its destination in February next.

It has, we learn, been decided to set aside the present rule requiring a military officer on joining a new appointment to serve ten months therein before becoming eligible for leave.

THE Agent to the Governor-General in Central India has authorized the temporary formation of a separate Executive Division of Public Works, to be styled the "Mhow Fort Division."

LIEUTENANT M. E. CARTHEW-YORSTOUN, of the 2nd Battalion Hampshire Regiment, Officiating Squadron Officer 1st Sind Horse, has been admitted to the Bombay Staff Corps.

MR. J. B. LYALL, Resident at Mysore, has been appointed Colonel in-Chief of the Bangalore Rifle Volunteers, in the place of His Excellency the Right Hon. Grant Duff, C.I.E., resigned.

LIEUTENANT G. WRIGHT, I battery 1st Brigade Royal Artillery, having exchanged with Lieutenant P. J. R. Crampton, O Battery 4th Brigade, has been ordered to proceed to Barrackpore to join.

CAPTAIN W. L. C. GORDON, Royal Artillery, Assistant Superintendent of Factories, Madras, intends retiring from the service, and has been granted general leave pending retirement.

THE 2nd Battalion Royal West Surrey (The Queen's) Regiment left Subathu on the 20th ult., en route for Cawpore, at which station the battalion is expected to arrive on the 5th December.

THE B Battery 4th Brigade Royal Artillery leaves Rawul Pindi on the 1st November by march for Meerut via Jhelum Jullunder, and Umball, and is expected at its destination on the 26th December.

THE Government of India have approved of the conversion of the Farakhabad Volunteer Rifle Corps into garrison artillery, retaining their rifles in possession, and using the armament and range of the Futehgarh Fort.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL C. A. MOORE, Bombay Cavalry, having completed the special duty on which he was employed in Bengal, in connection with Cantonment Regulations, left Simla on the 18th ult. for Poona.

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL CURETON, C.B., commanding the Oudh Division, made over command to Major-General J. I. Murray, C.B., on the 28th ult. His war-services date back to the Sutlej campaign of 1845-46.

A SEPOY named Goolab Khan, belonging to the 9th Bombay N.I., has been sentenced to death by a court-martial held recently at Dessa, for murdering a man by shooting him with a rifle on September 7. The prisoner fired at and injured three other persons, and was put upon his trial for these offences also.

FROM the twenty-first annual report of the Calcutta Volunteer Rifle Battalion for the year 1883-84 it appears that the effective strength of the regiment on the 31st March last was altogether 936, consisting of 601 volunteers and 335 cadets. The number of new members enrolled during the year was only 328, as compared with 458 in the previous year. But in the latter year two new companies were enrolled. Of the new members 162 failed to make themselves effective. The regiment includes 203 extra efficient and 571 efficient. The shooting amongst the cadet companies has not been so good as last season, the average figure of merit being only 51.36 against 81.73, whilst 63 cadets have failed to go through the course of musketry at all. There was, however, a considerable falling off in attendance at parades, though several brigade parades were held with the regiments of the garrison.

The Englishman learns from Umballa that Colonel Prinsep, commanding the 11th Bengal Lancers, has returned to that station, the extra cavalry escort with the Demarcation Commission not being required, and the arrangements for the transmission of the infantry across the Helmund having been successfully completed.

BOMBAY.

A YOUNG panther has been presented to the Victoria Gardens collection of animals by H.H. the Maharajah of Rutlam.

A MEETING of the guarantors of the Bombay International Exhibition Fund has been summoned to appoint a committee to draw up an address to the Earl of Dufferin.

RAO SAHEB VISHRAM RAMJEE GHOLE, first-class assistant surgeon, Bombay, has been appointed honorary assistant-surgeon to his Excellency the Viceroy, vice Assistant-Surgeon Annunta Chandroba, deceased.

TWENTY-SEVEN packages of baggage, and five boxes of silver ware, belonging to Lord Dufferin, arrived on the 23rd ult. from Constantinople, per s.s. Titanica, and were landed at the Custom House.

MISS ELLABY, M.D., Paris, arrived in Bombay on the 27th ult. by the mail steamer in order to assist Miss Pechey, M.D., in her practice amongst the native women in Bombay.

A PARSEE gentleman, whose name has not yet transpired, has presented Rs. 15,000 for the purpose of constructing a Gymkhana building for the use of Parsee cricketers. Application has been made to Government for the grant of a suitable site on the Esplanade.

THE charge of criminal breach of trust brought by Messrs. Latham and Co. against Mr. Williams, their Bombay manager, was dismissed on the 23rd ult. by Mr. Cooper, Chief Presidency Magistrate, on the ground that there was no proof that the moneys, which the accused was alleged to have misappropriated, had been paid in. Mr. Cooper advised the prosecutor to have the books examined by an accountant, and promised to consider any future application which might be made.

A KURRACHEE paper remarks that during the long series of years Colonel Boulton has been serving the Government in Sind, he has won general esteem, and his departure on sick leave—not, however, with any intention of returning—has called forth sincere expressions of regret. A proof of his popularity is afforded by the fact that a meeting which was held in Frere Hall, Kurrachee, to bid him farewell, was attended by friends from all parts of the province, and by the further fact that a fund is being formed for the purpose of endowing a new scholarship at the Government High School, to be called the Boulton Scholarship. For the last three-and-a-half years Colonel Boulton has been Collector of Kurrachee, and also President of the Municipality and Chairman of the Harbour Board.

MADRAS.

THE Maharajah of Mysore has appointed Colonel Hay, of the Amrut Mahal Department, Military Secretary to his Highness and Commandant of the Mysore troops, vice Colonel Travers, deceased.

THE Madras Mail states that it is understood that Mr. Grant Duff has personally offered to recommend Mr. H. St. A. Goodrich, Acting Collector of Bellary, for the vacant Madras seat in the Viceregal Council, and that the latter gentleman has intimated his readiness to accept the honour.

The Mysore season report to the 18th ult. shows that the prospects of the province generally are fair and improving, except at Shimoga, where they are not encouraging. The Maidan taluks are particularly bad. At Devangiri the cattle generally are poor, and still suffering from want of forage.

MR. A. M. SAUNDERS, Agent and Manager of the Madras Railway, was installed on the 25th ult. as District Grand Master of Freemasons in the Madras Presidency at a special communication of the Grand Lodge. The proceedings were attended with considerable éclat.

THE STATUTORY CIVIL SERVICE.—We hear that the names of two Brahmin youths have been forwarded by the local Government to the Government of India, who will choose either of them for the Statutory Civil Service. One of these two is the son of a deputy collector, and is an M.A. and B.L. of the Madras University; and the other is the son of the Hon. T. Rama Row, and possesses the valuable distinction of being a Bachelor of Laws of the first class. The choices are unobjectionable, and the Government of India cannot err in selecting either of the two.—Hindu.

MR. J. D. B. GRIBBLE, late of the Madras Civil Service, after a careful examination of the Blavatsky correspondence, and comparison with admittedly genuine letters, has expressed an opinion that the letters published by the Madras Christian College Magazine are authentic.

H.E. MR. GRANT DUFF returned to Madras from Ootacamund on the 25th ult.

SOLDIERS' INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.—We learn that the Government of India has sanctioned an allotment of Rs. 6,000, to be included in the military budget estimate for 1885-86, for the purpose of a soldiers' industrial exhibition to be held at Bangalore, in the autumn of 1885, on or about the date fixed for the annual meeting of the South India Rifle Association. Similar exhibitions have been held periodically in the Bengal Presidency since 1864, with good results. The preparation of articles for exhibition affords soldiers, British and native, and their wives, means of usefully employing their leisure time, and encourages the men to learn and perfect themselves in trades, which will enable them to support themselves and their families when they return to civil life. There are to be money prizes amounting to Rs. 150 per regiment or battalion, and Rs. 50 per battery, for such corps and batteries as may compete, and free carriage of articles for exhibition, and selected workmen. It is, however, understood that under no circumstances will any addition to the allotted amount be sanctioned.—Mail.

BURMA.

A EUROPEAN who has had long experience in the tobacco line, both as a planter and curer, and also as a manufacturer, is so sanguine of the prospects of the tobacco trade in Burma that he has started a cigar manufactory at Rangoon, where good cigars are made daily of every size and shape under his own immediate professional supervision.

DURING the recent massacre of the prisoners in the Mandalay Jail, one poor fellow got away and took refuge in the oven of a Chinese baker. He was, however, discovered and murdered. The Chinaman was accused of harbouring a rebel, and was thrown into prison.

THE REV. DR. MARKS, who has been somewhat prominently mixed up with the demonstrations in Rangoon against King Theebaw, contributes an interesting article to the October number of Our Monthly on "The Burmese Princes at School." They were under his tuition in 1870. The article commences:—"They all are dead except one, and he is their murderer. Theebaw is the sole survivor of the nine sons of Mindoon Men, who were pupils of the S. P. G. Royal School, Mandalay."

THE last of the Moguls, Prince Jewan Bux, when dying, left instructions that whatever property he possessed should be equally divided between his two wives. His first wife, who is nearly blind, has for a considerable time been living in a hired house in Rangoon, while his second wife, Ashae Bee, occupied a house near the jail; this was the property of Jewan Bux. When the first lady heard of the death of her husband she went to the house near the jail and took possession of it; at the same time ousting the second lady. A formal complaint was made by Ashae Bee to the officer in charge of State prisoners, who is the Secretary to the Chief Commissioners, in which she asserted her right, as the lawfully married wife of the Prince, to a share in his property. The officer in charge does not seemingly think her claim a good one, and she is therefore left in absolute poverty.

CEYLON.

MR. C. H. DE SOYSA, the well-known Sinhalese capitalist, is, we are glad to hear, about to plant tea on an extensive scale on some of his low-country properties. Mr. De Soysa has already put some tea on Charley Valley plantation, Maturatta, and we have no doubt this will be followed ere long by operations in Hewaheta, Maskeliya, and other districts where this enterprising gentleman has land.—Ceylon Observer.

THE NEW ORIENTAL BANK is gaining the confidence of the constituents of the old institution, and it is gratifying to know that most of the depositors have gone back to their old bank. Within the short time it has resumed its business the Bank has been doing very well, and there can be no doubt that it will be as flourishing as its predecessor in the course of time.—Kandy Correspondent.

OPENING OF THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.—The session of the Legislative Council of Ceylon for the current year was opened on the 15th ult. by H.E. the Hon. Sir A. H. Gordon, G.C.M.G. with the usual ceremonies. Precisely at three p.m. the Governor (wearing the insignia of a G.C.M.G.), accompanied by Major Knollys, A.D.C., and Mr. F. P. Murray, P.S. (both in uniform), drove from Queen's House, and immediately the firing of the usual salute of seventeen guns commenced. On the Governor entering the Chamber the audience stood up, and his Excellency, bowing to the Council and to the assembly, took his seat in the presidential chair. In a few minutes more the firing ceased, and then commenced the work of session of 1884-85 by the swearing-in of new members:—The Hon. P. A. Templer, Acting Government Agent, Central Provinces, the Hon. Major F. C. H. Clarke, Surveyor-General; and the Hon. R. A. Bosanquet as member for the mercantile community.

THE KANDY EXHIBITION.—We are assured by one who takes an interest in agricultural matters that the date for holding the Kandy show was well considered, and that it was thought that May was the best time for native produce as well as for flowers in the cooler regions of the hilly country. We understand that the Governor has expressed a wish that due prominence shall be given to exhibits of food, grains and products of all kinds reared by villagers.—Ceylon Times

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR'S TOUR.—The Lieutenant-Governor returned from Darjeeling on the 30th ult. He left again next day for Beerbhoom and the Western Moorshedabad districts, where deficient rainfall has caused a failure of the crops and distress among the people. He will spend about a week in personally inspecting the relief operations and seeing for himself the condition of affairs throughout the affected districts.

THE WRONGFUL ARREST OF AN INDIGO PLANTER.—Sub-Inspector of Police Laluram Panrai, who was charged at Purneah with wrongfully arresting Mr. Walker, an Indigo planter, and on several other counts, made a statement to the Court on the 25th ult., on the completion of the case for the prosecution, and claims that he did his duty, and that he deserves praise. He says the District Superintendent, Mr. Beamish, told him to investigate the case carefully, and not be deterred from sending up guilty persons because Mr. Walker was a great man. He denied that Mr. Beamish ordered him to send it up in criminal form; he denied having used insulting expressions; and he denied that Mr. Walker threatened to prosecute him for defamation.—Mr. Wetherall, the magistrate, has committed Sub-Inspector Laluram Panrai, charged with wrongfully arresting Mr. Walker, for trial at the Sessions on the 28th ult. He has fixed bail at four sureties of Rs. 1,000 each.

VICEREGAL COUNCIL.—At the meeting of the Viceregal Council, on the 23rd ult., the following Bills were introduced:—A Bill to amend the law in force in the Panch Mahals. A Bill to amend the Oudh Estates, Act I. of 1869. A Bill to amend the Excise Act, 1881. A Bill to amend and consolidate the law regulating construction and working of railways. The session then closed, and the next Meeting of Council will take place in Calcutta about the end of November.

THE NORTHERN INDIA TURF CLUB.—As already announced, a meeting is to assemble at Meerut during the race week to discuss the formation of the proposed Northern India Turf Club. Very large and influential support has been promised to the club. General Sir Herbert Macpherson and other distinguished members of the civil and military services, and recognised authorities on the turf, have, we hear, consented to accept office as stewards of the Northern India Turf Club. It is proposed to appoint a paid secretary to the club, who will work directly under a committee, and who will attend all the race meetings held under the Northern India Turf Club rules.—Pioneer.

THE Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal arrived at Calcutta on Wednesday.

BABOO-RIPONISM.—"Some of our native contemporaries," according to the Indian Spectator are delighted at the prospect of the retiring Viceroy being made a Duke. The Jam-i-Jamshed appeals to his Lordship to assume the title of "Duke of India." "We suggested something like it a year ago," says the Indian Spectator, "when Lord Ripon preferred duty to a dukedom. And it was a worthy choice." Why should he not assume the title of "Duke of Baboodom?" This is the only dukedom to which he can fairly aspire? Baboo Ripon as a duke could do more to promote the interests of his darlings—that few, that happy few, that band of brothers—than he can now.

MR. WILFRED BLUNT, we take it, does not enjoy that mental health which would enable a man to see fairly and speak justly. He has an idea that, to be thoroughly an Englishman, he must follow in the footsteps of Mr. John Bright, and go about the world denouncing everything English. What man in his right senses could have written such a sentence as the following, and point it by a reference to the fate of Englishwomen at Cawnpore and Lucknow:—"I shall no doubt incur anger by saying it, but it is a fact that the Englishwomen in India during the last thirty years has been the cause of half the bitter feelings there, between race and race.—Indian Daily News.

SIR A. LYALL'S VISIT TO RAMPUR.—Sir A. Lyall, accompanied by Lady Lyall and suite, has paid his promised visit to Rampur, where, on the 18th ultimo, he presented the heir-apparent with a khillat and invested him with governing powers. The Lieutenant-Governor left for Moradabad on the 19th, from whence he was to go to Bareilly.

CIVIL EMPLOYMENT FOR SOLDIERS.

His Excellency the Viceroy, speaking at Simla on the occasion of Colonel Chapman's lecture, said:—Your Excellency, ladies, and gentlemen—I now rise for the purpose of expressing the feeling which I am confident that you all share, that our best thanks are due to Colonel Chapman for the very interesting lecture which he has delivered to us on this occasion—(applause). None of you, I am sure, doubt the importance of the question which he has brought under our consideration, and I can assure him that I sympathise heartily with the objects which he has in view—(applause). We all know that great differences of opinion exist, especially among military men, on the subject of short service. Some people regard it as a detestable invention, the evils of which in their opinion cannot be exaggerated; others hold the opposite opinion. The first class will tell you that the system is so bad that it cannot be amended, and that there is no use in your proposing to amend it; the second class to which I belong, though not blind to the defects attaching to the short service system, on the contrary, believe that it is the best and the only system open to adoption in England under the circumstances of the times in which we live—(applause); and that having regard to these vast armaments, so enormous and, to the countries in which they exist, so oppressive, which are to be found on the Continent of Europe, it was essentially necessary that England should take some means by which she could secure that upon the occurrence of an emergency, she could call back to the ranks of her army men who had had the advantage of previous military training. (Applause.) That is the necessity which forced the country to adopt the system of short service, and what we have to do with the system is to make the best of it, and to try, by every possible means in our power, to render it a success. (Applause.) Well, now, nothing can tend, I should think, more to secure that desirable result than the adoption of some such arrangements as those which have been sketched out to us this afternoon by Colonel Chapman. It is essential to the satisfactory working of the short service system and to the popularity of the army in which it exists, that the soldiers, when they return to civil life, should without too great difficulty, find some means of obtaining sufficient and remunerative employment among the civil population. Without that their position is one of difficulty and of suffering, and the existence of men throughout the country in that condition, while it is hard and injurious to the men themselves, must inevitably tend to diminish the attractions of the Army and to check the enlistment into it of good and steady men. What we have therefore to do is to see if any steps can be taken to secure to those Reserve men and old soldiers when they leave their standards the means of employment in civil life. I am very glad to find that Colonel Chapman has abandoned the idea, which he very naturally originally entertained, of relying mainly upon the Government in this matter. As the Commander-in-Chief has truly said, men are apt—and men in India perhaps more than in England—to think that everything must be done for them by the Government; but that is a very great mistake, and in this matter, as Colonel Chapman has convincingly shown, there is very little really which the Government, as a Government, apart from the nation, can do; and therefore the appeal is rightly made to the nation at large that the public should come forward in their respective localities to help in this important national work. The present basis of our army system is a territorial basis; having once established the army upon that foundation, I quite agree in the opinion that we have heard expressed that what we have to do is to make the army more and more thoroughly territorial, and to establish more and more completely local relations between regiments and the counties with which they are connected—(applause). No doubt there are difficulties in doing so; you have to look to your large centres of population for recruiting purposes, but the closer you can make the local connection, the more completely you can bind together the Army with the Militia and the Volunteers in each county, the more solid will be the foundation on which your present system rests—(applause). Therefore I rejoice to find that the object of this movement is to make an appeal which is, I understand, to emanate from the regiments themselves to the leading men in each country in all positions of life, that they should come forward and help in this important work. (Applause.) I believe that by adopting that course, you are adopting the course most likely to lead to ultimate success, and I am very glad to find that the officers of regiments in India—as I hope also officers of regiments in other parts of the world—are endeavouring to excite local interest in the scheme now propounded. Colonel Chapman has devoted himself with a degree of zeal and energy to this work which entitles him to the gratitude of the British soldier. (Applause.) He has told us of all the letters that he has written, and the papers he has circulated on the subject, and I only hope that, two or three mails hence, when the answers to them are received, he will find that his efforts as regards both the European and the native army have been attended with the success which they undoubtedly deserve. (Applause.) But the work is not an easy one. When you make appeals to employers of labour to take men in their employment, although if you make a stirring appeal to their patriotism they may be inclined to listen to you while they are in the room where the appeal is addressed to them—when they come away they will say to themselves: "It is impossible for us to conduct our business if we employ men who are not fitted for the work we give them." And you cannot complain of that. If you want to make this system successful you must combine with it a system of training in regiments such as will fit men to discharge the duties upon which they may be employed in civil life in a satisfactory manner. (Applause.) You have no right to go to employers of labour and ask them to take men who are of no use to them, because they have been soldiers, but you have every right to go to them and say, "We have done our best to fit these men for your employment; now we call upon you as good citizens to take them and give them that employment for which we believe them to be fitted." (Applause.) Thus organised, I have every reason to hope that there is a good chance that this system may be crowned with success. I certainly shall rejoice if it is so, and I can only say that when I leave India and return to England I shall do my best to forward in that country the work which I have had the pleasure to advocate here to-day. (Loud and continued applause.)

The proceedings then terminated.

ADDRESS TO LORD RIPON.

An adjourned meeting of the Municipal Corporation was held on Monday, Oct. 27, there being present—Mr. P. M. Mehta (chairman), Drs. H. J. Blanc, T. Blaney Cowasjee Hormusjee, and Rustumjee Nusserwanjee Khory, Lieut.-Colonel G. Merewether, R.E., the Hon. Sir Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy, Bart., Rao Saheb Vishvanath Narayan Mandlik, Messrs. C. Douglas, J. R. Duxbury, D. Gostling, E. F. Underwood, Anand Rao Narayan Vasudeo, Byramjee Nusserwanjee Servai, Dadabhai Naoraji, Gokuldas Jugmohandas, Hurkissondas Narrotumdas, Jamshedjee Pallonjee Kapadia, Javerlal Umiashankar Yajnik, Kaikhuro Vowroji Kabrajee, Karsandas Vallabdas, Muljee Bhawanidas Barbhaya, Muncherjee Nowrojee Banajee, Nanabhoy B. Jeejeebhoy, Nowrojee Furdoonjee, Raghunath Narayan Khote, Tribhowandas Munguldas Nuthooobhoy, Tribhowandas Vurjeeewandas, Vundrawundas Purshotumdas, and Venayekrao Ramchunder Luxumonjee.

Colonel Merewether proposed:—"That, on behalf of this Corporation, a parting address be presented to the Most Hon. the Marquis of Ripon, K.G., on his resignation of the Viceroyalty of India. That the following committee be appointed to prepare the address:—The Chairman of the Corporation, the Hon. Rao Saheb Vishvanath Narayan Mandlik, C.S.I., Sir Frank H. Souter, Kt., C.S.I., Mr. Rahimtula Mohamed Sayani, Mr. J. Thorburn, and Dr. D'Souza. Colonel Merewether added that it was so obvious that such an address should be presented by the representatives of this great city to Lord Ripon, who first landed here, on his arrival in India, that he would not say anything further.

Sir Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy said he cordially seconded the resolution which Colonel Merewether had moved. They could not allow Lord Ripon to leave these shores without a grateful acknowledgment of his many valuable and distinguished services to this country. As the address to be prepared would no doubt deal with them he (the speaker) did not propose to say anything at the present time. Before he sat down, however, he might be allowed to express a hope that Lord Ripon would be able to do them the great favour of laying the foundation-stone of their new Municipal Hall in accordance with what Sir Jamsetjee knew to be the earnest wishes of the ratepayers of this city. (Applause.) It was felt generally that no occasion would be more appropriate than that for presenting him with a farewell address. (Applause.)

Mr. Nowrojee Furdoonjee said that in June, 1880, they had the honour of presenting an address of welcome to Lord Ripon on his arrival here. On that occasion his lordship gave them the following assurance:—"But, gentlemen, it will be my most earnest endeavour to bring that war, so far as lies in my power, to an early and to an honourable conclusion, in the hope that in returning peace the Government of India may again be able to devote its attention to those works of internal improvement to which you have so wisely alluded. And I can assure you that if it should be my lot during my tenure of office to contribute in any degree to the development of the resources of this great country, agricultural and industrial, and to promote to any extent the happiness and the welfare of the people of India of all races and creeds, and classes, and especially the prosperity of the mass of the people, I shall esteem it the greatest honour of my political life." His lordship had amply fulfilled the promise just referred to, and had not only realized but surpassed their expectations. Last year the native inhabitants of Bombay petitioned her Majesty the Queen-Empress to renew his lordship's term of office; but it is much to be regretted that Lord Ripon has determined to sever his connection with India nearly six months earlier.

Mr. Tribhovandas said it was with very great pleasure that he rose to support the resolution which had been laid before the meeting. It was the bounden duty of all men to recognise, appreciate, and encourage real merit on proper occasions; and with this view they had assembled that day to consider the propriety of presenting an address to the Viceroy on the eve of his departure. The regime of Lord Ripon had been positively beneficial to all the sections of Her Majesty's Indian subjects. His policy had in the main been directed to the amelioration of the condition of the people of this country. His administration marked a new epoch in the political history of the country. His name had become a household word in every city and village throughout the country. In short, his career had been unparalleled in the annals of the Indian Viceroyalty. During the short time that he had been ruling he had done all he could to do good, and had thereby already immortalised his name. It was the duty of the Corporation to express their feeling of gratitude to his lordship for the benefits he had conferred on them in a suitable address on the occasion of his departure.

Mr. Kapadia thought that Lord Ripon had done very much for the inhabitants of this large continent, and had also given them local self-government.

Mr. Javerlal remarked that Lord Ripon had done a great deal for Bombay, more especially in regard to the development of the wheat trade.

The proposition, on being put to the vote, was carried unanimously.

Miscellaneous.

LORD DUFFERIN'S TASK.—In an article describing the nature of the task which Lord Dufferin will be expected to perform, the Standard concludes:—In his selection of a Private Secretary the new Viceroy shows how large a place he is prepared to allot to the management of the Russian menace. It is only too likely that events in native Burmah and in Tonquin will give us as close an interest in the condition of the North-East as of the North-West Frontier; but the situation, it may be hoped, will develop itself slowly. The whole question of the Frontier—whatever may be the immediate issue of our fresh arrangements with Russia—involves almost certainly a considerable increase of armaments. This is, in other words, it touches finance, the fundamental and the sensitive point of Indian administration. The suggestion of increasing taxation or of reducing expenditure raises the whole "condition of the people" problem. We might point out in detail domestic dangers of the gravest kind—such, for instance, as the controversy on the Bengal Rent Bill, to which, happily, Lord Dufferin will bring his intimate knowledge of the almost identical problem presented in Ireland. But we have said enough to indicate the roughness of the tests by which the Viceroy's statesmanship will be tried. One prediction, at any rate, may be hazarded. He may fail to surmount all the obstacles in his way, but he will assuredly not gratuitously create fresh ones.

ACCORDING to a Colombo telegram to the Englishman, the emigrant barque John Davis, from Calcutta to Demerara, with 450 coolies on board, has put into Trincomalee with cholera on board, and been quarantined. There were altogether thirty-eight cases, of whom twenty-three recovered. Six more have since died. There has been no fresh outbreak, and if no more cases occur the ship will proceed on her voyage shortly.

THERE is some probability, says the Allahabad paper, of a committee being shortly assembled to consider the question of permanently locating in Calcutta some of the migratory offices of the Government of India. The three offices likely to be first dealt with are those of the Directors-General of Telegraphs, Post Offices, and Railways. Attention may also be turned to the Commissariat and Ordnance Offices.

MR. H. M. DURAND, C.S.I., Under-Secretary in the Foreign Office, has been gazetted to officiate as Secretary during the absence of Mr. C. Grant, who leaves by this week's mail on a year's furlough. Mr. E. C. Buck, Secretary in the Revenue and Agricultural Department, is a passenger in the same steamer. He has been granted four months' leave from November 1, and Mr. Holderness will officiate during his absence.

ACCORDING to the returns of the military authorities, the total average strength of the British troops in the Madras presidency in the past year was 10,612. Bangalore and Secunderabad were the most important stations, as the strength of the European garrison there is returned at 1,844 and 2,276 respectively. In Madras and Palaveram the total was 597; in Cannanore 689; and in Bellary, Wellington, Kamptee, Rangoon and Thayetmyo the average is returned at 986, 614, 693, 742 and 659 respectively. The average daily sick is returned at 691, while the total of admissions into hospital was 10,517. Indeed, from the published figures it would appear that every European soldier serving in the Madras command obtained admission into hospital last year. With the above strength and admissions there were ninety-four deaths in hospital and fourteen out of hospital, and the total invalided was 347. In 1882 the total strength was 10,817; the total of admissions into hospital 11,564, the deaths in hospital 98, out of hospital 16, and invalided 321. From the figures set down it would appear that in 1882 the total of admissions was larger than in 1883, but the total of invalids had increased.

A PROPOSAL by the military authorities in the Bengal Presidency, to allow officers commanding British cavalry regiments to make their own arrangements for the supply of helmets, has received the sanction of the Government of India. For the cavalry soldier's cork helmets are considered preferable to the wicker helmets at present supplied by Government, and, as the former will be obtained from England under regimental arrangements, without extra expense to the State, there can be no objection to the measure. The allowance payable to regiments when not supplied by Government with helmets is Rs. 4 biennially per helmet.

THE OUTLOOK IN INDIA.—The St. Stephen's Review says:—"We have had hard fighting in the Youb Valley, and General Tanner has taught the valiant old chief to eat his own words. He boasted that not an Englishman should get out of this territory alive. After all, what is to be the end of these skirmishes? We are not at war with the frontier tribes; 'we don't want to fight,' nor are the natives to be killed in a promiscuous sort of way. Old Indians groan over the way things are going, and watch the frontier horizon for the coming storm; the cloud no bigger than a man's hand is there, yet here are we, blustering about extension of franchise, trying to persuade the mob that they are the rulers of England, playing fast-and-loose with Egypt, putting cotton wool in our ears when our European allies remonstrate, and all the while our sons, fathers, and friends in the mighty Indian empire are piping to us, crying aloud that the storm is coming. But Mr Gladstone is wiser than they. He has planchette, and so long as his spiritual drawl predicts peace, English hearts may break in their wisdom and India perish, Gladstone and his court will feast, keep place, and fiddle, while the country their Government has ruined perishes."

THE SAFETY OF INDIA.—With respect to the feeling of anxiety about the safety of India, the Morning Post contends that "all other dangers are swallowed up by the predominant consideration of the security of our Eastern dominions, and both without and within the circle of the mountain barriers of India the symptoms of peril are forcing themselves upon the attention of the devoted and far-seeing public servants who wield the trust of our Eastern Empire. If it be the deliberate opinion of the most experienced strategists, of men who have marched sword in hand through the regions where they now divine the approach of the most formidable aggression, that the defences of India require to be instantly strengthened against a danger which is neither visionary nor remote, then it becomes the duty of the Patriotic and Constitutional party in these kingdoms and in Parliament to insist that the warnings of our most capable commanders shall not be unheeded. In his very latest public report the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has deplored the wide fermentation of a spirit of sedition in the native Press. What might that spirit produce if the external menace were to take its expected shape and realisation?"

WITH the consent of the Government of India, three young men from the Nizam's dominions have been sent to the Berars to learn revenue and official work as practised in the British offices there. One will be classed as an honorary extra assistant commissioner, whilst the other two will be styled attachés. The first of these is Dr. George Nundy, B.A., who has studied in some of the universities of Europe. The other two are Nawabs Jehander Ali and Mustafur Ali, both members of the aristocracy of Haidarabad.

ENORMOUS pressure is being put upon the Simla portion of the committee on the Bengal Tenancy Bill with the view of, if possible, grinding out another report before November 10th. But even if this pressure and this effort be successful, what will be the use of a report which, even if all things be in its favour, is sure to provoke a new literature of friendly and unfriendly criticism? What is the sense of manufacturing at the highest possible official pressure, these reports upon reports that have already been the cause of many reports, when the actual practical living experience of the people is the one thing not thought of.—Indian Daily News.

ON Wednesday, the 15th ult., his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief presided at the distribution of prizes at Lawrence Military Asylum at Sanawar. The school is already showing signs of improvement under the management of the new principal, the Rev. A. Hildersley. His Excellency, after carefully inspecting all the school premises and seeing the boys at drill, expressed himself highly satisfied with the reforms that are being carried out.

OBITUARY.—Mrs. Kennedy, relict of Lieutenant-General Jame Kennedy, O.B., died at Benares, on the 1st of November, at the advanced age of ninety-six years and seven months. The deceased lady has never left India, and had been the mother of eighteen children, of whom two daughters with four grandchildren and a son-in-law perished in the frightful massacre at Cawnpore during the Mutiny. She and her husband owed their escape from the fury of the mutineers at Benares to the fidelity of their own old native servants; and subsequently on becoming a widow she took up her residence at Benares, where for the remaining years of her life she was deservedly esteemed and enjoyed a reputation throughout the Bengal Presidency for generous hospitality and kindness of heart.—Mr. Charles Allen, formerly one of the members of the Financial Council of Calcutta died on the 5th inst., at Tenby, where he had resided for nearly thirty years. Until recently he was an alderman of the borough, and filled the office of mayor more than once. He was a justice of the peace and deputy-lieutenant for the county of Pembroke, and was high sheriff in 1876. In politics he was a Liberal.—Lieutenant-General William Freeland Brett, formerly of the 54th Foot, died on the 10th inst., at Colchester, aged 63. He entered the army in 1842, obtained a lieutenancy in 1844, became captain in 1851, and was promoted to the rank of major in January, 1857, in the November of which year he commanded the 54th Regiment during the burning of the steam transport Sarah Sands at sea. The conduct of the troops on board on that occasion was the subject of a general order, dated from the Horse Guards, in the following February, in which Lieut.-Colonel Brett is mentioned as being "entitled to high praise for his conduct throughout," in circumstances "the most alarming and dangerous in which soldiers can be placed." For his services on this occasion he obtained the brevet rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, and was presented by the Royal Humane Society with a silver medal and a vote of thanks. He served in India during the suppression of the Mutiny from January, 1858, and commanded a flying column on the Nepal Frontier. This force received the special acknowledgments of the Governor-General of India for "energy and zeal displayed." His subsequent promotions in the Army, were as follows: Colonel, 1865; Major-General, 1870; and Lieutenant-General, 1881.—Sir George Frederick Harvey, K.C.S.I., died on November 11th, aged seventy-six. He was the eldest son of the late Sir John Harvey, K.C.B., by a daughter of the first Viscount Lake, and entered the Bengal Civil Service in 1827. He was commissioner at Agra during the Mutiny, and for his services was made Knight of the Star for India.

THE NAWAB SALAR JUNG AT THE ALIGARH COLLEGE.

His Excellency Nawab Salar Jung and suite arrived at Aligarh on Friday, the 17th ult., on a visit to the Hon. Syed Ahmed Khan, and to expect the Mahomedan Anglo-Oriental College. In the afternoon his Excellency paid a visit to the college, of which he is a visitor, and expressed himself extremely gratified with his inspection. On Saturday afternoon an address was delivered to the distinguished visitor in the Strachey Hall, where a large number of students and friends, both native and European, of the host had gathered. The address, which was adorned with all the flowery elegance of oriental eloquence, thanked his Excellency for the visit, which they viewed as an important event in the career of the school. The difficulties which attended the first attempts of getting up the concern were then touched upon, and the sincerest gratitude was expressed for the help which the British Government and that of H.H. the Nizam had so cordially afforded. It went on to speak in the most flattering terms of the part the father of his Excellency had taken in the movement. His purse had ever been open, and his sympathy ever ready in its behalf. A portion of the college, called "Salar Manzil," has been erected in memory of the deceased statesman, and a wish was expressed that this would embalm his fame in the memory of coming generations. In replying to the address his Excellency thanked the assemblage for the kind wishes they had expressed for his welfare, and was also deeply grateful for the notice made to the work of his lamented father, whose life seemed to have been passed in works of philanthropy. The story of the decline of the Mahomedans, he said, was a sad one, and it was only by resorting to remedies of this sort that they could regain their ancient prestige. The present state of the college, he said, deserved the greatest praise, but it could be improved, and as an incentive he was happy to announce that the grant from the Nizam's Government had been increased by three thousand rupees a year, and wishing the school a prosperous and glorious career he concluded.

At eight P.M. that evening about fifty English and Mahomedan gentlemen dined with the members of the Committee of the college in the "Salar Manzil" to meet his Excellency. The dinner was an excellent one. After the healths of the Queen-Empress and the Viceroy and H.H. the Nizam were drunk, the Hon. Justice Mahmood proposed the toast of the evening, the health of Nawab Salar Jung, in a neat little speech. The college, he said, was the first step in the progress of Mahomedan education, which was to raise the Mahomedan sect in India from the drooping condition into which it had fallen. He referred to the help afforded by the British and Hyderabad Governments. The illustrious father of the distinguished guest also came in for his meed of praise. The speaker wound up by wishing the subject of his toast a long career of happiness and success as a Minister, and called upon those round the table to drink the toast with every hearty feeling. His Excellency's health was drunk with enthusiasm. In thanking the gentlemen for the kind manner in which they had drunk his health, his Excellency said that he should have felt himself unworthy of the honour they had done him had he not felt that in honouring him they had honoured the memory of his illustrious father, whose fame had spread far and wide over the Empire. He was astonished, he said, at the speed in which the institution had developed itself, and he had no doubt that in some distant future the ground they were treading to-day would be classic ground, and he did not think it chimerical to imagine that its groves would shelter an Indian Bacon or a Mahomedan Newton. He then called upon them to drink to the health of Syed Ahmed Khan, coupled with that of prosperity to the college. The speech his Excellency made was very warmly received throughout, and on the whole the impression he has left is a most pleasing one.

THE "INDIAN STATESMAN" ON THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

The Indian Witness regrets that the ryot has no voice in this controversy on the Tenancy Bill, and tells us that the Calcutta Missionary Conference "propose to make an earnest and honest effort to secure for him the hearing that he needs!" An able committee will take measures to collect information, find out the exact position which the ryot occupies, and give him a voice if he wishes to be heard. The Conference does not assume a partisan attitude in reference to the Bill, does not either support or oppose it, but simply acts the part of an attorney appointed to watch the case during the progress of a trial. The missionaries could hardly do better. Let them remember, however, that the points on which we want information are these—1st, the proportion which the rent paid by the ryot bears to the gross produce of his holding; 2nd, the charge against the zemindar that he rack-rents and evicts his tenantry. We have had no communication with any zemindar upon the subject, but being accustomed to such inquiries for the last twenty-seven years, concerning the land in almost all parts of India, we see that the ryot cannot possibly be rack-rented in these provinces, but must be sitting at very mischievously low rentals. The second charge against the zemindar is that he is given to ejecting his tenants from their holdings, where they refuse to pay the heavy rentals he imposes upon them. The ryot, in Mr. Mackenzie's language, is subjected to the "horrors of eviction." It is upon these two charges that the whole Bill rests. Now we stood aloof from the controversy for twelve months. We had no communication whatever with either zemindars or ryots on the subject, but we were greatly struck by the fact that, while these charges were being constantly and confidently made against the zemindar, not one single complaint reached the Statesman on the subject from any part of the province. The only complaint we did receive came from the Bengal Secretariat, and we noticed the conduct of the offending zemindars very sharply, only to find directly afterwards that the Secretariat had misled us as to the facts.

THE Nawab Nazim of Bengal died on the 4th inst. of cholera.

H.M.S. "CROCODILE."—The Indian troopship Crocodile has left Aden for England.

PRIVATE RAWLINSON, of the 2nd Queen's Regiment, who ran amok in Subathu early in July and killed several of his comrades, has, a contemporary states, at last been placed upon his trial before a general court-martial. The delay that has occurred arose, in the first place, from the confinement of the prisoner to hospital, he having been shot down by a non-commissioned officer after the murders had been committed; and, in the second place, from doubts having arisen as to his sanity. The result is that the regiment have left Subathu, on the march to Umballa, while the trial is proceeding, and the strange spectacle is witnessed of a general court-martial accompanying a regiment from stage to stage, and assembling daily to carry on their work. The officers from regiments other than the 2nd Queen's, who are sitting on the court, must suffer much inconvenience from this unusual mode of procedure.

THE ANTWERP EXHIBITION.—The Bombay Committee for the Antwerp International Exhibition has vigorously commenced its work. Letters have been addressed to all the commissioners, collectors, and political officers, requesting them to state what contributions are to be expected through them. Letters have also been sent to all superintendents of jails, inquiring what carpets and other special manufactures of the best kinds in each jail are to be sent in. A separate circular has been issued to all the collectors and political officers, informing them that Mr. Tyrrel Leith is appointed to prepare a collection of ethnological specimens, and requesting early information as to the articles it is proposed to exhibit, intimating that "articles of warfare and sport, domestic appliances, and agricultural implements," and other specimens (under the twenty-five different headings given) will prove very interesting.

ASSAM POLICE.—With the exception of Mr. Patten, I have not had to find serious fault with any of the district or assistant-superintendents during the year, says Mr. T. J. Murray in his Police Administration Report in Assam for last year. By Mr. Cawley's return to Bengal the province has lost a hard working and zealous officer. Of the other officers, Messrs. Maxwell, Crouch, and Carnac deserve special commendation for their administration of the civil police, and Messrs. Daly, Fishor, and Savi for their exertions to increase the efficiency of the Frontier Police. I regret to have to inform the Chief-Commissioner that I have had, on more than one occasion, to express grave dissatisfaction with Mr. Patten, Assistant-Superintendent of Police, Naga Hills. He is careless in the matter of office work to a degree verging on incompetency, he is much deficient in zeal, and he was neglectful of the interests of the men under his command, showing himself entirely out of sympathy with them. As a measure of his capacity, I may mention that his report on the Naga Hills Police for the year under review occupies something less than three pages of foolscap, and conveys not the slightest information of any use concerning a force which had been under his command for three years. The Deputy-Commissioner, Mr. McCabe, in forwarding the report, remarked:—"This report is of a most meagre nature, and points to the fact that the Assistant-Superintendent, Mr. Patten, took very little interest in the work of the Police Department in the Naga Hills."

THE BENGAL LANDHOLDERS' LATEST MEMORIAL TO LORD KIMBERLEY.

In the interests of truth and justice we regard it as a fortunate thing that the latest Memorial of the Central Committee of Landholders of Bengal and Behar to the Secretary of State in Council, against the Bengal Tenancy Bill, reached the hands of Lord Kimberley before the departure of Lord Dufferin from England. We have reason to believe that it has received—as it certainly deserves to receive—the most careful consideration from these two high officers of State, as well as from the Indian Council; and it is obvious that the new Viceroy will enter on the task of inquiring personally into the merits of this vitally important question on the spot, with hands greatly strengthened by full previous discussion with the Secretary of State and the experienced officials of his Council here at home. We are very sure that it has not escaped the attention of two such sagacious men as Lord Dufferin and Lord Kimberley that the demands of those who oppose the Tenancy Bill have been, from the very first, not for any favourable or lenient treatment, but simply for honest, rigorous, and impartial inquiry. There is, no doubt, a section of the Radical party by whom all such appeals for justice and publicity are regarded as a revolt against the authority of a heaven-blessed despotism. But here in England there are not wanting signs of a reaction, in the Liberal party itself, against the high-handed tyranny of this faction, and of a desire to return to the old-fashioned liberality on which Liberals at one time used to pride themselves. This reaction has been notably evident in the defeat of Mr. Chamberlain's efforts to crush the shipowners of Great Britain, without giving them a hearing, on the mere ipse dixit of the officialdom of the Board of Trade. Mr. Chamberlain has now been forced, though most reluctantly, to grant a fair and public inquiry; and already, even before the Royal Commission has commenced to sit, it has been discovered that the statistics of the Board of Trade, on which Mr. Chamberlain's speeches were founded, had been most grossly falsified by somebody!—the figures of loss of life that actually referred to a period of two years and four months having most unaccountably got lumped, in Mr. Chamberlain's speeches, into one disastrous year! Now, we trust that this fact will inspire the landholders of Bengal with new hope and new vigour in their opposition to the confiscatory designs of Mr. Ilbert and his friends. For instance, when we read the *firman*s from the old Mogul Emperors granted to the ancestors of the Maharajahs of Darbhanga, now in the possession of the present Maharajah, and compare the wording thereof with Mr. Ilbert's historical account of the status of a Bengal landholder, we think it is not uncharitable to say that Mr. Ilbert's history seems to be not much more trustworthy than Mr. Chamberlain's statistics. And so on, for most of the other arguments by which the Bengal Tenancy Bill has been supported; the more closely and rigorously they are examined the more unsound they are found to be. The Memorial now before us affords, perhaps, the best instance, in the present controversy, of the completeness with which those arguments are overthrown the moment they are dealt with in the light of hard, stern facts. The Memorial is virtually a reply to that amazing "Memorandum" which was drawn up by Mr. MacDonnell, the Revenue Secretary to the Government of Bengal, and Mr. Ilbert's right-hand man in his attack on the zemindars, on the earlier Memorial from the same Committee. The extreme distrust—we might almost use a stronger word—with which we regarded that "Memorandum" was freely expressed by us at the time of its publication; and we cannot help avowing the hearty pleasure with which we now read, in this second Memorial of the Landholders' Committee, the most complete and thorough exposure that could possibly be offered of the blunders and inaccuracies with which the "Memorandum" literally bristled. We shall return in an early issue to a more detailed examination of this masterly rejoinder.

THE OPINION OF A ZEMINDAR ON THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

It will be satisfactory to our readers, and especially to the members of the London Committee who have opposed the Bengal Tenancy Bill, to hear that the proceedings of the Committee have met with the warmest approval of the Bengal zemindars, who for their own part are carrying on the rather unequal combat against the Council of Lord Ripon in Calcutta. We have before us a letter received by the last mail, addressed to a gentleman who has taken an active part in the opposition here in London to the Bengal Tenancy Bill, from one of the leading landholders of Bengal, a zemindar deservedly respected alike by his fellow-countrymen, by the Government, and by a very large circle of English friends. The writer of the letter has for many years been a prominent worker in every philanthropic, national, or provincial movement—and especially in the promotion of that educational system which has won for the gentlemen of Bengal such an important position in the body-politic of India. The letter is as follows:—

It is with no little pleasure that we have witnessed the popular outburst of admiration, amongst all classes of Bengalis, for the parts your Committee have undertaken in vindicating and upholding the rights of the landed classes, both the zemindars and the ryots of the country. What excites their admiration is that so many English gentlemen, after having left the service and the country to which they devoted themselves so many years, have still volunteered to serve the children of the soil by making excellent speeches at public meetings, and writing articles, fully exposing the mischievous character of the Bengal Tenancy Bill. It is a Bill which aims to destroy the rights and privileges of the landed classes, who constitute the bulk of the nation, for no other reason but because a certain number of the Government secretaries wish to make a name for themselves. The Bill very injuriously affects the rights of the ryots, while seemingly advocating their cause, and introduces an element of discord between the two most important sections of the community. If the Bill passes, the ryots and cultivators of the soil will be under the painful necessity of dancing attendance at the Courts, and finding gratuities to propitiate the Court officials, instead of, as heretofore, being engaged in carrying on their everyday work, peacefully and pleasantly, in the field. The rents of the ryots, instead of being paid at the zemindar's house, will be deposited in the Government collector's office; and the zemindars will be put to great trouble and expense, legal and illegal, to withdraw the money. The ryots will soon learn that in order to ruin a zemindar they have only to combine and deposit the whole of the rents at the collector's office. The zemindars failing to get the money so deposited, in time for payment of their revenue to Government, will have their estates sold for default. The free-sale provision will gradually result in passing the lands from the hands of the actual cultivators to those of money-lenders and middlemen. The zemindars and ryots being deprived of the freedom of contract will have to resort to the Courts for even a lease of a few square yards of land.

These are, however, not all the bad features of the Bill. We have pointed them out forcibly in a memorial from the British Indian Association to the Government, and have subsequently prepared a paper containing the more salient points, for the information of the Select Committee, which will be held at Calcutta next month. We shall leave no stone unturned to expose the iniquity, injustice, and the revolutionary tendency of this Bill. But I am afraid that without home pressure the local Government will not be tamed down. We rely on your kind exertions, and those of our other friends, to carry on the agitation you have so opportunely begun at home. The present plan of Government is said to be to have the Bill recast by the Select Committee, and then to submit it to Council and pass it into law. I fail to see how all this can be achieved in the present Session, particularly when we expect a new Governor-General in the beginning of December, who will take some time to look into the matter before anything is determined upon. It is fortunate that we have a new Governor-General who is said to act for himself, and is not led by his secretaries.

The writer and his friends may rest assured that this strong expression of their opinions will commend itself to the favourable consideration of their old friends in England; and that the members of the London Committee will not relax their efforts until the obnoxious Bill has been thoroughly purged of all its objectionable and revolutionary provisions, which are fatal equally to the zemindars and the ryots of Bengal.

DEPARTURE OF THE VICEROY OF INDIA.—The newly-appointed Viceroy of India, the Earl of Dufferin, left Tilbury on Thursday for Bombay in the Peninsular and Oriental Company's splendid new steamship Tasmania. His Excellency, accompanied by the Countess, the members of his suite, and a numerous party of friends arrived at Liverpool-street Station shortly before one o'clock, and was repeatedly cheered by a large crowd which had assembled to witness his departure. Amongst those present to wish his Lordship and the Countess farewell were the Duke of Westminster, who presented the Countess with a bouquet, the Duke of Sutherland, Lord Henry Thynne, M.P., Lady Thynne, Lady Hermione Graham, the Marchioness of Downshire, Dr. W. H. Russell, Colonel Baring, Mr. R. Bourke, M.P., Miss Rowan Hamilton, Mr. A. Wodehouse (of the India Office), Mr. Bickersteth (private secretary to Lord Kimberley), Mr. L. Gattison, Sir O. Burne, Mr. Sheridan, Mr. H. Bayley and Mr. Godfrey, directors of the Peninsular and Oriental Company, Mr. Frederick Barnes, manager of the company, and the Earl and Countess's children—Viscount Clandeboye, Hon. Terence Basil and Frederick Blackwood, and Ladies Hermione and Victoria Blackwood. Their Excellencies' eldest daughter, Lady Helen Blackwood, accompanies them, and their suite includes the Hon. Miss Thynne, Dr. Mackenzie-Wallace (private secretary), Lord Russell, Mr. M'Ferran, Major Cooper, and Mr. Balfour. Most of the ladies and gentlemen named travelled with the Earl and Countess by the special train to Tilbury, off which the Tasmania was lying, the party arriving on board shortly before two o'clock. Lord Dufferin was again loudly cheered at Tilbury Station, and also by the passengers on the Tasmania, every berth on board which is occupied. The moorings were slipped about two o'clock and the vessel was soon on her way down the river. Originally the Tasmania, which is now making her second voyage, was timed to leave on Wednesday, but she was delayed to suit Lord Dufferin's convenience. Extra speed, however, will be put on, and she will arrive at Bombay on the 8th of December, although actually timed only for the following day. The hour at which it is desired the ship should arrive will be telegraphed from Bombay to Aden, so that preparations may be made for the reception of his Excellency. Special cabin accommodation has been placed at the disposal of the Viceregal party, who will, however, dine in the saloon at a separate table, and a writing room has also been fitted up on deck for his Lordship's use.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

TEA.—Messrs. Hawes and Hertz, in their fortnightly report, say:—The disorganised state of the China market has had a prejudicial effect on most kinds of Indian and Java teas, and although the quantity offering is not excessive, and the statistical position good, prices for the lower and medium grades have suffered a reduction. The deliveries of Indian and Ceylon teas for the month of October amounted to 6,170,000lbs., as against 5,662,000lbs. in October, 1883. Stock of Indian teas on the 31st October, 18,988,000lbs., against 18,489,000lbs. in 1883. Indian.—Last week opened with a fairly brisk demand at the low rates current for common kinds; subsequently, however, prices have declined for all but the finest liquoring descriptions, Pekoes being most affected. Teas of this class, from 11d. to 1s. 4d., may be quoted 1d. per lb. lower since a fortnight ago, and most of the withdrawals from sale, which were much more numerous than of late, have been of these sorts. Broken Pekoes have generally maintained their values, fine tippy sorts being well competed for. Broken teas have sold occasionally slightly in buyers' favour for the lower grades, but not being in very abundant supply, little alteration in value is to be noticed. Sales have comprised a total of 43,292 packages—viz., 39,368 chests, 3,730 half-chests, 200 boxes. Ceylon.—Arrivals have been small, 424 packages only being catalogued. These met with fair demand, but included nothing of remarkable quality. The imports from 1st June to 31st October have comprised 1,097,000lbs.

GENERAL CUNNINGHAM's approaching retirement from the head of the Archaeological Survey has, according to the Allahabad paper, raised the question whether the Department will be decentralised, each Government taking charge of its own archaeological business.

THE actual amount received from six months' sales of Bengal opium was Rs. 2,99,24,785, which is Rs. 16,12,285 better than the estimate. From six months pass duty on opium exported from Bombay the receipts have been Rs. 1,17,69,000, which is Rs. 16,57,000 above the estimate.

THE BHOWNUGGUR HEIR-APPARENT.—We learn that H.H. the Thakore of Bhownuggur, as a token of his appreciation of the educational training received by him at the Rajkumar College, Rajkote, has determined that the heir-apparent shall have a similar opportunity of benefiting by a stay of some years in that institution. The Maharajah has accordingly placed the young Prince Bhowsinghjee, who has hitherto been residing at Gondal, under the care of Mr. Chester Macnaghten, the principal of the College, to whom he has often acknowledged his own indebtedness and expressed the greatest confidence and esteem. The heir to the Bhownuggur gadi will thus commence his college career at an unusually early age, for he is as yet only ten years old. His second visit to Bhownuggur was paid only a few days since, but the recent deaths of the late Dewan and the Thakore's brother, for whom the mourning has not yet expired, forbade the festivities which would otherwise have signalised the occasion. The Prince is remarkably intelligent, indeed he is almost precocious, and is a great favourite with all who come in contact with him.

THE annual report of the Calcutta Volunteer Rifle Battalion for the year 1883-84, which has just been issued, shows that the effective strength of the regiment on the 31st of March last was altogether 936, consisting of 601 volunteers, and 335 cadets. The number of new members enrolled during the year was only 328, as compared with 468 in the previous year. But in the latter year two new companies were enrolled. Of the new members 162 failed to make themselves efficient. It is satisfactory to see, however, that the regiment includes 203 extra efficient and 571 efficient. The shooting, however, amongst the cadet companies has not been so good as last season, the average figure of merit being only 51.36, against 81.73, whilst sixty-three cadets have failed to go through the course of musketry at all. There was, however, a considerable falling off in the number of attendance at the parades, though several brigade parades were held with the regiments of the garrison. The best shot in the regiment was Sergeant T. Linehan, of the E Company, with the score of 184 points, and the best shooting company was also the E Company, while F Company won the regimental silver bugle for volley firing. The figure of merit of the whole battalions was 82.16, a considerable falling off from the previous year.

THE "VOICE OF INDIA."

INDIA.

THERE are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing MONTHLY (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native journals throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally docile and conservative; and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth; but it is a policy of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is specially desired to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

THE THIRD EDITION OF KELLY'S DIRECTORY

OF THE

OF THE UNITED KINGDOM,

BEING A GUIDE TO THE

COLONIES & FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

THIS WORK gives a vast amount of information respecting the business carried on between the United Kingdom and the Colonies and Foreign Countries; showing the description of goods, and the amount thereof, exported to each Colony or Country abroad, the British Ports whence shipments are made, the MERCHANTS, FACTORS, and SHIPPERS at the various Ports and Towns in England, the Manufacturers of the Principal Goods exported, and the MERCHANTS AND OTHERS ABROAD WHO ARE IMPORTERS OR BUYERS OF BRITISH GOODS.

It also gives complete information as to the various descriptions of goods, and the amounts thereof, imported from abroad into this country, with the names of the Merchants and Shippers, and also the Manufacturers at the Principal Towns of the various Goods imported.

The Work is divided into three principal divisions the first of which comprises the various Foreign Countries and British Possessions throughout the world to which British Manufactures are exported.

Under each of these is given, first:—A Statistical Account of the Country, the Financial Position, Business Relations with this Country, with, in the case of Foreign States, the names of the British and other Consuls, the name of the Minister in this country, Consuls, Vice-Consuls, &c., at the various Ports and Places in this country; the PRINCIPAL BANKERS, the MERCHANTS, COMMISSION MERCHANTS, BUYERS OF ENGLISH GOODS, and the Manufacturers, &c., at the Principal Towns of the various goods imported; the various Ports in each country; also the Ports in this country whence Shipments are made; Tariffs, &c., &c.; a Tabular Statement showing the Exports from this country during the last three years; a List of the Merchants and Shippers in the various British Towns; List of Steamers and other Vessels sailing from the Ports; also a List of the various Manufactures that are exported from this country.

The second division comprises an Alphabetical List of the Exporters from this country, stating the class of goods exported by them.

The third division of the Work embraces the names and addresses of the actual Manufacturers, or Manufacturers' Agents, of the articles exported, describing as clearly as possible the specialities of each Manufacturer.

The Times, September 20th, 1884.

"It is almost exhaustive as a guide to the shipping and manufacturing industries, both export and import, of Great Britain and Ireland."

Daily Chronicle, September 12th, 1884.

"Merchants and manufacturers of all kinds will find the Directory a valuable guide, whether their interests are concerned in exports or imports."

Daily News, September 17th, 1884.

"It abounds in information of the kind which merchants, manufacturers, and exporters are constantly in need of. Its scope, however, is not confined to the classes who in this country have business with the colonies and foreign parts, but includes also the principal merchants abroad, so that the book becomes a tolerably complete guide to the import and export industries of all countries with which Great Britain has any mercantile relation, and vice versa."

European Mail, September 26th, 1884.

"In collecting the names of foreign and colonial firms—a task of considerable difficulty, as will be understood—Messrs. Kelly have had the assistance of the British consuls, many of whom have given personal testimony to the important service this Directory fulfils in commercial circles abroad."

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY CO.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that at the General Meeting this day, held in pursuance of the Notice and Announcement set forth below, a Resolution was passed adjourning the Meeting until MONDAY, the 22nd day of December, 1884, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at the Company's Offices, 44, Gresham Street, E.C.

Dated this 24th day of November, 1884.
By order of the Board,
signed, E. H. SMITH, Secretary.

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY COMPANY.
Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of "The Eastern Bengal Railway Act, 1857," and of "The Eastern Bengal Railway Company Purchase Act, 1884," a General Meeting of the persons whose names were, on the 17th day of June, 1884, upon the Register of Proprietors of Consolidated Stock of the Company, will be held at the Company's offices, 44, Gresham Street, E.C., in the City of London, on Monday, the 24th day of November, 1884, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, for the purpose of receiving a Report of the Directors and Statement of Accounts, and for the purpose of dealing with the Property of the Company mentioned in the above last-mentioned Act, and for the purpose of declaring a dividend.

AND SPECIAL NOTICE is hereby given that at such meeting it is proposed, prior to the declaration of such dividend, to authorise the payment out of the sum reserved for the purpose by the 1st Ordinary General Meeting, of certain gratuities to certain officers and servants of the Company whose services have been or may be dispensed with in consequence of the purchase of the Railway by the Government.

Dated this eighth day of November, 1884.
By order of the Board,
E. H. SMITH, Secretary.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT—The Acts of Parliament require that the Meeting of which Notice is given above should be held in the month of November. As, however, the accounts from India will not then have arrived the Meeting will be adjourned to a subsequent day, of which Notice will be given, and no business other than the motion for adjournment will be transacted at the Meeting on the 24th November.

By order of the Board,
E. H. SMITH, Secretary.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1884.

Notes of the Week.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, November 7th; Madras and Allahabad, November 5th; Calcutta, November 4th; Burma, October 31st.

IN reply to a question by Sir George Campbell an announcement was made by Mr. Cross last night in the House of Commons which will give the liveliest satisfaction to the Indian Services. The meaningless, obsolete, and offensive term "Uncovenanted" is no longer to be applied to the engineering staff of the Public Works Department. It follows, we presume, as a matter of course, that this redress of a small but real grievance will also be accorded to many other branches of the public service; and first of all to the State professors, the inspectors of schools, and other officers of the Education Service—a body that is beyond all question a corps d'élite, distinguished in an especial degree by the attainments and the high academical status of its members. But why retain the term at all? We think that many distinguished Native officers of the Government have as good reason to feel aggrieved by it as any of their European brethren. The terms "Imperial" and "Local" would admirably serve every purpose of classification, and would be offensive to no one.

For lack of space we are obliged to hold over to our next issue an Index to the exceedingly important papers on the Bengal Tenancy Bill that were published in the ponderous "Extra Supplement" to the Gazette of India of the 11th ult. We invite the particular attention of our readers, and of the Secretary of State, to the Report of the Rajshahi Conference, that is given at pp. 368-399 of the "Supplement."

It is happily a very rare occurrence indeed that a charge of unfair partisanship can attach to any correspondent of the Times. But what on earth does the correspondent with Colonel Ridgeway's party of the Afghan Frontier Commission mean by the transparently ridiculous and absurd statement that "Colonel Ridgeway's march has thus successfully ended in the triumph of Lord Ripon's Afghan policy"? The subsequent portion of his own telegram admits, in so many words, that the "peaceful march through a friendly Afghanistan" has been accomplished by reason of the Afghans' "fear of Russia," and not through any respect or regard for the British name. What, we would ask, has been this "policy" of Lord Ripon's that is said to have triumphed? What, but the scuttling from Kandahar, which everyone now regrets? What, but the abandonment of the Quetta railway, which Mr. Gladstone himself has been compelled to reverse? What, but the daring and defiant advance of Russia to the very gates of Herat, which has forced Lord Ripon to all this tardy "activity" under most disadvantageous circumstances? And how, we would add, are the Russians themselves now treating this Boundary Commission, which we have undertaken with their kind permission? Where does Lord Ripon's "triumph" come in?

THAT the ill-timed obsequiousness of this officious and partisan correspondent will do infinite harm in beguiling British watchfulness once more in spite of the obvious absurdity of his statement, we have no doubt whatever. And what, at best, on his own showing, is the ground for his assertion? Simply this, that a British Indian Force, sufficiently strong in itself to defend itself from mere marauders and from all attacks save open treachery on the part of the Afghan authorities—backed up by all the combined influence of Russia, of the Kabul Government (assured by unlimited subsidies of arms and money), and of the shattered remnants (such as it is) of British prestige—has been permitted to slink unmolested through the smallest possible bit of Afghan territory that could not in any way be avoided by going round by those backdoors which have been used wherever available! And this is actually paraded as a "triumph"! Truly, these are days when the Britisher has to be grateful for very small mercies indeed.

THE same correspondent informs us that Sir Peter Lumsden was to join Colonel Ridgeway on the 19th instant; but he does not tell us how they are to beguile the time until the arrival of the Russian envoys. Two packs of cards would enable them both to play "Patience"; and in the impatient intervals they can build castles with the cards. Or, perhaps, backgammon will be more appropriate to the occasion.

EVEN the Daily News is getting uneasy about the prolonged "illness" of the Russian part of the Afghan Boundary Commission, of which the result is that Sir Peter Lumsden is kept kicking his heels about, at this inclement season of the year, in the exceedingly inhospitable regions of Sarakhs and the Persian frontier. Meanwhile, the "other" Russians—those who have no official connection with the Commission—are merrily pushing on towards Herat, having already occupied Pulikhatun. The Daily News altogether ignores the fact that every journal that has any practical acquaintance with Central Asian politics (notably the St. James's Gazette) has for months past been proclaiming that these tactics would most certainly be resorted to by Russia. It seems to be fated that every action of the Gladstone Government in relation to Russia should be characterised by blind credulity and fatuous helplessness.

THE Calcutta correspondent of the Times is happily able to give us more satisfactory news of the food-supply of Bengal; and though there will, we fear, be some suffering, it is hoped that the province will, after all, be saved from the calamity of a regular famine.

WE have already drawn attention in these columns to Colonel Ewart's proposals for an improvement of the Indian police system—especially in its detective arrangements—by the establishment of an inter-provincial or Imperial force. The whole question is one which will, we believe, receive early attention from Lord Dufferin, and it could not be in better hands. The facts brought out in the Times' telegram are at once astonishing and alarming, as showing that the whole of peaceful India is being made a sort of looting-ground by organised bands of Pathan freebooters. The idea of their receiving their share of the loot through the medium of British postal orders is exceedingly comic; but probably the sufferers do not see the joke in quite the same light.

CAN there by any possibility be any divergence of opinion, among those who know anything of the facts, as to the necessity of our having a consul at Kashgar, as advocated by Mr. Dalgleish and the Calcutta correspondent of the Times? We hope to return to this subject shortly.

ALL the numerous English friends of the Maharaja Sir Jotindro Mohun Tagore, K.C.S.I., will read with great pleasure and interest the following paragraph, which we take from the Hindoo Patriot :—

There will soon be great rejoicings in the Pathuria Ghata Rajbari. Maharaja Sir Jotindro Mohun Tagore, K.C.S.I., will adopt a son. The choice has fallen upon the second son of his brother, Raja Sourindro Mohun Tagore. The boy is about eight years of age. The adoption was all but complete soon after the birth of the child by a sort of family compact, and religious ceremonies will now be performed by which the act of affiliation will receive a religious sanction. We sincerely hope that the mantle of the Maharaja, whose sterling worth and amiable manners have endeared him to all classes of society, both European and Native, will fall upon this son of his choice, and that he will add fresh lustre to the escutcheon of the illustrious family of which his adoptive father and natural father are world-renowned representatives. Preparations are being made to celebrate the adoption ceremony with befitting grandeur. The great popularity which Maharaja Jotindro Mohun Tagore enjoys, and the sincere respect and esteem in which he is held will make this festive occasion a time of universal rejoicing. We feel confident that all classes of society will share in his joy, and bless from their hearts the adopted son, who will not only continue his lineage, but let us hope, will in the fulness of time, inherit the name and fame of his adoptive father.

WE trust that, for the credit of the British name, if not for the interest of the Indian craftsman, Mr. Watherston's plucky and persistent efforts for the abolition of the shameful restrictions on the Indian silver-trade will at last be crowned with success. Now is the time, if ever, for the supreme effort to be made, when the approaching Exhibition of 1886 is forcing the subject on the attention of all.

THE same event may also not improperly be utilised, for pressing on the attention of the authorities another small reform, in a very different direction indeed, but hardly less important in some aspects. The Rev. James Long, the veteran missionary and philanthropist of Bengal, has long been urging the India Office to take steps to ensure the accessibility and the utilisation of the materials for the early history of British rule in India. Those materials at present lie hopelessly buried in the dusty archives of the India Office—as well as, to some extent, in a hundred other muniment-rooms scattered throughout India. Now that we have a powerful and popular statesman as Viceroy, and a nobleman of high culture and great attainments at the head of the India Office, is it too much to hope that their combined influence may be sufficient to overcome the vis inertiae of officialdom, and to give the scientific world, Indian as well as English, a really efficient and productive Record Commission? We are sure that this demand would be eagerly supported by every Native scholar. Why do not the Asiatic Societies move in the matter?

WE deal in our leading columns with the report that is given by the most extreme Radical organ, the Echo, of a recent speech by Mr. Lal Mohun Ghose. We strongly hope that the report in the Echo is inaccurate. The candidature of an Indian gentleman for an English constituency is an event which ought to be of the deepest interest to all patriotic Indians; and we sincerely trust that the influence of all such will be exerted to warn Mr. Ghose of the mischief he will do the cause who all have at heart, if he attaches himself to any disreputable or fanatical faction in English politics. Such a course would be a real calamity for India; for, inter alia, it would indefinitely postpone the time when an Indian candidate will be able to approach an English constituency with any chance of success. We do not urge Conservative views on Mr. Ghose; but we ask him seriously and thoughtfully to compare his speech as reported in the Echo with that of Mr. Gladstone in the House of Commons last week on the same subject. Putting aside the Conservatism of Mr. Ghose's fellow-countrymen—which we would fain see him sympathise with—we would ask, is any Indian politician well-advised in casting in his lot with Mr. Labouchere and Sir Wilfrid Lawson, as against Mr. Gladstone?

THE Daily Telegraph announced on Saturday that "an Anglo-Indian gentleman" was to be the second Liberal candidate for Greenwich with Mr. Verney. So the Times, the other day, spoke of Mr. Foggo as a native Indian gentleman. Even the Paladins of the English Press break their shins over our Indian nomenclature.

THE list of the Royal Commission for the Indian and Colonial Exhibition of 1886 will be read with interest. The list is rather ornamental than useful; but Sir Philip Owen is a first-class organiser, and a Secretary to the Commissioners will make up for the deficiencies of the Commission itself.

WE are exceedingly glad to observe that the Standard, in an appreciative article on the special fitness of Lord Dufferin for his great task, has the following:—

We might point out in detail domestic dangers of the gravest kind—such, for instance, as the controversy on the Bengal Rent Bill, to which, happily, Lord Dufferin will bring his intimate knowledge of the almost identical problem presented in Ireland. But we have said enough to indicate the roughness of the tests by which the Viceroy's Statesmanship will be tried. One prediction, at any rate, may be hazarded. He may fail to surmount all the obstacles in his way, but he will assuredly not gratuitously create fresh ones.

THE Globe, too, heads an extract from a denunciation of Lord Ripon's most foolish measure with the significant words, "Delusions of the Bengal Rent Bill." The Tenancy Bill has been found out.

THE Irish Times, commenting on the recent deputation to Lord Dufferin from the London Committee to oppose the Bengal Tenancy Bill, says that both Mr. Pitt-Kennedy and Dr. Berry White are well-known in Ireland; and adds that it learns from trustworthy information that the results of the Deputation are likely to be most satisfactory to the Committee and beneficial to the interests they represent.

IN our column of "Selected Articles" last week, we gave an account from the Madras Mail of an "entertainment" given by Mme. Coulomb at Madras, in derision of the Theosophical Society. We have now received from the "Council of the London Lodge" a lengthy pamphlet, which professes to crush Mme. Coulomb and to rehabilitate Mme. Blavatsky.

WE do not feel it to lie within the scope of our functions tantas componere lites. But what is really a very serious and significant statement is the manifesto of the Theosophists, and one that should command the anxious thought of all who take any interest either in Missions or in the educational work of our Missionary Colleges in India, is, that "two hundred and thirty of the students in the Christian College [Madras] have invited the Theosophist leaders to lecture and reply to the Missionaries' attack."

THE Indian Spectator has the following on proposed Police Reforms:—

The Government of Bombay's reply to the representation of the Sessions Judge of Poona for reform in the management of suspected cases by the police appears to be an excellent excuse. But an excuse, however admirable, is not a reason. The reply from Government is so far unreasonable. And what more could be expected from an administration which lives in constant dread of progress? The police have, no doubt, very tough work to do at times, and some liberty of action is due to them. When dealing with such matter the detective has to use a good deal of what honourable officials call ingenuity, and what vulgar outsiders variously describe as fraud, perjury and coercion. The process of "tutoring" witnesses may be necessary in extreme cases; but surely a line could be drawn somewhere. In the case in which a rush was made upon a woman in the hour of her bitterest trial, it remains to be seen how the policemen are to be rewarded. To give some idea of the esteem in which this department is held, it may be enough to say that in many a case of crime people's first impulse seems to be to ask if the police could be at the bottom of it? Now, we do not always share this feeling; our only object in referring to it is to show how distrustful the people have grown of the very agency employed by the State to protect life and property. This comes of allowing undefined powers to ignorant and greedy men, and of that vicious spirit of administering justice culminating in the phrase, "Government decline to interfere." So long as Government live in happy dalliance with the executive, snapping their fingers at the judiciary and the public alike, these latter can have no confidence in their judgment. But if the authorities are to blame in this matter, our public men are much more to blame. The country is swarming with pleaders and other educated men. And yet not a single Association has taken up in earnest the question of reconstructing the police department. To think that such work should be left to English officials! But it has been so always, in spite of all our clap-trap about reform and progress.

The Times of India has the following obituary till the departure of the mail, November 7:—

Rahimtulla Khan, Chief of Dhir.

The Englishman gives the following account of the Calcutta Freight Market, corrected till November 4:—

Our freight market has had a declining tendency during the last week, and rates by steamers are actually 2s. 6d. lower. Sailing rates are mostly nominal, one ship engaged a cargo for Dundee at 32s. 6d., and another closed a charter for New York at $5½. Owners are disposed to work at these quotations, and at 30s. for London, and at 27s. 6d. for Liverpool, but there is very little demand for tonnage. Our unfixed tonnage stands at 23,593 tons.

INDIAN CUTLERY.

We are a long way off now from the time when the Asiatic workmen of Damascus achieved their world-wide fame for the making of fine steel and iron, and farther still from the days when in the Altaï Mountains a race of giants worked submissively at the iron manufactories owned by the Great King. India has not as yet been prominent among the nations of Asia for any great skill in these industries, and it seems that in the department of cutlery she has been particularly backward. According to a recent official report, it was found impossible until quite lately, in spite of all encouragements offered to the native workmen, to induce them to turn out penknives and scissors good enough for use in the Government offices. Eleven years ago there did actually appear an Indian cutler in the suburbs of Calcutta, who made some surgical instruments on an English pattern which were pronounced by a competent judge to be excellent. But the effort was apparently too much for the man, as he died very shortly afterwards, and his art perished with him. Not until 1882 did a successor show himself in a native of one of the villages in Burdwan, who offered some small knives and scissors of his own workmanship to the Stationery Department. These were approved, and orders were given to discontinue providing such goods from home. The difficulty now appears to be, not in producing good specimens of native work, but in insuring a large enough supply. The native artificers are without much capital or commercial ambition; and they are not at present able to start workshops on a large scale. But capitalists who find the cutlery trade in Sheffield somewhat slack might possibly do a good business by starting a venture of that sort in India, with native artisans to work under them. Certainly the skill exhibited by Hindoo workmen in the execution of fine work in the precious metals seems to afford evidence of their being able to excel in the cutler's art.—Globe.

SHORTHAND WRITING FOR INDIA.

Mr. W. B. Livingstone, Principal of the Berhampore College, makes the following announcement with respect to this really important subject:—

"It is a thing to be regretted that not a single system of Shorthand is taught in any school in India. This state of things cannot last. In Germany, Shorthand is taught 'in all the principal German States and Duchies. For the year 1874-75 the number of pupils amounted to 10,449 belonging to 608 establishments and receiving lessons from 779 Professors. Besides the public pupils, there were 4,660 persons under private tutors. There are 249 societies for the propagations of Gabelsberger's Shorthand, and at the head of these is the Society of Leipzig. In addition to all these, there are 60 associations, 5 monthly journals, and many pupils to disseminate Stolze's system.' (Anderson, page 187.) Now we cannot afford to be behind Germany in any praiseworthy matter, and therefore some system of Shorthand must be taught soon, generally, in India. And as Anderson, in his splendid history of Shorthand, declares that every one of the existing systems is as difficult to learn as German or any foreign language, it is of great importance that an easy and yet efficient system be chosen. I consider Anderson's the best of existing systems, but it is not so popular as Pitman's.

"Should this effort of mine prove remunerative in a pecuniary way, I intend to bring out Shorthand sheets for all languages, especially Bengali, Hindi, Urdu, Persian and Arabic. My system aims not merely at providing a new method of Shorthand, but at superseding common writing. I hold that by my system, every letter composing longhand can be written in very much less time than that in which longhand letters can be written. This is a great advantage in English, but a still greater in Bengali, Urdu, and Asiatic languages, on account of the extreme intricacy of the letters of their alphabets.

"It is possible that the Universities of India may help to inroduce Shorthand into India. In Germany, the State rewards by rich endowments the teachers of Shorthand, there being professional chairs for instruction in the art in some of their universities."—(Anderson, page 235.)

MR. LALMOHUN GHOSE'S OPINION OF THE PEERS OF ENGLAND.

(From the Echo, Nov. 22.)

Mr Frederick Verney and Mr. Lal Mohun Ghose, the Liberal candidates for Greenwich, addressed a crowded meeting of electors at the Woolwich Assembly Rooms last evening. Mr. Ghose, referring to the Compromise, said it spoke well for their patience that they were inclined to deal leniently with the House of Lords. He was not disposed to adopt extreme measures, and sympathised with those who were anxious to deal tenderly with the Lords merely because they were an historical institution and a relic of the past. (Laughter and cheers.) He was the more ready to sympathise with a sentiment of that kind because he belonged to a country where antiquity was deeply revered, and where every relic of the past, whether it happened to testify to the wisdom of his countryman's forefathers or to something the reverse of it, was held up and preserved with the greatest respect. (Laughter.) When these ancient ruins—(loud laughter)—interesting as they might be, happened to encumber the path of progress and impede the march of freedom, then it was their duty, not to demolish them simply, but to cart them away to some more fitting place, such as the British Museum—(laughter)—where they would be perfectly harmless, and where side by side with other gigantic and wonderful relics of bygone ages, they might be studied by antiquarians, and prove a source of amusement to the public at large. (Loud laughter and cheers.) When the Franchise Bill was passed they might safely trust to the obstinacy and indiscretion of the Peers themselves in order to bring up this question. The Radical Party at any rate might console themselves with the knowledge that they had a very powerful friend at headquarters. (Cheers.) He was not referring to Mr. Chamberlain—(laughter and cheers)—but to another friend, who was still more powerful—Lord Salisbury, who would not allow them to forget the existence of the House of Lords. The doom of the hereditary principle had been already pronounced, and it rested with the Lords themselves to say when that doom should be executed. (Cheers.)—The resolution in favour of the candidates was passed by acclamation.

ENGLAND AND HER INDIAN EMPIRE.

Yesterday, at a meeting of the East India Association, held at Exeter Hall, under the presidency of General Sir George Balfour, M.P., a paper was read by General Sir Orfeur Cavenagh, K.C.S.I., on "The Mutual Advantages of the Connection between England and her Indian Empire."

The Chairman, in introducing the lecturer, referred to that officer's long services in India as giving him a valuable experience and the right to speak on the subject.

Sir Orfeur Cavenagh began by expressing the opinion that the present was an appropriate time to introduce salutary reforms in the Government of India, with the object of cementing the union between England and India. He referred with pride to the broad-minded view taken by the British working classes in regard to the connection with India, and remarked that this broad view was an instinct founded upon the fact that our responsibilities were necessary in face of the interests of our great industrial population. He dealt at length with the statements made at different times that India was held at the cost of maintaining British responsibilities in regard to Gibraltar, Malta, Cyprus, Egypt, Aden, and the Suez Canal, and pointed out, by a reference to statistics, that the general commercial interests of the Empire needed the maintenance of these stations, depôts, and "places of arms." He then showed the importance of the Indian connection from a trade point of view. In the year up to March, 1883, the trade of India was valued at £133,400,000—namely, £50,000,000 in imports and £83,400,000 in exports. The main portion of this immense trade came to England and benefited the industrial and trading classes, while the shipping trade of Great Britain benefited to the extent of 75·89 per cent. of the shipping which entered the Indian ports. He urged that this country's very existence as a nation depended upon its trade, and while trusting to the foresight of statesmen to open out fresh fields for commerce, they must carefully guard against sacrificing any market over which it was possible for the Government to exercise control. With regard to India itself, he dwelt upon the evils which would arise if the British withdrew. The trade would be lost, a reign of chaos and anarchy would begin, and the merchants would be confined to the small number of armed factories along the coast. He called attention to Mr. Cunningham's compilation, in which it was shown that between 1867 and 1879 33½ millions were spent in productive works—viz, 11½ in irrigation, 22 millions on State railways, and a quarter of a million on the Madras Harbour

Works, in addition to which, to use Mr. Cunningham's own words, "In the course of the last twenty years there has been a vast expenditure, more than 51 millions since 1867-8, on objects which although not technically 'remunerative' in the sense of showing a dividend on outlay, are none the less in a high degree conducive to the well-being of society, the wealth and prosperity of the country, and the development of its resources. These sums do not include the contributions made by Government in the shape of interest, which up to the 3rd of March, 1879, amounted to nearly 27 millions." On the 31st of March, 1883, the number of miles of railway open to traffic was 10,317, and in course of construction 1,565: the total amount of capital expended, £140,936,776—viz., East Indian, £34,770,662; Guaranteed, £67,228,745; State, £35,991,676; Native States, £2,995,733. Many of these works were now commencing to be remunerative. Up to December 31, 1882, the net receipts from railways were £7,684,220, or 5.57 per cent., against 5.16 in 1881. The gross direct receipts from irrigation works amounted to £1,005,872, and the increase of land revenue due to their existence to £491,220. These last receipts might be expected annually to increase. Moreover, owing to the large tracts of land that through the existence of the means of irrigation were enabled to be brought under cultivation, and the consequent increased quantity of grain produced, the capability of the country to support the population had been materially augmented.

After a few remarks from the Chairman, who dwelt upon the misconception of some in high places in England that India was a cost upon this country, several gentlemen spoke, including some natives of India, who said that the Indian people were grateful for the blessings which England had conferred.

Mr. A. K. Settna added that if they from time to time criticised questions of Indian Government it was done with a feeling of perfect loyalty to the connection between England and India. Thanks to the chairman concluded the proceedings.

HOME BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS.

BIRTHS.

FOSTER—Nov. 20, at Beaconsfield House, Richmond, the wife of George H. Foster, Esq., Forest Department, Khandwa, C.P., India, of a son.

MACKENZIE—Nov. 21, at 4, Cathedral-road, Cardiff, South Wales, the wife of D. F. Mackenzie Esq., of Calcutta, of a daughter.

RENDLE—Nov. 13, at 8, Lisson-grove, Plymouth, the wife of Ashton W. Rendle, Madras Staff Corps, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

ANNANDALE—SCOTT—Nov. 20, at Holy Trinity, Paddington, by the Rev. Daniel Moore, M.A., Vicar, and the Rev. J. H. Gray, Rector, of Keynsham, Somerset (granduncle of the bride), James Hunter Annandale, of Polton Vale, Lasswade, N.B., to Edith Marion, only surviving daughter of William Scott, late of Madras.

ELDERTON—BATHO—Nov. 19, at St. Mary's, Long Ditton, Surrey, by the Ven. Archdeacon Burney, Vicar of St. Mark's, Surbiton, assisted by the Rev. J. R. Hughes, Vicar of the parish, Charles Robert Elderton, eldest son of Frederick Fairlie Elderton, Esq., of Glasgow, to Clara Hunton, third daughter of W. F. Batho, Esq., of Surbiton.

GOODWYN—BELL MACLACHLAN—Nov. 19, at the parish church, Ardishaig, by the Rev. Malcolm McColl, assisted by the Rev. John Dewar, M.A., B.D., Kilmartin, Henry Goodwyn, only son of the late Henry Goodwyn, Bengal Engineers, to Wilhelmina Isabella Campbell, only daughter of the late William Campbell Bell-Maclachlan, of Craigherrive.

HUBBARD—MACNEILL—Nov. 19, at Marylebone, by the Rev. H. D. Hubbard, M.A., assisted by the Rev. R. Blakiston, M.A., the Rev. E. J. Hubbard, M.A., Senior Chaplain, Bengal, to Elizabeth, daughter of the late Captain Macneill, 91st Regiment, of Montrose, Scotland.

SASSOON—GURZBURG—Nov. 19, at St. Petersburg, by the Chief Rabbi, at the residence of the bride's father, Joseph Sassoon Sassoon, eldest son of the late Sassoon David Sassoon, of Ashley Park, Walton-on-Thames, Surrey, to Louise, eldest daughter of Baron Horace de Gurzburg, of St. Petersburg.

TEMPLE—GOULD—Nov. 19, at St. John's, Ealing, Dean, by the Rev. Canon Temple, Rector of Oswaldkirk, assisted by the Rev. Julius Summerhayes, Vicar of the parish, Lieutenant-Colonel Edward Temple, Bengal Staff Corps, to Augusta, youngest daughter of the late William Gould, Esq.

DEATHS.

BAILEY—Nov. 20, at Ironmongers' Hall, Fenchurch-street, after a long and painful illness, borne with greatest patience, Harriett Cotterill, dearly-beloved wife of Commander William Bailey, R.N., aged 65.

MACKENZIE—Nov. 19, suddenly in Rome, Colonel Francis James Napier Mackenzie, Bengal Staff Corps, retired, aged 47.

MILLIKEN—Nov. 17, at Herne-villas, Tierney-road, Streatham-hill, John, eldest son of the late Mr. William Milliken, of Wolverhampton, aged 38.

PERRY—Nov. 15, at 17, Mount Ararat-villas, Richmond, Surrey, William Champion Perry, formerly of the H.E.I.C.S.

RENTIERS—Nov. 19, John Baptist Rentiers, Esq., of 7, Clarendon-villas, West Brighton, late of Calcutta.

SMITH—Nov. 16, at Bargate, Brewood, Staffordshire, in the 89th year of her age, Maria, widow of the late Colonel John Smith, 2nd Madras Light Cavalry, and of Ellingham Hall, Norfolk, the beloved mother of Mrs. J. E. Monckton, of Brewood.

Miscellaneous.

LORD DUFFERIN.—A Reuter telegram, dated Malta, November 23, says:—"The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer Tasmania, with Lord and Lady Dufferin on board, left here yesterday for Bombay."

It is understood that on the arrival home from India of Major-General the Duke of Connaught in April next, he will be promoted to the rank of lieutenant-general, and be appointed to the Staff at Army Head-quarters.

Why do race reporters in India invariably describe the handicapping at every meeting as having given general satisfaction? Only one literary race-goer can we point to who speaks his mind on the subject, praises or condemns the handicapping as the case may be, but always adduces good arguments in support of his opinion. But in truth how seldom does the eye as it glances down the page of an Indian production rest on the name of a horse that you immediately spot as the pick of the handicap, until, a little further on, you come to another, equally the pick, and so it goes on. As a rule the supposed favoured ones take the prize, but then handicapping is a wonderful science, and, we must also add, handicappers are wonderful men.

BREADSTUFFS EXPORTED FROM BRITISH INDIA.—It is stated in the "Review of the Trade of British India with Foreign Countries" for the year ending the 31st of March, 1883, that the exports of breadstuffs have more than doubled in quantity during the last five years. The quantity and value of the export of breadstuffs of Indian produce was, in millions—46½ cwt., valued at £14½, in 1883; in 1882, 50 cwt., valued at £17½; in 1881, 35½ cwt., valued at £12½; in 1880, 25 cwt., valued at £9½; and in 1879, 22½ cwt., valued at £9½. The value of these exports in 1883 was 18½ per cent. of the total value of all Indian merchandise exported. The great increase in the total in 1881 and 1882 was very largely due to the rapid development of the wheat trade; and the lowered total in 1883 as compared with 1882 was due to the diminished export of wheat. The principal breadstuffs exported are wheat and rice, which form the bulk of the grain trade. The export of rice has increased more in quantity than in value. The figures, in millions, are—in 1883, 31½ cwt., valued at £8½; in 1882, 28½ cwt., valued at £8½; in 1881, 27½ cwt., valued at £9; in 1880, 22½ cwt., valued at £8½; and in 1879, 21½ cwt., valued at £9. As giving a clear idea of the nature and extent of the quantities taken in various quarters, the exports may be thus grouped:—To England and the continent of Europe, 19 million cwt., of which the United Kingdom took 12½ million cwt.; to Asiatic countries, 8½ million cwt.; to the East African coast and the British colonies in Africa, 2 million cwt.; to South America and the West Indies, 1,200,000 cwt.; to Canada and the United States, 88,600 cwt.; and to Australia, 70,000 cwt. Under the first of these groups the shipments to Port Said are included, because rice is really sent there for orders as to its destination somewhere on the European continent. The large quantity of rice sent to Europe is used partly for food, partly for conversion into starch, and partly for distillation. The proportions are not known, but it is ascertained that the use of rice for distillation is largely increasing, and is extending in Germany, Holland, France, and Italy. In France much brandy is now distilled from rice and other grains; and the British Consul at Genoa reports that 30,000 bags were imported in 1882 for distilleries in the neighbourhood of Milan. The export of Indian wheat has increased in value nearly 1,200 per cent. since 1879, and in 1883 reached the important figure of 14½ million cwt., valued at over £6,000,000 sterling. In 1882 the figure was higher even than this, 19½ million cwt., valued at over £8½ millions; in 1881 it was 7½ million cwt., valued at £3½ millions; in 1880 2½ million cwt., valued at £1½ million; in 1879, 1½ million cwt., valued at half-a-million sterling. It is pointed out that in 1883, in spite of a smaller general export, the exports at Kurrachee increased 47 per cent., and that in consequence of the growth in the wheat trade since 1880 this port has very much increased in importance. Of the total quantity exported in 1883 over 6½ million cwt. went to the United Kingdom, more than 3½ million to France, Belgium took 1,458,898 cwt., Egypt 799,550 cwt., mostly for orders; Holland 578,246 cwt., Gibraltar 494,098 cwt., Italy 176,063 cwt., Malta 163,358 cwt., and other European countries 34,479 cwt. Of the remainder of the export, less than 300,000 cwt., more than half went to Aden and Arabia, and most of the remainder to Mauritius and Réunion.

The following is from the Times' correspondent at Kulsan, Nov. 19:—

"A review of all the troops and levies was held near Herat by the Governor, in Colonel Ridgeway's honour, on the 16th inst., by the Ameer's order.

"Sir Peter Lumsden will arrive here to-day.

"Colonel Ridgeway's march has thus successfully ended in the triumph of Lord Ripon's Afghan policy. His Viceroyalty began with the hostile march of Sir Frederick Roberts to Candahar and Sir Donald Stewart's warlike retirement from Cabul, leaving the Ameer friendless. The period of anarchy ends with this peaceful march through a friendly Afghanistan, which proves that the Ameer is a powerful ruler.

"It is unquestionable that Afghan prejudices are melting before the fear of Russia, and that a British force could in time of danger march to Herat amid a general welcome."

The following is the usual weekly telegram from the Times' correspondent at Calcutta, dated Nov. 23:—

"All anxiety regarding the occurrence of severe or extensive scarcity in Bengal has been happily set at rest by a statement just published by the local Government. The paper begins with a description of the weather during the past eighteen months, from which it appears that the chief features of the monsoon rains in the last and in the current year were feebleness and their irregular distribution. This result fully bears out the theory that the harvest out-turn depends on the propitious distribution of the rainfall, rather than within necessary limits, on its actual quantity. The provincial divisions are next reviewed in order, and the weather and crop prospects of each are discussed. The state of Orissa shows no cause for anxiety, and the same remark applies to the greater part of the Presidency division, although the out-turn in parts of the Nuddea and Moorshedabad districts are likely to be deficient. But nowhere is there a complete failure, and some small relief works in the spring will probably meet all the requirements of the case.

"From two districts of the Burdwan division a partial failure of the crops is reported, and in a portion of the Beerbhoom district the out-turn of the autumn rice will average only a little over one-third of the full crop, while the more important amun, or winter crop, promises an average of nearly one-half. The Commissioner thinks it unlikely that any general measures of relief will be necessary, although the district will doubtless require attention. A small area of the Burdwan district will also have a short out-turn; but it is near the new railway works, where ample employment can be found for the people if needful. The prospects in the Dacca and Chittagong divisions are generally good, and in some parts exceptionally favourable. Bogra is likely to require some help, and portions of Bhagulpore, Patna, and Chota Nagpore report short crops. But the latest information appears to show that there is no cause for grave anxiety, or for starting costly relief measures.

"Colonel Ewart, Deputy Inspector-General of Police in the Punjab, has submitted officially to the Government a scheme for the forming of an interprovincial police force, in order to meet a new phase of crime which has assumed serious proportions of late years. From facts which Colonel Ewart has brought to light it appears that the Pathan criminals on the frontier, in league with local bad characters, are now in the habit of carrying their depredations into remote parts of the country, often turning the forces of civilization against society. A burglary is planned by a man on the spot—sometimes a man of wealth and influence. A telegram is sent to an agent at Peshawur, who despatches a gang of ruffians by rail, taking care to forward their weapons by the parcel post. The crime is committed at a favourable moment, and before an alarm can be given the men are well on their way home, their shares of the spoil being 'frequently sent them by post office orders.

"It is, moreover, more startling to learn to what an extent the native army is leavened with criminal Pathans. It is not too much to say that by completing the railway to Quetta and Peshawur we are changing the whole aspect of crime in India. At present, in the way of protection, we have three disjointed and independent systems—namely, the Thuggee and Dacoity department, the provincial police, and the railway police. These would all be linked together and strengthened by the adoption of Colonel Ewart's scheme.

"A return published in the Governmental Gazette shows that the number of persons killed by wild animals and snakes in 1883 was 22,905, as against 22,125 in the previous year. Of these 20,067 deaths were due to snake bites, 985 to tigers, 287 to wolves, and 217 to leopards. The loss of cattle from the same cause amounted 47,478 animals, being an increase of 771 on the figures of the previous year. It is somewhat remarkable that while the great majority of human deaths is set down to snakes, only 1,644 cattle are said to have perished from that cause. Nearly three-fourths of the deaths occurred in Bengal and the North-West Provinces. The number of dangerous animals killed during the year was 19,890, and more than a lakh and a half of rupees was paid in rewards.

"A paper on infant marriage and enforced widowhood, lately published by Mr. Mahabari, of Bombay, appears to have attracted the attention of the Supreme Government, for a copy has been sent to the Governor of Madras, with a request that he will make such observations on it as he may consider advisable. He has resolved to consult several native gentlemen on the subject.

"During the past week Lord Ripon has visited Aligarh, Agra, and Muttra. At each place he received invitations similar to those which met him in the Punjab, and was overwhelmed with somewhat vague but enthusiastic addresses, couched in the most flowery language of Oriental compliment. Thus, the people of Meerut assured him that his 'lovely name' was the topic of frequent conversation in their domestic circles. A Delhi deputation said that for 1,000 years Indian history had recorded no such ruler. He was 'the country's lamp and eye,' 'the right man in the right place,' and so on. It is hardly too much to say, in the words of a local newspaper, that he is 'swimming down the country on a flood of flattery.' His Excellency's replies have been for the most part vague and cautious. He will proceed this week to Benares and Darjeeling."

"The Zhob Valley expeditionary force is now returning. At least one valuable result has been attained—namely, the complete survey of the whole of the Zhob Valley. It has been ascertained that the main route from the Gomul Pass to Candahar does not lie, as had been supposed, through the Zhob Valley, but through the valley of Khwandar, and that the route is practicable for a large army. The Zhob Valley itself appears to supply no resources for an army, save some excellent grazing land."

"The Lahore Civil and Military Gazette states that a letter has been received from Mr. Dalgleish, dated Yarkand, September 25. He was then in health, and well-treated by the Chinese officials and people. He mentions that M. Petroffsky, the Russian Consul, left Kashgar early in September for Tashkend; but was expected to return during this month. The Consul's guard consisted of twenty Cossacks. The Assistant-Consul was staying in Kashgar.

"Mr. Dalgleish alludes to a rumour current in Yarkand, that the Russians are pressing the Emir of Bokhara to give them Sherabad, a small town on the direct road from Samarcand to Balkh; and that the Emir had refused, and had called in the aid of the Afghans. While giving this report for what it is worth, Mr. Dalgleish adds that he is inclined to think there is something wrong in Russian Turkestan.

"The interest attaching to these occasional letters from Mr. Dalgleish should surely convince the Home and Indian Governments of the advisability of appointing a British Consul to Kashgar. It is true our trade in those regions is small; but such as it is, it is rapidly being driven out by Russian competition. Moreover, other and more important ends than those of commerce would be served by the presence of an intelligent British officer in Kashgar."

"The Hon. Colman Macaulay, Secretary of the Bengal Government, has just returned from a successful expedition which he made, accompanied by a small party, to the frontier of Thibet, as the head of the Lachen Valley. It is understood that he had a very satisfactory interview with the Governor of the frontier province of Kambt-zong, near the Kongralama Pass, and that a cordial interchange of hospitalities and presents took place, which is likely to develop into further friendly correspondence.

"A substantial step has apparently been taken towards the removal of Thibetan obstructiveness, and it would seem that the establishment of a large and important trade in Manchester, Birmingham, and Leeds goods depends upon the measures taken by the Government to improve the opportunity which has now been obtained. Mr. Macaulay is believed to be of opinion that the obstructive and exclusive policy hitherto followed does not commend itself to any but the particular party which is now dominant at Lhasa, and that if steps were only taken to remove the disabilities imposed on those engaged in trading the anticipations of Warren Hastings concealing the opening of a large market for English and Indian goods would be fulfilled. The matter seems to be one well deserving the attention of Chambers of Commerce and of all persons interested in the development of trade.

"I hope to be able to send shortly fuller particulars regarding this the most important and promising step towards the opening of Thibet which has been taken since the days of Warren Hastings."

The following extra telegram has been received from the Times' correspondent, dated Calcutta, Nov. 24:—

"This afternoon the Lieutenant-Governor formally opened the Soldiers' Industrial Exhibition, in the presence of a large number of spectators.

"The proceedings commenced with the singing of an opening chorus, after which General Wilkinson, commanding the Presidency district, addressed the audience. He gave a short history of the military industrial exhibitions, stating that the movement had been initiated by Sir Hugh Rose, and that the first exhibition had been held at Mean Meer in 1864.

"The present is a larger affair than any former one. It contains 1,150 exhibits, contributed by 52 corps and departments. The first regimental prize was awarded to the 2nd Battalion of the Lincolnshire Regiment, the second to the 2nd Battalion of the Devonshire Regiment, and the third to the 44th Native Infantry.

"Mr. Rivers Thompson then delivered a short speech. He stated that he had great pleasure in presiding on the occasion, and dwelt on the importance of encouraging soldiers in the practice of useful arts, both as a means of employing their spare time, and as rendering them resourceful and able to earn a livelihood after discharge. He then declared the exhibition open."

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

BURMESE BUDDHIST LAW.

The following is a translation of a review contributed to the "Literatur-blatt für Orientalische Philologie," by Dr. Julius Jolly, Professor of Philology in the University of Würzburg, Tagore, law lecturer and author of the translation of Narada, which appears in Professor Max Müller's "Sacred Books of the East":—

Notes on the Buddhist Law by the Judicial Commissioner of British Burma (John Jardine). Nos. 1 to 7. (Rangoon Government Press, 1882-1883.)

Manusara-dhamma-sattham, the only one existing Buddhist Law Book, compared with the Brahminical Manava-dharma-sastram. By Dr. A. Fuehrer. (Reprinted from the Bombay Asiatic Society's Journal.)

The first translation of a Burmese law-book was offered by San Germano in his "Burman Empire" (London, 1823). In 1847, at Moulmain, Richardson gave the original text of the Burmese Manu Kjay Dhammathat (dharmastra), with an interleaved English translation. Dr. Rost gave some account of the Pali MSS. of the Manusara in the first volume of "Indien Studien." Thirty years later the examination of the Manusara was again taken up by Dr. A. Fuehrer, now in Bombay, who copied six palm-leaf MSS. of the Manusara in the British Museum and India Office. The first fruit of his studies lies in the above work. In British Burma the road trodden by Richardson is now being travelled with fresh zeal. Moung Tet Too has in 1874-1876 published in the original language four of the more important Burmese Dhammathats. Above all, Mr. Jardine, the Judicial Commissioner, and Dr. E. Forchhammer, the Professor of Pali at Rangoon, have laid a valuable foundation for the study of Burmese law in the "Notes on the Buddhist Law," enriched with juristical notes on difficult questions about inheritance and marriage, with translations of the more important texts out of different books, and with inquiries into the original sources of this jurisprudence.

Mr. Jardine speaks with warmth against the indifference with which the Burman law literature is regarded, lased as it is on the learning and traditions of two very ancient religious systems (Brahmanism and Buddhism), full of parable and proverb, and both the basis of the law now in force and an original source of past history. About this literature Dr. Forchhammer gives a most valuable explanation. Most of the Dhammathats now available go back only to the last half of the last century. At that time the Burmans had extended their limits to the ocean, besieged the Talains, and founded a great empire. The Hpiatoons or Apologues and Moral Stories hitherto used as precedents in their Courts were no longer sufficient. The Dhammathats found with the Talains admirably suited the need of codification. They gave the foundation of the Civil Law books, but were enlivened with extracts from the ancient Buddhist literature; and the juristic part, especially that about inheritance and marriage, was strengthened and modified into unison with the common law of the Burmans.

Among the Talains we can trace the Dhammathats back into the Middle Ages. A Talain priest edited the Dhammavilsa in 1174. The Talain recension of the Wagaru Dhammathat was edited by a King of Martaban about the end of the thirteenth century. The Dhammathats are shown to have originated in India, not in Ceylon, where no corresponding productions can be found—a fact established by the negative result of the inquiry made by Dr. Fuehrer through Subhuti. The reception of the Indian law in Further India is a very important fact in the history of civilisation, a striking witness to the superiority of the Hindu law. The manner in which its transfer to Burma was effected certainly requires further investigation.

(Dr. Jolly devotes several pages to a detailed statement of parallel passages in the Burmese book on one hand and the Sanskrit texts on the other, citing Manu, Yajnyawalkya, Gautama, Narada, Vishnu and others. The comparison extends over all the titles of Hindu law, and is an addition to what has already been done by Jardine and Forchhammer.)

These examples, which might be multiplied, prove that the Burman jurists have by no means set to work by mere copying out of Manu, a point already noticed by Jardine, Forchhammer and Fuehrer. There is room for conjecture as to how the Burmans have got hold of the notion that Manu is the only author of their law. In discussing the resemblance of the Burman law to that found in the Vyavahara Mayukha, Mr. Jardine notices, as apparent at the first glance, that the Burman works never mention the authorities (Manu alone excepted) who are named in the Vyavahara Mayukha. It is certain that the Vyavahara Mayukha was compiled in the seventeenth century. Thus it looks as if the Burmans were ignorant both of the names and the opinions of the celebrated Indian commentators, beginning with Medhatithi. It is only with the passages themselves and the Smritis that a clear acquaintance is shown. They have also apparently learned to know the Smritis before the era of the commentators, which begins in the eighth or ninth century. Whether they made use of an older recension of Manu than any now known, as Forchhammer and Fuehrer suspect, doubts arise about their acquaintance with Narada, Brihaspati, Katyayana and the Smritis posterior to our Manu, when the newer results of the attempts to fix Manu's date are considered. May not the Burman jurists have used one or more of the many Smritis which were compiled in the latter part of the Smriti epoch, and which are now lost altogether or only handed down in fragments? The ancient tradition which makes Manu the oldest law-giver might arise from the same cause. The fact that Benares is mentioned in the Manukya and elsewhere repeatedly seems to indicate a northern source. So does the decision of the Sage of Midela or Mithila. In Mithila, according to the preface, the Yajnya-Walkya Smriti was compiled, and one of the mcs: ancient schools of law founded.

(Dr. Jolly concludes with a hope that the publication of the Manusara, by Dr. Fuehrer, and of the Wagaru Dhammathat by Dr. Forchhammer, with translations, will before long enable scholars to deal more fully with these important questions.)

Persian for Travellers. By Alex. Finn, F.R.G.S., M.R.A.S., H.B.M.'s Consul at Resht. London: Trübner and Co. 1885.

This is a handy little book, very neatly and legibly printed which gives a useful assortment of words, and a few hints on the grammatical structure of the Persian language. It is in the same style and size as the excellent little "Turkish Vade-Mecum" of Redhouse; but the latter is a far fuller and more generally useful book. Mr. Finn's vocabulary seems good and accurate, although the pronunciation indicated is, in some respects, peculiar. It is in the grammar that a little more matter might not unfairly have been expected. It is true that Persian grammar is a very simple affair; but even the rudiments cannot be compressed into twenty-two small pages. One regular verb should have been exhibited in all its tenses, so that the traveller might have before him some guide in using the words given in the vocabulary. The three tenses of the four exceptional verbs which are given would then have illustrated clearly their deviations from the standard form. The imperative or aoristic form of all irregular verbs might, with much advantage, have been added in the vocabulary. And had the method of expressing the interrogative (so necessary to travellers), and a few model sentences been added, as examples of syntactical arrangement, Mr. Finn's book would have been far more welcome than it can be in its present condition. It has one great recommendation—its small size enables it to be easily carried and readily referred to, and that may be held to compensate for many deficiencies.

The Student's Arabic English Dictionary. (Companion Volume to the Author's "English Arabic Dictionary.") By F. Steingass, Ph.D. London: W. H. Allen and Co. 1884.

It is pleasant to find that the duties of empire are again being recognised, as well as its advantages, even when those duties involve serious work and ungrudging expense. Tardily though the recognition come, it is ever welcome when it does come. It may take the form of suppression of Boorish impudence, or the resumption of a bold policy in Afghanistan, or the honest assumption of power in Egypt, or generous proposals for Colonial federation, or the re-creation of a vanished navy, or the production of a substantial army, or the protection of our coaling-stations, or the defence of our colonies, and possibly even Franchise Bills, when such things happen to be wanted. Yes; it is indeed pleasant to find our countrymen awakened from the torpor of years and emerge from the mists of party squabbles, even though the revivification be but partial, and the steps of progress be hesitating and uncertain.

The production of an Arabic Dictionary may not seem, at first sight, to have much to do with the prelude with which we introduce it; but it is, nevertheless, intimately connected with the revival of the imperial instincts we commend. The neglect of English interests in the Mediterranean has left the Arabic-speaking peoples to the care of the French, or of anyone else who might care for them; and the French have industriously endeavoured to promote the political and commercial interests of their country in the open field left for them. Among the most patent means to accomplish this purpose is the cultivation of the Arabic language and literature, and this the French have steadily worked at, and have, in consequence, long held the first place in all that concerns Arabic scholarship. It is true that both England and Germany have given birth to many able Arabic scholars, and some sound works on the Arabic language; but in France the pursuit of the subject was epidemic, and elsewhere only sporadic.

As regards England, where everything that is left is popular initiative, we have little indeed to boast of in this unprofitable field of labour, beyond the still unfinished Dictionary of the accomplished Lane. It is, then, a clear indication of a great change in popular sentiment to find two new and substantial works brought out for the purpose of enabling students to master the language which dominates the Levant, which fringes the coasts of the Mediterranean, and which covers a large portion of Asiatic Turkey and the continent of Africa. The works to which we allude are the English-Arabic and the Arabic-English Dictionaries of Dr. F. Steingass. The first of these books was published two years ago, and met with a well-merited success. The second is now presented; and it surpasses its predecessor not only in bulk, but in its completeness, in its simplicity of arrangement, and in its general utility. These two important books may be taken to represent the growing interest felt in England in Arabic-speaking countries; for no publisher would incur the cost of their production without reasonable grounds for expecting a fairly large number of purchasers for them.

The dictionary of Dr. Steingass is not an abridgment of a predecessor, nor a mere aggregation of the statements of others. It takes the works of predecessors as a basement, but enlarges on them with much that is original, and is thus useful to those who go far deeper into Arabic literature than the Qur'an and Alf-Zaila. Dr. Steingass has taken care to include the words found in such works as the Hamāsah, the Mu'allagāt, the Magāmāt of Hariri, and other such works of wide etymological range.

Condensation has been studied in order to make the 1,242 pages of the book contain the largest possible amount of matter that could well be got into them. The author has been careful to add, in the case of tri-literal verbs, the medial vowel of the aorist wherever it differs from that of the preterite, and by so doing greatly assists the learner. But condensation has not been attained by sacrificing the student's necessities; on the contrary, Dr. Steingass has most wisely made separate entries of all such derivative forms as differ to any noticeable extent from their primitives. The registering of these peculiarities in their alphabetical order will materially assist the learner at the beginning of his studies. It does not readily occur to the tyro that he must look for maḍī under aul, for imāṣ under vamas, or for ūyām under īm, &c., &c. However familiar he may afterwards become with such remarkable changes of forms, he is at first seriously impeded by them, and will be grateful to Dr. Steingass for the help afforded at a time when help is most needed. This truly admirable dictionary fills a void, and will undoubtedly become the standard Arabic dictionary for this country, for it is handy in size, cheap in price, copious in matter, clear in arrangement, and accurate in its statements.

CONSERVATIVE COLOURS.

TO THE EDITOR.

SIR,—In view of a general election, which must take place sooner or later, possibly sooner, would it not be well to give the matter of "Conservative colours" a little more consideration?

We talk and write of the "true blue," meaning, presumably, the blue that Tories have ever looked on as, par excellence, their own particular colour; but very few know the exact shade of blue that "true blue" is. At various recent elections Liberals have made blue their colour also—and a blue, too, as nearly as possible the same shade as that sported by the Conservative candidates. Especially was this the case during the last memorable Brighton election, when Mr. Marriott, Q.C., M.P., was returned. Then it was a subject of question which was the really proper shade of blue for Conservatives to wear, as the Liberal candidate's (Mr. Romer, Q.C.) colours were blue also, and of a shade very slightly removed in tint from the colours of his rival in the field.

In order to know who is for us and who against us, would it not be as well to set such uncertainty with regard to shade entirely at rest, by adopting throughout the United Kingdom Conservative colours of a uniform character?

It is a matter in which Conservative associations might with advantage interest themselves, for by adopting some decided colours for the party, mistakes would be avoided in electioneering times. As a suggestion, I say, let us have "true blue"—when it is finally agreed on what "true blue" is—ribben, backed with pale primrose, and let it be so made up that both colours are equally conspicuous in the rosettes worn. There is every reason why primrose, in these days of the Primrose League, should be the colour chosen to blend with the blue. Such a ribbon would have to be manufactured on purpose, and the ribbon-weaving industry would thus be stimulated, as orders for "the Conservative" ribbon would naturally be large. The feminine mind would, in particular, rise to the occasion if the subject were freely ventilated. Possibly such a trifle may be thought beneath the dignity of politicians; but now, when, unfortunately, trickery has so much to do with politics, not even trifles, considered as such, should be overlooked.—I am, sir, yours faithfully,

A. G. F. ELIOT JAMES.

INDIAN TEAS AT THE HEALTH EXHIBITION.

TO THE EDITOR.

SIR,—My attention has been drawn to Mr. Martin Wood's letter in your issue of the 29th ult., and although I do not consider that to suggest "who is responsible for the 'boycotting' of Indian tea at the International Health Exhibition" would be at all within my province, I, from having acted as Superintendent of the Indian Tea Section at the Health Exhibition, am in a position to confirm Mr. Martin Wood's statement that "had the millions been permitted to take quarter-pounds of tea away with them, as they were enticed to do in the case of China tea, some good would have been done," i.e., some permanent good to the Indian tea industry, which the mere serving of cups of tea could not possibly be expected to do.

The attendants in the Indian tea-pavilions had over and over again to explain to an incredulous and sometimes angry public that sample packets of Indian teas were not obtainable there.

The authorities at the Health Exhibition rendered me such valuable assistance as regards erecting the pavilions that it would be sheer discourtesy on my part not to say now that I cannot think a slight was ever intended.

Still, the unpleasant fact remains, that whilst permission was granted to "China" to sell samples it was not granted to "India"—our own empire.

If the reason for this difference of treatment to the two great industries is not well understood in England how can it be expected to be by the planters in India, who are already being called upon to make a good show at the Exhibition of 1886?

I fear they will be much discouraged. Hinc illæ lachrymæ!—Yours truly,

EDW. FULLER LANGDALE.

Home News.

ROYAL COLONIAL INSTITUTE.—Sir Richard Temple, G.C.S.I., C.I.E., has been elected a member of the Council in the room of the late Sir Robert R. Torrens, G.C.M.G.

THE India Council on Thursday sold bills for Rs. 76,500 on Calcutta, and Rs. 4,00,000 on Bombay at 1s. 7½d., and telegraphic transfers for Rs. 5,00,000 on Calcutta, also at 1s. 7½d. per rupee.

COUNCIL DRAFTS.—Tenders for Rs. 15,00,000 in bills on India and telegraphic transfers were received on Wednesday last at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were:—In bills on Calcutta, Rs. 7,74,000, average rate 1s. 7½d., and on Bombay, Rs. 7,26,000, average rate, 1s. 7½d. In telegraphic transfers on Calcutta, Rs. 6,00,000, average rate 1s. 7½d., and on Bombay, Rs. 2,00,000, average rate 1s. 7½d.; or a total of Rs. 23,00,000. Tenders for bills on Calcutta and Bombay at 1s. 7½d. will receive about 40 per cent, and for telegraphic transfers on Calcutta and Bombay at 1s. 7½d. about 40 per cent, and above in full. Subsequently bills for Rs. 25,550 on Calcutta, Rs. 2,61,500 on Bombay, and Rs. 63,000 on Madras were sold at 1s. 7½d., while further special allotments of bills of Rs. 2,79,500 on Calcutta and Rs. 2,20,500 on Bombay were made at 1s. 7½d. A lakh and a-half of transfers specially allotted on Bombay realised 1s. 7½d. Next Wednesday the amount of drafts to be offered is to be raised to 20 lakhs. Between April 1 and last week the Council sold remittances to the extent of Rs. 8,56,23,418, realising £7,002,882.

LORD RANDOLPH CHURCHILL.—The Pall Mall Gazette says:—The news that Lord Randolph Churchill is going away for four months on a journey to India will be received with general regret, because everyone will believe with only too much reason that the journey is undertaken in search of health. Sunt lacrimæ rerum: and mortal things touch, we may hope, the political heart. Lord Randolph's absence from the political scene will excite the more remark because it will occur at so interesting a time—the time, in fact, when the Redistribution Bill, which he has largely inspired, will be passing into law. But there are consolations. There is an undeniable touch of the grand style, for one thing, in the occasional flashes from the sky which give the inspiration of the governing mind, while the details are left to the work-a-day world. And Lord Randolph Churchill, being only human may well feel some kind of satisfaction in reflecting that he who is forced to be only an occasional sojourner in the world of politics is yet able to do more than any one of the other men whom the Conservatives have always with them.

OBITUARY.

The Hon. Arthur Romilly, brother of Lord Romilly, died on the 14th inst., at Arco, in the South Tyrol. The deceased was the youngest son of John, first Lord Romilly, sometime Master of the Rolls, by marriage with Caroline Charlotte, second daughter of the late Right Rev. William Otter, D.D., Bishop of Chichester, and was born in August, 1850. He was educated at Eton and graduated at Trinity College, Cambridge, taking his Bachelor's degree in 1872. Mr. Romilly was called to the Bar by the Honourable Society of Gray's Inn in Hilary Term, 1874, and went the South Wales and Chester Circuits, practising also at the Glamorganshire Sessions. He married, in 1877, Flora, second daughter of Professor Shellbach, of Berlin.

Lieutenant-General Robert Richards, late of the Bombay Staff Corps, died on the 13th inst., at Southsea. He was the only son of Mr. Robert H. Richards, barrister, and chairman of the county of Wexford. He served with the Bombay column, Army of the Punjab, in 1848-9, at the siege and surrender of Mooltan, battle of Goojgerat, and pursuit and surrender of the Sikh army. He was mentioned in despatches, and received a medal and two clasps. He afterwards served as staff officer with the field force which penetrated into the country north of Peshawur in order to chastise the hill tribes on the Swat border. General Richards retired from the Bombay Staff Corps in 1881.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.

Tuesday's silver market was harder, at 49½d. per ounce, although only small amounts of bar silver was on hand, consequently business was limited. The exchange rates from India were firmer, Bombay being quoted at 1s. 7-16d., and Calcutta at 1s. 7-3-32d. Rupee Paper is again quoted at 81½ and 78½, 79½ for the Four-and-a-Half and Four per Cents. respectively.

Wednesday's market was firm in response to the higher prices paid for the drafts offered by the Indian Council. The late quotations were 49½d. to 49-13-16d. per ounce, but little business was done owing to the scarcity. A few Mexican dollars were sold at 49½d. per ounce for immediate shipment. Indian exchange rates are quoted at 1s. 7-1-16d. in Bombay, and 1s. 7½d. in Calcutta. Four per Cent. Rupee Paper rose ¼ to 79½. The Four-and-a-Half per Cents. remain unaltered.

On Thursday a sharp and substantial rise took place in the price of bar silver. The Indian banks were found to be strong buyers, and as scarcely any amounts were to be had on the spot, those who held any trifling parcels would part with them only at an advance of ½d. per ounce on the nominal price quoted last night. When it was seen how urgent the demand was 50½d. per ounce was asked, and some business was actually done at that price. The increase in the demand for remittances to India has also produced an advance in the rates for telegraphic transfers to 1s. 7-5-32d. The only quotation obtainable for Mexican dollars was the price which was paid for a very small quantity yesterday, as no further business has been done, and the remittance by the French steamer has not yet come to hand. The China exchange rates were unaltered at 3s. 7½d., and 4s. 11½d. in Hongkong and Shanghai respectively. Rupee Paper was in very good demand, the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. closing at 81½ 82½, and the Four per Cents. at 79½ 80.

On Friday the rapid rise in bar silver was maintained, but business was not so exciting as it was yesterday. Some further business was done at 50½d. per ounce; 49½d. remains a nominal quotation for coined metal. Indian rates have advanced to 1s. 7-3-16d. Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Rupee Paper was in good demand, the closing price being 82½ 83. Four per Cents. remains unaltered. The Indian Council to-day sold one lakh of telegraphic transfers on Calcutta at 1s. 7-5-16d. per rupee.

On Saturday some business was done in bar silver at 50½d. per ounce; but, on the whole, the market was weaker than yesterday. The Indian rates of exchange were easier, but unchanged at 1s. 7-3-16d. Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Rupee Paper closed at 82½ 83, and the Four-per-Cents. at 79½ 80.

On Monday bar silver declined to 50d. per ounce. The Indian rates of exchange have receded to about 1s. 7-1-16d. to 1s. 7-3-16d. Very few dealings were done in Rupee Paper, the Four-and-a-Half and Four-per-Cents. closing at 82½ and 79½ 80 respectively.

Messrs. W. H. ALLEN and Co. have undertaken to publish "A Dictionary of Islam," compiled by the Rev. T. P. Hughes, B.D., M.R.A.S., who is well known for his careful and scholarly study of the Muhammadan system during a long residence amongst the Muslims of India and Afghanistan. The work is dedicated (with permission) to the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Lahore, and has been very carefully revised by Dr. Steingass, a distinguished Orientalist, the author of the "English-Arabic Dictionary." The work will be specially useful to the Christian missionary, as well as to the Government official placed in positions of responsibility in Muhammadan countries. It will also be of peculiar interest to the student of comparative religion.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

THE Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal was expected to arrive in Calcutta on the 7th inst.

THE Duke and Duchess of Connaught arrived at Lahore on Thursday from Cashmere, and left again the same evening for Sialkote and Meerut.

LORD DUFFERIN will hold the annual levée at Calcutta on the 20th December, and his lordship and Lady Dufferin a drawing-room on the 23rd of that month.

THE Municipal elections, held in Calcutta on Saturday, resulted in the various Commissioners who had resigned being with three exceptions re-elected. It is probable that a case will be submitted for the decision of the High Court as to whether the re-elections are not illegal.

A RATHER severe shock of earthquake was experienced at Lahore on Friday. No damage to property was done.

It is stated that Mr. Tayler, who has been a most popular magistrate in the Nuddea district for many years, has appealed to the Governor-General against the late sentence of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, reducing him from his grade of first class magistrate for a period of six months, and transferring him to another district.

THE report that Mr. Tayler, magistrate of Nuddea, had appealed to the Viceroy against the sentence passed on him by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in connection with the Nuddea student's case, appears to be unfounded. At least no appeal of that character is stated to have been received in Simla.

THE LATE RAI KRISTODAS PAL.—Some of the friends of the late Rai Kristodas Pal, Bahadoor, C.I.E., contemplate founding a prize, and having his statue placed in the lobby of the Calcutta Municipal Office, to mark their appreciation of his zealous services rendered to that institution, and as a proof of the deep respect entertained for his memory by his countrymen.—Statesman.

THE "INDIAN PLANTERS' GAZETTE."—The above is the new title of the Indigo Planters' Gazette, that has for the past three years been making steady progress as the planters' organ throughout India. For the future there will be as excellent articles on the coffee industry and silk cultivation as have all along been published on tea and indigo.

MOFUSSIL NOTES.—Mr. Currie, the popular post-office official, has been transferred from Bhagulpore to Jubbulpore.—Mr. J. Crowley has taken over charge of the Hathi Oostee concern.—Planters who had left kullums in their indigo lands throughout the Durbungah district are now busy hoeing them out, moisture for next season being rare.—We (Planters' Gazette) hear that Mr. Slack, Assistant Magistrate of Bettiah, Chumparun, is likely to proceed to Choto Nagpore as Settlement Officer.

TEA NOTES.—More rain is wanted in Goalpara.—In Darrang tea has done well during October.—Tea is doing very well in Nowgong, much better than in the earlier months.—The news from Kamrup represents the prospects of tea as not being good. Rain is much needed for the sali paddy.—The prospects of tea are good in Cachar. The weather is warm, and the sali crop in some parts of the district has been destroyed by insects.

BOMBAY.

HIS EXCELLENCY SIR JAMES FERGUSSON will hold a levée at the Secretariat on the 1st December. His Excellency arrived in Bombay on the 1st inst. from Mahabaleshwar, and left again on the 5th for Kurrachee.

At a meeting of the guarantors of the Bombay International Exhibition on Nov. 5th, a committee was appointed to prepare an address of welcome to Lord Dufferin.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR has promised to send an exhibit of carpets, Indian art ware, silver and curios from his private collection to the Antwerp Exhibition. There is, we are glad to hear, every reason to believe that Bombay will be well represented at Antwerp.

WE understand that H.H. the Gaekwar of Baroda contemplates establishing a paper manufactory at or near Nowsaree. His Highness goes on a tour of inspection this cold season, and will probably select the Baroda Mahal for the purposes of his visitation.

At a meeting of the leading Cutch inhabitants of Bombay on the 1st inst. it was resolved to present a congratulatory address to H.H. the Rao of Cutch on the occasion of his forthcoming installation by H.E. the Governor of Bombay.

POONA seems to be going ahead. Already one company for the manufacture of paper has been organised, and it is possible that before long another paper-mill will be established. We now hear that the old Government House at Dapoorie is to be converted into a brewery. The new venture will start with fair prospects of success, as it is said the proprietor is to receive the contract for supplying the troops in this presidency with beer.

MADRAS.

THE Viceroy has approved of the appointment of Mr. H. St. A. Goodrich, Madras Civil Service, to the Imperial Legislative Council.

THE Madras Mail states that the project for the removal of the Madras Military Accounts Offices to Bangalore has been revived, and that negotiations have been opened with Mr. Brown, the proprietor of the Cubbon Hotel and Cubbon Assembly Rooms at the latter place, for the leasing to the Government for a term of years of the rooms and possibly also of the Bachelors' Quarters, which are near to them.

A COTTON-MILL is to be started in Quilon by an American merchant. The buildings connected with this enterprise are nearly completed, and the opening ceremony will take place in the early part of next month. His Highness the Maharajah of Travancore and almost all the high officials of his Highness's Government are expected to honour the inauguration ceremony with their presence.

BURMA.

THE Judge of Maulmain has finally rejected the application of the Municipal Committee to stay the execution of the decree obtained against them by Mr. Addis.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.—A Rangoon correspondent telegraphs:—A Burmese honorary magistrate's wife was brought up on the 31st ultimo, by the police before the Senior Magistrate, charged with criminal misappropriation of property. His worship said he thought she had gone about as close as possible to the committal of a criminal offence. She at first denied having the jewellery, but subsequently gave it up to the police. He regretted much to see a magistrate's wife in such a position. As the evidence was weak, the three defendants would be discharged. The jewellery was handed over to the prosecutor, its rightful owner.

THE Municipal War is still raging in Maulmain, and the columns of the rival newspapers are full of nothing but the din of battle. The Advertiser has another kick at its whilom friends and patrons, thusly:—"WANTED.—By the Maulmain Municipality for the Official and Native Members, a supply of Back Scratchers, the present stock being monopolised by the European Representatives. Vide Municipal Bellows of 18th instant.—APPLY SHARP." To which the Tenasserim News retorts:—"Wanted by the Maulmain Advertiser, for the benefit of its long-afflicted readers, a supply of original screaming jokes, the stock in hand being exhausted by the publication of the one in its advertising columns of the 21st instant. Second-hand jokists are strictly warned off. In mercy to the Editor, who has softening of the brain.—APPLY ONE AT A TIME."

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

THE Surgeon-General of Her Majesty's Forces has issued a circular regarding the issue as a prophylactic of lime-juice and sugar, or amchur, to troops, the former to British soldiers and the latter to natives, except when amchur is not procurable, or when the issue of lime-juice is considered desirable by local medical authorities.

THE B Battery First Brigade Scottish Division, Fort William, under the command of Captain Plant, had some practice at 5,000 yards with the guns in position at Fort Fultah, some seventeen miles down the river Hooghly, but the practice was not good. A few of the Calcutta Naval Artillery Battery took part in the practice.

THE Government of India approve of the Commander-in-Chief's proposal for the march of No. 7 Battery Northern Division Royal Artillery from Jutogh, via Chakrata and Saharunpore, to Umballa, returning to Jutogh via Hoshiarpur, Panthankote, Chumba, Dhurmsala, and Kangra. The battery left Jutogh on the 20th instant, and will return about the 3rd March, 1885.

THE prospectus of the Northern India Rifle Association, just issued, includes a new match on the lines of the first stage for the Queen's prize at Wimbledon, in which twenty-five prizes, including the National Rifle Association Medal, will be given. This association retains military positions, whereas the W.I.R.A. allows "any" position.

THE Surgeon-General of Her Majesty's Forces has issued a circular notifying that applications from officers of the Army Medical Department to be permitted to retire from the service should be submitted, through the administrative medical officer and the general officer commanding the division or district, to the Military Secretary, for the orders of his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

A CIRCULAR memorandum has been issued by the Military Department, Fort William, to officers Commanding Volunteer Corps in India, calling their attention to the rules and orders in the Volunteer Regulations regarding the inspection of all arms in the possession of volunteers. It appears that the annual reports on Volunteer Corps last year brought to light a want of care and attention on the part of volunteers to the state of their rifles.

ON the recommendation of the military authorities in the Bengal Presidency, the Government of India have sanctioned an arrangement by which officers commanding regiments of British cavalry are allowed to contract with firms in England for the supply of helmets for the use of their men. The wicker helmets at present supplied to these corps by Government are considered unsuitable for cavalry soldiers, the cork helmets being preferred both for comfort and neatness. No extra expense to the State will be incurred by the new arrangements, as the regiments will merely receive the ordinary rate of compensation for the non-supply of helmets.

CAPTAIN SHAIK CASUM, aide-de-camp to H.E. the Governor, has returned to join his regiment at Surat. He has served in the capacity of A.D.C. to their Excellencies the late and present Governors of Bombay, for upwards of ten years, with great satisfaction to themselves and their staff. Captain Shaik Casum gained great credit from Sir Philip Wodehouse, the late Governor of Bombay, in whose period of office he was appointed aide-de-camp. Sir James Fergusson has likewise expressed his thanks for the service of his late aide-de-camp, and in recognition of them presented Captain Shaik Casum with his photograph and a handsome gold watch. His popularity among Europeans as well as natives is well known. He has gained the regard of every officer with whom he has served on the staff, and his departure is deeply regretted. It is understood that he will shortly be promoted to the rank of subadar-major in his regiment.

THE LANDHOLDERS' MEMORIAL AGAINST THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

THE memorial of the Central Committee of the Landholders of Bengal and Behar, to which we drew prominent attention last week, requires to be carefully studied by all those who wish to understand the revolutionary principles of the Bengal Tenancy Bill. The memorial, as we have already stated, is a reply to the amazing memorandum which was drawn up by Mr. Macdonnell, the Secretary to the Government of Bengal in the Revenue Department, and it most completely exposes the blunders and inaccuracies with which that document bristled. Mr. Macdonnell's memorandum was unhappily adopted by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, whose ill-health prevented him from dealing with the subject with his own hand. It was forwarded to the Government of India, with a flabby covering letter, as "expressing the views of the Bengal Government upon the matters discussed in it," and it appears that it has been submitted to the Secretary of State for India by the Viceroy, with a perfunctory despatch, to the effect that "he concurs with the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in considering that the memorandum successfully answers most, if not all, of the objections taken by the petitioners to the proposed measure." The landholders' memorial is addressed to Lord Kimberley, and it is to be hoped that his lordship will take warning from it, before he concurs with the Government of India and the Government of Bengal, without an exhaustive examination of the merits of the case.

The memorial now before us deals with the statements and arguments contained in Mr. Macdonnell's memorandum under six separate headings:—(1.) What were the status and rights of zemindars before the permanent settlement; (2.) Whether those rights had become obsolete in 1793; (3.) What were the rights vested in zemindars by the Permanent Settlement, and what was the power which Government reserved to itself under section 7 of Reg. I of 1793; (4.) Whether the rights of tenants were ascertained before the Permanent Settlement; (5.) Whether the best authorities have been consulted on the present subject; and (6.) Whether the zemindars have ever admitted the saleable character of ryotee holdings. This classification is not exhaustive, and does not include either the general policy of the Bill or the question whether legislation on the lines proposed is necessary. But we will now proceed to discuss each of these six headings seriatim.

In the first place, we have to consider the status of zemindars before the Permanent Settlement. Mr. Macdonnell would have it believed that the zemindar was not a zemindar, but a mostajir. It is expedient to use the two native words, because the English term farmer, by which the word mostajir is usually translated, conveys an imperfect idea of its sense to an ordinary English reader. By contrasting the two native terms the inaccuracy and absurdity of Mr. Macdonnell's position stand out more prominently. The definition of a zemindar is given in the clearest terms by the famous Gholam Hosein Khan and the Roy Royan in their evidence, which was taken long before the Permanent Settlement, and is to be found in Harrington's "Analysis," and in the Appendix to the present memorial. "The literal meaning of the word zemindar," says Gholam Hosein, "is possessor or proprietor of land." In its generally accepted meaning it implies a proprietor of land, who pays rent to the Emperor, and is equally applicable to every landholder, whether possessing a greater or less number of villages, or only a portion of a village." And the Roy Royan says, "A zemindar is a person possessing hereditarily, on the condition of obedience to the ordinances of Government, a tract of land under the denomination of a Pergunnah or Chukleh; and a zemindary is that land registered in the records of Government in the name of such person." Such being the status of the zemindar, who was the mostajir or farmer? The answer is plain. If the zemindar failed to pay his rents to Government, or was in any way contumacious, the mostajir was the man who was employed temporarily to collect the rental from the cultivators of the soil, with the understanding that, like a French farmer of taxes before the French Revolution, he would make the best bargain possible for himself after paying the dues of Government. And even when the mostajir was thus introduced, the right of the zemindar was not extinguished, but he received a small percentage on the rental in recognition of his original proprietary right. But Mr. Macdonnell, having discovered a passage in Harrington's "Analysis" which seemed to suit his views, has quoted it as establishing the proposition that the zemindars were not hereditary proprietors, but mostajirs. The memorialists respectfully observe that Mr. Macdonnell has either overlooked or omitted two passages, one almost immediately preceding, and the other following his quotation from Mr. Harrington's work. Mr. Harrington, writing of some of the principal zemindars in Bengal, who held their zemindaries, with certain services attached to them, under a sunnud of grant or confirmation, asserted that their tenure partook more of the nature of an hereditary office, with certain rights and privileges attached, than of a proprietary estate in land; but he added that if the zemindary be an office, and such office give possession of land, which has by claim or custom descended from father to son, or to collaterals, with other circumstances incident to property, such as mortgage, alienation, bequest, or adoption, it is, in reality, a landed inheritance. And he went on to say that a zemindar appears to be a landholder of a peculiar description, not definable by any single term in our language. It is to be noted that Mr. Harrington was writing with special reference to the principal zemindars, who before the Permanent Settlement received sunnuds, confirming them in their titles and dignities, and vesting them with certain police and magisterial powers, which were personal incidents following the inheritance of a zemindaree. In the present day there are several of the principal zemindars in Bengal and Behar who receive a fresh sunnud of their titles and dignities on each succession to the family property, and on each occasion the British Government accepts a gratification of a hundred gold mohurs or some larger sum; just as the court officials of the great Mogul took as much as they could get from the principal zemindars of their time. But there is nothing either in the text or context (which Mr. Macdonnell omitted) to justify the assumption that the zemindar, prior to the Permanent Settlement, was merely a mostajir or farmer temporarily collecting the rents of certain lands, and having no other rights, proprietary and hereditary.

It may be asked what profit is there in discussing this status of the zemindar before the Permanent Settlement? But the reason is obvious. Mr. Macdonnell argues that if the rights claimed by the zemindars under the Permanent Settlement had no previous existence, they were the mere creation of Lord Cornwallis and the British Government of the day, and that it is therefore open to the Viceroy and the Government of the present day to deal with them as they please—a breath may mar them as a breath had made. The memorialists have, therefore, gone deeply into the root of the matter and produced some further evidence which has not been previously cited in the controversy. They show that in 1776 Messrs. Anderson, Crofts and Bogle, three Bengal civilians, were appointed as Commissioners to inquire into the landed tenures of Bengal. These gentlemen reported that “almost all the lands in Bengal were held under some person possessing rights and claims thereto, who collected the rents, paid a revenue, and stood between the Government and the actual cultivator. Such a middleman they found in the zemindar, chowdhry, or the talukdar, whether independent or dependent. These are all described as landholders.” The Commissioners further declare that “there is reason to believe that the whole of Bengal was distributed among the zemindars and chowdhries, or proprietors of smaller areas, who in order to bring waste lands into cultivation, in consideration of a sum of money, or the performance of particular services were induced to create talooks, which resembled the zemindaree in every respect, except that the rent reserved in independent talooks was paid directly to Government, and in dependent talooks through the zemindar.”

We have space to-day for only one more of the arguments which the memorialists have brought forward. They show that whilst the zemindaree system was well known and recognised under the Mahomedan constitution and government, the system of farming was introduced only in the reign of Furrukshere (1713-1718) as one of the evil effects of the disorganisation and decay of the Imperial power at Delhi. Thus introduced, it was an invasion of the private rights of the zemindars (though their hereditary proprietorship was still recognised by the grant of Malikana), and an act of spoliation on a large scale, which was an index that good government had ceased, and that rapine and extortion had commenced—the sure precursors of the downfall of Mogul rule in India. The memorialists pointedly remark that when the system of farming was introduced into Bengal in 1772-73 by Warren Hastings, it was due to the general rapacity of the British administration. Mr. Macdonnell, in his eagerness to show that the zemindar had no rights, has even ventured to cite the Company's Dewani Sunud, as giving the Government the power to remove the zemindars, from their zemindarees. It will hardly be credited that no such provision exists in the Sunud: and the memorialists feelingly declare that they are utterly at a loss to find how the Bengal Secretary could commit himself to such a gross mistake of fact. We have thus already shown that Mr. Macdonnell's memorandum is disfigured by garbled quotation and misrepresentation of facts; and we shall be prepared on a future occasion to show several other misleading statements in this document to which the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal and the Viceroy of India have unfortunately pinned their faith.

MR. LALMOHUN GHOSE'S CANDIDATURE.

WE give elsewhere a brief report, from the Echo, of a recent electioneering speech by Mr. Lalmohun Ghose at Woolwich. We hope that the report of the Echo does not accurately render Mr. Ghose's opinions; and we have taken steps to obtain perfectly trustworthy and adequate reports from Mr. Ghose's own friends, as it would be grossly unjust that he should be judged by unauthorised reports of his speeches. But if there be any truth in the report of the Echo, we fear it is clear that Mr. Ghose is, as Rob the Grinder would put it, “a-going it.” We have no hesitation in saying that such extreme views as those with which Mr. Ghose is credited by the Echo would be deeply to be regretted, in two ways—they would, we think, make his return for Greenwich, or for any other English constituency except perhaps Northampton, an impossibility—and they most certainly misrepresent the opinion of Mr. Ghose's fellow-countrymen at large. He is made to declare that “the doom of the hereditary principle has been already pronounced”; and he does not appear to have even made an exception in favour of the Prince of Wales. What would our hereditary chiefs and nobles of India say to this?—nay, what would every loyal Indian subject of Her Majesty say to it? When Mr. Ghose talks of the Peers of England as “ancient ruins,” and of the analogous institutions of India as “relics of the past,” he wins a laugh, of course, from his Woolwich hearers. So, in another sphere, as Mr. Gladstone pointed out last week, the House of Commons is quite ready to go into shouts of laughter over the buffoonery of Mr. Labouchere and Sir Wilfrid Lawson on the same subject. But all this sort of thing is a grievous descent from the line we had hoped to see taken up by the first Indian gentleman who has had an opportunity of representing his great country in the political life of the Empire. Why, in the name of common-sense, should Mr. Ghose go out of his way to shock the feelings of the more reputable portion of the Greenwich electors?—and why should he excite the laughter of the less reputable portion by sneers at the Conservatism of his own countrymen? Nothing could be more impolitic—to speak of no higher motive—than to raise a laugh against the Indian sentiment, “where every relic of the past, whether it happened to testify to the wisdom of his countrymen's forefathers, or to something the reverse of it, was held up and preserved with the greatest respect” (Laughter.)

We have always indicated our earnest wish that not one only, but many Indian gentlemen should be able to find seats in Parliament to represent their fellow-countrymen. And every reader of this journal is a witness to the fact that we have always hitherto written of Mr. Ghose's candidature with approval and hope. We cannot even yet abandon the belief that wiser counsels may prevail with that gentleman, and that he will drop—if he has ever taken up—the exceedingly unwise line to which the Echo would commit him.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

INDIAN TEA.—From Messrs. G. White and Co's. Market Report:—
The tone of the market has again been flat this week, and the sales have passed quietly at about previous prices for common to medium descriptions with poor liquor. Useful teas with fair to good cup have met with rather better competition, and in a few instances firmer rates have been paid. The quality of teas now offering is still considerably below the average, and brings them closer into competition with China Congous, which are at present very cheap. Fine to finest descriptions are in moderate supply, but unless of specially good quality do not attract much attention; really choice parcels, however, command high rates. Ceylon.—There has been a larger quantity placed on the market, including a few desirable parcels, the finest being Strathellie Broken Pekoe, which sold at 3s. to 3s. 4d. per lb.

ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY.—At a meeting of this society on the 17th inst., Sir William Muir, K.C.S.I., president, in the chair, the Earl of Kimberley, J. T. Carleth, Esq., were elected resident members, and M. Guimet, M. de Milloué, S. Umar Baksh, Pandit Bishen Naragen, H. C. Warren, Esq., C. Eems, Esq., N. R. R. Vāsuder Madhar Samath, B.A., Balliol College, Oxford, Rev. T. Hinton Knowle of Sinnagar, and Paya Lal, Esq., were elected as non-resident members. Papers were read "On the bearing of the Bantú Languages of South Africa on the Aryan Family of Languages" by the Rev. T. W. Kolbe, to which the reader of the paper, Mr. R. N. Cust, hon. sec. R.A.S., added some valuable remarks; and "On Recent Archaeological Researches on the Buddhist Remains near Sambhar in Rajputana," by Surgeon-Major Hendley, M.R.A.S., accompanied as these were, by a considerable collection of the monuments found on the spot, including many coins. The Secretary briefly described a present to the society from M. Bhownagree, Esq., consisting of some objects of natural history of some coins. Sir Thomas F. Wade, K.C.B., was elected member of the council.

THE "VOICE OF INDIA."

INDIA.

THERE are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing MONTHLY (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native journals throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally docile and conservative; and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth; but it is a policy of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is specially desired to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

COLONIES & FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

THIS WORK gives a vast amount of information respecting the business carried on between the United Kingdom and the Colonies and Foreign Countries; showing the description of goods, and the amount thereof, exported to each Colony or Country abroad, the British Ports whence shipments are made, the MERCHANTS, FACTORS, and SHIPPERS at the various Ports and Towns in England, the Manufacturers of the Principal Goods exported, and the MERCHANTS AND OTHERS ABROAD WHO ARE IMPORTERS OR BUYERS OF BRITISH GOODS.

It also gives complete information as to the various descriptions of goods, and the amounts thereof, imported from abroad into this country, with the names of the Merchants and Shippers, and also the Manufacturers at the Principal Towns of the various Goods imported.

The Work is divided into three principal divisions the first of which comprises the various Foreign Countries and British Possessions throughout the world to which British Manufactures are exported.

Under each of these is given, first:—A Statistical Account of the Country, the Financial Position, Business Relations with this Country, with, in the case of Foreign States, the names of the British and other Consuls, the name of the Minister in this country, Consuls, Vice-Consuls, &c., at the various Ports and Places in this country; the PRINCIPAL BANKERS, the MERCHANTS, COMMISSION MERCHANTS, BUYERS OF ENGLISH GOODS, and the Manufacturers, &c., at the Principal Towns of the various goods imported; the various Ports in each country; also the Ports in this country whence Shipments are made; Tariffs, &c., &c.; a Tabular Statement showing the Exports from this country during the last three years; a List of the Merchants and Shippers in the various British Towns; List of Steamers and other Vessels sailing from the Ports; also a List of the various Manufactures that are exported from this country.

The second division comprises an Alphabetical List of the Exporters from this country, stating the class of goods exported by them.

The third division of the Work embraces the names and addresses of the actual Manufacturers, or Manufacturers' Agents, of the articles exported, describing as clearly as possible the specialities of each Manufacturer.

The Times, September 20th, 1884.

"It is almost exhaustive as a guide to the shipping and manufacturing industries, both export and import, of Great Britain and Ireland."

Daily Chronicle, September 12th, 1884.

"Merchants and manufacturers of all kinds will find the Directory a valuable guide, whether their interests are concerned in exports or imports."

Daily News, September 17th, 1884.

"It abounds in information of the kind which merchants, manufacturers, and exporters are constantly in need of. Its scope, however, is not confined to the classes who in this country have business with the colonies and foreign parts, but includes also the principal merchants abroad, so that the book becomes a tolerably complete guide to the import and export industries of all countries with which Great Britain has any mercantile relation, and vice versa."

European Mail, September 26th, 1884.

"In collecting the names of foreign and colonial firms—a task of considerable difficulty, as will be understood—Messrs. Kelly have had the assistance of the British consuls, many of whom have given personal testimony to the important service this Directory fulfils in commercial circles abroad."

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1884.

Notes of the Week.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, November 14th; Madras and Allahabad, November 12th; Calcutta, November 11th; Ceylon, November 11th; Burma, November 7th.

WE are rejoiced to see the prominence given to the Thibetan mission of Mr. Colman Macaulay by the Calcutta correspondent of the Times this week. One of our constant complaints against Mr. Gladstone's Government has been based on its persistent neglect of our foreign commerce, and its determination to ignore all possibilities of new markets. This Darjeeling route to Thibet promises to open up one of the finest markets in the world, both for our English and for our Indian trade. Darjeeling tea and Lancashire cotton-goods ought very soon to supply all this part of the world, if only the home authorities will back up, at Pekin, the local action of Mr. Macaulay and the Bengal Government.

It is needless for us to say that we cannot altogether sympathise with the demonstrations in favour of Lord Ripon that are being organised by the Native community in various parts of India; for we have not concealed our view that much of Lord Ripon's policy, even in its most well-intentioned parts, has been ill-judged. But we are, nevertheless, entirely of opinion that these demonstrations are altogether creditable, alike to the givers and to the receiver. We take it for granted that those classes who have suffered from Lord Ripon's legislative activity will honestly hold aloof; and all other classes of the Native community may most properly show their gratitude for the benevolence of Lord Ripon's intentions, without criticising too closely the performance. We still think that a little more discretion on the part of the departing Viceroy would have done much to render the performance more worthy of the promise. But now that all is past and gone we are anxious to lay as much stress as possible on the good intentions, and as little stress as possible on the meagre performances; and we have certainly no doubt that the good folks of Calcutta and Bombay show their good taste, and the sincerity of their loyalty, by taking the same line. And, on the other hand, Lord Ripon may certainly be pardoned if his mens conscia recti enables him to accept praises measured in proportion rather to his wishes than to his actual achievements.

WE should, however, regret to see this generous obliviousness of hard facts carried too far, for it would naturally tend to glorify theory at the expense of practice, and to put a fictitious value on hollow professions. For instance, it would have immensely discredited the sincerity of the demonstrations of which we are now writing, if they had been joined in by those who have been conscientiously opposed to Lord Ripon's policy in any of its characteristic features.

WE are glad to learn that numerous amendments have already been proposed in the Select Committee of the Viceroy's Legislative Council on the "amended" Bengal Tenancy Bill. The whole subject will, of course, be reserved for the review of Lord Dufferin; and few will doubt that substantial justice will be done, now that ripe experience is combined with strength of character and independence of judgment in the settlement of the question.

THE account, that is telegraphed this week by the Times' Calcutta correspondent, of the proceedings of the Commission appointed to inquire into the Hyderabad scandals, confirms the view taken by us some weeks ago of the necessity for substantial reforms in the affairs of that State. Here, again, a great and hitherto almost insoluble difficulty will be found to be, under Lord Dufferin's hands, a nodus vindice dignus.

THE handsome balance on the opium sales will be an acceptable Christmas-box to Lord Dufferin, and is a happy omen for his Viceroyalty. But what will Mr. Pease and the Radicals say?

WE desire at this season, when the approach of Christmas naturally suggests works of kindness and benevolence, to draw the attention of our readers to an admirable article, which we reproduce elsewhere, from the Army and Navy Gazette, on the chief British Army Charities — which surely have a special claim on many of us.

THE Simla correspondent of the Englishman, a writer who is known to represent in an especial degree the opinion of many of the leading officials of the Empire, has addressed the following important telegram to our contemporary:—

There seems to be some doubt whether, at the approaching Intercolonial Exhibition in London, it will be found possible to provide sufficient space for a satisfactory display of Indian products. The proposal has, therefore, been advanced to limit the Exhibition strictly to a representation of the Colonies, and to hold a special Indian Exhibition in London in the succeeding year—that is, 1887. The proposal does not, however, appear to have taken any practical shape, and will probably be further discussed by Mr. Buck with the South Kensington authorities on his arrival in England.

We trust that no uncertainty will be allowed to prevail on this most important point. No doubt can be entertained that an Indian Exhibition, to be an adequate one, might quite well have a year to itself; but whether that advantage is worth the price that is proposed to be paid for it, in the delay of a year, is a question that will doubtless be fairly considered, and rightly decided, by his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. And on such a point his Royal Highness could have no better adviser than Sir Philip Cunliffe Owen.

WE trust that the Government will make the strictest inquiry into the alleged massacre of Indian coolies in Trinidad; and also into the alleged breaches in the contracts of coolies in that island. We entirely agree with "Indian Civilian," whose letter we publish elsewhere; and we trust that the whole question will be taken up by Mr. Stanhope, or some other "Indophil" member of Parliament.

"THE Storehouses of the King; or, the Pyramids of Egypt: What they are, and who built them," by Mrs. Jane Van Gelder. For centuries the Pyramids of Egypt have remained a standing marvel; many and learned have been the theories put forward at various times as to the period and cause of their construction, but no solution of the problem has yet been propounded acceptable to the learned world, and these monstrous fabrics still remain enshrouded in a halo of mystery. The author claims to have discovered who built them and the purpose for which they were erected, and would fain trust that her theory may close a discussion which has engrossed at times so large a share of public attention. The work will be published in one large volume, price 21s., by Messrs. Wm. H. Allen and Co.

WE take from Vanity Fair the following note on Sir Thomas Baker's appointment:—

The new Adjutant-General of Her Majesty's Forces in India, Sir Thomas Baker, almost immediately after taking over charge at Simla, had to wheel about to accompany the Commander-in-Chief on his inspection tour by way of Delhi, Bhurtpore, Cawnpore, and so on to Dinapore, thence by rail to Calcutta, where "head-quarters" is due on the 28th. In this way Sir Thomas will have visited during his first month of high-staff service probably a larger extent of India than he has ever seen before. And now that this ever-popular officer is firmly seated in his new post, it can do him no harm to raise the "previous question," which is one of principle. It is this. By favour of whom, or of what department, was this highly responsible and withal lucrative appointment conferred on one who was not qualified according to the regulations carefully framed in respect thereof? Sir Thomas had not fulfilled two of the essential conditions prescribed—namely, that of passing an examination in the vernacular, and that of having served continuously five years or more in India.

Possibly the eager dispensers of patronage at the Horse Guards deem it a clever thing to honour the Indian regulations in the breach rather than in the observance; but those who are responsible for military efficiency in India consider such infractions of these safeguards no light matter. Perhaps I may be reminded that General Greaves, who has held the same post for his term of five years, had not passed in the language. That is so; but he had ample colloquial knowledge of the "country language," and his length of previous active service in India was far beyond the prescribed term. Yet, in his case, pressure had to be put on the Secretary of State for India to confirm the appointment, so well founded are the objections against over-leaping the barriers that protect Indian military administration against the inroads of favouritism and caprice. Yet everyone who knows Sir George Greaves will be glad to hear that the Indian authorities have strongly recommended the appointment of the retiring Adjutant-General to the first divisional command that may be vacant in India.

THE Echo says:—

The Frere Memorial Fund continues to grow. The total amount contributed in England is now something over ten thousand pounds, and to this will have to be added the amounts subscribed in connection with the subsidiary funds opened in India and at the Cape. The whole of the money subscribed, with the exception of about three thousand pounds for the statue, will be handed over to the family of the deceased Governor.

WE take the following items of Personal Intelligence of our Indian visitors from the Journal of the National Indian Association:—

At the General Examination of students of the Inns of Courts, held at the end of October, Mr. Mohammed Abdool Majid (Middle Temple), Mr. Jijibhai Edalji Modi (Lincoln's Inn), Mr. Moungh Bah Ohn (Middle Temple), and Mr. Syed Mohamed Habib Ullah (Middle Temple), received Certificates of having satisfactorily passed a Public Examination.

The following passed in the Roman Law Examination:—Kumar Shri Harbhamji (Lincoln's Inn), Mr. Mohammed Abdul Jalil (Middle Temple), Mr. Byramji Colabavala Rustamji (Lincoln's Inn), and Mr. Namaswayam Tyagaraja (Lincoln's Inn).

The following gentlemen were called to the Bar on Nov. 18th:—Pandit Shyammaji Krishnavarma, B.A., Oxford (Inner Temple), Syed Mohamed Habib Ullah, Balliol College, Oxford (Middle Temple). Mr. Tamiz Uddin Ahmed has passed the Examination for the M.B., C.M. degree of the University of Glasgow. Mr. Prafulla Chunder has passed the First B.Sc. Examination in the Department of Natural and Experimental Sciences in the University of Edinburgh. Mr. D. M. Sangle has passed the First Professional Examination for the degree of M.B., C.M. of the University of Edinburgh. Mr. Dominick A. D'Monte, B.A. (Bombay), L.R.C.P. (Lond.), has passed the F.R.C.S. (Edinburgh) Examination. Mr. J. B. Sathupathy has passed in the Additional Subjects of the Previous Examinations of Candidates for Honours in the University of Cambridge. He has lately been elected a Non-Resident Member of the Royal Asiatic Society. Dr. N. B. Gandevia has been appointed a Clinical Assistant at the Royal London Ophthalmic Hospital, Moorfields. Dr. D. N. Ray has been made a Corresponding Member of the New York Society for Medico-Scientific Investigations. Rajmūnya Rājashri Vasudev Madhav Samarth, B.A. (Bombay), has joined Lincoln's Inn. Mr. Roshun Lal has entered at the Middle Temple. Mr. Kanta Pershap has joined the London Hospital. Mr. P. N. Chetti has joined the Inner Temple.

The following have entered at the University of Cambridge:—Prince Albert Victor Jay Dhuleep Singh (Trinity College), Mr. Bomanjee Ardeser Wadia (Caius), Mr. Lokendranath Palit (Emmanuel), Mr. Pulicat Narayansami, Chetti (Downing), and Mr. Rustomjee Nowrozjee Motabhy (Cavendish).

At St. John's College, Cambridge, a M'Mahon law studentship, of the annual value of £150 and tenable for four years, has been awarded to James Peiris, B.A., LL.B., scholar of the College. Mr. Peiris graduated in 1882. He obtained a first-class in the Law Tripos in December 1881, and also a first-class in the Moral Sciences Tripos in June, 1883. The studentships are intended for Members of St. John's College who have graduated and bond-fide intend to prepare themselves for practice of the profession of the Law, either as barristers or solicitors. Mr. Peiris was called to the Bar in 1882, and is now practising at Colombo.

THE Englishman has the following account of the Calcutta Freight Market, corrected to November 11:—

During the past week we have had a somewhat better demand for tonnage in our freight market, and a good deal of business has been done both in steamer and sailer shipments at previous rates. Our unfixed tonnage stands now reduced to 11,000 tons.

WE take the following on the Calcutta Tea Market from Messrs. W. Moran and Co.'s Report:—

Auctions have been held on the 30th ult. and 6th inst., on which dates 21,145 were offered and 19,855 sold. There was rather less inquiry on the 30th, and the sales passed off without much spirit, prices generally ruling lower. Common Pekoes showed a decided fall in value. On the 6th inst. there was rather better demand, and prices slightly recovered.

THE same firm gives the following account of the Calcutta Indigo Market:—

Up to date about one thousand chests of Native Indigo have arrived from the North-West, and the quality of these does not speak very favourably for the Oude crop. No European Indigo has yet come to market, nor do we hear of any parcels having been despatched. The public sales will probably commence on the 17th inst., and the first catalogues will be almost entirely composed of native parcels, but it is very doubtful whether native proprietors will be prepared to meet the market freely, buyers' ideas of value being so much below last year's rates.

THE Times of India has the following obituary till the departure of the mail, November 14:—

Nawab Syed Munsoor Ali Khan, the last Nawab Nazim of Bengal, Behar and Orissa; the Nawab Begum Mulk-i-Zamanah Sahaba, the second and favourite wife of the late Syed Munsoor Ali; Mr. F. H. Hebbert, Madras Civil Service; Mr. Subbramaniam Aiyar, of the Tanjore Bar; Major Daniel Dickinson, Norfolk Regiment; Captain Griffith Allen, 98th North Stafford Regiment; the Rev. A. T. Thomas, C.M.S., Pastor at Mavellicoria.

THE EXTERNAL TRADE OF BOMBAY.—In an interesting report received within the last few days from India Captain Le Breton deals with the trade as registered across the external frontier of the Bombay Presidency. For the purpose of registration the Government of India assigned an annual sum of 12,500 rupees a year. As Scinde is not included in this survey, nothing appears in these pages on the subject of the trade with Afghanistan, or of the growth of Kurrachee; but it is satisfactory to learn from Mr. O'Connor's annual report that the increase of both is among the most striking features of the year. The writer sums up the main facts elicited by his examination of the external trade in the following sentences:—"In an agricultural country like India much of the prosperity of the railways depends upon the rainfall and the products of the soil which each province can put forward for export by rail with a due regard to its own security. India's connection with the western countries has enabled it to grow in increasingly large quantities such articles as are in demand there. The intercourse with China and other eastern countries, as well as the necessities of the varied population of India, have given stimulus to the industry of cotton spinning and weaving, and originated the trade in opium which has been annually contributing largely to the revenues of the State. The proximity to these countries of the land-locked port of Bombay—the chief seat of the commerce of this Presidency—attracts towards it from different provinces and districts enormous quantities of those articles in return for others they want." On the important subject of transit duties, by means of which the native chie's swell their own revenue and fetter our trade, Captain Le Breton reports that "no changes have been brought to notice by the district officers," which is tantamount to saying that none have been made. One of the most interesting tables in the volume is that showing that "railways have reduced, but not destroyed, cart traffic for long distances; they have greatly enhanced the value of the capital sunk in carts and draught cattle by developing short distance traffic to the various railway stations." In proof of this it is shown that in the period of the last ten years there has been an increase of 23,983 carts for carrying loads, of 5,350 riding carts, of 148,874 bullocks, of 63,473 ploughs with two bullocks, and of 959 ploughs with four bullocks. On the other hand there has been a decrease of 45,430 horses, but the balance is still very favourable to the statement which has just been made.

Telegraphic Intelligence.

The following details of the cyclone at Madras have been received from the Times' correspondent, dated Calcutta, November 27th :—

"On Friday last a cyclone burst over the town in the early morning and blew for a time at the rate of forty-six miles an hour. The shipping in the harbour was in great peril. The ships Dominion, Laurel, and Medusa dragged their anchors, but were brought up before going ashore. The steamer Clan Grant was obliged to put to sea without a pilot and narrowly escaped drifting upon the breakwater.

"The most serious damage was done on the land. The storm breached the northern embankment of the Red Hills Lake, the only reservoir of drinking water which the city possesses. The lake was fairly full, owing to the recent heavy rain, but on Thursday evening the water was still six feet below the top of the embankment, while there was a parapet three feet high besides. The cyclone drove the water over these nine feet of perpendicular height, and the top and back of the embankment were torn away till the whole collapsed, and almost the entire supply of water effected its escape to the sea, carrying away two small villages and some isolated houses, with six persons.

"The whole country below the lake was under water on Saturday, and rafts were being constructed to rescue the people in the inundated villages. It is feared that there is not enough water left in the lake to send a supply to Madras, even by means of steam pumps, and the city must depend on the wells till the breach has been repaired, which will probably be a work of some months.

"Cholavaram Lake, which supplies the Red Hill's Lake, was also breached by the storm, but the damage done was apparently purely local."

The following is the usual weekly telegram from the Times' correspondent, dated Calcutta, Nov. 30 :—

"During the past week the Viceroy visited Benares, where he received a welcome similar to that which had been accorded him further north. He left Benares on Thursday, and made a short halt the same evening at Arrah to meet several notables of Behar. On Friday morning he embarked in a steamer at Sahibgunge, and proceeded down the Ganges to Sara. He was to arrive at Darjeeling last evening. Great preparations are being made by a native committee for a demonstration to be held on his arrival in Calcutta on Tuesday. The reception committee includes several well-known names, and is stated to be collecting large sums for the purpose of providing a permanent memorial of his Excellency. Crowded meetings have also been held in his honour at Bombay and Madras.

"The danger of a water famine in Madras city appears to be not so great as was at first feared. A considerable quantity of water is still left in the Red Hills Lake, although it is below the level of the supply pipes. A temporary embankment is being erected, and it is hoped that it will be possible to send a partial supply down the channel in about three weeks. It is believed also that some wells and tanks near the town may be made available. The disaster caused thirty-five deaths, and rendered 1,600 persons houseless.

"The Select Committee on the Bengal Tenancy Bill reassembled on Tuesday last, and is now holding three meetings weekly. It is hoped that its report will be completed by Christmas. It is stated that notices of numerous amendments have already been given.

"The actual receipts on seven sales of Bengal opium, and six months' pass duty on the opium exported from Bombay amount to Rs.4,90,99,560, or Rs.34,63,460 more than the estimate.

"The Commission which sat to inquire into the recent disturbances in Hyderabad has finished its examination of witnesses and is now preparing a report. The procedure of the Commission appears to have been a very one-sided affair. All the witnesses were called by the police, and examined by a man now in the service of one of the nobles, but who formerly practised as a lawyer; while Sultan Nawab Jung, whose followers were charged with rioting, was not allowed professional assistance for the cross-examination of the witnesses."

The following extra telegram has been received from the Times' correspondent, dated Calcutta, Dec. 2 :—

ARMINIUS VAMBERY ON CHARLES MARVIN.

It was on the eve of the Berlin Congress, when Lord Salisbury was engaged with Count Schouvaloff in a confidential conversation about those points that were to be decided at that great assembly on the Spree, concerning the interests of the two countries. The rough draft of the agreement was already on paper, and as the Russian diplomat appeared to be in extra haste, it was highly necessary that the Secretaries and Under-Secretaries in Downing-street should have this important document, which was drawn up in French, copied as quickly as possible.

"Look sharp," said Secretary N., to a slight, dark, unassuming copyist, who was already noted for his excellent knowledge of languages. "Look sharp, for it must be passed on to the Press to-day."

"To the Press!" thought the copyist. "Well, we can do that!" and, as soon as his word was finished, he hurried off to the Globe office, where he had modest employment as a Russian translator, and gave the editor from memory the contents of the whole treaty almost word for word.

When their Excellencies, Salisbury and Schouvaloff, took up a copy of the Globe the next morning they were not a little astonished at seeing the secret treaty printed almost textually in it. The one reproached the other for having betrayed the secret; explanations were eagerly sought on both sides; and, at length, it transpired that the discloser was the wretchedly paid copyist who had taken the secretary's remark concerning its publication in the Press to heart, and had endeavoured to avail himself of the opportunity to do a favour to his newspaper. The gentlemen in Downing-street were not above prosecuting the copyist, but the English judge displayed more common sense. As the secretary could not deny his utterance about passing on the agreement to the Press, "Not Guilty," was the verdict declared for the defendant.

This copyist at the Foreign Office was no other person than Mr. Charles Marvin, the most advanced publicist of the rising English generation in the field of Central Asian politics—a relatively altogether very young man, but of giant-like industry, and of that bull-dog tenacity which so remarkably distinguishes Britannia's children from other Europeans. He who knows the real position a man occupies in the higher circle of England who has been present in a law court, however falsely, will quite understand that at the outset Mr. Marvin's literary career was not strewn with roses. Years passed before the so-called fashionable Press took notice of him, and in political circles it was a direct breach of decorum to speak of a writer who had fallen into such a quarrel with the noble gentlemen of Downing-street, and who, into the bargain, had written "Our Public Offices"—a most biting satire. But all this was no obstacle to Charles Marvin. He had made up his mind that he should make his mark in that province of English literature dealing with the rivalry of Russia and England in Asia. For this line he had special qualifications. Besides being thoroughly acquainted with the language and customs of Russia, in which country he had passed his early years, and also with the more important languages of Europe, he was able by the diligent daily reading of Russian newspapers and books to make himself familiar with events in Central Asia, which remained totally unknown to other English publicists, on account of their ignorance of Russian. In this manner appeared his first work "The Disastrous Russian Campaign against the Turcomans"—which is not only the outcome of a diligent reading of the Russian newspapers, but at once convinces the reader that Mr. Marvin is naturally a gifted author, of sound judgment and broad understanding, and who, moreover, possesses in addition a polished style, and can speak home to his English readers. This was followed by his "Merv the Queen of the World," a clever compilation respecting the oases in the Murghab, which events have brought into prominence of late years. Already before then Marvin had published a considerable number of articles and essays, and a translation of Grodekoff's "Ride to Herat." In 1882 our author entered the field of practical politics by being sent by Mr. Joseph Cowen, the well-known member for Newcastle-on-Tyne, to discuss the Central Asian Question with the leading authorities in Russia. This mission was crowned with success. He had a long conversation with Skobelev, Giers, Soboleff, Tchernayeff, Semenov, Professor Martens, and finally with Count Ignatieff, all of whom he questioned in the frankest manner respecting their views of the future policy of Russia in Central Asia. These conversations were recorded in his "Russian Advance Towards India," and in their time stirred up much dust, although I myself cannot yet quite understand how the "Father of Lies" came to wag his tongue so freely and express opinions regarding Austro-Hungary, which his subsequent official position rendered him incapable of "carrying out."

In 1882 Mr. Marvin was sent a second time to Russia to ascertain the condition of Russian finance, and attended the funeral of Skobelev. Early in 1883 he published his "Russians at Merv and Herat," a work full of fresh information about Central Asia, and in which a forecast was made of the operations of Russia against Merv and the Heri Rud subsequently realised. In the summer he was despatched to represent the Morning Post at the coronation of the Czar. By the special sanction of the Duke of Edinburgh he accompanied the English mission direct to Moscow. In the autumn he proceeded on a journey to the Black Sea, Caucasus, and Caspian, and early in 1884 published three new works in succession—"Reconnoitring Central Asia," "The Petroleum Industry of Russia," and "The Region of the Eternal Fire."

Mr. Marvin is no outspoken enemy of Russia, although he decidedly holds to a belief in Russia's hostile intentions against India, and warns his countrymen against a surprise. His words are all characterised by the same tone. Everywhere we observe a convincing and cogent style, everywhere denunciations of the shallowness, procrastination, and shortsightedness of English statesmen. No sooner does a Russian General execute a move, or even plan it, than Mr. Marvin is ready to hurl forth a pamphlet and distribute it by thousands. Among these slashing brochures we may mention "The Russian Railway to India," "The Annexation of Merv," "Russia's Power of Seizing Herat," &c. A man of iron industry and patience, he has wielded his comprehensive knowledge in such a manner as to render eminent service to the interests of his country. England has few specialists of note in the domain of Central Asian literature. The hardest worker of them all, and the authority in the daily Press, is and remains Mr. Charles Marvin.—Allgemeine Zeitung, Oct., 1884.

THE CHIEF ARMY CHARITIES.

(Army and Navy Gazette.)

In these times, when the support of numerous charitable institutions presses heavily upon private benevolence, it seems very desirable that every effort should be made to bring Army Charities before the notice of the public. We suggest that those responsible for the control of Army charitable institutions might with advantage adopt the system followed by various religious and other societies, viz., employ the agency of local associations and sub-committees in the large towns of every county, for the purpose of making known the object and operations of Army charities; and for collecting donations and subscriptions. Surely there are many hundreds of retired officers all over the country who have the leisure and should have the will to work on such sub-committees? Chief among Army charities that should receive more general support may be enumerated:—1. Military Benevolent Fund, for granting annuities up to £40 per annum to widows and unmarried daughters of deceased officers left in reduced circumstances. The list of applicants for assistance from this fund tells a harrowing tale of distress among the widows and daughters of old officers who were killed in action or died from the effects of service, and all of whom had deserved well of their country. 2. Royal School for Officers' Daughters, which provides, at the lowest possible cost, a sound, practical, and religious education for the orphan and other daughters of officers. The reports of this institution give numerous instances in which the daughters of officers who have been killed in action, or have died on service, have been well educated at the School at a nominal cost to their friends. 3. Cambridge Asylum for Soldiers' Widows, the only institution existing for the benefit of the class, provides a home and maintenance for 70 widows, left, in old age and infirmity, totally unprovided for. 4. Soldiers' Daughters' Home, for the maintenance, clothing, and education of the orphan and other daughters of soldiers. The last annual report shows that nearly 200 girls, the daughters of soldiers, are maintained in this home. 5. Cambridge Fund for Old and Disabled Soldiers, administered by the Commander-in-Chief. The nucleus of this fund was a bequest of £10,000 from the late Mr. W. Woodman, for the relief of worn-out or disabled soldiers, and this is augmented by subscriptions and donations. 6. Lastly, the special funds established in time of war, e.g., the Afghan, the Egyptian War Funds, for the relief of disabled soldiers and their families, sufferers during any particular campaign. Such are the principal Army charities that claim the support of the nation at large. Apart from patriotic and national instincts, such institutions appeal to the sympathies of all classes, for, from the palace of our gracious Queen to the cottage of the peasant, the manhood of the nation goes forth for service in the Army. We venture to recommend that, instead of spasmodic efforts to start a War Fund on the opening of any fresh campaign, there should be established a National War Fund, the entire proceeds of which should be invested in times of peace, and the income only be expended during, and for a given period after, the close of each successive campaign. While neither officers nor soldiers have many opportunities for enriching themselves, the urgencies of foreign service and the losses sustained in war cause widows and orphans to be left to struggle in reduced circumstances, and, in many instances, in penury and destitution. We commend the idea at the beginning of this short notice to the consideration of the charities we mention, in full assurance that if the suggestion is acted upon, many helping hands will be forthcoming, and that the effect will be a large increase to the funds.

TEA CULTURE AND PROFITS IN CEYLON.

The romance of tea cultivation in Lanka has already commenced. Old K.'s C. B. now retired on well-earned competencies—alas! that there are so few comparatively out of the long roll of Ceylon's planting worthies—will please understand that not in its palmiest days has coffee beaten the crops and the profits which have already accrued from tea. The romance of coffee-planting circles around the time when the choice Hantane, Deltota, Elkaduwa, Kelebobka and Rangala plantations were worked as veritable gold mines,—when the clusters of cherries could never be all picked, but to tread on coffee was the normal experience of superintendents and coolies,—when, for instance, on one estate (1,892 acres of Hantane forest!) bought in 1837, there were 350 acres planted by 31st December, 1841, with stores, machinery, &c., at a total expenditure of £6,938 including purchase of land; while the receipts up to the same date including the crop of 2,000 cwt. of coffee gathered of 200 acres (50 only in full bearing) was £11,639; and the estimate was 3,000 cwt. off 250 acres and a steady return of 5,000 cwt. (no doubt realized for a considerable time) off the 3,500 acres when in full bearing!

Tea-planting has not yet reached these noble proportions; but then considering the extra work in the tea-house and the margin for larger profits if a place is properly worked, 100 or 120 acres of tea ought to be considered equal to 200 of coffee. One of the oldest of Indian tea-garden proprietors preferred to have nothing over 50 acres under one manager's care, and to aim at working this up to a steady yield of 8 and even 10 maunds per acre, through constant and liberal cultivation and unremitting attention. And certainly already in Ceylon there is encouragement to do full justice to the land yielding tea crops.

There is Mariawatte "tea garden," of which every old coffee-planter can form some idea, since it is situated on historic ground near to the first coffee plantation (Sinnappittia) opened in Ceylon, and by no means on primeval forestland. As much as 1,400 lbs., or close on seventeen maunds of made-tea per acre, have been gathered over choice portions of this "garden," and 100 acres planted four by four feet (with a good many vacancies) have yielded close on 100,000 lbs. of made-tea, or nearly twelve maunds per acre. A return of £25 an acre is a moderate estimate of the year's profit under such circumstances; and, indeed, we are aware that one of the fortunate proprietors has been astonishing old Ceylon men at home already by a sight of the figures representing moderate outlay on, and high receipts from, Mariawatte—figures which were never eclipsed in the best days of coffee.

"One swallow does not make a summer," but Mariawatte by no means stands alone. There is the case of 100 acres of young tea in a remote, unsuccessful, and most unpopular coffee district with the cultivation of which a well-known London house, on the advice of their local agent, would have nothing to do when it fell into their hands. Rather it was offered back to the debtor for one-seventh of his estimate of its value. Purchasing it for £700 cash, the 100-acre garden was at once leased for half the amount, and now we are creditably informed that it brings an income to the fortunate owner of Rs. 5,000 to Rs. 6,000 per annum, apart from the lessee's profits.

Yet again in the same district and in the midst of a country which has broken the purses, if not the hearts, of not a few coffee estate owners, agents and managers, we have one of the most flourishing and profitable tea-plantations in Ceylon. The reputation and the fortune of a young member of our mercantile community may well be said to have been made in this case. His older compeers hung back, or shook their heads over the risks associated with tea, and allowed a garden valued at Rs. 120,000 to sell for "a mere song" on the death of the owner and the peremptory winding-up of his estate. The gentleman who happily invested for his 350 acres of tea and large extent of reserve forest land would not to-day take probably ten times what he paid about a year ago. The crops and profits have already been proved to be abundant, and the climate and growth of leaf are all that could be desired.

On other estates in the Morawak Korale besides Anningkande and Campden Hill, the cultivation of tea is certain to be a great success. The Craven, Enselwatte, and many other familiar names of old coffee-plantations are in a fair way to come into notice as prosperous tea-gardens, and no less in the adjoining Kukulu Korale are there areas under tea, the growth of which is deemed perfection.

One of the earliest plantings of tea in Ceylon was on Glosenberg estate, Morawak Korle, by its spirited proprietors in the pioneering days of the district. The seed was among the finest ever imported into Ceylon, and a part was utilised on land belonging to the same owner near Nuwara Eliya. The enterprise was, however, not then proceeded with, and it is only now that Captain Bayley has begun to take an active interest in the suitability of his Pedro property for tea. Five acres under this plant have been cropped since December last, the plucked leaf being sold to a local factory and carefully weighed, with the following result—which it is worth giving in detail, because, although the romance here has yet to come, there is ample encouragement in the figures for a beginning at a high elevation:

			Plucked leaf lbs.
December	...	...	851
July	...	...	541
February	...	...	940
March	...	...	1,668
April	...	...	784
May	...	...	986
June	...	...	1,502
July	...	...	373
August	...	...	711
September	...	...	936

Plucked leaf ... 9,192 lbs.
Made-tea ... 2,298 lbs.

Ten per cent. was allowed off the weighing when there happened to be a shower. The result it will be seen was equal to a plucking of over 229 lbs. per month. The actual number of tea plants plucked was 14,125, which at four by four feet would give 5 1-5th acres. The crop of made tea was therefore equal to 528 lbs. per acre for twelve months, and if the place were planted four by three feet it is possible that as much as 672 lbs. might be obtained, or eight maunds per acre. Taking these as outside estimates even, for so high an elevation as Nuwara Eliya, where the flavour of the leaf ought to be exceptionally good, they are most encouraging.

But from no quarter do we have other than good news of tea, and from Matale on the one side to Uva on the other, the utmost activity prevails in the forming of nurseries and the planting out of the product which is soon to be the King of Ceylon's agricultural enterprise. Has Sir Arthur Gordon asked himself or his Executive Council what they ought to do to encourage the people of the land to cultivate a plant which has so evidently found its home in Ceylon? Surely the agents and headmen might be made the medium of distributing tea seed and instructions to the villagers to secure a start in all the districts suitable for the growth by Sinhalese and Tamils. What will be said in England—if a collapse of the China tea trade concentrates attention on India and Ceylon—when it is made known that while 50,000 acres were planted with tea in this island by private agency, chiefly colonists, its paternal Government was so fully engaged in developing a grand irrigation policy for the future, that no notice was taken of an industry which is clearly destined to become the most important in our agricultural record, and which will probably exercise a greater influence on the material improvement of the people, and on the general revenue of the Government, than all the local grain cultivation. If the Sinhalese and Tamils learn to grow tea freely, in addition to their palm and fruit trees, they will soon, in nearly every populous or occupied district, have plenty of means to indulge in the necessities and even luxuries of their most prosperous days. They will understand what it is to sell in the dearest and buy in the cheapest market.

The romance of our tea cultivation will indeed become a story of world-wide interest, should the Chinese lose even a single season! Very speedily would the maximum of 150,000 acres (of old if not new land) be planted up and capital flow to Ceylon for investment. But even without a Chinese blockade our tea industry is bound to advance steadily, and the encouragement to plant, carefully and judiciously, is as great as could be desired.—Ceylon Observer.

EDUCATION OF ARMY OFFICERS.*

A little book with some humorous illustrations has been brought out with the apparent object of showing the prospective evils the coming warrant for entrance examinations into the Army is rather wildly written, and the author is, in some matters, not quite up to date in his facts. He heads a chapter on entrance into the Army through the Militia as "The Back-door, or the Militia Channel," and would convey the idea to the uninitiated that this mode of entrance should be done away with in favour of Sandhurst, and that examination of Militia officers for the line is still conducted by a military board as it was five years ago. Most of the candidates who now enter by the Militia competitive examination would take the highest places in the Sandhurst final examination, and many who fail in the Military competitive would easily pass the Sandhurst final examination. The Sandhurst Cadets have only beat them on what is the author's abhorrence—the school work as taught by head-masters. The Militia officer not only actually serves for two trainings, but has also generally done several extra months' training at a depot under regular officers, and is able, on joining, at once to take his tour of duty as orderly officer or court-martial duty. Every officer who enters from Sandhurst has cost the country some money for his education, amounting in the aggregate to a considerable sum; whereas the Militia officer for a similar education has cost nothing, for he is made to earn his pay in the Militia well, and there can be little question as to which of the two is most appreciated on joining by the commanding officer of a regiment. The book, however, can be hardly intended to be seriously taken throughout, and it will be found amusing, which is no doubt the main point.

MR. DOSABHAI FRAMJI'S "HISTORY OF THE PARSIS."†

We heartily congratulate Mr. Dosabhai Framji, C.S.I., on the publication of his nagnum opus, in the shape of the magnificent "History of the Parsis," just published by Messrs. Macmillan and Co., and dedicated by permission, to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. We have read Mr. Framji's delightful chapters with the deepest interest, and know not which most to admire, his lucid account of the past of his ancient and historic race, or his frank and intelligent description of their present condition and manners. The illustrations, coloured and otherwise, are well-chosen and beautifully executed, and in every other respect Mr. Framji's publishers have done justice to the importance of his work.

Of the historical part of the book the chapter on "The Zoroastrians in Persia" is, perhaps, the most interesting, as showing the decadence of the community under the dominant Muhammadans. A pleasing contrast to this somewhat melancholy recital is afforded by the chapters on "The Zoroastrians in India," which is a narrative of almost unchecked progress and prosperity. As a valuable example of the reward that always attends self-help, industry, and integrity, this record of the Bombay Parsis is well worthy of being placed in the hands of the youth of all nations, by the side of such works as Smiles's "Self-Help," and the like. The educational history of the Parsis, too, is full of instructive lessons, and, as given in a most interesting style in Mr. Framji's sixth chapter, may well excite the emulation not only of other Indian communities, but also of their Western fellow-subjects. We hope in an early issue to give a more detailed review of this most important work, with some illustrative quotations; meanwhile, we cordially commend it to the attention of all our readers and of the educated world at large.

LETT'S DIARIES FOR 1885.‡

Lett's Diaries for 1885 maintain the high reputation which these publications have long borne amongst professional men and merchants. The information is well selected and arranged, and the whole series of the Diaries show such variety in contents, form, and price that no want seems to be left unstudied. One of the most convenient and ingenious of these diaries is compiled for the especial behoof of the housekeeper, whom it enables to see at a glance every detail of the domestic finances. The large-sized diary for office use, one page for a day, is a most luxurious and complete one.

WORDS, FACTS, AND PHRASES.*

This is a standard work of reference, carefully compiled, and with all its facts amply verified from the best authorities. By the general reader it will be found simply invaluable. How the "Broad Arrow" came to be used in England as a Government mark; why "John o' Groat's House" was so called, and nearly four thousand other "unconsidered trifles" of this sort are here explained in a way that takes away all excuse for the ignorance so common on such points.

SAVINGS BANKS AND CURRENCY NOTES.

TO THE EDITOR.

SIR,—In India the deposits in Government Savings Banks have rapidly increased, and the Government Paper-money in circulation exceeded, in 1882, one hundred and thirty-five millions of rupees.

What we have to do is to guard against the ill-effects of panic; we ought to have in all of the ten Currency Circles a sufficient supply of silver coin to meet the demand of Savings Banks depositors and of holders of Government Currency Notes.

In France the Government has during this century offered inducements to depositors to transfer their money from Savings Banks into the Three per Cents, and it thus avoids State bankruptcy, which might be caused by sudden runs on the Government treasuries. Cannot we imitate so good an example? Rupee Paper would immediately advance in value if we could induce our subjects to invest their savings in it: compare the numbers of investors in French Government Securities with the small number of natives of India, who invest in Rupee Paper. In 1883 there were in France nearly 4,100,000 Rente holders of the Consolidated Debt alone, being an increase of 2,800,000 in thirteen years since the year of the War in 1870.

If India should become disturbed, and a panic ensue, we shall witness an unprecedented disappearance of silver coin from circulation. Deposits will be withdrawn, Currency Notes will be cashed, and the proceeds be buried in the floors of huts, or in the walls of houses, or in fields: deep ploughing may then become an effectual means of finding treasure.

The holders of Rupee Paper are interested in preserving the peace in India, but depositors in Savings Banks and holders of Paper-money, when frightened by ugly rumours, whether true or false, will only think of grasping the sums of silver coin which we owe them.—Your obedient servant,

RUSSIA AND KHIVA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "TIMES."

SIR,—The annexation of Khiva by Russia, to which the papers recently adverted, may not take place as soon as the current rumour asserts, but the fact is that Russia is vigorously at work to bring that Khanate into such a state of confusion and anarchy as to get a plausible cause for its final incorporation into the dominions of the Czar. A European traveller who visited that Khanate on the lower Oxus a few months ago, and who was the favoured guest of Seid Mehemmed Rehim Khan, has given me a rather sad picture of the state things in that country and of the desperate position in which the present ruler, or more correctly the tax-collector of the Russians, is living.

Khiva, as is generally known, is bound to pay to Russia nearly two-and-a-half millions of roubles as the cost of the war of 1873, the annual rate of which amounts at present to 200,000 roubles a-year, a sum which is far above the powers of this small and otherwise poor Khanate, and which is naturally the chief cause of its troubles and disorders.

Trade and industry are nearly annihilated, owing to the influx of Russian merchandise, and not only is the impoverishment of the settled portion of the inhabitants rapidly progressing, but the Yomuts and Tchadors also suffer greatly from the recent change, and are quite unable to pay the taxes levied upon them by the officers of the Khan.

When the European traveller whom I have mentioned presented to the Khan the usual gifts of a guest, the young Prince frankly confessed his poverty, regretting with an ill-concealed shame his inability to make the usual presents in return. "For the Russians," he said, "take every farthing from me, and if things go on in this way I shall scarcely be able to provide for my own household." I may incidentally remark that the young Prince is anxious to enter the path of European civilisation, and that he even contemplates a visit to Europe, if his limited means and the Czar would permit it.

Through being compelled to apply the screw of unheard-of and unaccustomed taxation to his subjects, he is very naturally far from being beloved. The number of malcontents is increasing daily, whole tracts of the country remain uncultivated, and the end of it will be anarchy and rebellion, which will give the best pretext for interference to the Governor of Petro Alexandrovsk, who treats the Khan with unusual levity, and is anxiously waiting for the moment to put him aside entirely.

The intention of Russia to annex Khiva may well strike those who know that the politicians on the Neva have always given preference to the vassalage of the conquered Khanates, and that, in consideration of the deficit arising from the costly apparatus of Russian administration, the local Government has been always chosen as better answering to the Russian purposes. This was the motive which prompted the Court of St. Petersburg in 1873 to set the young Khan on the throne of Khiva, and the present change of purpose can only be explained in connection with the newly-acquired position on the Turcoman Steppe, it having become evident that the sway over these unruly nomads in the south of the Hyrcanian Desert will only be perfect if it extends also over the nomads in the north; for otherwise the Akhal Tekkes and their brethren around Merv, as well as the Yomuts on the Attrek, will always possess a link of secret communication, and may easily evade the Russian yoke imposed upon them. This is the reason why the Russians meditate the annexation of Khiva, which they will also carry out at the first given opportunity.—I beg to remain your obedient servant,

THE MASSACRE OF COOLIES AT TRINIDAD.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE TIMES."

SIR,—The slaughter of Indian Coolies at Trinidad will indeed require serious inquiry. At rare intervals serious collisions and loss of life have occurred in India owing to disputes between rival sects; in resistance to civil authority scarcely at all. I feel sure that in the last half century, at least, there has been no such slaughter in collision with the civil authority in all our vast Empire in India. It is bad enough that such should have taken place in the small population of Trinidad.

But worse remains behind, according to your correspondence. "The fact is that the rest of the population are afraid of the Coolies, and so take these stern measures to keep them down." And why are they afraid of these mild Coolies? There is dissatisfaction among them "on account of increased work, and pay at the old rate. A few weeks ago, in consequence of the great depression in the sugar market, their tasks were increased, and a spirit of discontent had been engendered thereby." The colonial correspondent goes on:—"I do not, of course, blame the measure; it might, indeed, have been absolutely necessary to save the planters." I, on the other hand, say that if the statement is correct there has been the grossest breach of contract. The Coolies are engaged in India to serve for five years at a specified rate of wages. I have always doubted whether we are justified in attesting these contracts, for, as a matter of fact, they are not fully acted on. The wage is commuted to a payment for a certain task, called a day's work, over which the Indian Government has no control, and which, though very well for the skilled and able-bodied, is not a fulfilment of contract to the weak and unskilled, who are engaged on what they may well believe to be a wage contract. Be that as it may, the fixed task system has so long prevailed that I would not raise that question here. Of late years much effort has been made to protect the Coolies, and we may assume that, on the average, the established tasks are fair, advantageous to the skilled if disadvantageous to the unskilled. But what shall we say if, owing to depression of sugar, Coolies serving under these five-year contracts are arbitrarily subjected to a change in the task-work standard—in other words, to a reduction in the wages for which they are working—and if, in consequence of the natural discontent so engendered, it has been thought necessary to seize an occasion of opposition to a sudden and arbitrary police regulation to shoot them down wholesale? I say again that a thorough inquiry is urgently necessary.—Your obedient servant,

INDIA AND THE EXHIBITION OF 1886.—In lecturing on India at the Hull Church Institute on the 24th ult., Professor Monier Williams called attention to the fact that the recent Calcutta Exhibition had done good service by teaching the native population to appreciate their own arts and manufactures, and by stimulating them to revive old industries. He instanced the beautifully carved stone gateway from Gwalior, entirely carved by native workmen under the direction and superintendence of Major Keith. This gateway had been presented to the South Kensington Museum. Professor Monier Williams looked forward to the London Exhibition of 1886 as likely to dissipate the apathy which prevailed among Englishmen in regard to the development of Indian industries, and as calculated to awaken a greater interest in India generally.

Home News.

It is probable, the Daily News says, that Mr. Gorst may revisit India on professional business during the recess, joining Lord Randolph Churchill later.

COUNCIL DRAFTS.—The tenders for Rs.20,00,000 in bills on India and telegraphic transfers were received on Wednesday at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—in bills on Calcutta, Rs.11,95,000, average rate 1s. 7-06d.; on Bombay, Rs.7,94,000, average rate 1s. 7-0625d.; and on Madras, Rs.11,000, average rate 1s. 7-0625d.; in telegraphic transfers on Calcutta, Rs.8,00,000, average rate 1s. 7-125d.—total, Rs.28,00,000. Tenders for bills on all Presidencies at 1s. 7 1-16d. will receive about 17 per cent., above in full, and for telegraphic transfers on Calcutta at 1s. 7½d. will receive in full. Bills for Rs.5,00,000 on Calcutta subsequently realised 1s. 7 3-32d.; while another special allotment of bills for Rs.53,000 on Madras was made at 1s. 7½d. Without counting the amounts sold the remittances disposed of since the commencement of the financial year in April has been Rs.8,99,99,918, realising £7,352,566. The India Council on Thursday sold bills for Rs.25,000 and Rs.2,08,400 on Bombay, at 1s. 7½d. per rupee.

NOTICES, DIVIDENDS, MEETINGS, ETC.

ORIENTAL GAS COMPANY.—The ordinary general meeting of the Oriental Gas Company (Limited) was held, on Wednesday last, at the offices, 14, St. Mary-axe. Mr. James S. Stopford presided, and, in moving the adoption of the report, observed that the balance-sheet was a great deal more favourable than any which the directors had been able to present since the formation of the company. It was true that this result was partly owing to the Exhibition at Calcutta last season, but still a large proportion of the extra profit they had made was undoubtedly owing to the normal increase of their business, their favourable purchases of coal, their economical expenditure, and their judicious arrangement for disposing of the residual products. Their works and machinery were in first-rate order, and were ample for all immediate requirements. The exchange continued to operate most prejudicially to the company. They were able, as the result of the year's working, to strengthen their reserve fund materially, and at the same time to recommend an increased dividend. They had at last arrived at a 10 per cent. dividend, their reserve fund amounted to nearly 10 per cent. of their paid-up capital, and their debenture debt had been reduced from about £75,000, at which it stood a few years ago, to £52,000. Mr. Henry Solomon seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.—At the half-yearly general meeting of the East Indian Railway Company, to be held in January next, the Board of Directors will recommend the payment of a dividend of £1 2s. 8d. per cent. on the deferred annuity capital of the company, in addition to the guaranteed interest of £2 per cent. for the half-year.

BOMBAY, BARODA, AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.—The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders in the above company will be held at the Cannon-street Hotel on the 12th inst. at 1 P.M.

MADRAS RAILWAY.—The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders in the above company will be held at the Cannon-street Hotel on the 17th inst. at 1 P.M.

NEERUDDA COAL AND IRON COMPANY.—A general meeting of the shareholders in the above company will be held at 18, Finsbury-circus, on the 9th inst., at 2 P.M.

ASSAM RAILWAYS AND TRADING COMPANY (LIMITED).—The fourth ordinary general meeting of the above company was held on Friday last at the City Terminus Hotel. Mr. J. S. Forbes presided, and, in moving the adoption of the report, observed that they had met to deal with the accounts for the year ending June 30th last. He stated that there had been a considerable increase in the debentures—£188,000. Since June, 1883, with the shareholders' consent, a large amount of debentures had been issued, and the amount was now £250,000. The expenditure on the railway during the year had been £85,000, on the collieries nearly £40,000, on the flotilla £3,463, and upon other matters there had been an expenditure of £6,295, which had not yet been allocated. With respect to the subsidy on the railway and the possible purchase of it in the future by the Government, they would have to keep a close eye on that part of the undertaking. The expenditure on revenue account on the railways in the year ended the 30th of June last had been 131 per cent. on the gross receipts, but this account was quite abnormal. The maintenance of way and works, the locomotive expenses, and the traffic and general charges would in future remain very much stationary, while the volume of traffic, now coming and to come, on the line next year would greatly increase, and the net profit would show very different results. For the last few weeks considerable quantities of coal had been turned out—700 to 800 tons per week had been despatched from Margherita, the railway station immediately adjacent to the collieries, down the line, chiefly to Dibrugarh.

They were now satisfied that the coal could be produced to the company at a moderate sum and sold at considerable profit, while the purchasers would derive considerable advantage in this price as compared with what they had been paying elsewhere. The Talup branch would be officially inspected on Saturday, when they would be entitled to receive the whole subsidy. Mr. P. C. Leckie having seconded the motion, a long discussion ensued, in the course of which it was stated that the construction of the line and works had cost considerably more than the estimate in the prospectus. The Chairman, in reply, stated that they must admit that the amount mentioned in the prospectus had proved too limited for the work that had to be done. He had had a good deal of experience of railways, and he knew that estimates were very often exceeded. He quite agreed in the desirability of presenting the accounts more fully in the future. The directors were responsible for the appointment of the officers, and if any of them were found to be incompetent they would have to go; but he entirely repudiated all that had been said against the official mentioned. Mr. B. Piercy, the engineer, afterwards addressed the meeting, and stated that the railway had cost £3,500 a mile, instead of £3,000, as estimated, on account of deviations from the specifications of the Government, the alterations having been made in view of the heavy mineral traffic which would pass over the line. He spoke in sanguine terms of the prospects of the undertaking. The report was adopted, and resolutions were afterwards passed re-electing the retiring directors and auditors, and confirming the appointment as a director of Mr. Phillip Gosset, in the place of Sir A. J. Otway, M.P., resigned.

PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.—Mr. T. Sutherland, M.P., presided yesterday afternoon over the annual general meeting of the proprietors in this Company, which was held at the offices, Leadenhall-street.—The Chairman moved the adoption of the report, and in doing so said that the business of the Company had been conducted with perfect safety in the past year, and he ventured to say that the general administration of their affairs had been such as in no way to detract from the high character and position which the Company had always maintained. The revenue for the year, including the amount brought forward, had been £2,348,291, or £14,191 less than in 1883, but in 1883 they received £142,905 for the services they rendered in connection with the Egyptian expedition, whereas this year they had received for casual transport service £25,159. Eliminating these two sums from the accounts, the normal revenue of this year had been £2,323,132, or an increase over last year of £103,555. That was a very large increase under any circumstances; but under the circumstances connected with the trade of last year, it was a very considerable increase. They had had an increase in freights of £68,953, and in passage money of £23,345; and adding a small difference in favour of the present account for interest of between £4,000 and £5,000, the total advantage for the present year had been £103,555. This increased working was no doubt due to a considerable extent to the increased work which they had done in the past year. He found that they had run 2,345,862 miles, or an increase as compared with 1883 of 119,079 miles. Of course this extra work had involved extra expenditure, and the increase had been £52,646; but the satisfactory fact remained, that after deducting the extra expenditure from the normal working, the result showed that that normal working was this year better by 2 per cent. than it was last year. Last year they divided among the proprietors 5 per cent. from the normal working; while this year they would divide 6 per cent. They were at the same time enabled to carry to the credit of depreciation, or extra depreciation, £55,000, or £5,000 in excess of last year, while last year it was carried not from the normal working, but from an independent source of revenue. This result was also independent of the return of 1 per cent. which they would make on their underwriting account. This general reserve would be increased to £408,665. Their extraordinary repairs had been smaller than usual, enabling the credit at the renewal account to be increased by £45,000. As he had said before, the over-building of ships had led to a serious depreciation in freights, and there were now hundreds of vessels laid up. In the face of the decline in freights they had had an increase of over £60,000 in that branch of their business, but in a great measure this had been owing to exceptional causes, one of those causes being the hostility between France and China. The increase in their passenger earnings had also been in spite of the fact that their Continental route had been closed during the whole year. The Post-office subsidy had not helped them by any means to the extent supposed in some quarters. They estimated to benefit to the extent of £20,000 a-year, when the whole of the reductions made under the Ship-owners' Conference came into force in the charges of the Suez Canal Company. The value of their fleet now stood at £2,658,000, or £15 16s. 1d. a-ton, notwithstanding that they had added this year 15,000 tons of fine ships to their fleet. Their mail contract would expire at the beginning of 1888, and when the moment came for dealing with this question, it would be dealt with all the experience and ability of the Board.—The motion was seconded and carried unanimously after a short discussion, and the dividend and bonus having been declared, a vote of thanks to the chairman and directors terminated the proceedings.]

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.

On Tuesday the tendency of the price of bar silver was towards the parity of the Indian exchanges, which were quoted at ls. 7 1-16d. to ls. 7 3-32d. Some business was done on Indian account during the day at 49½d. per ounce. Part of the recent arrival of Mexican dollars, which could not be disposed of yesterday, found prices at 49½d. to 49 3-16d. per ounce. Rupee Paper was flat, the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. leaving off at 81½, 81½, and the Four per Cents. at 79½ 79½.

There was no alteration in the price of bar silver on Wednesday, a little business having again been done at 49½d. per ounce. Mexican dollars declined 1-16l. to 49½d., at which price small parcels were sold. Indian exchanges were dull at ls. 7 1-32d. in Bombay, and ls. 7 1-16d. in Calcutta. Rupee Paper was unaltered.

The remittance of bar silver brought by the Nile was disposed of on Thursday at 49½d. per ounce, but the consignees could not obtain Wednesday's price for the Mexican dollars which came to hand by the same vessel, and the coins were finally sold at 49 1-16l. per ounce, showing a fall of 1-16l. The only alteration in the Eastern rates of exchange was a decline of ½d. in the Hong Kong quotation to 3s. 7½d. Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Rupee Paper was dull, closing at 81 81½. The Four per Cents., however, were unchanged at 79½ 79½.

On Friday the arrival of bar silver per Flaxman, which had been expected for some days, was sold at 49½d. per ounce. Very little business was done in Mexican dollars, the price remains. at 49 1-16d. Indian exchange rates were quoted at about ls. 7 1-16d. Transactions in Rupee paper were very limited, the prices were unaltered at 81½ and 79½ ¾ for the Four-and-a-Half and Four per Cents respectively.

On Saturday the silver market was extremely quiet; bars and dollars were unchanged at 49½d. and 49 1-16d. per ounce respectively. There was no alteration in the quotation of Rupee paper.

There was no alteration in the price of silver on Monday. There was a rise in the Indian exchange rate, the quotation now being ls. 7 3-32d. and ls. 7½d. for Bombay and Calcutta respectively. Rupee paper remains unaltered.

Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Rupee paper was in good demand on Tuesday, which closed at 81½ ¾, showing an advance of ¼. The Four per Cents. remain unaltered. Small parcels of bar silver were sold at 49½ per ounce.

THE Englishman announces that the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal will reappoint as members of his Council the Hon. C. P. L. Macaulay, Secretary of the Financial Department, and the Hon. Colonel Trevor, Secretary, Public Works Department, for a further period of office. The two other vacant memberships will be given to Mr. A. P. Macdonnell, Secretary of the General and Revenue Departments, and Moulvi Abdul Jabbar, Deputy Magistrate, Patna, who entered the subordinate executive service so long ago as 1859.

LORD WILLIAM BERESFORD took over charge on the 14th ult. of the office of Military Secretary to the Viceroy from Major the Hon. H. Legge, who has acted with so much popularity and ability as his locum tenens during the past four months.

ONE of the most important ceremonies connected with Freemasonry ever witnessed in India, and one that was attended with considerable pomp and magnificence, was held at Meerut on the 7th ult., on which occasion H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, 33° Past Grand Senior, Warden of England and Great Prior of Ireland, opened a Rose Croix Chapter, Knight Templar Reception, and Knight of Malta Priory.

MADRAS.

THE following notice has lately been circulated by the superintendent and magistrate of the Cardamom Hills on behalf of the Travancore Government:—"The Dewan of Travancore has sanctioned the offer of a reward of Rs. 50 to anyone who kills the rogue elephant that haunts the roads roundabout Kolapara, Santhampara, &c., in the Cardamom Hills. The tusks and the teeth of the animal when killed will be the property of the Government." The Madras Mail, commenting on the notice, says:—"Considering that this rogue has, we understand, already killed several persons, the reward now offered for its destruction can scarcely be called an adequate one."

THE "DHOBIES'" PETITION TO THE GOVERNOR.—At noon on the 11th ult. a petition from the dhobies of Madras, complaining of the tax to be levied upon them by the local Municipality, was presented to H.E. the Governor in the Fort. Some five or six hundred dhobies also assembled on the Mount-road, near Munroe's statue, and as the Governor's carriage drove past to the Fort—yesterday being Council day—the dhobies raised a cry, stating that they were called upon to pay taxes which they could not afford. The crowd dispersed soon after the Governor's carriage proceeded to the Fort. The petition was presented when his Excellency alighted at the Secretariat.—Standard.

MYSORE RAILWAY EXTENSION.—It is rumoured in well-informed circles here that the Government of India's prohibition of the extension of the Tumkur Railway to Tiptur is made with the view of strengthening the proposal made by the Southern Mahratta Company to construct all the line necessary to complete it from the Mysore boundary at Hurryhur through Mysore territory to Goobi, and also to take over and work the existing State lines. The Government of India views this favourably, and it is not at all improbable that the transfer of the lines to the Southern Mahratta Company will take place.

SOLDIERS' INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.—The Soldiers' Industrial Exhibition will open here on the 21st October, 1885. It is open to British and native troops of the Madras Presidency and Burmah. A committee has been formed, with General Rowlands as president and Major Clarke, Oxfordshire Regiment, as honorary secretary.

BOMBAY.

THE Bombay Town Council have made a grant of Rs. 4,000 towards defraying the cost of illuminated addresses to Lord Ripon and Lord Dufferin, and of providing caskets for the addresses.

MEETINGS have been held in the principal towns in this Presidency, at which resolutions have been passed to present farewell addresses to Lord Ripon. In other towns it is proposed to erect public buildings in honour of the retiring Viceroy.

LORD RIPON has been compelled to decline an invitation to visit Ahmedabad, as it would interfere with existing arrangements.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR OF BOMBAY, who is now visiting Sind, has been presented with an address at Kurrachee.

THERE are indications that Bombay will make a very discreditable display at the Antwerp International Exhibition.

THE medal awarded to the Bombay Government for their exhibits at the Fisheries Exhibition has been received and handed over to the Curator of the Victoria Museum.

A REFERENCE having been made by the Government of Bombay to the Government of India regarding the transit charges for chargers selected for officers at Remount depôts, but returned to the ranks as unsuitable within a short time, it has been decided that the selecting officer is liable for all risks and charges for horses after leaving the depôt.

THE Inspector-General, Royal Artillery, for India left Simla, accompanied by his Brigade-Major, on the 12th ult. to commence his annual tour of inspection. He will inspect this winter the batteries at the following stations, viz., Nusseerabad, Neemuch, Mhow, Saugor, Bombay, Kirkee, Secunderabad, Madras, Rangoon, Thavetmyo, Tounghoo, Calcutta, Dinapore, Cawnpore, Lucknow, Agra, Morar, Delhi, Meerut, and Umballa.

THE Quartermaster-General in India has called upon general officers commanding divisions and districts to state how far it has been practicable to carry out the instructions in transport duty during the months of August and September, and how the classes of instruction have been selected and composed. Those having depôts of instruction within their commands are further required to submit their opinions as to the most suitable system for carrying out the education of officers and men in transport duties. The size, composition, and selection of the classes, and the nature, duration, and period of the instruction, are the points on which opinions are specially desired.

BURMA.

SPECIAL provision is made in British Burma for the education of children of European descent, by the offer of results and attendance grants at double rates, by the offer annually of 180 special stipends to enable orphan and fatherless children to obtain a free education, and by the offer annually of 30 paid apprenticeships in the railway and elsewhere. The number of children of European descent of schoolgoing age is estimated at 1,800. Of these 1,420 were actually at school on 31st March last, 111 being in receipt of Government stipends. The apprenticeships have not hitherto been very freely taken up. Eight apprenticeships have been awarded in Rangoon, and the apprentices are all doing well. At the railway workshops at Insien, Mr. Thomas has a class of 20 European apprentices who are not in receipt of any special stipends from Government. The class is admirably managed, and has so far been highly successful both in the interests of Government and in those of the lads under training.

WHEN Commissioner of Tenasserim Colonel Plant recommended that officers travelling by Mr. Dawson's steamers in the Amherst District should be granted half daily travelling allowances; but the Chief Commissioner has replied that he considers provisions of the Civil Travelling Allowance Code sufficiently liberal, and does not see the necessity of sanctioning special arrangements in the case in question.

CEYLON.

THE Roman Catholic community in Ceylon is at present in a ferment on account of the Pope having removed certain churches in Colombo among other places from under the authority of the Archbishop of Goa. The Goanese priests do not seem to relish being handed over to the care of the local bishops.

AMONG recent visitors to the island have been Mrs. Grant Duff and her son on their way to Madras, the Rev. Charles Strong of the Scotch Church, Melbourne, on his way back to that city, and Mr. I. D. Walker and Mr. Spofforth, the well-known cricketers, en route to Australia.

ST. ANDREW'S DAY is always celebrated by Scotchmen up-country in an appropriate manner. The usual dinner this year will be rendered more than usually memorable, as H.E. the Governor has intimated his intention of being present to meet his "brither Scots" on the occasion. A meeting was to be held at Hatton on the 15th ult., to arrange for the success of the dinner.

A RIOT in Colombo which at one time looked as though it would have been of a serious nature has passed over without any worse results than a few broken heads and flesh wounds. The disturbances originated in a gambling quarrel and spread till it became a fight between Sinhalese and Moormen, in which hundreds were engaged on either side for some three days. During this time a large part of the Pettah was given up to the rioters, and the streets rendered impassable by the rowdies.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1884.

THE NATIONAL ANTHEM FOR INDIA AND THE GREAT EXHIBITION OF 1886.

It is now no secret that, amid the pageantry that will inaugurate the great Indian and Colonial Exhibition of 1886, it is intended that one of the most pleasing and impressive ceremonies shall be the production on a grand scale of the National Anthem in some of the vernacular languages of Her Majesty's Indian Empire. The event will be one of great and peculiar interest to our Indian visitors—of whom, we hope, a large number will then be in London—as well as to the vast masses of the British and Colonial subjects of the Queen who will attend the Exhibition. We are only feebly expressing the feelings of untold millions when we add that it is the hearty desire of them all that this occasion for the manifestation of that sentiment of warm personal loyalty to Her Gracious Majesty and to the Royal and Imperial dynasty, which unites the Indian with all the sections of the English race, shall be worthily celebrated. And it is, therefore with no little pleasure that we learn that the anticipation of this joyful event has already had the effect of giving a considerable impetus to the movement originated by Canon Harford for establishing the National Anthem in the vernacular languages throughout the length and breadth of India. The General Committee formed to advance that movement in London, with his Grace the Duke of Leinster as president, numbers among its members a large proportion of the most distinguished men of the day. We are now exceedingly glad to be able to announce that Sir Philip Cunliffe Owen, K.C.M.G., C.B., C.I.E., has accepted the office, lately vacant, of Chairman of the Executive Council of that Committee. At a meeting of the Council, held at 4A, Dean's-yard, Westminster, on Thursday last, Sir Philip Owen presided for the first time over its deliberations. Among the other members of the Council present were Mr. Roper Lethbridge, C.I.E., Mr. A. N. Wollaston of the India Office, and the Rev.

Canon Harford; and we learn that various resolutions for the active and vigorous prosecution of the objects of the movement were unanimously adopted.

We have no doubt whatever that the present moment is a singularly propitious one for the advancement of this most loyal and patriotic project; and we heartily congratulate the Council on having so opportunely obtained the leadership of such a chairman as Sir Philip Owen, whose ability, energy, and wonderful faculty for organisation are always sufficient to ensure the success of any movement with which he is actively identified. It is not merely the approach of the Imperial Exhibition—when England will join hands with her Colonies and with India under circumstances of more than ordinary significance—that just now gives especial point to the arguments for the extension of our National Anthem to our Indian fellow-subjects in their own tongues. There is also the happy fact of the serenity of the political horizon. Differences of political opinion that have caused coldness between Englishmen and Englishmen, as well also as some that have caused a like feeling of temporary estrangement between Englishmen and Indians, have now been happily and amicably adjusted. Every patriotic subject of Her Majesty will earnestly hope that these estrangements have disappeared, never to return; and we are very sure that there is no tie that can bind together the various communities of this great Empire more firmly than that which is produced by a common sentiment of love and loyalty towards a common Sovereign. Cynics may sneer at this as mere sentimentalism; but no wise or great statesman has ever yet undervalued the strength and importance of the vast popular forces that are directed by such sentiments. A great master of the human heart once said, "Give me the making of the songs of a people, and I care not who makes their laws"; and for the real friendship and solidarity of the English and Indian peoples, it is of as great importance that they should sing the same national and patriotic songs, as that they should be under the same just and equal laws.

The movement is already a remarkable success in India, thanks very largely to the loyal zeal of the Raja Sourindro Mohun Tagore, C.I.E., who is at once the prince and the high priest of Oriental music. We shall take an early opportunity of putting before our readers a full account of all the various successes achieved, and the very gratifying results that can be exhibited up to date. It is, indeed, a remarkable fact—and one that is exceedingly pleasing from the point of view of Indian loyalty—that, of the money that has actually been subscribed for the expenses of the movement, a somewhat larger sum has come from India than from England. We learn that the Indian subscriptions to date have amounted to £417 8s., while those from England have only been £264 3s. 5d. But while this fact is, we repeat, gratifying from one point of view, we earnestly hope that our English friends will feel that they are bound in honour not to be left behind in this generous and patriotic emulation of the two peoples. We feel confident that one result of the increased vigour with which the movement is now to be conducted in this country will be an increase in the English subscriptions, until their amount is at least equal to that which has been subscribed in Calcutta, Bombay, and other parts of India. It is no little thing to be able already to point to such facts as the organisation of Native choirs both in Calcutta and Bombay, by whom the National Anthem has been well and impressively rendered on great public occasions. But the promoters of the movement must not consider their work done until the same patriotic strains are familiar to the children of every school, nay, of every home, in India.

THE LANDHOLDERS' MEMORIAL AGAINST THE TENANCY BILL.

We endeavoured last week to show what the rights of the Bengal zemindars were before the Permanent Settlement. The next division of the subject with which the Memorial of the Landholders proceeds to treat is whether those rights had become obsolete in 1793; and we may briefly examine how Mr. Macdonnell and his concurrent Governments have dealt with this very important question.

Although it appears from the Memorial that the extremely partisan views of the Bengal Secretary upon the historical aspect of the zemindars' status have not been altogether adopted by the Government of India, they attain very much the same goal by the oracular declaration that in 1793 the zemindars' rights had to a great extent become obliterated, and that the zemindar had sunk into the tax-collector. This is a position which the Memorialists emphatically challenge and repudiate. It is unnecessary to reproduce the evidence, which we gave in some detail last week, showing that although the hereditary rights of the zemindars had been encroached upon by both the Mahomedan and the British Governments, the principle of the zemindaree system had never been ignored. Both Governments resorted to the same sort of practice in order to extort a large amount of land revenue from the Province. When the collection of the land rents was farmed out by them to the highest bidder, the farmer, who carried off the prize, could squeeze not only the ordinary ryots or cultivators of the soil, but he could put the screw on the zemindar himself, who would be found in direct possession of his khamar and other lands recently redeemed from jungle. It is needless to inquire what the motives were of the Mahomedan Government in trying to extort a larger landed revenue. As to the British Government, it is to be feared that the impelling power came originally from England. The old Court of Directors were constantly asking for more revenue. The local authorities in Bengal were admittedly more or less ignorant and inexperienced, and had not arrived at a clear understanding of the fiscal and agricultural relations between the Government and the people. They were told that the Government was the real owner of the soil, and they believed it. Owing to divers circumstances, such as wars and famines, they found it impossible to levy the same amount of land revenue from year to year. They found that the zemindars either could not or would not pay the expected quota. And so from time to time the mostajir was employed to squeeze the zemindar, until eventually, as is well-known, Warren Hastings, in 1772-73, let out in farm to the highest bidder almost the entire landed property in Bengal, completely ignoring the vested rights of the hereditary zemindars and other proprietors of land.

The students of Indian history know full well what reward Warren Hastings reaped for this excessive zeal to serve his masters by enhancing their land-revenue. But it remained for Mr. Macdonnell, as Revenue Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to show such a similar excess of zeal in his attempt to explain Warren Hastings's conduct, that he has laid himself open to the charge which the Memorialists regret to have to make that his statement involves a grave suggestio falsi. It is not merely that Mr. Macdonnell is inconsistent in his arguments, and in almost the same breath describes the trial of Warren Hastings as a strictly judicial adjudication untinted by political consideration, and then proceeds to discount its value as "the mere outcome of party politics." But after misquoting, as we showed last week, the terms of the Company's Dowani Sunnud, he says that the zemindars themselves are the strongest witnesses against themselves. He asserts that when the zemindars themselves petitioned the Government for redress against the hardship of farming their lands, they never once claimed any proprietary right in the soil, but only contended for pecuniary allowances when dispossessed of the management of their zemindarees. It is difficult to understand by what obliquity of judgment Mr. Macdonnell has appropriated this statement as an argument in support of his views. In the first place, the Memorialists have unearthed the petition which he cites, and it turns out to be, not a general petition of the zemindars at large, but from a few of the zemindars in the district of Midnapore; and the quotation made by Mr. Macdonnell is not from the original petition, but from the mutilated extracts of the remarks by a Mr. Graham upon the petition. But even if the petition were genuine it would not substantiate Mr. Macdonnell's allegation that the zemindars did not claim a proprietary right in the soil. They asked for the pecuniary allowance which was due to zemindars on account of their hereditary proprietary right in the soil; and it is a mere quibble to say that they claimed no proprietary right, when it was the basis of their claim for the pecuniary allowance known as malikana or moshakera, of which the essence is that it is the share of the rental due to the malik or proprietor, moshakera merely denoting its monthly payment.

It may surely be admitted by any reasonable person that the contemporaneous evidence recorded in the Regulations published by Lord Cornwallis in 1793 is entitled to the highest respect and credit. Mr. Macdonnell seems to be aware of this, and he fancies that by a skilful quotation he can prove his case from the Regulations themselves. He was, therefore, pleased to declare that the Regulation (2 of 1793) says that "the zemindars before 1793 had never been vested with property in the soil," and he rides off triumphant, with the notion that it was only in 1793 that proprietary rights in the soil were conferred upon the landholders. But, as has been shown above, the Memorialists have found reason to impute the suggestio falsi to Mr. Macdonnell, and, in the present instance, he has laid himself open to the charge of suppressio veri. At all events, he has been guilty of serious misquotation, and this offence is the more serious, because when a Government Secretary quotes a Regulation, the Lieutenant-Governor or the Viceroy can hardly be expected to turn up the ponderous volumes of Indian law to verify the quotation. But the Memorialists point out that the actual text to which Mr. Macdonnell refers runs as follows:—"The property in the soil was never before formally declared to be vested in the landholders." This is an entirely different thing from Mr. Macdonnell's version of the text. It was the first formal declaration by the British Government that the soil was vested in the zemindars, but the existence of such a right is quite independent of its formal recognition by a new and conquering power. As the Memorialists justly observe, the whole tenor of the passage presupposes the prior existence of the right. A right must exist before it can be declared, and when the statute speaks of a present formal declaration of a vested right, it necessarily implies the well-known existence of such a right in previous times. Indeed, there are other passages in the same preamble of the Regulation where proprietors of lands, proprietors of estates, and landholders are mentioned as pre-existing things. In the passage immediately following that where Mr. Macdonnell stops his emasculated quotation, it is declared that "when the extension of cultivation was productive only of a heavier assessment, and even the possession of the property was uncertain, the hereditary landholder had little inducement to improve his estate; and moneyed men had no encouragement to embark their capital in the purchase or improvement of land, whilst not only the profit, but the security for the capital itself was so precarious. The same causes, therefore, which prevented the improvement of land depreciated its value." It would be absurd, as the Memorialists observe, in the face of such language to impute to Lord Cornwallis the idea that he was for the first time investing landholders with a right of property in the lands which had already belonged to them in hereditary right, and were capable of sale and purchase; and it is only by this serious misquotation that Mr. Macdonnell can delude even himself with the notion that such could be the intention of Lord Cornwallis. The main object of the Permanent Settlement, as is well known, was to restore and establish confidence among the zemindars of Bengal by putting a limit on the annual demands of the ruling power for revenue, and thus abolishing the system of farming out the estates of the unfortunate zemindars who were unable to meet the constantly-increasing demands of Government. It is scarcely to be believed that any less blind partizan than Mr. Macdonnell should have persuaded himself, and have tried to persuade others, that the Permanent Settlement was, in fact, no settlement at all, as, according to his showing, it conferred no valuable rights on the zemindars, and left, according to his opinion, the rights of the cultivators undefined and unsettled. But we shall return to this part of the question in a future number.

THE Paris journal, Le Monde, understands that the territory of Sheikh Said, in the Gulf of Aden, has been sold to a German firm.

MESSRS. WARD & DOWNEY will publish on the 15th inst., under the title of "Leaves from the Life of a Special Correspondent," the reminiscences of Mr. John Augustus O'Shea. The work will include recollections of the Franco-German war and the Commune, and of Napoleon III. and the Imperial family, Prince Pierre Buonaparte, Victor Noir, Thiers, Béranger, Rochefort, Bazaine, Paul de Cassagnac, John Mitchell, Edmond O'Donovan, Father Prout, Dickens, Thackeray, and others.

DEPARTURE OF H.M.S. "MALABAR."—The Indian troopship Malabar, Captain Harris, left Portsmouth on Thursday last for Bombay. She took out Captain Dease, Lieutenants Rhodes and Shipley, and 100 men of the 2nd Royal Fusiliers from Colchester; Lieutenants Baker and Boileau and 197 men of the 2nd Norfolk Regiment from Gosport; Lieutenant Crocker and 176 men of the 2nd Leicester Regiment from Aldershot; Lieutenant-Colonel Hamilton, Lieutenants Lindsell and De Lisle, and 176 men of the Royal Scots Fusiliers from Aldershot; Captain Watson, Lieutenants Penham, Swinburne, and Pile, and 104 men of the 1st East Lancashire Regiment from Aldershot; Major Morrison, Lieutenants Warren and Leicester, and 168 men of the 1st South Yorkshire Regiment from York; 139 men of the 2nd Wiltshire Regiment from Aldershot; and Lieutenants Lang and Moore and 82 men of the 2nd Manchester Regiment from Shorncliffe. ## THE "VOICE OF INDIA."

TO THE PUBLIC OPINION OF THE PEOPLE OF INDIA.

THERE are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing MONTHLY (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native journals throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally docile and conservative; and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth;
but it is a policy of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is specially desired to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

COLONIES & FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

THIS WORK gives a vast amount of information respecting the business carried on between the United Kingdom and the Colonies and Foreign Countries; showing the description of goods, and the amount thereof, exported to each Colony or Country abroad, the British Ports whence shipments are made, the MERCHANTS, FACTORS, and
SHIPPERS at the various Ports and Towns in England, the Manufacturers of the Principal Goods
exported, and the MERCHANTS AND OTHERS
ABROAD WHO ARE IMPORTERS OR BUYERS OF BRITISH GOODS.

It also gives complete information as to the various descriptions of goods, and the amounts thereof, imported from abroad into this country,
with the names of the Merchants and Shippers,
and also the Manufacturers at the Principal Towns
of the various Goods imported.

The Work is divided into three principal divisions
the first of which comprises the various Foreign Countries and British Possessions throughout the world to which British Manufactures are exported.

Under each of these is given, first:—A Statistical Account of the Country, the Financial Position, Business Relations with this Country, with,
in the case of Foreign States, the names of the British and other Consuls, the name of the Minister in this country, Consuls, Vice-Consuls, &c., at the various Ports and Places in this country; the
PRINCIPAL BANKERS, the MERCHANTS, COMMISSION
MERCHANTS, BUYERS OF ENGLISH GOODS, and the Manufacturers, &c., at the Principal Towns of the various goods imported; the various Ports in each country; also the Ports in this country whence Shipments are made; Tariffs, &c., &c.; a Tabular
Statement showing the Exports from this country
during the last three years; a List of the Merchants and Shippers in the various British Towns;
List of Steamers and other Vessels sailing from
the Ports; also a List of the various Manufactures that are exported from this country.

The second division comprises an Alphabetical
List of the Exporters from this country, stating the class of goods exported by them.

The third division of the Work embraces the names and addresses of the actual Manufacturers,
or Manufacturers' Agents, of the articles exported, describing as clearly as possible the specialities of each Manufacturer.

The Times, September 20th, 1884.

"It is almost exhaustive as a guide to the shipping and manufacturing industries, both export and import,

Daily Chronicle, September 12th, 1884.

"Merchants and manufacturers of all kinds will find the Directory a valuable guide, whether their interests

Daily News, September 17th, 1884.

"It abounds in information of the kind which merchants, manufacturers, and exporters are constantly in need of. Its scope, however, is not confined to the classes who in this country have business with the colonies and foreign parts, but includes also the principal merchants abroad, so that the book becomes a tolerably complete guide to the import and export industries of all countries with which Great Britain has any mercantile relation, and vice versa."

European Mail, September 26th, 1884.

"In collecting the names of foreign and colonial firms
a task of considerable difficulty, as will be understood
—Messrs. Kelly have had the assistance of the British consuls, many of whom have given personal testimony to the important service this Directory fulfils in commercial circles abroad."

THE DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS.

W. THORNHILL & CO., Sole Agents.

The Reputation of the "DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS," originally introduced into England by W. THORNHILL and CO., is now permanently established. The success of their enterprise has surpassed their most sanguine expectations. "DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS" afford the only instance hitherto attained of the absolutely perfect representation of the real diamonds by artificial means. These remarkable stones, by their purity and brilliancy, support comparison with diamonds of the first water, and are undistinguishable therefrom. They are infinitely superior in every respect to real diamonds of inferior quality. DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS were exposed side by side with real diamonds of great value in the Paris Exhibition, 1878, and were awarded a Prize Medal and the highest recompense awarded to imitations. They attracted universal attention and admiration, and forthwith became much in vogue with the grand monde and elite of society. They are now worn at the Court balls, and upon all occasions in London, Paris, and St. Petersburg. They are invaluable for intermixing with and replacing parures and other costly diamond ornaments. DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS can be worn at all times, even by daylight, with confidence and absolute security. They possess the penetrating brilliancy and lustre peculiar to real diamonds, and the concessionaires guarantee the surprise and pleasure of purchasers. The perfection thus attained is the result of investigations and experiments extending over two generations. The cost, nevertheless, of the DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS is about 1-300th that of real diamonds.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE

COUGHES,
COLDS,
ASTHMA,
BRONCHITIS.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S
CHLORODYNE.—Dr. J. C. BROWNE (late Army Medical Staff) DISCOVERED A REMEDY to denote which he coined the word CHLORODYNE. Dr. Browne is the SOLE INVENTOR, and as the composition of Chlorodyne cannot possibly be discovered by Analysis (organic substances defying elimination), and since the formula has never been published, it is evident that any statement to the effect that a compound is identical with Dr. Browne's Chlorodyne must be false. This Caution is necessary, as many persons deceive purchasers by false representations.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S
CHLORODYNE.—Vice Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was UNDOUBTEDLY the INVENTOR OF CHLORODYNE, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to. See The Times, July 12th, 1884.

DIARRHŒA, DYSENTERY.
GENERAL BOARD OF HEALTH, LONDON, REPORT that it ACTS as a CHARM, on doses generally sufficient. Dr. GIBSON, Army Medical Staff, Calcutta, states: "DOSES COMPLETELY CURED ME OF DIARRHŒA."

From SYMES & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Simla. Jan. 5, 1880.
To J. T. DAVENPORT, London.
Dear Sir,—We congratulate you upon the widespread reputation this justly esteemed medicine has earned for itself all over the East. As a remedy of general utility, we much question whether a better is imported, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and, judging from their sale, we fancy their sojourn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances ad infinitum of the extraordinary efficacy of DR. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE in Diarrhœa and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Choleraic Diarrhœa, and even in the more terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power.

We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a deliberate breach of faith on the part of the chemist to prescriber and patient alike. We are, Sir, faithfully yours, SYMES & CO., Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain, His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists.

PALLIATIVE IN

NEURALGIA, GOUT, CANCER,
TOOTHACHE, RHEUMATISM.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S
CHLORODYNE is a liquid medicine which assuages PAIN OF EVERY KIND, affords a calm, refreshing sleep WITHOUT HEAD-ACHE, and INVIGORATES the nervous system when exhausted.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S
CHLORODYNE rapidly cuts short all attacks of EPILEPSY, SPASMS, COLIC, PALPITATION, Hysteria.
IMPORTANT CAUTION.—The IMMENSE SALE of this REMEDY has given rise to many UNSCRUPULOUS IMITATIONS. Be careful to observe Trade Mark. Of all Chemists. Is 1ld., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1884.

Notes of the Week.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, November 21st; Madras and Allahabad, November 19th; Calcutta, November 18th; Ceylon, November 14th; Burma, November 14th.

"HAMMERING TO DEATH" is the new sensation at Mandalay, according to the Calcutta correspondent of the Times. The British subject who has been treated according to the prevailing fashion would probably tell us that it is a disagreeable novelty for a British subject, even under the blessings of a Gladstone Government—if he had any voice left. But it does not appear likely that he has sufficient voice left even to leave his blessing to this paternal Government; the correspondent telegraphs that he is "dying in gaol in a miserable plight," and the Daily News and the other Pharisees of the Radical Press will fold their hands, and feel certain that this poor wretch must have been a sinner above other men, to have suffered such things under a benignant Liberal régime.

THE news of the "sudden advance" of the Russians to Pulikhatun and Pulikhista, in derision of Sir Peter Lumsden and Colonel Ridgeway, has naturally caused more excitement in Calcutta than in Downing-street. Calcutta and Downing-street look on such events from very different standpoints. Calcutta remembers that these are important strategical points, and that by their sudden occupation England's nose has been ostentatiously pulled by Russia in the face of all Asia. The only consideration that weighs with the present occupants of Downing-street is expressed in the question: Will this lose us any votes? Now Sarakhs itself, not to mention Pulikhatun, is no better than the shadow of a name to the average British elector; so neither the one nor the other weighs heavily on the conscience of Downing-street.

WE are glad to observe that the judgment formed by the Calcutta correspondent of the Times of the various demonstrations of gratitude to Lord Ripon that have been made by the Native community in Calcutta and elsewhere coincides to some extent with the views expressed in these columns last week. Whilst the Times' correspondent is doubtless right in ascribing some portion of these demonstrations to the action of wire-pullers, we are glad to see that he agrees with us in believing that the greater portion of it is spontaneous—and as such, is credible alike to the givers and the receiver of the homage. The fact, too, that such representative noblemen as the Maharajas of Darbhanga and Vizianagram felt able to join in one of these demonstrations is a happy augury of returning peace and harmony among all classes in India. We trust that the time is now at hand when disquieting measures like the Bengal Tenancy Bill will be consigned to the oblivion they deserve, or remembered only as the phantasmagoria of a hideous dream. There are plenty of reforms waiting the anxious thought of the statesman who is now at the head of affairs in India, that will really increase the happiness and prosperity of the people, without any revolution or confiscation, and above all, without embittering class against class, or causing needless and unnatural hatreds.

It is interesting to learn that the Government of Madras and Bombay, at the suggestion of the Supreme Government, are making inquiries among the leading members of the various Hindoo castes regarding the vastly-important questions raised by Mr. Malabari in his papers on infant marriage and enforced widowhood. But it is even more interesting and gratifying to learn that crowded audiences at Bombay have been witnessing, with apparent approval, a Mahrathi drama written from the reformers' point of view, and that Mr. Malabari is about to found an Association, for social reforms of this nature, in the very bosom of the Native community. This is clearly the right way to work. Such reforms must come from within, without the shadow of a suspicion of compulsion. But from without we can, at all events, offer our warm sympathy and admiration to the workers within.

SIR GEORGE CAMPBELL will receive, we trust, the hearty support of every Anglo-Indian in his courageous attempt to induce the House of Commons to adopt bi-metallism. We are more than ever convinced that the only chance of financial salvation for the Government of India, and the only hope of stability in our commerce with the silver-using countries of the East, must be looked for in this reform of our Imperial currency.

WE have much pleasure in putting to-day before our readers a full report of one of Mr. Lalmohun Ghose's recent speeches, which we have thought it fair to that gentleman to publish exactly in the form in which we have received it from his friends. It will be observed that Mr. Ghose does not approve at all of the Bengal Tenancy Bill in its present form; but we confess we should like to see his condemnation more clearly expressed, for as it stands it might (and probably will) be contended that Mr. Ghose wishes to see a more Radical measure passed, that is to say, one more confiscatory of the landlords' rights.

NEXT year's South Kensington Exhibition will be divided into two sections, inventions and music. In the latter exhibits India ought to make an interesting feature, if an exhaustive collection of the indigenous musical instruments be sent.

COLONEL HARDY, who has acted as Secretary of the Indian Section of the Society of Arts since 1875, has resigned this office, and the Council, having accepted his resignation with great regret, have appointed Mr. Demetrius G. Boulger in his place. A meeting of the Committee of the Section was held on Thursday, Nov. 27, at 4 P.M. Present:—Sir W. Rose Robinson, K.C.S.I., in the chair, Sir George Birdwood, M.D., C.S.I., Mr. Hyde Clarke, and Mr. J. M. Maclean, with Mr. H. Trueman Wood, Secretary, and Mr. Demetrius G. Boulger, Secretary of the Section. The programme of papers to be read during the present Session was discussed.

The Pioneer says:—

When Lord Lawrence—Sir John as he then was—retired from the Viceroyalty, a record was compiled of all the chief administrative measures carried through in the principal departments of Government during his term of office. Much the same sort of thing has just been done for Lord Ripon. Colonel Malleon worked the record up into a newspaper review for Sir John. Mr. W. W. Hunter, now at Simla, is rumoured to be similarly engaged in the interests of the present Viceroy.

CALCUTTA has at length, says the Statist, followed the example set by Bombay of putting its foot down on the custom of receiving cloth marked with "incorrect" length; for instance, a piece of cloth marked  $37\frac{1}{2}$  would be taken to mean  $37\frac{1}{2}$  yards of 36 inches each; whereas it only means  $37\frac{1}{2}$  folds of 35 inches each, thereby defrauding the purchaser of about one yard in a piece.

THE Times of India says:—

"We are glad to see that our remarks on Baboo Lal Mohun Ghose's candidature for Greenwich have met with an echo from a section of the native press. The Rast Gofar, for instance, thinks as we do that the Baboo is an unsuitable candidate, and that the experiment would have a much better chance of succeeding if a less irrational person had been chosen. The Indu Prakash admits that there are obvious difficulties in the Baboo's way, 'the greatest of all being the crime of colour.' We do not agree with our contemporary. The greatest difficulty the Baboo will have to contend with is not his colour, but his conceit and exaggeration."

THE Englishman has the following account of the Calcutta Freight Market, corrected to November 21 :—

There is no change in our freight market in the rates paid during the last week for steamer and sailer tonnage, and only a moderate amount of business has been done. Some of the overdue ships have come in during the last few days and as many more having been spoken with close to the Sandheads, our unfixed tonnage is likely to be on the increase again. It stands at 24,000 tons to-day.

THE Times of India has the following obituary till the departure of the mail, November 21 :—

H. H. the Nawab Ala-ud-Din Khan of Loharoo; Mr. S. O. B. Ridsdale, Bengal Civil Service; Shahzadah Ahmed Hulunozaman, only surviving son of his Highness Prince Gholam Mahomed, grandson of the late Tippoo Sultan; Mr. Roger Henry Pawsey, Bengal Civil Service, Magistrate and Collector of Furreedpur; Captain Rich, 15th Bengal Cavalry; the Rev. J. Brunner, S.J., St. Xavier's College, Bombay.

Telegraphic Intelligence.

The following is the usual weekly telegram from the Times' correspondent at Calcutta, dated Dec. 7th :—

"The native community of Calcutta turned out in thousands on Tuesday and met Lord Ripon with what was certainly the most enthusiastic demonstration that ever welcomed any Viceroy to the capital. The Sealdah Railway station and the streets leading thence to Government-house were profusely decorated with flowers and bunting. Arches spanned the road at intervals, some bearing quaintly original mottoes such as, 'India wants more Ripons,' 'Tell Mamma we are happy,' 'He cometh as a bridegroom wearing the nation's love,' 'Scourge of petty tyrants,' and so on.

"On his arrival at Sealdah the Viceroy was met by the reception committee, headed by the Maharajahs of Vizianagram and Durbungah, while a number of native children strewed flowers along the platform, bands played native music along the route, and the dense crowd gave vent to their feelings in shouts of 'Lord Ripon ke jai' (success to Lord Ripon). The usual body of officials were present at the entrance to Government-house, but the European non official element was almost entirely wanting. This fact was partly due to indifference, partly to its being mail day. The reception committee have called a public meeting on Thursday for the purpose of voting a permanent memorial. It is to be hoped that the memorial will take a form equally useful with that by which Bombay intends to commemorate the departing Viceroy—namely, technical schools. It is also proposed to illuminate the city.

"It needs little acquaintance with India to recognise that some of the deputations which have met Lord Ripon were in no way representative, and little knowledge of the Oriental character to estimate at its true value the fulsome flattery of many of the addresses presented to him; but, after making full allowance for the extravagance of Eastern adulation, there still remains much matter for serious reflection in the demonstrations of welcome which have attended the Viceroy's journey from Simla to Calcutta. Were they a spontaneous outburst of the affection of the people, or were they organized by professional agitators? Probably the truth lies between these two views. There was, beyond doubt, a good deal of wire-pulling, especially in Calcutta, but I think it equally beyond doubt that there was a good deal of spontaneity also. If the movement was entirely due to wire-pulling, then the agitators must have an organization and administrative capacity such as no one ever supposed them to possess and which some day may prove a source of grave difficulty to the Government. Probably, however, the demonstrations, at least in up-country stations, were chiefly due to the vague idea that Lord Ripon is peculiarly the friend of the natives. In Calcutta, on the other hand, professional agitation was actively at work, and the demonstration, while not altogether wanting in spontaneity, was due rather to a feeling of dislike to Europeans than of love for Lord Ripon. If other proofs of this were wanting they would be supplied by the fact that the dispersing crowds vigorously hissed the carriages of European ladies and gentlemen going out for the evening drive.

"But, whatever be the true explanation of the events of the last three weeks, it is much to be regretted that Lord Ripon showed a sad want of tact in his speeches. True, he wisely avoided most of the controversial topics, but he said no word to stop the flattery lavished upon him. He posed throughout as the one reformer, the sole friend of the natives. He entirely ignored his colleagues, and when he condescended to allude to his countrymen in India he did so in an almost insulting manner. His last journey has been, perhaps, the most mischievous act of his Viceroyalty, for it has gone far to widen the gulf between races which he has done so much to create.

"The newspapers are now devoting much space to reviews of the expiring Viceroyalty. The verdict of the Anglo-Indian Press is generally far from flattering. Thus the Times of India speaks of the honest, well-meaning smallness which has characterised Lord Ripon's administration. The Indian Daily News says that, regarded even from the standpoint of native opinion and interests, there must be written against it the damning word failure. The Civil and Military Gazette fails to find in Lord Ripon's recent speeches any evidence that he leaves India a wiser man than he came, and is forced to the conclusion that the country remains to him as much a closed book as it was on the day of his landing. Most of the other English newspapers write to a similar effect, and the Anglo-Indian community is all but unanimous in the opinion that Lord Ripon's great mistake has been that he has tried to compress into five years the work of a century.

"The native papers, on the other hand, with one notable exception, write of the departing Viceroy in terms of extravagant eulogy. Their praises, however, are for the most part vague and general. They can point to few real benefits which Lord Ripon has conferred on India, and it is difficult to avoid the conclusion that the same journals gave truer expression to their real sentiments three months ago, when they described him as a disappointing Viceroy and his Government as one of good intentions unfulfilled.

"The exception to which I allude is the Hindoo Patriot, the most influential and moderate native paper of this Presidency. That journal, in a series of able and dispassionate articles, reviews Lord Ripon's administration from the beginning, and criticises his measures one by one, with the result that it finds little to praise and much to condemn. It points out that his foreign policy was dictated from home, and that he is not entitled to credit or discredit for it. It admits that he improved the form of military accounts; but against this it sets the reduction of the wool duty and the remission of the cotton duties, which it describes as a needless and wanton sacrifice of revenue conceived solely in the interests of English trade. It blames him for acquiescing in the unjust and heavy burden on India of three millions for non-effective military charges, and of payment of a portion of the Egyptian war expenses. His land revenue policy is described as a failure. It winds up its review in these words :—

"An impartial, dispassionate survey of his career clearly shows that the retiring Viceroy was full of good intentions, but failed to carry them out in any respect if we except the repeal of the Gagging Act and the beginning that has been made of a local self-government scheme. He was sincerely desirous of promoting the welfare of the country and the prosperity of the people, but his desires for the most part remain unfulfilled. He has made a few showy concessions to the natives and given them some shadowy advantages, but has successfully carried out no act of any magnitude. There is nothing to which we can appeal as of substantial and permanent value bequeathed to us by Lord Ripon, and nothing with which our children can associate his name. He will be remembered by posterity as the special benefactor of English commercial interests in the East, and as the king who signed the Magna Charta securing eternal freedom to British-born subjects from the jurisdiction of native magistrates. This we have no hesitation in saying will be the verdict of the Imperial historian of the future."

"If only their real views were known it is probable that the great majority of thoughtful and intelligent natives would be found in accord with the Hindoo Patriot.

"Lord Dufferin is expected to arrive at Bombay to-morrow. Great preparations are being made for his reception. He will remain at Bombay two or three days and will receive deputations from the Chamber of Commerce and other bodies, and perhaps take part in some public functions. His arrival at Calcutta takes place on Saturday, and probably the demonstrations of welcome by all races and classes will be no less hearty than in Bombay. Immediately on his arrival he will be sworn in and will take his seat in the Council. Lord Ripon leaves Calcutta on the 15th, and will probably embark at Bombay about the 20th.

"Doctors Klein and Gibbes, members of the Cholera Commission sent from England, have completed their inquiries, and submitted a short preliminary report. They state that Dr. Koch's comma-shaped bacilli are not peculiar to cholera, but occur also in other diseases of the intestines; that these bacilli do not behave in any way differently from other putrefactive organisms, and that inoculations of animals with recent and old cultivations of comma-shaped bacilli, as well as with cholera excreta, produced no effect.

"The Government of Bombay, like that of Madras, has, at the suggestion of the Supreme Government, asked for the opinions of the principal members of the various Hindoo castes regarding the question raised by Mr. Malabari in his paper on Infant Marriages and enforced widowhood. It is stated that a Mahratti writer has written a drama on the subject from the reformers' point of view, which has been produced to crowded audiences at Bombay. Mr. Malabari now proposes to form an association for the purpose of advocating various social reforms among natives."

"A telegram in the Calcutta Englishman states that severe punishments are now the order of the day in Man'alay. A Burman has been hammered to death for drunkenness, and his companion, a Jewish British subject, in dying in gaol in a miserable plight with several bones broken.

"Copies of the Burmese placards regarding the recent indignation meeting at Rangoon have reached the palace. King Theebaw threaten to dismiss the Ministers as traitors for concealing such things from him, and has sent the Pangyet Woon, a promoted Coolie, to obtain news of the intentions of the Indian Government."

"It is reported that the Russian outposts have made a sudden advance to the important strategical points of Pul-i-Khatum and Pul-i-Khista, on this side of Sarakhs. The news that the British Government has requested Russia to withdraw her troops beyond Sarakhs, pending the result of the Boundary Commission, gives some satisfaction; but the so-called unavoidable delay on the part of the Russian Commissioner in beginning work is looked upon with some suspicion."

A Reuter telegram, dated Bombay, Dec. 8, says:—"The Tasmania, with Lord and Lady Dufferin on board, has arrived. His Excellency and Lady Dufferin are quite well." A later Reuter telegram says:—"Lord and Lady Dufferin have landed. His Excellency was received by the principal civil and military authorities." A still later Reuter telegram from Bombay says:—"Lord Dufferin, in reply to an address presented him by the Corporation of Bombay, stated that, no matter what criticism might be made with regard to his administration, it should not be in the power of any man to say that either through fear, favour, or for any personal consideration he had ever turned aside from the course conducive to the happiness of the millions confided to his care, and to the dignity, honour, and safety of the Empire."

ADEN AS A RENDEZVOUS AND COALING STATION.

Aden, which is now a British port, has played a conspicuous part in history. It is the capital of a small State of South Arabia, in Yemen, of the same name, and stands on the east side of a promontory projecting south into the ocean called the "Peninsula of Aden." This peninsula terminates in a lofty mountain bearing a striking resemblance to Gibraltar, and is connected with the mainland by a strip or isthmus about four hundred yards in breadth. This projecting isthmus forms the sides of two harbours. The east harbour, which was in ancient times the principal seaport, is partly filled with sand; but the western harbour is commodious, and would afford anchorage space for a considerable fleet of ships. After the Romans obtained possession of Egypt, and Hippalus (A.D. 50) had discovered the direct route to India, they destroyed Aden, which had been the emporium of Ptolemy, lest it should fall into hostile hands and interfere with their monopoly in a lucrative traffic. From the eleventh to the sixteenth century it was the exclusive entrepôt of Eastern commerce; but was ruined on the discovery of a passage round the Cape. The west harbour of Aden, under British influence, has regained some of its former activity. On the north and west side of the town on the overhanging craggy rocks there are ruins of old fortresses which bear evidence of Aden having been garrisoned by a large force. We mention these facts because it is proposed that Aden should be rendered secure against any attack from sea. The War Office has suggested the fortifying of several Colonial possessions at a total cost of £850,000. Aden, however, is not to wait till Parliament is in the humour to vote money for the defence of the Colonies. The East India Government have undertaken to find the way and means, and to commence the works forthwith, the Home Government refunding half the cost. The batteries and their armament are estimated to cost £150,000; and if the harbour and the shipping therein can be rendered secure from the guns of ironclads in the event of war, the protection affected will be cheaply secured. Aden is the key to the Red Sea, and, as a coaling station, must be held at all hazards. From the comparatively narrow mouth to the harbour there would not be much difficulty in mounting lines of heavy cannon to stop ships from entering, or to sink them if they got inside; but military men asserted when a scheme was propounded for fortifying Aden that it would quickly have to surrender if attacked by a fleet and an army. We remember reading a French account of how the British became masters of Aden. They said that a corporal and six privates were left to guard stores, and another six with a sergeant was sent to relieve them, but the former did not come away; then a lieutenant with a company was despatched to take command in consequence of the small force being too weak to hinder the Arabs from plundering. Next, the soldiers got inside of the crater of an extinct volcano, and looped the upper part. From that elevated position they could see what was going on for a considerable distance, and they were secure from any sudden attack. The Aden of to-day is a place of considerable importance. When none but the steamers of the Peninsular and Oriental Company ran from Suez to Bombay and Calcutta, the coal needed for that service was carried to Aden by sailing ships; but now the demand for fuel is so great that screw colliers keep up the supply which has been demanded by the numerous steamers passing through the Suez Canal. As regards the erection of defensive military works, we must leave the entertainment of such projects to skilled engineers. We desire to have something to say on the naval and commercial side of the question. The argument that a few gunboats stationed at Aden would be sufficient at all times for the protection of shipping is one of those pieces of egotistical conceit that needs exposing. The Chinese had some gunboats built in England, and at their trial trips such glowing descriptions of their wonderful offensive powers were given that would lead superficially-informed persons to believe that they were impregnable and formidable. A few shots from the big guns of the French ships sent them to the bottom in a few minutes, with the slaughter of their crews. Such would be the fate of the English gunboats at Aden if they were exposed to more powerful opponents. Britons won't listen to this, but someone must have the courage to state the truth. We now approach the object we have in view in commenting on the Government plans. Aden, we should inform those who have never been there, has its one, or western harbour; but that basin is divided into an inner and outer anchorage by lines of soundings. The outer anchorage is sheltered during the N.E. monsoon, as it runs nearly north and south; but is exposed to winds from the S.E. by E. to S.W. by W. Ships brought up in the outer anchorage feel the sweep of the S.W. monsoon. All the deep-draught vessels have to anchor in the outer harbour. Vessels drawing 17½ feet can enter the inner harbour and be afloat; but it is customary for coal-laden ships of from 19ft. to 21ft. to proceed there on their masters undertaking to free the pilots and the East Indian Government from all responsibility. As the bottom is mud and sand no particular harm is done, and as lighterage in the outer harbour is saved by going up, the risk is encountered. The large ocean-going steamships in the outer roads could be sunk at their anchorage by a few well-directed shots. We contend, therefore, that the inner harbour should be dredged to a depth of 26ft. and enlarged. This will, eventually, have to be accomplished, and a town may have to be pulled down to find space for docks. Time should be taken by the forelock.—Liverpool Journal of Commerce.

HOW NOT TO MAKE INDIAN RAILWAYS.

TO THE EDITOR.

SIR,—I beg to call your attention to an excellent article in the Allahabad Pioneer Mail of the 12th ult., page 473.

The Editor proves that Government appears to be afraid of speculation on the part of Officers of Engineers that it surrounds them with all sorts of checks, which can be evaded at will.

The Ganges Canal might never have been constructed if this bad system of mistrust of officers of high honour had not been broken through for once. For years the Military Board had been paralysing the efforts of excellent officers employed on the Ganges Canal, until Sir Henry Hardinge, the Governor-General, determined on taking the construction out of the hands of the Military Board, and trusting the work to Mr. Thomason, Lieutenant-Governor of the North-West Provinces. Mr. Thomason promptly issued orders to the officers employed on the Canal, assuring them that he would trust them as long as they were found worthy of being trusted, but that those who were found to be unworthy of incapability would be removed. The officers, delighted to find that their salaries would not be liable to be cut, because some clerk could prove that the expenses had exceeded Colonel Sage's estimates, entered upon their duties with zeal, industry, and good judgment, and speedily brought the glorious work to a successful termination.

Mr. Thomason's instructions ought to be republished, and the Government of India in all departments should be conducted on the principles which he prescribed for the construction of the Ganges Canal. It is better that one dishonest officer should pocket public money than that one hundred good men should be paralysed and disheartened. We cannot afford in India to reduce our best Englishmen, Scotchmen and Irishmen to a state of torpor.

The English nation has no idea how many of its best and most virtuous sons have been brought to an early grave owing to the worries caused by the office work of the Engineer Department; there may be in it many very moral clerks, but some of them cannot be controlled by any system which does not permit an Executive Engineer Officer to remove them when they misbehave. An officer of high standing informed me of a man whom I wished to bring to trial, having some years previously thrown up an appointment of Rupees 150 a month in order to obtain a clerkship under him of Rupees 65 a month: this man soon complained to him that the construction of a public work had not been entrusted to his management.—Your obedient servant,

CANDIDATURE OF MR. LALMOHUN GHOSE FOR GREENWICH.

HIS VIEWS ON THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

For the first time in our history an Indian gentleman seeks the suffrages of an English constituency in order to directly represent the views and plead the cause of his fellow-countrymen in the British House of Parliament. The possibility of such a candidature has long been a question much canvassed amongst all those who take any interest in the welfare of our great Indian Empire. The question has at length been set at rest. The candidature of an Indian gentleman for one of England's most noted constituencies is at last an accomplished fact. The Greenwich Liberal Five Hundred have accepted Mr. Lalmohun Ghose (well known in social and political circles, both in India and England) as the Liberal candidate for the borough; and at three subsequent public meetings the general body of the Liberal electors have put the stamp of their approval on the selection of the local caucus. It is matter for congratulation that an English constituency thus comes boldly forward to do an act of justice towards India, but at the same time it is to be regretted that no place could have been found with views broad enough to permit Mr. Ghose to stand as an independent candidate. If he should fail in his endeavours to win a seat for India in the British House of Commons, the strength of the Tory party in Greenwich will be almost wholly accountable for it, for Mr. Ghose's oratorical ability is undoubted, and his interest in the cause of freedom and progress in England and India is sound. Be this as it may, however, he is regarded as a "strong candidate"; but as a sign of how party warfare may stand in the way, we might mention that on Wednesday evening (the 26th Nov.) a member of the Hatcham Liberal Club stated at a public meeting that he, representing Hatcham Radicalism, would not give Mr. Ghose his vote because he would not go the whole length of the ultra-Radical programme in relation to the question of Royal dowers. If there are many more electors like this Hatcham liberal, who refuse to sink minor differences to achieve the principal object in view, then India may find her first endeavours to obtain a direct representative in the English Parliament a failure. Of course Indian affairs are largely mixed up with the topics touched upon in the recent speeches of Mr. Ghose; and attention should be called to the fact that, at the Lecture Hall at Deptford on Wednesday evening last, he stated that "it was freely remarked that India should not be made a party question." "His countrymen," he added, "would be the first to rejoice if that could be so; and if both parties in England were only equally anxious to do justice to India it would be so." But then Mr. Ghose thinks they are not, though admitting that the Great Proclamation of 1858, the "Magna Charta of India," was composed and signed by the late great Conservative statesman, Lord Derby, the father of the present Earl. Mr. Ghose says the Conservative party of the past have done great things for India, but he now gives in his adhesion to the Liberal cause. Considerable interest has been aroused as to the position Mr. Ghose takes up in regard to the Bengal Tenancy Bill. This matter was decided by his speech at the Greenwich Lecture Hall on the evening of Tuesday, the 26th November, when he said that "on the question of the land they had been trying to legislate in India, but he feared that they had not as yet succeeded in producing a perfectly satisfactory measure. The Select Committee itself had recently announced a large number of important improvements in it upon some very vital questions, and until those amendments were before them it would be impossible to pronounce any final opinion upon the measure. One thing he would say, however, and that was that any measure of agrarian legislation which dealt with tenants of Bengal and left untouched the tenants of the Government, could never be regarded as satisfactory or final. The Government were the largest landowners in India, and their tenants included 97 per cent. of the agricultural population, and these people were in quite as bad a state as any others in the country."

The first meeting which Mr. Lalmohun Ghose addressed, since his selection by the Liberal Five Hundred, was at Woolwich, on Friday evening, Nov. 21, when, speaking after Mr. Frederick Verney, the other adopted Liberal candidate, he said:—

He hoped to be permitted to say a few words with regard to his own country of India, which he said Providence, in its inscrutable wisdom, had linked with England. Lord Lytton was the worst Viceroy ever sent to India. His reign evoked feelings of discontent throughout the country. He adopted a course which all tyrants adopted, viz., he gagged the press; and as a last resort it was decided to send a deputation to appeal to public opinion in England, and he had the honour to be chosen to represent the thousands and millions of his countrymen. His mission was not altogether fruitless. He obtained the support of Mr. Bright and Mr. Fawcett. By the death of the latter England had lost a true and tried friend. The conduct of the present Government had changed despondency into hope, and Lord Ripon was leaving the shores of India with a name which would be blessed and cherished for generations to come as a just and generous ruler. Last year, when the Ilbert Bill was brought forward, his countrymen again chose him (Mr. Ghose) to represent their views to the English people. On that occasion they had a breakfast at the Westminster Palace Hotel, and he thought that he was to return to India, when it was suggested that perhaps justice might be obtained for his country by one of them presenting himself before an English constituency. Soon after the Greenwich Liberal 500 did him the honour to invite him to become the colleague of Mr. Verney as a candidate at the next General Election (cheers). It was impossible for him to express in fitting language how highly he valued that honour, or with what lively feelings of gratitude the intelligence had been received through the length and breadth of India. If the electors confirmed that selection, then, from the Himalayas to Cape Cormorin—from the Land of the Five Rivers to the jungles of Assam, the tidings would be received as a message of peace and goodwill, and would evoke feelings of gratitude in the hearts of millions of their fellow-subjects—(loud applause).

At Greenwich, on Monday evening, the 24th ult., Mr. Ghose met with a very warm reception. He said, amidst much laughter, that he was not going to address the meeting in Hindoostanee, as their junior member, Baron de Worms, supposed he should. He could go a little further and inform the worthy Baron that if he were to condescend and honour his country with a visit, and still further condescend to enlighten their Oriental ignorance, by expounding his views before large audiences of his countrymen, it would not be at all necessary to go through the laborious process of learning a new language like Hindoostanee (laughter). Such had been the advance and progress of education in India to his countrymen that they would be perfectly well able to follow even the Baron de Worms—(renewed laughter)—although he might happen to use such extremely vigorous Saxon as he gave them a specimen of last week at Woolwich (hear, hear). He only hoped that his fellow-countrymen would not adopt the very forcible methods of expression which were sometimes undoubtedly used by unquestionable Britons—(much laughter, and cries of "Bravo!")—like Baron de Worms—expressions of that kind would perhaps not become the lips of people in their humble position (hear, hear). And he also hoped that his countrymen when they were in search of models for imitation would avoid the dangerous example of men like Baron de Worms and Lord Randolph Churchill—(laughter)—and rather go to the well of English undefiled that was offered to them by the great masters of English literature (hear, hear). They had been warned against listening, and he had been warned by implication against indulging in flowers of rhetoric, such, for instance, as allusions to "exotics"—(much laughter)—whether they happened to be imported from foreign countries in the East of Europe, or from lands more decidedly Oriental, but which nevertheless formed an integral part of the British Empire. Well, another thing he was not going to do, he was not going to indulge in the pleasure or in the trick of stringing together a mere number of high-sounding words, and that for the simple reason that he had a great preference for simpler and smaller words, not only because they were much more expressive, but because they were much more easy of utterance (hear, hear). Well, coming to the more serious topics, it seemed to him that one of the subjects which Conservative orators were never tired of dealing with at the present day, one of those subjects they were endeavouring to take advantage of, was the present unfortunate commercial depression which prevailed in this country. Both the sitting members for Greenwich had dwelt at great length on this topic at the late Conservative meeting at Woolwich, and, following the example of their leaders, they had been encouraging the idea that the present depression, and consequent distress were owing more or less to the policy of Free Trade ("Oh!" and laughter). Well, these gentlemen shrank from openly allowing their adhesion to the doctrine of the Fair Traders, but gave a considerable amount of encouragement and support to their pernicious theories (hear, hear). They knew better than he did that the leaders of the Conservative party—those leaders who, like Sir Stafford Northcote, were perfectly convinced of the absurdity of these notions—still deemed it polite to profess a considerable degree of intelligence for pious notions (laughter, and hear, hear). He ventured to think that the whole policy of the Conservative party, in regard to this vital question, consists merely of weak vacillation, of dreaming, and coquetting with the ignorant quacks and false prophets, who believed that by merely avoiding the use of the word Protection, and by substituting some other true phrase, such as Reciprocity or Retaliation, to Free Trade they would succeed in deluding the people of this country. They knew what a persistent attempt was made the other day—scarcely a week ago—in a constituency not very far from there—(cheers, and cries of "Hackney!")—in order to resuscitate the phantom, in order to impose upon the credulity of the population, more or less in a state of distress. Well, they knew as well as he did that hunger and want were not very conducive to calm reasoning, or a judicious frame of mind; but in spite of those miserable allies the attempt had miserably failed—(cheers)—and Hackney had returned an emphatic answer—(renewed cheers)—an answer which he doubted not would be echoed and re-echoed from end to end of this country—(loud cheers). Now what were the facts of the case? Unfortunately it was undeniable that a considerable amount of distress and depression in trade prevailed at this moment in England, but was it confined to this country? Of course not. Did they not know that from France and Germany, from every country on the continent of Europe, and most of all from America itself, the chosen home of Protection, the same cries of distress had gone forth; and the depression in those countries was even greater than it was here. Well, these people, the Fair Traders, relied mostly upon the comparison between the exports and imports of this country. They pointed to the great excess of imports over exports, and told them that that was a sure sign of national extravagance and impending ruin. If they would allow him he would like to say a few words upon this question that evening—(cheers). He feared it was a somewhat unattractive subject, and perhaps also rather tiring—("No, no," and cries of "Go on"). At any rate, he felt sure they would agree with him that there was no question more eminently deserving of attention—(hear, hear). It was an undoubted fact that the imports exceeded the exports by a very large amount—the amount, he believed, reaching the sum of something like 150 millions sterling. That fact was undisputed, and the only question was whether it was a sign—as the Fair Traders contended—of national decadence, whether it was a gigantic evil, or, on the contrary, a matter for national congratulation. They who believed in Free Trade believed that the excess of imports was a conclusive proof of national wealth and prosperity. The first thing to bear in mind was this: that their friends, the Fair Traders, entirely omitted from their calculations this important fact that, if they did not sell a single shilling's worth of goods to the foreigners, they would still have to receive a large sum from various countries of the world on account of their foreign investments in every quarter of the universe, and also on account of being the largest ocean carriers and the largest insurers of the trade of the world—(hear, hear, and cheers). Now they all knew that international communications of that kind are carried on chiefly by barter or from exchange of goods, and but an insignificant part of these negotiations are ever discharged in gold and silver. They said that these various sums must come to them in the shape of goods, and that therefore they must necessarily swell, and to a very large extent, the amount of their imports. Well, let them see what were these various sums they had to receive. And now, as regarded their foreign investments, the amount of them was a matter of some doubt; but taking the most moderate estimate they could not doubt that they must yield fifty millions annually. Then, again, they must consider that their shipping trade and insurances yield another fifty millions at the very least computation. To these two principal items they had to add the interest upon the capital invested in trade and the profit by their merchandise. Then when they had added up all these different items they had a total far exceeding one hundred millions, and that must necessarily be their imports which they received in the ordinary exchange of goods. But let them look at the question from another point of view. Let them forget for a moment the enormous sums due to this country, quite apart from what they bought and sold with other parts of the world. What Fair Traders said was, that the whole amount of their imports represented only what they bought from foreign parts of the world. Well, if that was so, if the whole of their excess of imports over exports represented nothing more nor less than an excess of their purchases over their sales, then he thought it would be only fair and reasonable to assume that these gigantic purchases had been somehow or other paid for, because they could scarcely assume that the traders of the world had been so foolish and idiotic to keep on selling like this without receiving payment in some shape or form (hear, hear, and cheers). Turning to the Board of Trade returns what did they find? They found that from the year 1854 down to 1880, a period of twenty-seven years, their imports had exceeded their exports by a sum of not less than 1,700 millions sterling in round numbers. Now how did they think that gigantic sum had been paid? Surely it could never have been paid over in kind; it could not have been paid over by barter or exchange in goods. The very fact that their imports exceeded exports to that amount was absolutely conclusive on that point. The question was could it have been paid in money? He had said international payments of that kind were never paid in money, bullion or specie, to any appreciable extent. If they would allow him, he would give them an illustration of that fact. Soon after the Franco-Prussian war early in 1873, the French Government made a very fair and large payment to Germany—a payment of not less than ninety-four million pounds. And how was it paid? They knew that only six millions in gold and silver, and eight millions in bank-notes were paid, the whole of the remainder, no less than eighty millions, being paid by bills of exchange on various countries, which of course represented the value of the commodities which France had to export in order to pay that indemnity to Germany. But, quite apart from general experience they had the surer and absolutely conclusive test in the actual statistics in regard to the exports and imports in reference to the precious metals as far as this country was concerned. Turning again to the Board of Trade returns they found that from 1860 to 1880 the imports in excess of exports, were no less than eighty-three millions of gold and silver. To that sum they had again to add the import of the precious metals during the previous seven years he had mentioned. So that altogether they had this astounding fact that from 1854 to 1880, during those twenty-seven years, they had not only received from the various countries of the world goods to the extent of 1,700 millions sterling in excess of the goods they had exported, but that during the same period they also imported into this country an amount of gold and silver of over 100 millions sterling. Regarding the payment, it could not have been in kind, as that was the basis of the charge against, and it could not have been paid in money, because their exports of specie had exceeded their imports by not less than 100 millions sterling; then the whole thing was reduced to what, in geometry, when he was at school, was described as the reductio ad absurdum—(laughter and cheers)—he said, therefore, that it was perfectly clear, whichever way they looked at this question of imports, was no sign of national decadence, but of national wealth and prosperity. He went further, and said it was only declining the only needy countries that occasionally imported more than they exported. In 1880, just after they in India had had the satisfaction of witnessing the overthrow of the late Administration—(cheers)—on his return to India, he believed the day after he landed in the city of Bombay, he had had the honour of addressing a very large audience consisting of his fellow-countrymen in that commercial capital of India, and on that occasion he took the liberty of pointing out that they in India had to pay a very large sum, amounting to something like twenty millions, to the India office, on account of what were called "Home Charges," consisting very largely of the liberal salaries and extravagant pensions that were paid to superannuated officials, whose business seemed to him to do all they could to maintain their vantage ground in Downing-street, and the popularity of their order and privileges. He would not go into the political aspect of the question just now. He was now more concerned with its economic aspect—(hear, hear)—and he was going to tell them that he pointed out about four years ago this most significant and curious fact that, looking into their returns, they found that the Indian exports exceeded their imports by exactly the sum of twenty millions, which was, as nearly as possible, the amount of those "Home Charges" to which he had referred; in other words it amounted to this—that this tribute of twenty millions they had to pay was paid by the export of goods and commodities, for which they in India receive nothing whatever in the shape of imports. He said, therefore, that whether they looked at the facts and figures in regard to this country, or whether they enlarged their vision and extended their scope of investigation, and examined into the circumstances of other nations, they could not but come to the conclusion that a decrease of imports was not a sign of national decay—(cheers)—but of growing wealth and prosperity (renewed cheers). He quite admitted that in the midst of this general progress there might be a decline of particular trades, and a depression of particular nonsense, but in dealing with great questions of this kind it was their duty to take one point of view, embracing the country and the nation as a whole (hear, hear). He hoped he had not been wearying them—(loud cries of "No" and "Go on"). It was somewhat a dry subject, but then this was a question of vital importance, and that was his only excuse. Just let them suppose for one moment that they were going to listen to the new-fangled notions of these Reciprocity-mongers—(laughter)—or whatever else they might call themselves. What would happen? Where would they be landed? Ninety-seven per cent. of their imports consisted of food and raw material, so that if they were ever to think of reverting to Protection they would be bound to begin by protecting the agricultural interest (hear, hear). Well, what would that mean? It would mean nothing more nor less than a reimposition of the Corn Laws and a consequent rise in the price of bread and almost every article of food that was consumed by the working classes in this country—(cheers). Well, he asked them whether they thought they saw in the fact of an increase in the price of food any tendency towards the relief of the present distress?—"No" and (cheers). He confessed that he was astonished and amazed to think that men of intelligence and education—men who ought to know better—had the hardihood to stand up before large audiences of their fellow-countrymen and recommend measures like that—(renewed cheers)—which could have possibly no other effect than to rob the poor of their food, of which heaven knew they had now no very great abundance—(prolonged cheers). Baron de Worms said that it was better for the hungry man to have his breakfast than to walk to the polling booth—(laughter). If it was a sort of Hobson's choice—(renewed laughter)—there might be something said in favour of that intention—(laughter). But it was not so. On the contrary, he believed that it was absolutely necessary for the working man to walk to the polling booth to secure his breakfast; or if the working man of this country wished to see a whole loaf on his table, or if he desired to feed the children that were dear to him, and who looked up to him for their daily bread, then he said he must unhesitatingly record his vote against those who were seeking to reverse the noble policy of Free Trade—(hear, hear)—and for the policy which he believed had tended to lighten the sufferings of the poor. The working man must unhesitatingly record his vote against those who if they had their own way would soon bring him face to face with starvation—(loud cheers). He would now pass on if he had not already exhausted their patience—"No, no"—to another question which had been already brought into prominence of late by certain opponents in the extreme north—he alluded to the Skye Crofters (hear, hear). He believed that those men had had great grievances to complain of, and speaking for himself, and he believed also for the large body of those whom he was now addressing, that they all had a firm faith in the cardinal maxim of the Liberal party, namely, "Force is no remedy" (hear, hear). At the same time they had great confidence in Her Majesty's Government—(loud cheers)—and they could not believe that they would take any steps like those recently taken, unless they were in possession of some information which was not before them. However, that might be, he trusted that as soon as order had been restored remedial measures would be passed, and that not only in the extreme north of Scotland, but everywhere in England and throughout this Empire, the Land Laws would be thoroughly revised (hear, hear). He believed that the law of primogeniture, of entail, and settlement, ought to be entirely abolished (cheers). It seemed to him that nothing could be more unjust, that nothing could be more repugnant to natural feelings than to think that if a man possessed landed property the whole of it, in case he died, should pass to his eldest son to the exclusion of his other children, no matter how unprovided for they might be ("Shame"). This is a relic of feudalism, a piece of barbarism that should no longer be tolerated (hear, hear). How did this law of primogeniture and entail work? A man in possession of landed property induced his eldest son to settle the estate again on his unborn child, and this sort of thing was repeated from generation to generation, so that the land was tied up for ever. Each successor had no more than a life interest, and had consequently neither power nor inclination to work those improvements, the want of which were so detrimental to the agricultural interests, and therefore to the interests of the nation (cheers). He believed that all those barriers set up for the purpose of unduly maintaining the aristocratic classes would be swept away by the approaching tide of democracy (cheers). Land should be taxed the same as every other property, and he included deer parks and all other kinds of aristocratic property. The law of real property should be made to approximate to the law of personal property as possibly as the buying of land should be made as easy as the buying of any other kind of property (hear, hear). He did not think it was needful, after what he had just told them, to say that he was in favour of the total abolition of the Game Laws (cheers). He only desired to add one word more, and that was as to the present condition of the law in regard to leaseholders. He had carefully considered the question, and had come to the conclusion that the present system, whereby the unexhausted improvements went to the landlords, was extremely unjust and hard—(hear, hear)—and that the only remedy for it is to give to the lessee, in all cases of long leases, the option of purchasing the fee simple of his holding. Before he sat down he had only to add that not only the principles he had now been advocating before them, but whatever principles he was endeavouring to expound he should be equally prepared to maintain and uphold in his own country (cheers). He had not, as had been asserted, one set of principles for India and another for Greenwich. He had the satisfaction of feeling that his political views and opinions were perfectly well known throughout the length and breadth of India, and whatever measure of confidence and support his fellow-countrymen had been pleased to extend to him, had been extended with a full knowledge of all the circumstances of the case. The Government of India, as some of them must be aware, had been endeavouring to legislate on this land question within recent times, but he feared that they had not yet succeeded in producing a measure that was perfectly satisfactory. The Select Committee itself had recently announced a large number of amendments upon some very vital questions, and until those amendments were before them it would be impossible to pronounce any final opinion upon this measure. One thing he would say, however, was that no measure of agrarian legislation, which dealt with the tenants of Bengal and left untouched the tenants of the Government itself, could ever be regarded as satisfactory or final. He did not know whether any of them were aware that the Government were the largest landowners in India; and that their tenants, including ninety per cent. of the agricultural population, were in just as bad a state as the people in any other part of the country. Passing on, Mr. Ghose quoted a telegram in a Calcutta journal to prove this statement, and said that the people mentioned therein had been advocating their own cause with a more telling though simpler eloquence than anyone speaking on their behalf could pretend to. It seemed to him that the cause of the people, the cause of the masses, was everywhere the same. It was a noble cause, it was a cause that knew no distinction of race, or creed or clime. The looks that had roused his indignation, the woes that had moved his pity, had only enlarged his pity for all human suffering wherever it might be found—(cheers).

LORD RANDOLPH CHURCHILL left London on Wednesday last by the Peninsular and Oriental Company's special train from Liverpool-street for Tilbury, where he embarked on board the steamship Rohilla, en route for Bombay. Lord Randolph has Mr. Frank Thomas as his travelling companion. He proposes to see as much as he can of India in four months, and will take advantage of his present tour to inquire into the condition of the ryots. He expects to return, via Madras and Colombo, about the end of April next.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

"ARMY AND NAVY MAGAZINE."

In the December number Colonel Malleon's series on "Ambushes and Surprises" is continued. There is more of historical than tactical information to be gained from his paper on Kerko Porta. This must necessarily be the case in ancient combats, from the deficiency of exact records and maps or sketches of the locality; but the war of the Turks in Hungary, and how the danger to Europe was averted is little known, and well worthy of personal. "Behind the Scenes; or, Hints to Militia Adjutants," is very interesting and most amusing. The articles will be of great value to officers who hold, or hope to hold, appointments as adjutants to our auxiliary forces. An article on General Sheridan, by Major Jones, is good, though the writer naturally has some bias towards the general he served under. But Sheridan was undoubtedly among the best generals the American Civil War produced. Mr. Holmes, writing of Malleon's "Life of Loudon," shows the history of the Seven Years' War, from the Austrian point of view, which has not hitherto received the attention deserved, the Prussian view being almost invariably taken. "Private Lawrie and his Love" is a military tale, which shows a close insight into life in barracks. The review of "Navy Lists, New and Old," gives rise to curious reflections as to times when we were at war, with nearly the whole world against us.

"LIFE OF GENERAL SIR GEORGE NAPIER, K.C.B."*

The family of Napier, that underwent their baptism of fire in the Peninsular War, were wonderful men. With the true honourable feeling of English gentlemen and soldiers, the courage of bull-dogs, and the tenacity of life of cats, they all deservedly rose to high positions and honour; and among them Sir George Napier was one, who, in any other family, would have shone unrivalled. Baptism of fire is an expression too feeble to be used in connection with the Napiers and the Peninsular War; it was immersion—almost literally over head and ears. Sir George Napier, serving in the famous 52nd, was in the van in the most desperate actions of the campaigns, and his narrative, drawn up for the instruction and amusement of his own sons, is an excellent book to place in the hands of young men entering the army or any active career; interesting also to the general reader, and especially so to military men. It may be remembered that it was George Napier who commanded the desperate assault at Ciudad Rodrigo, and who gave the famous order to his men not to load, on the ground that if the business could not be done with the bayonet it could not be done at all, and this great innovation, at the time, was approved by Lord Wellington.

THE INDIAN MUTINY.†

There are a considerable number of minor historical facts still to come out about the Indian Mutiny; and, though we do not notice that Mr. Thornhill has brought to light anything startlingly new, it is a great thing to have a readable account of what actually occurred in part of the country from an eye-witness and actor in the scenes. There are vast numbers of people who would never attempt to read a regular history of the Mutiny, but who would be tempted to read an account put before them with the vividness with which the author writes. His struggles to retain his influence over his district, the terrible ride to Agra through the midst of the rebel army, the blockade in the fort of Agra, and the final triumph of British arms, contain as thrilling episodes as many sensational novels rely on and are valuable reading also. Mr. Keene, in his history of "Indian Districts during the Revolt," clearly corroborates the view that Mr. Thornhill's plan of administering through the local chiefs was partially successful, although the Muttra district was almost in the centre of the revolt. The author concludes with a chapter on the causes of the Mutiny and deductions from it. Among these he states that "the low castes and cultivators of the soil were those who displayed the most marked hostility" to British rule. In this he must be understood surely as writing mostly of his own district and those adjacent to it, for in districts not completely overawed by the rebels the cultivators generally showed a singular indifference. Of course most men, but especially Asiatics, will always take part more or less openly with the side that appears to be strongest. This is a factor in our political situation in the East that should be always kept in view. According to Mr. Thornhill "the Mutiny came upon us without sign or warning." Those who have read Sir Charles Napier's minutes and writings after the second Sikh war will hardly agree in this. There can be little doubt that a mutiny of the Bengal Army was then averted which at that time would have been more disastrous than the one that broke out seven years later. We should have had the Sikhs against us instead of on our side. But if we cannot quite agree with the deductions we must allow that in the history or narrative of the facts with which he was connected Mr. Thornhill's work is most careful, conscientious, and interesting.

The "Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar, Diary, and Pocket Book for 1885" has just been issued, it being the fifteenth year of publication of this popular directory. We have little to say of the new issue beyond recording the fact that it contains the latest particulars relating to Masonry, not only in the United Kingdom, but in all other countries as well. Its information is likewise even more complete and accurate than ever; and as showing to how recent a date this is brought down we may state that the Lodge of St. Oysth, No. 2,063, of Clacton-on-Sea, consecrated only last week, appears in its place on the roll of our English lodges. In short, while retaining all its old characteristics no pains have been spared to make the "Cosmo" a reliable guide to the Craft universal.—The Freemason.

Home News.

THE LATE SIR ALEXANDER GRANT.—The obsequies of the late Principal Sir Alexander Grant have been solemnized with two-fold ceremony, with a burial service on Friday in St. Mary's Cathedral, and with a special funeral service in St. Giles's Cathedral on Sunday.

GENERAL SIR EDWIN BEAUMONT JOHNSON, K.C.B., Royal Artillery, will succeed Sir Beauchamp Walker as Director-General of Military Education. Sir Edwin Johnson served with distinction in the Suttlej and Punjaub campaigns and during the Mutiny. He was for several years Assistant Military Secretary at the Horse Guards, and afterwards Military Member of Council in India.

LORD RIPON.—Lord Ripon has addressed a letter from Simla, dated Nov. 8, to the hon. secretary of the Leeds Liberal Club, accepting the invitation to a banquet on the 28th or 29th Jan. at Leeds. His lordship expresses his great appreciation of the kindness thus shown him by so important a body of Yorkshire Liberals, and says he has derived the greatest pleasure from their approval of the course which he has followed in his administration of Indian affairs. His lordship adds that he expects to reach London about Jan. 23.

INDIAN MEDICAL SCHOLARSHIPS FOR WOMEN.—The Maharanee Surnomoye, of Kassimbazar, has sent Rs. 500 to the Indian Medical Scholarship Fund, of which Mrs. Thorne, of Lewes, is the honorary secretary. The scholarships are in the award of the National Indian Association, and Miss E. A. Manning, its honorary secretary, has received a letter from the Maharanee, expressing her approval of the fund as a means of supplying the medical care, from the want of which Indian women suffer. One scholarship of £50 a year has been awarded to Miss Florence Sorby, who is now pursuing her studies at the London School of Medicine for Women. Further aid is urgently needed to enable more scholarships to be offered for the purpose of providing fully-qualified medical women for India.

THE LATE SIR ALEXANDER GRANT.—Scholarship in England has suffered a noteworthy loss in the sudden death of Sir Alexander Grant, Principal and Vice-Chancellor of Edinburgh University. Born in 1826, the late baronet took his degree at Oxford from Balliol College, and became ere long a Fellow of Oriel and an Examiner in Classics for his own University. In 1860 he went out to India in the Education Department. From an Inspectorship of Schools in Madras he rose to a Professorship in the Elphinstone College at Bombay. He was making his mark as Principal of the same College when he was made Vice-Chancellor of Bombay University and Director of Public Instruction for the whole Presidency. His studies of Aristotle afterwards bore fruit in a scholarly edition of the "Ethics." In 1868 he returned to England, and succeeded Sir David Brewster as Vice-Chancellor and Principal of Edinburgh University.

NOTICES, DIVIDENDS, MEETINGS, ETC.

BOMBAY, BARODA, AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY COMPANY.—The report of the directors of the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway Company for the half-year ending June 30 shows a total revenue of £688,364, against £656,115, the coaching traffic producing £183,000, against £169,044, and the goods traffic £495,102, as compared with £477,039. The total expenditure came to £239,634, against £247,748, there being a saving of fully £11,000 under the head of maintenance of way, works, and stations, and an increase of £4,000 in the carriage and waggon expenses. The balance of earnings was £448,730, against £408,367, and, after providing for guaranteed interest of 2½ per cent. for the half year, there is a balance credited to the company of £247,964. At the contract exchange rate of 1s. 10d. the company had to receive Rs. 13,52,530, and have drawn on Bombay for Rs. 13,25,000, realising £106,604. It is, therefore, proposed to pay, in addition to the guaranteed interest, a dividend of £1 7s. 6d. per cent. The capital expenditure for the half-year was £67,823, the total to June 30 being £7,950,419, exclusive of stores and materials in hand or in transit to India, aggregating a further sum of £279,273.

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.—The adjourned meeting of the shareholders in the above company will be held at 44, Gresham-street, on the 22nd inst., at two p.m.

SCINDE, PUNJAB, AND DELHI RAILWAY.—A meeting of the shareholders in the above company will be held at Gresham-house, E.C., on the 23rd inst.

The half-yearly coupons of the debentures of the Credit Foncier of Mauritius (Limited) will be payable on and after the 15th inst. at the Alliance Bank (Limited).

OBITUARY.

LIEUT.-GENERAL ALEXANDER CUNNINGHAM ROBERTSON, C.B.—A correspondent writes to the Times:—"General Robertson was a born soldier, and began his soldiering at a very early age in the English Brigade or Legion that served with Don Pedro in Portugal at the siege of Oporto. He was then for two years with General Evans in Spain, where he saw much hard service, was severely wounded, and received two medals and the Cross of the First Class of San Fernando. He had risen to the rank of captain in the Legion, when, on account of some difference with his commanding officer, he threw up his commission, enlisted in another regiment, and rose a second time to the rank of captain. All this was before he was twenty-one years of age. He then entered the Queen's service, serving first in the 34th, and afterwards for many years in the 8th (King's), with which last he did good service at the siege of Delhi in 1857. After the capture he accompanied Seaton's column down the Doab, acting as deputy assistant adjutant-general, and was present at the several actions fought by that column. He then served at the recapture of Lucknow, officiating on Sir C. Campbell's staff as deputy judge advocate-general. After leaving India he commanded a battalion of the 8th for many years, and then held a brigade command at Liverpool. General Robertson was a studious as well as an efficient soldier. He wrote, among other things, the article 'Infantry' in the 'Aide Mémoire of the Royal Engineers.' He two years ago edited the new edition of the historical record of his old regiment, the 8th (King's), with large and interesting additions; and he devoted his leisure for some years to a verse translation of Tasso, which was published about thirty years ago. It was a very creditable work, and a dedicatory sonnet prefixed won, as the present writer remembers well, very high praise from Walter Savage Landor. General Robertson died on the 2nd inst., after a long illness, aged 68."

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL EDWARD GEORGE GODOLPHIN HASTINGS, C.B., Judicial Commissioner in India, died on the 1st inst. at Peshawur. The deceased was the eldest son of the late Captain the Hon. Edward Plantagenet R. H. Hastings, by his marriage with Caroline Sarah, eldest daughter of Mr. G. J. Morris, of the East India Company's Service, and grandson of Hans Francis, 11th Earl of Huntingdon. He was born in 1842, entered the Army in 1859, and was formerly captain in the 21st Hussars. He afterwards entered the Bengal Army, and served in the Hazara campaign in 1868, taking part in the operations on the Black Mountain. He was also engaged in the Afghan war in 1879-80, serving as Political Officer with the South Afghanistan Force, and was present at the battle of Charasiab in October, 1879, and in the operations around Cabul in the following December, including the investment of Sherpore. The gallant officer accompanied Sir Frederick Roberts in the march to Candahar, and was present at the battle which took place there. For these services he was specially mentioned in despatches, obtained the brevet rank of Lieutenant-General, and was nominated a Companion of the Order of the Bath. He was subsequently employed as Deputy-Commissioner of the 2nd Class in the Punjab. Colonel Hastings married in 1882 Mabel Sophia, daughter of Sir Brydges Powell Henniker, of Newton-hall, Essex.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.

On Wednesday Indian buyers took small quantities of bar silver at 49½d. per ounce. As regards Mexican dollars business was at a standstill, and 49 1-16d., the price paid for the last amount of coins dealt in, remains a nominal quotation. The Indian rates of exchange were 1s. 7 1-16d. and 1s. 7 3-32d. for Bombay and Calcutta respectively. Rupee Paper was quiet, but the quotations remain unchanged.

On Thursday the silver market was rather flat pending fresh arrivals, which is expected to-morrow. The Indian exchange rates were easy at 1s. 7 1-16d. to 1s. 7 3-32d. Four-per-Cent. Rupee Paper showed no change, but the Four-and-a-half per Cents. were easier with a few transactions, and closed at 81½ 81¼.

On Friday the advices from India were anything but satisfactory. There is a very unsettled feeling in business circles consequent upon the message received from America that opinion is declaring itself in favour of repealing the Bland Act, and so putting a stop to the coinage of silver. The uncertainty has so checked transactions as to cause a reduction in the Calcutta exchange rate to 1s. 6½d., while no quotation was received from Bombay. Consequently the silver market here was very weak. The arrivals from Brazil and Chili, which are expected to be available to-morrow, was offered at 49½d. per ounce, but there were no buyers at that price. Hardly any dealings in Rupee Paper were reported; the Four-and-a-Half and Four per Cents. closed at 81 8½ and 79½ 79½ respectively.

On Saturday the price of bar silver receded to 49½d. per ounce, and at that rate the amount brought by the Cuvier was sold, partly for India and partly for the Continent. Indian exchange rates were quoted at 1s. 6 31-32d. and 1s. 7d. for Calcutta and Bombay respectively. The China quotations were unaltered at 4s. 11½d. in Shanghai and 3s. 7½d. in Hong Kong. Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Rupee Paper was easier at 81 8½, with scarcely any business, the Four per Cents. remaining at 79½ 79½.

On Monday, although the Indian exchange rates are weaker at 1s. 6 15-16d. in both Bombay and Calcutta, there was enough demand for bar silver on Continental as well as Indian account to enable the consignees to dispose of the £68,000 brought by the Valparaiso at the price paid on Saturday—viz, 49½d. per ounce.

The market for Rupee Paper was dull, and quotations are ½ lower. The Four-and-a-Half per Cents. closed at 80½ 81 and the Four per Cents. at 79½ 79½.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

H.E. GENERAL HARDINGE arrived in Bombay on the 20th ult.

THIRTY men of the Sappers and Miners, under the command of a lieutenant, left Bangalore for Rangoon on the 17th ult., to assist in the torpedo defences of the river at that station.

MAJOR-GENERAL SIR JOHN ROSS, commanding the Poona Division, arrived in Bombay on the 18th ult. Surgeon-Major McConaghy, Secretary to the Surgeon-General to H.M.'s Forces, Bombay, was a passenger by the same steamer.

H.E. THE VICEROY has sanctioned the formation of a Volunteer Corps at Dacca, to be designated the Dacca Volunteer Rifles. The corps will be under the orders of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

THE Commander-in-Chief of Madras, accompanied by the Quartermaster-General and members of his Excellency's personal staff, proceeded on tour, on the 11th ult., from Ootacamund to Mysore, Mercara, &c. They were due at Secunderabad on the 22nd ult., where his Excellency will be joined by the Adjutant-General, Deputy Adjutant-General, and the Assistant Adjutant-General, Royal Artillery. Sir Frederick Roberts will return to Ootacamund on the 23rd inst.

It is officially notified that Nos. 1 and 5 companies Sappers and Miners, and the 12th Regiment N.I., returned from the Quetta District, will embark at Kurrachee in the I.G.S. Clive on the 7th December next, and will arrive at Bombay on the 9th idem, and march thence by route to Kirkee and Poona respectively. The camp equipage which accompanies these corps on the march to the line of rail will be brought to Bombay, and the mountain service tents will be returned to the Arsenal here. Lascar pals to complete the number required will be supplied in Bombay. The families of the 12th N.I. will be sent by rail from Surat to Poona. The three companies of the 9th and 25th N.I. will not leave Poona till the 9th December and the 20th December respectively.

THE Government of India have sanctioned the acquisition of the necessary land required for the construction of a new rifle range for the use of the troops stationed at Calcutta and Alipore. These troops have at present to proceed to Dum-Dum for rifle practice, which arrangement causes much delay and inconvenience to the men. The new range, which will be constructed without delay, is situated at a distance of about three and three-quarter miles from Fort William, and about one and a-half miles from Alipore, and the tramway runs to within half-a-mile of the range.

THERE are forty-seven vacancies in the Army Pay Department, and this number will be increased instead of diminished, several officers of the department now in India having to retire in March next. The cause of the unpopularity of the department, a contemporary remarks, is not far to seek, officers with the rank of major being obliged to serve in India on the pay and allowances of a captain. The Secretary of State keeps tinkering the rules under which appointments are made to the Department, but loses sight of the real cause of the unpopularity; and until Paymasters are placed on the same footing as regards pay and allowances as officers holding similar rank, we fear it will continue.

"THE STUDENT'S ARABIC-ENGLISH DICTIONARY."—In our review recently of Dr. Steingass's Arabic dictionary we have noticed the following misprints:—Alf Zaila for Alf Laila; Mu'allagat for Mu'allagat; Magamdt for Maqamdt; uyum for uyum; and in for aim.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

THE Maharajah of Cooh-Behar arrived at Hyderabad on the 12th ult., on a visit. He was received at the station by Nawab Salar Jung.

It is confidently reported, the Englishman says, that the long projected addition to the numerical strength of the bench of the High Court will now be no longer delayed.

In the first week in December, the Englishman says, a public meeting will be held to determine what steps shall be taken to perpetuate the memory of the late Kristodas Pal. It is believed that a new eye infirmary will be built, called after his name. The Bengal Government will doubtless grand substantial aid.

THE Viceroy visited the Mahomedan Anglo-Oriental College at Aligarh on the 17th ult., and arrived at Agra, where His Excellency made a short stay, on the 18th ult. His Excellency's reception at Aligarh was most enthusiastic.

KUMAR JWALA PRASAD, B.A., at present a Deputy Collector in Allahabad, has been appointed a probationer in the Native Civil Service in these provinces. He is a son of Rajah Jai Kishen Das, C.S.I., who was ennobled for distinguished services rendered by his brother, Chauba Gansham Das, and himself in the Mutiny.

THE claim of India to be represented in the Imperial Parliament has finally been recognised by an important English constituency. We are glad to learn by wire from Reuter that the Liberal Committee at Greenwich have accepted Mr. Lal-mohun Ghose as their nominee at the next general election. Few constituencies in the kingdom are more powerful or more important. Mr. Gladstone, it will be remembered, represented this ancient borough in the last Parliament.—Statesman.

THE Lahore paper informs us that the Hon. T. D. C. Hope, accompanied by Lieutenant-Colonel Wallace, R.E., officiating Consulting Engineer to Government for Guaranteed Railways, Punjab, the Agent and Chief Engineer of the Sind, Punjab, and Delhi Railway, the Engineer-in-Chief of the Rewari-Ferozpur State Railway, and other railway officers, left Lahore on Saturday, the 16th ult., for Gunda Sing Walla; from which place they were to proceed to the Bunder station to consult on the proposal for bridging the Sutlej River between that station and Ferozpur, so as to have through connection with the Rewari-Ferozpur Railway. There are various schemes for bridging the Sutlej at this point, several of which are designed with old rails.

MOFUSSIL NOTES.

Mr. Field, Opium Agent, Motihari, is about to be transferred to Chupra.

Mr. Slack leaves Bettiah next month, and Mr. Cameron returns to his old appointment.

The 6th Bengal Cavalry expect to march from Segowlie for Cawnpore about the 22nd inst.

Colonel, or may be Field-Marshal, Juggut Jung attempted to return to his native Nepaulese heath, but was stopped by Government orders at Benares, as fears are entertained that his presence at Khatmandoo might lead to a disturbance.

The following are some of the changes taking place amongst Behar planters:—Mr. Mike Hudson has left the Bihas Concern and joined Lalserayah, Mr. C. W. Snow goes from Pipra to Rajpore, and Mr. T. O. B. Norman manages the Tettareah concern.

Mr. Walker's case against Sub-Inspector Laloo Ram Panrai has, as we announced in our last issue, been removed from Purneah to Mozufferpore, where the matter will be taken up in the ensuing sessions. Mr. Walker has only been able to pay one flying visit to his factory since he was arrested, and now he has to go to Mozufferpore.

MADRAS.

SIR FREDERICK ROBERTS arrived at Bangalore from Mercara on the 17th ult., and left for Secunderabad on Thursday.

It is stated that the Secretary of State has sanctioned the purchase of the Bellary branch of the Madras Railway to form an integral part of the Southern Mahratta Railway, but the five-feet guage rails will not be shifted, as they may be required for use in case of a famine. A third rail will be laid for the metre-guage requirements.

THE anniversary festival of the Madras branch of the Poona Gayan Samaj was held at Madras on the 15th ult., Sir Charles Turner presiding. The meeting was largely attended. Sir Charles congratulated the branch on the success it had attained, and expressed agreeable surprise at the exhibition of native music, which was unlike the usual European idea, and was really pleasing to the ear. The Samaj has started two schools of music, the pupils from which sang and played. The chief attraction, however, was Mr. B. N. Natekar, of Bombay, whose playing and singing were charming, and took his European audience entirely by surprise.

THE SOUTH INDIAN RAILWAY.—Several more breaches have been caused on the South Indian Railway line. The mail train at present can only run as far as Acharapakam, a fresh breach having been made at the 65th mile from Madras. Major W. H. Coaker, R.E., Deputy Consulting Engineer for Railways, has gone to the spot, and the railway authorities are endeavouring to effect repairs. Tappal runners are posted to carry the post across the breaches.—Mail.

BOMBAY.

THE Bombay Millowners' Association propose sending out representative to the Persian and Arabian coasts and Africa for opening up new markets for Bombay cotton goods.

THE Bombay Factory Commission have nearly completed their labours. They have now to hear the evidence of the Sanitary Commissioner, to receive the report of the Medical sub-commission, and to prepare their own, and then their work will be at an end.

THE Bombay Government has consulted the leaders of the various native communities on the questions raised by Mr. Malabari with reference to the crusade against enforced widowhood and infant marriage.

THE Bombay Government has issued a Resolution declaring that the clubs in this Presidency, so long as they confine themselves to their legitimate functions as agencies for the supply of liquors required by the members, need not be called upon to take out licences.

SOME time since the Commissioner of Police of Bombay submitted a scheme to Government for the reorganization of the Detective Branch of the Police Force. We understand that Government have sanctioned the Commissioner's scheme, which will come into force in a few days. The department will be placed in charge of an experienced native police officer.

H.E. THE GOVERNOR OF BOMBAY is spending a very busy holiday. On Nov. 11th, at Kurrachee, he received and replied to addresses by the Chamber of Commerce, the Sind Sabha, and the Mahomedan Association. In the afternoon of the same day he laid the foundation-stone of the Municipal Market, and in the evening was entertained at a banquet at the Sind Club. On the following day his Excellency laid the foundation-stone of the Merewether Clock Tower, and distributed the prizes at the Grammar School. From Kurrachee his Excellency went to Cutch, where the ceremony of installing the Rao took place. Sir James then went to Nowanuggur, where he laid the foundation-stone of a high school for girls. He is still on tour, but will return to Bombay in time to receive the new Viceroy.

BURMA.

THE Municipal Committee of Akyab have voted a sum of Rs. 500 to secure that the products of the district shall be properly represented at the Indian and Colonial Exhibition to be held in London in 1886. They have also sanctioned a monthly expenditure of Rs. 120 for a school to be opened for Arakanese and Burmese girls, and granted Rs. 100 to purchase school furniture.

COLONEL SPEARMAN has not been well lately, and in obedience to the orders of his medical man has taken a trip to Chittagong.

Mr. B. F. DUNCAN has offered a silver cup, value Rs. 250, to be competed for by the Akyab Volunteers.

GENERAL SIR FREDERICK ROBERTS has offered Rs. 100 in prizes to be shot for at the approaching meeting of the British Burma Rifle Association, by non-commissioned officers and privates of British and Native Troops and Volunteers.

In 1866 the Commissioner of Tenasserim sentenced a Madrasse named Moonesawmy Naidu to transportation for life for murder. In 1881, on the occurrence of an outbreak in the gaol, Moonesawmy Naidu rendered great service, and in recognition thereof was released on a ticket-of-leave. Since then he has been employed as a warder in the gaol, and his conduct has been so uniformly good that on a petition presented by him the Chief Commissioner has sanctioned his absolute release.

The Mormon Elders have seemingly found Rangoon rather congenial soil wherein to sow the seeds of their faith. Elders Willes and Pratt have betaken themselves to Maulmain, whence they purpose returning to Utah via China and San Francisco.

CEYLON.

THE Ceylon Times says:—The present mail steamer will take away from Colombo one of our very old colonists—nearly the oldest—in the person of Mr. F. Sabonadiere, whom, however, we shall have the pleasure of welcoming back again early in next year. Mr. Harvey, of the Public Works Department, goes home by the same opportunity on three months' privilege leave.

The fourth session of the Supreme Court for Colombo commenced on the 11th November, presided over by Mr. Justice Dias. Mr. Crown Counsel R. Morgan prosecutes, and Mr. Bremner was chosen first foreman of the jury. There are eighty nine cases on the calendar!

ATTACKED BY AN ALLIGATOR.—The Police Sergeant at Matara, whilst bathing in the river at the back of his station, was severely bitten on his right thigh by an alligator. This is, we think, the third occurrence of the kind since 1879, when a surveyor was severely bitten and a Sinhalese woman was dragged away, and her corpse found the next day.

A COURTEOUS ACT OF SIR ARTHUR GORDON.—We are sure that everyone will be gratified to hear that His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to confer a free scholarship in the Medical College of Colombo upon Mr. Frank Wall, a son of Mr. George Wall, "in consideration of the latter's long and valuable services to the colony." No more graceful act could have been performed by his Excellency the Governor. The colony is indebted to Mr. George Wall in a greater degree than to any other man living, and its ruler cannot do better than acknowledge the fact in this fashion.—Times.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Observer suggests that Government should sanction the issue locally of a loan in rupees. He states that on account of the dearth of sound investments here since the failure of the O. B. C. large sums in silver have been kept by many natives in their houses; hence the great demand for iron safes at present.

HIGH-GROWN DELICATE FLAVOURED TEAS NOT APPRECIATED IN MINING LANE?—A tea planter at one of the highest elevations in Ceylon, writes:—"I cannot tell why [my tea sometimes fetches the lowest prices in the Tea list unless it be due to climate; for the brokers' report pronounced it well made and well flavoured, but wanting in strength. All the tea authorities who have visited me and tasted the tea, pronounce it first-rate—with a most delicate agreeable flavour like the Darjeeling teas, and unlike anything else in Ceylon. But I am afraid that to get a price it must be disposed of elsewhere than in Mining-lane, where apparently, strong, rasping teas to mix with China sell best."—Observer.

Miscellaneous.

AN UNFORTUNATE CAREER.—The arrest is reported in the American paper, at Louisville on November 16, of Robert Bryce M'Phun, a young Scotchman, said to be of noble birth, on an extradition warrant by Sergeant Webb, of the Calcutta (India) Police, charged with forgeries to the extent of 100,000 dolrs. It is stated that M'Phun went to India several years ago with a large amount of money, and became a general broker and speculator at Bombay and afterwards at Calcutta, where he lived a very fast and extravagant life, and was soon looked upon as a social nabob. He entertained the Prince of Wales on his Indian tour, and was, it is said, in close social relations with Lord Lytton. At Calcutta he conducted his banking business with the Royal Bank. M'Phun, as is alleged, forged certificates of shares in the Halta Tea Company and other corporations to the extent of about £25,000. These he disposed of to the Bengal Bank in some manner, realising about £15,000. Much of this it is said he squandered, but eighteen months ago he fled from Calcutta to America with what remained. He finally arrived in Colorado, where he lost all he had in mining speculation. Then he made his way to Louisville, where, under the name of Robert Bryce, he had lived for the past ten months. Since June Bryce had been under surveillance, but nothing was publicly known of his defalcations until his arrest. Bryce is about thirty-two years old, with a pronounced Scotch accent.

BREWING IN CEYLON.—Perhaps one of the most recent failures in the form of local companies is the Nuwera Eliya Brewery concern. We do not attempt to pass an opinion as to the cause of its failure; all we know is that it was a failure, although in India three or four brewery companies have been established for a number of years with complete success. They have succeeded in obtaining contracts for the supply of the troops at the hill-stations near which, or within easy reach of which, they have been established. One of these, the Murree Brewery Company, has been extremely fortunate in having secured the services of a thoroughly practical man as general manager, and they have now extended their operations to the Nilgiris, and, more recently, purchased the premises, plant, and goodwill of the Nuwera Eliya Brewery Company, where operations will be shortly recommenced. The amount of purchase-money was, we understand, Rs. 10,000, and, considering the excellent plant and buildings they have secured, they have made an excellent bargain. Mr. Whympere, the managing brewer, was in Ceylon recently, and considers the site, the buildings, and the water-supply all that could be desired; but he said that beer cannot be successfully made in India on the loftiest hills without the aid of an ice machine. This and some other plant are now on their way to Ceylon, and during the next cold season the concern will, no doubt, be once more at work.—Ceylon Times.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

THE LANDHOLDERS' MEMORIAL AGAINST THE TENANCY BILL.

WE have already noticed two of the principal points for which the landholders of Bengal and Behar contend in their Memorial to the Secretary of State against the Tenancy Bill; and it would be difficult for any impartial mind to resist the force of the arguments which they have brought forward in demolition of the assertions of Mr. Macdonnell, who endeavoured to support them by misquotation and other devices which he has brought with him into the Government Secretariat. It now remains to consider the few remaining questions, especially as to the rights of the tenants at the time of the Permanent Settlement, and the power which the Government reserved to itself under Section 7 of Reg. 1 of 1793 for the future protection of the ryots.

It is the policy of Mr. Macdonnell and the promoters of the Tenancy Bill to assert that the rights of the tenants were not ascertained before the Permanent Settlement, and that it has always been, and always will be, open to the Government of the day to deal with them as it seems fit, according to its political views and necessities. The Memorialists have little difficulty in dealing with this position. They show that Lord Cornwallis's Minute, dated February 3rd, 1870, emphatically declares that full inquiry was made on the subject for twenty years. The rights of all classes of tenants, as then existing, were well ascertained, although the Herculean task of recording the incidents of each of the millions of tenancies in the country was not officially undertaken. The Memorialists further appeal to the results summarised in Mr. Shore's famous Minute of June 18th, 1789, as crucial tests for determining the question, whether certain rights which the new Tenancy Bill proposes to confer upon the tenants are not opposed to the ancient land-law of the country. It only remains to add that the Court of Directors in 1793 were entirely opposed to the views now expressed by Mr. Macdonnell.

The Court of Directors felt, no doubt, that the substantive rights of the tenants had been ascertained by Mr. Shore, with the same degree of certainty and exactness as those of the landholders. They wrote of his performance, in connection of both branches of the subject, with equal approbation in the following terms:—"The great body of information which this report contains respecting the practice of the Mogul Government and our own, the past and present state of the country, the usages and corruptions in the administration of the revenue, the rights and characters of the superior and inferior occupants of the land; such a collection of information, and the luminous order in which it is arranged, the vast application it evinces, and the good sense which pervades it, are all entitled to our respect and praise, and will remain a monument of Mr. Shore's services to the Company."

The Memorialists proceed to complain that the Government of India has chosen to prefer the doctrines laid down by one of their official law lecturers (an eminent barrister of the Court, no doubt, but of no practical experience) to the opinions recorded by Mr. Justice Field, who has made the tenancy and rent questions his special study and peculium. It is generally well known how Mr. Field was honoured and entertained by Lord Ripon so long as his Excellency imagined that Mr. Field's authority could, by judiciously exercised influence and encouragement, be obtained in support of the revolutionary measure which the Government desired to introduce. When, however, it was found that Mr. Field was not to be won over by the Viceroy's blandishments, the doors of Government House were closed to him. But as Mr. Field has had a more recent opportunity of putting on the official record his views upon the Bill in its latest form, as revised by the Select Committee of the last Session, it will be advisable to reserve the substance of his Minute for further consideration.

The Memorialists have, perhaps, acted unadvisedly in relegating to an Appendix some of their principal arguments regarding the two questions which are now under our immediate consideration. But if it has been our painful duty to charge Mr. Secretary Macdonnell, it becomes a still graver task to have to show that Sir Stewart Bayley, a member of Council, and the Lieutenant-Governor designate of Bengal, attempted to produce an effect, in the debate in the Legislative Council last year, by an imperfect quotation from a despatch of Lord Hastings in 1815, in which a full statement of the entire text was needed, in order to give a complete view of Lord Hastings's impressions regarding the rights of the peasantry at large and of the zemindars.

The case may be stated briefly thus. Sir Stewart Bayley quoted Lord Hastings's despatch, as proving that the resident ryots, as defined by Mr. Shore, have an established permanent hereditary right in the soil which they cultivate, and that the provisions of the Regulations of 1793, by which the leases of such tenants were limited to a term of ten years, imposed as unjust restriction on the existing rights of the ryots. But there was another paragraph which Sir Stewart Bayley did not notice, and which is now to be found in the Appendix to the Memorial, giving a complete view of Lord Hastings's impressions respecting the rights of the ryots and the zemindars. "If it were asked," writes Lord Hastings, "how the above rights are to be reconciled with the privileges and immunities which the British Government has vested in the zemindars or other proprietors of land, I should answer that although it may be in some degree a misnomer to say that the right in the soil is vested in the latter, I do not discern anything incompatible in the two descriptions of tenure. In other words, I can discover nothing in the rights which I have supposed the ryot to possess at variance with the ideas which are usually attached to the possession and enjoyment of landed property. The cottager in England may have his rights, but they do not oppugn those which are inherent in the proprietor of the estate. In like manner the zemindar, in holding his estate, subject to certain restrictions with respect to the rights of the resident ryots, does not the less enjoy the power of managing those lands, on which no resident ryots are established, in any mode he may judge proper; of collecting the rents of the whole through what channel he may deem best suited to his convenience; of providing for the cultivation of waste lands; of improving the general condition of the estate; and, finally, of enjoying the surplus revenue, whatever it may be, after paying the regulated assessment to Government. Each party has his rights, but rights materially differing in their nature and degree, both perfectly consistent with each other, so long as avarice and other bad passions do not instigate the zemindar to oppress his ryots, which, of course, it should be the principal object of our institutions to prevent."

Lord Hastings, as the Memorialists observe, had no partiality for the zemindaree system as established in Bengal, and therefore his lordship's statement of the law is to be read in the light of a concession extorted from an ingenious opponent of it. There were many persons in the time of Lord Hastings who would have been glad to have broken down the Permanent Settlement at that early date, but his lordship's innate sense of justice compelled him to admit the full title which is now claimed by the zemindars of Bengal, whilst he recognised the rights of the resident ryots, which had been duly investigated and acknowledged as part and parcel of the Permanent Settlement. The promoters of the Tenancy Bill, whilst professing to restore the status which existed before the Permanent Settlement, are compelled to ignore the felicitous description of the co-relative rights of the zemindars and ryots, which Lord Hastings felt himself bound to record. They could deprive the zemindar of the management of his estate, and would confer on the non-resident ryot rights which, from the nature of them, belong essentially to the resident ryot only.

There is but one other point to which we must briefly allude, viz., the right of free sale of the holdings of ryots. Even Mr. Macdonnell was unable to find any recognition of such a right in 1793; and he has to fall back on what he considers the evidence to be found in a petition which he alleges was submitted, in 1851, by the British Indian Association, admitting the transferability of holdings. The Memorialists have been at some pains to show that the British Indian Association was not constituted until after the date of this petition, and that the signatories of the petition were by no means representative of the zemindars of Bengal, or of the opinions of the British Indian Association. Our readers will doubtless feel with us that it is unnecessary to pursue Mr. Macdonnell's reckless assertions any further. Months have rolled on, and the Tenancy Bill has now entered into a new phase of existence. Hence the Memorialists certainly deserve the thanks of their countrymen for their sturdy resolution to decline to permit their adversaries to take credit for rash assertions, merely because they remained uncontroverted. Doubtless the memorial will receive due attention from Lord Dufferin and Lord Kimberley.

THE total wheat exports from April 1st to August 31st are stated at 7,817,787 cwts. in 1884, against 13,674,007 cwts. in 1883.

PROFESSOR MAX MÜLLER'S INDIAN BIOGRAPHIES.

MESSRS. LONGMANS, GREEN, AND Co. have recently brought out a series of biographical sketches—some of them reprints of lectures already before the public—by Professor Max Müller; and of these, three are devoted to the lives and works of eminent Indians. A work that contains a good deal of novel and valuable information regarding the careers of such men as the Raja Rammohun Roy, Keshub Chunder Sen, and Dayananda Saraswati, cannot be other than interesting to a large number of readers, both in Europe and in India; and we doubt not that Professor Müller's book will have a considerable circulation not only among Orientalists at home, but also in a much wider Indian circle.

The three biographical essays we have named will also, doubtless, be studied by many who would fain learn from them something trustworthy about that most interesting of all modern phenomena connected with the development of the human mind, that shows the results of the contact between the old-world religion and civilization of the Hindus, and the more practical and vigorous civilization of the West. But Professor Müller's invincible ignorance of the India of the present day, with which he is only acquainted through the medium of books and the conversation of the few English-speaking Indians whom he has met in England, and his utter lack of sympathy with that devout and philosophic Conservatism which is one of the leading characteristics of most of the greatest minds of India, are very serious disqualifications for the bosh he seems inclined to attempt. These disqualifications are most apparent in the meagre and perfunctory account of the great Vedic reformer, Dayananda Saraswati. Professor Müller's life of the Raja Rammohun Roy does not pretend to be much more than an epitomised réchauffage of what has already been written about the founder of the Brahmo Somaj. His biography of Keshub Chunder Sen has more life and reality about it, for he saw something of the Minister when the latter was in England, and prints some interesting letters that subsequently passed between them. But the life of Dayananda Saraswati is particularly disappointing, for it is impossible to believe that fuller materials than those which appear to have been used by Professor Müller do not exist for a history of the life and teaching of an apostle of "liberal orthodoxy," whose eloquent voice was only hushed a little more than a year ago by death.

Keshub Chunder Sen deservedly occupied so large a space in the Indian Press, and in current Anglo-Indian literature, that it is no great reproach to Professor Max Müller to say that he adds little to our previous knowledge of that extraordinary man. He can tell us, it is true, what was Dr. Pusey's verdict as to the probability of Keshub's eternal salvation; but the anecdote is interesting as an illustration of Dr. Pusey's mind, rather than from its bearing on Keshub Chunder Sen himself—and it had already been narrated in substance by the Liberal. Perhaps the best part of the book is the vindication, that is afforded by a comparison of Professor Max Müller's letters with those of Keshub Chunder Sen, of the Minister's action and motives in the much controverted question of his daughter's marriage. The Professor gives probably the best possible defence of that marriage, when he points out (pp. 111-112) that the main objections urged against it are also urged sometimes, both by Catholics and by Protestants, against "mixed marriages" celebrated between members of those faiths according to the ritual of both. But even here, we think it is to be regretted that many elements of bitterness in this quarrel have been raked up again, which might ere now have been properly relegated to oblivion. For instance, Professor Müller reprints, at page 97, the statement that "The bitterness was greatly aggravated by the marriage of the Minister's daughter, chiefly because the offer of one of the leading seceders, the chief editor of their journal, to have his daughter married to the Maharajah of Cutch Behar was declined, the match not being approved by the State officers in Cutch Behar, who, after having seen both girls, gave decided preference to the Minister's daughter. The disappointment thus caused fomented the jealousies already existing, till they culminated in a schismatic rupture." This tu quoque is an argument fair enough in the heat of controversy, but it is not suited to the immortality of a book. Under present circumstances it is quite sufficient to say that the Minister's conduct in this matter has been amply justified by subsequent facts, and that at the present time there is hardly a person in India who does not congratulate the illustrious young couple on the wisdom and liberality of the bride's high-minded father.

Professor Müller has long been noted for his curious dislike of the nation to whose hospitality he owes so much of his success in life. This dislike becomes, when Anglo-Indians are in question, almost venomous. Here is a specimen of the way in which he writes to Keshub—whose great work and noble character were appreciated by Anglo-Indians quite as highly as by the Professor himself, and perhaps more intelligently:—

They had no idea of the real nature of the work you had taken in hand, but they liked to pat you on the back and give you advice, and warn you against dangers, and all that. You see you were only a native—and is not every European far wiser than a Hindu? How I hate that conceit! I do not mean to say that it is general, but it exists; and what is the worst, it exists in influential quarters. Men who have been in India, men who write on India, men who profess to have studied the language and literature of India, speak even of the most learned, the best and wisest of your countrymen, of men in knowledge, manners, and character infinitely their superiors, as of so many ignorant and naughty children. Have we not conquered India? they seem to say. Do we not govern India? and should we not know much better than Rammohun Roy, or Debendranāth Tagore, or Keshub Chunder Sen what is the right course which Indian social and religious reformers ought to follow?

We do not suppose for a moment that Keshub Chunder Sen was imposed on by these misrepresentations. Further on the Professor adds:—"I do not write this to flatter you, but in order to warn you against being disheartened by foreign criticism." By "foreign" criticism he seems to mean Anglo-Indian, as opposed to German criticism. And this ungracious sentiment—to call it by no harder name—appears to inspire even the title-page of Professor Müller's work; where he describes himself as "F. Max Müller, K.M., Member of the French Institute." Of course everyone ought to know what "K.M." means; and no one will question the honour indicated by the membership of the French Institute. But to many English readers it will seem hardly courteous that on the title-page of an English book, that will circulate mainly among Englishmen or English-speaking Indians, there should be this ostentatious ignoring of all English connections and parade of "foreign" honours.

COUNCIL DRAFTS.—The tenders for Rs. 20,00,000 in bills on India and telegraphic transfers were received on Wednesday last at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were:—In bills—on Calcutta, Rs. 10,000; and Bombay, Rs. 10,000, at an average rate of 1s. 7-125d. In telegraphic transfers—on Calcutta, Rs. 7,00,000; and Bombay, Rs. 1,00,000, at an average rate of 1s. 7-125d.—making a total of Rs. 8,20,000. Tenders for bills and telegraphic transfers on Calcutta and Bombay at 1s. 7-125d. will receive in full. From April 1 to last week the total amount of remittances sold was Rs. 9,38,02,918, realising £7,655,034.

THE MANUFACTURE OF IRON BY THE EGYPTIANS.—It has been much questioned whether iron was employed at all by the Egyptians until the time of the Greek conquest. The weapons, implements, and ornaments of iron which have been found on the ancient sites are so few, while those of bronze are so numerous, and the date of the few iron objects discovered is so uncertain, that there is a strong temptation to embrace the simple theory that iron was first introduced into Egypt by the Ptolemies. Difficulties, however, stand in the way of the complete adoption of this view. A fragment of a thin plate of iron was found by Colonel Vyse imbedded in the masonry of the great pyramid. Some iron implements and ornaments have been found in the tombs, with nothing about them indicative of their belonging to a late period. The paucity of such instances is partially, if not wholly, accounted for by the rapid decay of iron in the nitrous earth of Egypt, or when oxidised by exposure to the air. It seems, moreover, very improbable that the Hebrews and Canaanites should for centuries have been well acquainted with the use of iron, and their neighbours of Egypt, whose civilisation was far more advanced, have been ignorant of it. On these grounds the most judicious of modern Egyptologists seem to hold that, while the use of iron by the Egyptians in Pharaonic times, was at the best rare and occasional, it was still not wholly unknown although less appreciated than we should have expected. Iron spear heads, iron sickles, iron gimlets, iron bracelets, iron keys, and iron wire, were occasionally made use of; but the Egyptians, on the whole, were contented with their bronze implements and weapons, which were more easily produced.—Iron.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

INDIAN TEA.—From Messrs. G. White and Co's Market Report, from 27th Nov. to 4th Dec. :—The sales opened this week with a steady demand at about last Thursday's rates for all useful descriptions, but later on a flatter tone was apparent, especially in leafy kinds under 1s. 1d., which have receded to the lowest point of the market. Prices now ruling for Souchongs—viz., 8d. to 9d., Pekoe Souchongs, 8½d. to 10d., and Common Pekoes at 10d. to 1s., are unusually low and should stimulate consumption. The figures just issued are satisfactory, as the deliveries exceed those of November, 1883, which were considered at that time exceptionally good. There is again a considerable discrepancy in the Calcutta figures to hand by last mail, which surely might be remedied, the export from 1st May to 31st October being in the highest set, 37,500,000lbs., and the lowest 32,200,000lbs. Ceylon.—Supplies have been only on a very moderate scale, and there is no change to note in quotations. An invoice of 57 packages from the Imboolpittia estate met with good competition, and realised an average of 1s. 7½d. per lb.

THE "VOICE OF INDIA."

INDIA.

THERE are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing MONTHLY (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native journals throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally docile and conservative; and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth; but it is a policy of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is specially desired to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

KELLY'S DIRECTORY

OF THE

OF THE UNITED KINGDOM,

BEING A GUIDE TO THE

Export and Import Shipping, and Manufacturing Industries of the United Kingdom, with the

COLONIES & FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

THIS WORK gives a vast amount of information respecting the business carried on between the United Kingdom and the Colonies and Foreign Countries; showing the description of goods, and the amount thereof, exported to each Colony or Country abroad, the British Ports whence shipments are made, the MERCHANTS, FACTORS, and
SHIPPERS at the various Ports and Towns in England, the Manufacturers of the Principal Goods
exported, and the MERCHANTS and OTHERS
ABROAD WHO ARE IMPORTERS OR BUYERS OF BRITISH GOODS.

It also gives complete information as to the various descriptions of goods, and the amounts thereof, imported from abroad into this country,
with the names of the Merchants and Shippers,
and also the Manufacturers at the Principal Towns
of the various Goods imported.

The Work is divided into three principal divisions
the first of which comprises the various Foreign Countries and British Possessions throughout the world to which British Manufactures are exported.

Under each of these is given, first:—A Statistical Account of the Country, the Financial Position, Business Relations with this Country, within the case of Foreign States, the names of the British and other Consuls, the name of the Minister in this country, Consuls, Vice-Consuls, &c., at the various Ports and Places in this country; the
PRINCIPAL BANKERS, the MERCHANTS, COMMISSION
MERCHANTS, BUYERS OF ENGLISH GOODS, and the Manufacturers, &c., at the Principal Towns of the various goods imported; the various Ports in each country; also the Ports in this country whence Shipments are made; Tariffs, &c., &c.; a Tabular
Statement showing the Exports from this country
during the last three years; a List of the Merchants and Shippers in the various British Towns
List of Steamers and other Vessels sailing from the Ports; also a List of the various Manufactures that are exported from this country.

The second division comprises an Alphabetical
List of the Exporters from this country, stating the class of goods exported by them.

The third division the Work embraces the names and addresses of the actual Manufacturers,
or Manufacturers' Agents, of the articles exported, describing as clearly as possible the specialities of each Manufacturer.

The Times, September 20th, 1884.

"It is almost exhaustive as a guide to the shipping and manufacturing industries, both export and import,
of Great Britain and Ireland."

Daily Chronicle, September 12th, 1884.

"Merchants and manufacturers of all kinds will find the Directory a valuable guide, whether their interests

Daily News, September 17th, 1884.

"It abounds in information of the kind which merchants, manufacturers, and exporters are constantly in need of. Its scope, however, is not confined to the classes who in this country have business with the colonies and foreign parts, but includes also the principal merchants abroad, so that the book becomes a tolerably complete guide to the import and export industries of all countries with which Great Britain has any mercantile relation, and vice versa."

European Mail, September 26th, 1884.

"In collecting the names of foreign and colonial firms
—a task of considerable difficulty, as will be understood
—Messrs. Kelly have had the assistance of the British consuls, many of whom have given personal testimony to the important service this Directory fulfils in commercial circles abroad."

THE DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS.

W. THORNHILL &amp; CO., Sole Agents.

The Reputation of the "DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS," originally introduced into England by W. THORNHILL and CO., is now permanently established. The success of their enterprise has surpassed their most sanguine expectations. "DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS" afford the only instance hitherto attained of the absolutely perfect representation of the real diamonds by artificial means. These remarkable stones, by their purity and brilliancy, support comparison with diamonds of the first water, and are undistinguishable therefrom. They are infinitely superior in every respect to real diamonds of inferior quality. DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS were exposed side by side with real diamonds of great value in the Paris Exhibition, 1878, and were awarded a Prize Medal and the highest recompense awarded to imitations. They attracted universal attention and admiration, and forthwith became much in vogue with the grande monde and élite of society. They are now worn at the Court balls, and upon all occasions in London, Paris, and St. Petersburg. They are invaluable for intermixing with and replacing purpures and other costly diamond ornaments. DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS can be worn at all times, even by daylight, with confidence and absolute security. They possess the penetrating brilliancy and lustre peculiar to real diamonds, and the concessionaires guarantee the surprise and pleasure of purchasers. The perfection thus attained is the result of investigations and experiments extending over two generations. The cost, nevertheless, of the DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS is about 1-800th that of real diamonds.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1884.

Notes of the Week.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, November 28th; Madras and Allahabad, November 26th; Calcutta, November 25th; Ceylon, November 25th; Burma, November 21st.

AN interesting discussion is expected at the meeting this afternoon of the East India Association, when Mr. Roper Lethbridge, C.I.E., will read a paper by Mr. Ginwalla, of Broach, suggesting a thorough reform of the "Statutory Service." Mr. Lethbridge is himself in favour of raising the age to the old limit of twenty-three; and will probably speak, in the course of the discussion, in that sense.

LONG live the Rajah Sir Sourindro Mohun Tagore, Kt., C.I.E.! We most heartily congratulate him on the honour which he has so thoroughly deserved, and which Her Gracious Majesty has now been pleased to bestow on him. We ventured last week to dub the Rajah "patron and high-priest of Indian music;" and in that capacity he has already received knighthood or other honours from nearly every civilised country of the globe. We should be glad to see this knighthood followed by a baronetcy in the same distinguished family.

"WELCOME the coming, speed the parting guest." This is naturally the burden of the week's telegrams from India, which are mainly concerned with the ceremonies connected with the arrival of Lord Dufferin and the departure of Lord Ripon.

MONDAY'S Times contained an able leader on Lord Ripon's tempest-tossed and singularly infructuous administration. Its conclusion is identical with that already expressed in these columns, as well as in those of the Hindoo Patriot, and (often accompanied by less lenient criticism) in the leading English journals of India.

THE Times aptly compares the language of the valedictory addresses that have been presented to Lord Ripon to "the eulogistic literature of the tombstone." Whatever we may think of the wisdom or the discretion of the retiring Viceroy, we claim to be of those who entertain a sincere respect for the benevolence of his intentions; and now that he is well out of harm's way, and his successor safely seated in the saddle, we heartily join our Native friends in wishing his Excellency a happy and peaceful retirement—and shall gladly hear of his success in working out the "benevolent intentions" of the Bengal Tenancy Bill in a sphere (say at Studley Royal) where they may do good, and can injure no one. De mortuis nil nisi bonum is the wholesome rule of "the eulogistic literature of the tombstone"; and the best we can wish for Lord Ripon is, that his successor's rule may be as wise and successful as we all expect it to be—in which case the future historian of Lord Ripon's administration will be able to confine himself mainly to a consideration of its "good intentions."

It is a hopeful sign that the first new business to come before the Bengal Legislative Council is a Bill to provide for the registration of permanent tenures in land, and to render the lands liable to summary sale on default in payment of rent. This Bill is styled, somewhat facetiously, "a corollary of the Rent Bill"; but it obviously is, in reality, precisely the Bill which the Rent Bill itself was at first intended to be, before the Radical rage of Lord Ripon's advisers transformed it into a measure of confiscation and oppression. Here we clearly have the Bill which was in Mr. Mackenzie's mind when he made his famous speech on the intolerable grievances of the zemindars, in introducing the first Rent Bill into the Bengal Council in 1877-78. That was, of course, anterior to the transfer of the measure to the serenely Radical heights of the Viceroy's Council.

WE do not share the apprehensions of the Times' correspondent, that the rebound of the pendulum may be too violent, and that this new measure may do too much for the landlords. Doubtless the advent of Lord Dufferin has aroused the sleeping consciences of many of our Radical legislators; but the fabled wealth of the "unearned increment" under the Permanent Settlement is still there, to attract the cupidity of amateur financiers, and to excite the indignation of the Henry Georges and the Michael Davitts of India.

WE are glad to note the statement of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, that many of the recent municipal elections in his province have been very successful. Under the judicious supervision of Lord Dufferin, something may yet be done to rescue from failure the vitally important idea of local self-government for India. Lord Ripon unhappily got hold of "the wrong end of the stick" in this, as in most of his other schemes; we can only be thankful if his mistakes should prove more easy of remedy than at one time seemed likely.

WE reproduce with much pleasure, in another column, an exceedingly manly and straightforward article from the Hindoo Patriot on the feelings with which Lord Ripon is regarded by the zemindars of Bengal. Without under-estimating in any way the benevolence of Lord Ripon's intentions in many parts of his somewhat erratic policy, the Hindoo Patriot points out—what is of course perfectly obvious to those who have any experience in the working of English politics—that so long as Lord Ripon definitely supports the principles of the Bengal Tenancy Bill, so long must he be regarded as unfriendly to the most important of the material interests of Bengal.

A SIMILAR honourable and straightforward feeling is manifested in the account, which has been telegraphed to this country, of the farewell interview between the representatives of the British Indian Association and the departing Viceroy on Tuesday last, Dec. 9. We deal with this subject in our leading columns to-day.

THE Hindoo Patriot quotes with approval the following paragraph from the Englishman :—

The Secretary of State for India is said to have again drawn the attention of all the local Governments to the rules in regard to the placing of Government information at the disposal of the Press. His lordship, in the first place, points out the great importance of this privilege, which is left to the discretion of the heads of departments, and states that where doubts exist as to the propriety or otherwise of placing the Government information before the Press, the advice of higher authority should be sought. The most important part of his lordship's letter, however, is that in which he directs attention to the fact that the time when the information is given is often of as much importance as the information itself.

From this paragraph it is evident that those scandals in regard to the relations between the Government and the Press, which led to Lord Lytton's wise and just measure of the appointment of a Press Commissioner, have again sprung up since Lord Ripon's abolition of that office. It is in the nature of things impossible that scandals should not arise, so long as this important matter is nominally "left to the discretion of the heads of departments"—which really means that Government information is used as a means to purchase a venal support of certain Government measures. Lord Dufferin is far too high-minded a man to allow such a corrupt system to continue. And even if he were not, the system must rapidly break down, of its own inherent viciousness. It is not only that it is an immoral system; it is also an absolutely unworkable one, and always recoils on the heads of those who foolishly hope to profit by its use. For the Government in its dealings with the Press—an important matter everywhere, but especially so in India—honesty is the best policy. More than this, it is the only policy that will not in the long run prove actually disastrous to the reputation of the head of the Government; and it is a singularly unwise and short-sighted economy that grudges, for the supervision of this most important business, the cost of an officer of sufficient standing and character to ensure absolute purity in the discharge of that duty.

We venture to speak quite frankly on this subject of the relations between the Government and the Press. We boldly affirm that, notwithstanding all the virulence of party-feeling that poured unmerited obloquy on so many portions of Lord Lytton's administration—and never perhaps has party-feeling run so high as in those years—there has never been heard one word or one hint of a suspicion of unfairness or impartiality on the part of Lord Lytton's Government towards the Press. In fact, the most consistent opponent of Lord Lytton's policy has borne honourable testimony to the purity of that administration in this important point, in most unequivocal and outspoken language; and attributed the fact in generous terms to the work of the Press Commissioner.

On the other hand, Lord Ripon abolished the Press Commissionership—and the natural result was manifested in (among many other similar phenomena) the famous "Garbled Telegrams." Had those telegrams been sent under the auspices of a Press Commissioner, he would, of course, have been instantly dismissed or superseded. As it was, much of the discredit—doubtless wrongly, except as a matter of responsibility—was thrown by the public on the shoulders of the Viceroy himself and his immediate advisers. And not unjustly so, either, for this reason—that the Viceroy and his immediate advisers ought to have taken care that the responsibility in such a matter attached to some officer of standing.

ONE of the most important and valuable of the judicial reports on the Bengal Tenancy Bill that are published in the Gazette of India is that of Mr. Tweedie of the Bengal Civil Service, District and Sessions Judge of Shahabad. We do not in all points agree with Mr. Tweedie's views on the Bill; but his analysis is so complete and exhaustive, and many of his suggestions are so novel and ingenious, that we propose in an early issue to put a complete account of them before our readers.

THE Indian Statesman continues its admirable articles on the mischief threatened by the Bengal Tenancy Bill. We shall reproduce some of the series in our next.

WE give elsewhere a thoughtful letter from Colonel Paske on the Afghan Boundary Commission. We wish we could share Colonel Paske's sanguine views as to the good effects of that Commission. What does he think of the Russian advance to Pulikhatun, while Sir Peter Lumsden and Colonel Ridgeway are kept kicking their heels about, awaiting the arrival of their serene highnesses the Russian envoys? Here there is clearly a premeditated insult; to make an appointment with a man, and then keep him waiting for hours in your verandah, is hardly the way to show him respect.

LIGHT, more light! We take the following from the Hindoo Patriot:—

An enterprising Hindu capitalist has opened a factory for the purpose of making lucifer matches at Chinchpogly near Bombay. The machinery, which is worked by steam, has been imported from England. The locale should have been Madras, where even the light of a lucifer match might prove useful to some people. Perhaps our friend of the Indian Spectator wants it.

THE Indian Mirror says:—

We congratulate cordially our distinguished countryman, Rajah Sourendro Mohun Tagore, C.I.E., on his being made a Knight by the Queen-Empress of India. This is the first time a native of Bengal has been singled out for the rare distinction of a Knight. In the Western Presidency, we believe, we have a Knight in Sir Mungaldass Nathubhoy. The Hindoo community of Bengal should be deservedly proud of the honour just conferred on one of their members. Bombay has got a Parsee Baronet and a Hindoo Knight. Bengal has now got a Hindoo Knight too. When shall we have a Hindoo or Mahomedan Baronet?

THE Englishman has the following account of the Calcutta Freight Market, corrected to November 25:—

A fair amount of business has again been done during the last week, chiefly in steamer engagements for London at former rates. Four sailing vessels have found employment for the States, and one ship for Dundee. The rates for sailers have a downward tendency, and the market closes weak, nor is there any chance of much improvement for the next three months, as there is practically only one kind of cargo available, viz., Jute. Our unfixed tonnage stands at 27,000 tons.

WE take the following on the Calcutta Tea Market from Messrs. W. Moran and Co.'s Report:—

On the 13th inst. 13,011 chests were offered, and 12,427 chests sold. All teas sold at a slight advance, and some invoices with fine flavour and strength were well competed for. On the 20th 8,936 chests were offered, and 8,448 sold. The advance at the previous auctions was not maintained, and prices were decidedly in favour of buyers.

Telegraphic Intelligence.

The following is the usual weekly telegram from the Times' correspondent at Calcutta, dated Dec. 14th:—

"Last week was a busy one for both the outgoing and incoming Viceroys of India. Lord Ripon daily received a number of deputations from various classes and different parts of the country. Of these the two most noteworthy were those of the British Indian Association and the Native Press.

"The first-named body, which represents the landed interest, while praising his lordship's other measures, took the opportunity of expressing its disagreement with the policy of the Bengal Rent Bill. It is reported that the president added on his own account some words which did not appear in the written address, and which denounced that Bill in very unqualified terms. Lord Ripon, in reply, spoke guardedly, and claimed credit because he had not hurried the measure on, but had giving ample time for its consideration. The Native Press deputation dwelt chiefly on the repeal of the Vernacular Press Act, and asserted that the seditious extracts from the vernacular newspapers from time to time published were exaggerated. Lord Ripon, in answer, gave some very wise advice, which the native editors will do well to lay to heart if they desire to make themselves a real power for good.

"On Thursday afternoon the native community of Calcutta held a crowded meeting in the Town-hall, at which it was computed that about 5,000 persons were present. The Maharajah of Cooch-Behar presided, and, although most of the leading members of the landed aristocracy were absent, still the zemindary interest was by no means entirely unrepresented. Some well-known Hindoo, Mahomedan, and Parsee citizens of Calcutta spoke. Their complimentary references to the retiring Viceroy were received with unmistakable enthusiasm, and a farewell address was voted by acclamation. On the following evening the Reception Committee entertained the Viceroy and Lady Ripon with an evening party at Belgachia, a suburban villa belonging to the Rajah of Paikparra. In the course of the evening the address voted at the previous day's meeting was presented. Lord Ripon replied at some length. He reviewed the chief measures of his viceroyalty, stated that it had been his special aim to advance the moral and intellectual qualities of the people, and expressed a hope that recent controversies might now be laid to rest, and that even his opponents might not be unwilling to judge his administration more justly than they had sometimes done.

"Lord Dufferin arrived in Bombay on Monday, and had no sooner set foot on shore than deputations and addresses began to pour in upon him. The corporation called his attention, inter alia, to the defenceless condition of Bombay Harbour. The Chamber of Commerce dwelt upon the necessity for an extension of the railways and the unsatisfactory state of Indian relations with Burmah. Anjumani Islam pointed out the disadvantages under which the Mahomedans labour. The space at my command does not permit me to give more than a passing allusion to some few of the replies made to these and other addresses.

"His Excellency assured the Chamber of Commerce that their suggestions would be carefully considered. He told the Mahomedans that much of his public life had been passed in trying to serve Mussulman communities, that he gratefully remembered the personal kindness which he had received from the Sultan, and that he would endeavour to remove any special disabilities affecting Mahomedans. On Wednesday he laid the foundation-stone of the Veterinary College and hospital for animals, and spoke warmly concerning the munificence of the citizens of Bombay and their efforts to mitigate the sufferings both of men and animals.

"Lord Dufferin left Bombay on Thursday morning and arrived in Calcutta yesterday afternoon. By general consent business was suspended early in the day. The streets from the Howrah Station to Government House were lined with troops and gay with bunting and other decorations. The Howrah terminus was effectively adorned and the shipping in the river was dressed with colours. As Lord Dufferin stepped on to the platform he was received by the Government Secretaries, who led him and his party to their carriages. The cortège started at once, under the escort of a body-guard, and as it appeared on the Hooghly Bridge a royal salute was fired.

"A dense crowd of Europeans and natives thronged the streets and windows and even the housetops, cheering loudly as the carriages passed, and it was evident that all races were united in welcoming the new Viceroy. The Calcutta Volunteers turned out en masse to form a guard of honour at Government House, and all the leading Europeans and natives, officials and non-officials, were assembled on the grand staircase.

"When the carriages had been driven to the foot of the stairs, Lord Dufferin was received by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, who led him to the main entrance, where he was met by Lord Ripon. The entire party adjourned for a few minutes to the throne room and then passed into the council room, where the Legislative Council and some spectators had assembled. Then, the Royal Commission having been read by the Home Secretary, a second salute from the guns of Fort William announced that the reins of Government had passed into the hands of the new Viceroy. No speeches were made, and the only other event that passed was the presentation of an address of welcome by the Calcutta Corporation, which, with Lord Dufferin's reply, calls for no special notice. In the evening a State banquet took place, at which all the high officials were present.

"Lord Ripon will leave Calcutta to-morrow morning. His departure will be a public one, attended by all the ceremonies and honours usually given to Viceroys. The editors of the native newspapers are already urging their countrymen to seize this last opportunity of showing their respect for his lordship, and the suggestion will probably meet with a full response. It may be expected, too, that demonstrations will be made at the more important stopping places. Bombay is preparing a magnificent farewell. It is stated that as many as sixty deputations will present addresses to the Marquis there. After a stay of three days in Bombay, during which he will lay some foundation-stones, Lord Ripon will embark on Saturday next in one of the Indian Government steamers and proceed home, calling at Goa and Aden en route.

"Thus closes a four-and-a-half years' Viceroyalty of Lord Ripon, a period which, whether for good or evil, will certainly be memorable in the history of India. Never before did a Viceroy leave India with so many demonstrations of regret on the part of the natives and with so little regret on the part of his own countrymen. On no previous occasion have the natives as a body displayed so much apparent love and respect for any Englishman. The professional agitators doubtless had much to do with getting up the demonstrations, especially in the Presidency towns, but their efforts could not have had such a result as has been witnessed during the last few weeks had they not been to a considerable degree backed by popular sentiment.

"If that sentiment be carefully examined, it will probably be found to arise, not from any profound feeling of admiration for Lord Ripon personally, but from the widespread belief—a belief which he took no pains to discourage—that it was his especial mission to be the first Viceroy to preach the doctrine of 'India for the Indians,' to break through the cautious policy of his predecessors, to compress the work of generations into a few years, and, above all, to crush the Anglo-Indians, official and non-official, to whom India owes its peace and prosperity, but whom the agitators are sedulously teaching the people to consider as petty tyrants and an unscrupulous bureaucracy. Himself a sincere and conscientious friend of the natives, it was his unfortunate characteristic to believe that they had no other friend. While recognising that 'the old order changeth, yielding place to new,' he was impatient of slow but steady progress, which is the only safe progress in a country like India. He systematically disregarded the counsels of men who, to good will towards the natives equal to his own, united a knowledge of the country which he never acquired and statesmanlike abilities which nature had denied to him.

"He wished, by a stroke of the pen, to weld a number of utterly different peoples into a homogeneous mass—not only to create a nation, but to raise it at a bound from infancy to manhood. Naturally he has failed, and has left to his successor perhaps the most difficult task that has ever fallen to the lot of an Indian Viceroy. The strained race feelings evoked by recent controversies will, it may be hoped, gradually die away; but it will require all Lord Dufferin's tact and statesmanship to deal with and control the exaggerated ideas and impossible aspirations which Lord Ripon's policy has awakened in the minds of a certain section of the native community.

"The Commission appointed to inquire into the recent disturbances in Hyderabad has reported against the Nawab Sultan Nawaz Jung. He has therefore been sentenced to a fine of a lakh of rupees, and to perpetual banishment from Hyderabad city. He is also deprived of the command over his own troops, which is made over to his son and nephew. The Nawab has paid the fine, and seems likely to submit quietly.

"At the opening of the session of the Bengal Legislative Council the other day the Lieutenant-Governor made a statement concerning the work to be laid before the Council. He said that the Select Committee were still engaged in considering the Bill for introducing a system of local self-government into the rural districts, and the measure, he hoped, would soon reach its final stage. In this connection he remarked that the first elections under the lately passed Act for extending electoral privileges to a number of municipalities had been very successful, and had evoked much interest among the inhabitants of the towns which had been allowed to elect a proportion of their municipal representatives.

"The most important new business to be brought before the Council is the Bill to provide for the registration of permanent tenures in lands, and to render the lands liable to summary sale on default in payment of rent. This measure is described as a corollary of the Rent Bill. But it is conceived wholly in the interests of the landlords, and there seems reason to fear that unless it be very carefully worked, and its working watched with the closest attention, it will open a wide door for collusion and fraud.

"News reaches us from the Andamans that a Punjabee policeman ran amuck there the other day. He killed a European inspector, wounded a comrade who tried to arrest him, and then took up a position under cover and fired on all who approached. He kept his assailants at bay for some time, but was at last shot down.

"The Duke of Connaught's projected visit to Quetta is said to have been indefinitely postponed, as the time at his disposal is not sufficient for it."

The following extra telegram is from the Times' correspondent at Calcutta, dated Dec. 15:—

"Lord Ripon left Calcutta this morning. The ceremonies attending his departure were similar to those observed on the occasion of Lord Dufferin's arrival here. Guards of honour of the Royal Warwickshire regiment and the Calcutta Volunteers were posted at Government House; the streets were lined with infantry and the Hooghly bridge with cavalry, and another guard of honour was mounted at the railway station.

"The Viceroy and Lady Dufferin accompanied the Marquis and Marchioness of Ripon to the railway terminus. There was not a large attendance at Government House to wish the retiring Viceroy good-bye, but a considerable crowd had assembled at the station.

"Royal salutes were fired as the party left Government House, and as the train started. An order has been issued that all the honours due to a Viceroy of India shall be paid to Lord Ripon until he has passed Aden."

BENGAL COUNCIL.—We congratulate Ray Jay Prakash Lal Bahadur on his appointment to a seat in the Bengal Legislative Council. It is a fortunate circumstance that a member of Behar is now recognised by Government as a necessity in the Bengal Legislative Council. Since the appointment of Syed Amir Hussan Khan, Behar has been constantly represented in the Legislative Council, and the necessity and wisdom of such representation are evident, seeing that legislative measures having special reference to this province are now and then brought forward; for instance, the settlement of the Putwari question will demand local experience of such nature as to be almost beyond the scope of any but Behari members. Rai Jay Prakash Lal Bahadur is the chief manager of one of the largest estates in these parts, is himself a zemindar, and is a prominent member of the Behar Landholders' Association.—Indian Chronicle.

GREAT LANDSLIP ON THE COLOMBO-RATNAPURA UVA ROAD: INTERRUPTION OF TRAFFIC.—Haputale, 18th Nov. 1884.—Scarcely a day has passed since the 1st without rain more or less; the rainfall to date this month must be something very considerable. I have just heard of a great landslip at Kalupahani and Batgodde estates, which has carried away one or two culverts and a large portion of the Ratnapura and Badulla-road, and with it a large cattle-shed, in which were some carts and bullocks halting for the night. I am told of four carts and five large coast bullocks being buried in the débris, and the latter killed outright; but no human beings are lost, which is a mercy. I am told the damage to the road is so great that it will take two or three months' time to repair it, a fine look-out for the despatch of the large crops just being gathered in Uva, and which have to go by this route.—Cor. Observer.

MR. ROPER LETHBRIDGE ON THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

On Tuesday evening, Mr. Roper Lethbridge, C.I.E., addressed an important district meeting of the electors of the proposed borough of Paddington, and in the course of his speech made the following remarks on the Bengal Tenancy Bill:—

"In my opinion, most deplorable results have already ensued from the mere introduction of the Bengal Land or Tenancy Bill, for it has deeply alarmed and irritated against us the most loyal class of the Native population—the landowners, while its tendency is to persuade the tenants that they have a horrible grievance, both against their landlords and against us for permitting it. It is the Irish legislation over again. And observe how this measure, too, is dictated by blindly applying to India considerations suited to England only! Lord Ripon may possibly have thought in introducing it that he was attacking only a rich class to benefit a poor one, for landlords in England are well-to-do. But it is a positive fact that in Bengal 95 per cent. of the landlords have a rent-roll of less than £10 a-year!—a very poor class indeed. And what did Lord Ripon propose? Well, to abolish the right of free contract between landlords and tenants, to allow the rents to be fixed, not in free market by the laws of demand and supply, but at the sweet wills of the Government officials, and further, to make the tenants, virtually, partners in the proprietorship of the land, and to enable them to sell their shares to any strangers, and especially to money-lenders. And observe how this cuts both ways, and injures both landlord and tenant. It confiscates a part of the property of the landlords, has made their estates unsaleable, and enabled any private enemy to acquire a footing on the estate of any landlord. Substantial grievances; but how about the tenants? Well, hitherto they have been able to acquire permanency of tenure, that is, they cannot be turned out by their landlords after twelve years' occupation; but they were not allowed by law to sell this occupancy right to any stranger, and the consequence of that was, that when they got into debt or trouble, only their personal goods could be sold up, and they had always got their land to fall back upon, which could not be taken away; which was thus both a reserve for times of trouble, and a source of credit to them. Now, however, whenever a tenant wants to celebrate a marriage, or do anything extravagant, he will run off to the nearest money-lender, the curse of India, and sell his right over his land, and become the serf of the money-lender. I say that Lord Ripon, in this measure, proposes to take from the landlords that which will not enrich but, rather, will greatly injure the tenants, while it will leave the landlords poor indeed. And this is but a specimen of the whole of a weak and mischievous régime, the incidents of which should surely teach the people of this country that their Empire in India is not safe in the hands of Radical doctrinaires or visionary fanatics. The Conservative policy has ever been to trust to the experience and the integrity of those Englishmen who have made the welfare of India and its people the one great object of their lives, and not to be incessantly applying to the management of a great and strange Empire the crude theories and fancies evolved out of a Downing-street arm-chair. I have said that I believe that Lord Dufferin is a statesman of a very different character from his predecessor, and I earnestly hope and pray that he will be enabled to undo some of the mischief that has been wrought. But I am very certain of this—that if he is to do anything, he must be entirely free from the foolish dictation of this Radical ministry; and the best hope I have of that is, that the place of that Ministry may soon be occupied by wiser and more statesmanlike men."

LORD RIPON AND THE BENGAL ZEMINDARS.

(From the Hindoo Patriot.)

Some of our native contemporaries have been at great pains lately to demonstrate that the Zemindars of Bengal and Behar are playing the ungrateful, unpatriotic churl by withholding themselves from the movement lately set on foot for a memorial for Lord Ripon. The charge is an odious one, and when frequently repeated is apt to create a breach of harmony which in the interests of native society should not be permitted. This consideration, and this alone, induces us to enter our caveat against it. We are no advocates of the Zemindars; we hold no brief from them; we have derived no special benefit from them as a class; our list shows that we do not reckon more than a tithe of our subscribers from that body; and we can well afford to leave them to the tender mercies of those of our contemporaries who have assumed the rôle of teachers of morality and duty to them. But we are opponents of the Tenancy Bill. Through good report and through evil report we have opposed it since its inception. We oppose it, not because it is calculated to injure the Zemindars, but because it will injure the great bulk of the native community—some fifty millions out of the sixty-one millions of Bengal and Behar. We protest against it, because it prepares the way for the transfer of the land from the hands of those who now hold and cultivate it to those of foreign capitalists in whose behalf some Government officers are interested. We turn our face against it, because it will hasten the conversion of the agricultural community to day-labourers and candidates for transportation to Demerara. We object to it, because we sincerely believe that it entirely destroys all confidence in a solemn pledge given and for a century respected by Government. We object, moreover, because it recognises expediency and not justice and fairplay as the principle of Governmental action. The Zemindars derive the benefit—such as it is—of our opposition to the Bill, not because we oppose especially in their behalf, but because they are interested in it. The difference between them and us is broad and marked; we oppose because it is our duty as public journalists to oppose everything that is wrong, and they oppose because it is their interest to do so. The end sought, however, is in either case the same, and we are glad, therefore, to learn that the great body of the Zemindars stand firm by their representatives, and have shut their ears to syrens' songs and perfidious advice. For them who are about to be deprived of their patrimony or of self-acquired property—for being permitted to retain the shell when the white and the yolk have been sucked out by another is tantamount to being totally deprived of the egg—it would be suicidal to give an address to Lord Ripon and praise his administration. They cannot do so without practically abandoning their opposition to the Tenancy Bill. The syrens who sing in their ears now are the very persons who have hitherto denounced them as hard-hearted wretches who fatten on the life-blood of the ryot, and most warmly advocate the passing of the Tenancy Bill with such modifications as would make it much more oppressive than what it is. Let it be granted for the sake of argument, and not as a fact, that the Bill is just and impartial, that it breaks no pledge and injures no one, and that the Zemindars are entirely mistaken in opposing it, still the fact remains that they do oppose it, and will to the last denounce it as spoliatory; and so long they do oppose it they cannot praise the authors of the measure. To do so would be to abandon their opposition. They cannot blow hot and cold at the same time, and those who tell them they can do so are not honest in their advice, or are very much blinded by their prejudices. We would respect the man for his honesty and consistency who would tell the Zemindars to abandon their opposition to the Tenancy Bill, and make them believe that that measure is intended for their benefit, to bring on the millennium, or to inaugurate the kingdom of heaven on earth. There would be something manly and straightforward in it; but the juggle about the double action of praise and blame, or of a carefully-worded address omitting all mention of the Tenancy Bill, or of praising generally without reference to any particular measure, being consistent and proper, is unworthy of honest men. The advice is wrong, it is known to be wrong, and it is given only to carry out a particular project—to compromise the Zemindars and force their hands. We cannot be a party to such an advice, or allow one party under cover of it to hoodwink another. It is not our object in this article to review the administration of Lord Ripon—to weigh the merits and demerits of the various measures of reform and improvement he has initiated—the time will come for it very soon; but we can anticipate our verdict at once by saying that the noble lord has been throughout actuated by the best of intentions; but admitting it we see no ground for the Zemindars to abandon their opposition. No recognition of merit in another requires a person to forget his just rights and the injury attempted to be done. The law does not let off the doctor who with the best of intentions administers an ounce dose of corrosive sublimate, mistaking it for chalk. The doctor who not long ago killed a child by not putting in a sufficient quantity of water in a mixture of carbolic acid was not actuated by any dishonest motive, and indeed was a near relative of the patient, but he was nevertheless punished heavily. And what was right in his case is equally right in administrative measures. The charge of ingratitude is a foul one to bring, but there is no truth whatever in it. It is a political or journalistic dodge, and nothing more. There is no room for gratitude where the alleged service is serious injury. Let those who have had a good turn done them manifest their feeling in any way they choose; but it is no reason that those who have suffered, or are about to suffer, are to forget the bad turn done them, and proclaim that nothing has been done to hurt them, or to come before the public with a falsehood on their lips. It is the aggressiveness of the agitators that we denounce. Let them by all means do what they think proper, and we may think them mistaken, but we shall not find fault with them for doing what they imagine best—even if they play drakes and ducks with their conscience; but we cannot permit them to denounce those who do not follow in their train as ungrateful, and suffering from moral turpitude. Gratitude has been described by some as a lively manifestation of a desire for favours to come, and a writer accentuates it by saying that Lord Ripon will be made a duke, and largely consulted about matters Indian, and it would be good policy, therefore, to give him an address. Our nature and habit and education make us look upon this suggestion with disgust. We would rather bear the charge of ingratitude from such a moralist than be an address-giver with such an anticipation. Our patriotism, such as it is, will, we hope and trust, never be actuated by such a motive.

THE RUSSO-AFGHAN BOUNDARY COMMISSION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "ARMY AND NAVY GAZETTE."

SIR,—In the National Review, for November, appeared an article on "The Russo-Afghan Boundary Commission," from the pen of the celebrated Eastern traveller and writer, Professor Arminius Vambery. The views of one so well acquainted with the bearings of the Eastern Question, and who is one of the very few European travellers who has traversed the regions of Central Asia, must ever command attention and respect, and the article will have been read by many with very deep interest. The writer demonstrates the difficulty, indeed the impossibility, of assigning a fixed boundary on the northern and western frontiers of Afghanistan; he shows the discordant elements of lawless tribes and unsettled people existing in the provinces of what may be termed Afghan Turkestan, between Ferghana and Terefshan on the one side, and between Chitral and Afghanistan Proper on the other side; he points to the uncertainty of Russia's position on the Steppe of Karakum, that, unable to stand firmly on insecure and ever-shifting nomadic ground, she must obtain a firm footing on the western ridges of the Paropamisus, and so he argues that the force of circumstances must bring Russia to the crests of the Hindu Kush on the north, and that she must steadily advance on the western frontier of Afghanistan until Alexander III. obtains possession of the city founded by Alexander the Great, on the banks of the Heri-rud, viz., Herat, that important gate in the communication between India and Central Asia. In the necessity for Russia's advance, Professor Vambery seems to consider the appointment of the Boundary Commission a farce; and he concludes the article by criticism on the constitution and personnel of the British Commission. If not guilty of presumption in offering an opinion in conflict with views expressed by so great an authority as Professor Vambery, I venture to repeat what I wrote in the Army and Navy Gazette in February and in September of this year, "that the appointment of a Boundary Commission is the only possible peaceable solution of a grave and pressing difficulty, that it might not entirely frustrate the ulterior design of Russia, but that assuredly it would retard her progress and delay attempts at the dismemberment of Persia and Afghanistan." The one matter for regret is that Persia does not appear to have been associated with the work of the Commission. It is true, as observed in the article under notice, Russia holds in her embrace the whole of North and North-Western Iran. But are there not districts on the north and towards the eastern frontier of Persia from which the grip of Russia might be removed by the efforts of the Boundary Commission, if only Persia were associated in the work? Professor Vambery has by no means exaggerated the difficulties that must arise from the discordant elements and the conflicting interests among lawless tribes and people in Afghanistan, and in the regions of the Murgab, and round and about Gourian. These are just the difficulties Russia seeks to create,—that she may stir up the elements of strife outside and along her frontiers in Central Asia, so that she may have an unsettled frontier as a pretext for further advance to secure a settled frontier, and certainly Russia will never retire permanently from a position once occupied. Assuredly, Russia contemplates an advance to the slopes and passes of the Hindu Kush, and along the valley of the Heri-rud to Herat. It will be the work of the Commission to try and remove the pretext for such advance, and so retard the progress of Russia. All who have served in the East, and no one better than Professor Vambery, know the value of "prestige" in Eastern countries. The progress of the Boundary Commission along the northern frontiers of Persia and Afghanistan, on the confines of Russian territory, will add materially to the prestige of the British Government, in the minds of the people of Central Asia, from the shores of the Caspian to the distant Tianshan ranges of Eastern Turkestan. Russian generals have declared that Persia and Afghanistan are parallels of approach for Russia towards India, and that with her Asiatic hordes she will sweep through those countries and cross the frontier of India. When the people of Central Asia see that the Cossack and the Sepoy have not met in conflict on the frontiers of India, but in peaceful work along the northern frontiers of Persia and Afghanistan, on the outer line of Russian so-called parallels of approach; when they see a British general and his staff delineating the boundary-line that should separate Russia from Persia and Afghanistan; and when they mark the power of the British Government to interfere in the frontier affairs of her northern neighbours, assuredly they will learn to believe the power and might of the British Empire in India, and will realise that the White Osar is not the only powerful ruler in Asia? Our estimate of Russia's strength in Central Asia may, to some extent, be based upon our ignorance of her weakness. It is well for Russian authorities to point to elements of strife and discontent in India, which they may hereafter try to turn to their own purposes. But what about such elements of strife and discontent existing within Russia's Asiatic territories? A close alliance between Great Britain, Turkey, and China, and an understanding with discordant elements along the borders and within the limits of the three Khanates in the Caucasus and in Eastern Turkestan, would give Russia so much occupation within her own territories that she could no longer think of aggression beyond. The observations of the British Commission will bring to light the weak points along Russia's frontier lines and within her Central-Asian territories, and will show how far the discordant elements along her borders may be turned against her in the future. Thus, then, the appointment of the Boundary Commission, so far from being a farce, may lead to great and permanent advantage in the interests of peace and the security of British India. With regard to the constitution of the British Commission and Professor Vambery's remarks relative thereto, while sufficiently large to be imposing, and to create an impression upon the minds of the people of the territories through which it may pass, and which is very desirable, the Commission, its escort, and followers are not so numerous as to be unwieldy, or to create difficulties in the matter of transport, forage, supplies, &c.; it seems to be just the proper size and strength, strong enough for self-defence, but without aggressive force. The leader of the Commission may not have special insight into the politics and ethnogeographic conditions of the regions to be traversed (which Professor Vambery naturally considers so desirable). That is not possible, seeing that these regions are terra incognita to British officers. But Sir Peter Lumsden is a distinguished general officer, who rose through all grades to the head of the quartermaster-general's department in India, a good observer, a man of sound judgment, with a good knowledge of Asiatic, one who has served in Afghanistan, and is acquainted with the character of the Afghans. No better selection could have been made. Under him are sub-commissioners acknowledged to possess special aptitude for the work, and as for the specialists, the surveyors, the geologist, and the naturalist, somewhat sarcastically alluded to in the article under notice, these are just the men who will secure the ethnogeographic information the professor tells us we so much want. Among the escort of cavalry and infantry are picked men of picked native regiments, who will let the Cossack see the material he will have to deal with in any future conflict between the Cossack and the Sepoy. As the breakwater checks the rush of waves, and leaves smooth water behind, so we may hope that the work of the Afghan Boundary Commission will retard the advance and progress of Russia, and prolong the times of peace and tranquillity in India. Should it be otherwise, the work of the Commission will, at all events, have taught the British Government how, when, and where to meet the advance of Russia.—I am, &c., EDWARD H. PASKE, Colonel. Merrow, Guildford, Dec. 3.

PROPOSED MEMORIAL TO THE RIGHT HON. J. W. HENLEY.

TO THE EDITOR.

SIR,—Now that the Right Hon. J. W. Henley, late M.P., who so gallantly defended and fought for the rights and privileges of the officers of the Indian Army, at a time when their very existence was threatened with extinction, is unhappily called to his rest, I appeal, through you, Sir, to the officers in all the Home Presidencies, who may be alive, and who were saved by his advocacy, by the introduction of the famous Henley Clause in the Amalgamation Warrant, to come forward, and to record in some suitable manner their gratitude to their great benefactor; the form which this should take to be decided hereafter.

Perhaps you will lend us your kind offices in accepting the post of honorary treasurer for the purpose of receiving subscriptions. I enclose my card.—I am, &c.,

MAJOR-GENERAL, late Bengal Army.

[NOTE.—We should suggest the formation of a small committee in London to consider this proposal, and to decide on the form (if any) in which it can be carried out. If any of our readers, who are interested, will write to us on the subject we shall have much pleasure in putting them in communication with the gallant writer of the above letter; and if a committee is formed we will gladly receive subscriptions, and acknowledge them in this journal.—EDITOR, A.I.M., 13, Waterloo-place, S.W.]

INSTITUTE OF CIVIL ENGINEERS.—At the first monthly ballot of the session 1884-85, John Stuart Beresford, P.W.D., India; Charles John Bond, South Indian Railway; Archibald Constable, Oudh and Rohilkund Railway; Srope Berdmore Doig, P.W.D., India; Thomas Alfred Hearson, R.N., Cooper's Hill College; Harry George Palliser, P.W.D., Bombay; Thomas William Pearson, G.I.P. Railway, were elected members. Thomas Anderson, Dockyard, Bombay; Lawrence Hennessey Clubby Armstrong, Sukkur; James Beaumont Buchanan, P.W.D., Hyderabad; Roderick Edmund Carter, Stud. Inst. C.E., P.W.D., India; William Banks Gwyther, P.W.D., India; Robert Swan Highet, Stud. Inst. COUNCIL DRAFTS.—The tenders for Rs. 20,00,000 in bills on India and telegraphic transfers were received on Wednesday last at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were:—In bills—on Calcutta, Rs. 7,29,500, average rate 1s. 6.97d.; Bombay, Rs. 4,10,000, average rate 1s. 6.969d.; and Madras, Rs. 10,000, average rate 1s. 7d. In telegraphic transfers—on Calcutta, Rs. 1,00,000, average rate 1s. 7d.; and on Bombay, Rs. 2,00,000, average rate 1s. 7.01d., or a total of Rs. 14,49,500. Tenders for bills on all Presidencies at 1s. 6.15-16d. will receive about 50 per cent., and above in full, and for telegraphic transfers on Calcutta and Bombay at 1s. 7d. and above in full. Subsequently bills for Rs. 1,27,000 were sold on Bombay at 1s. 6.31-32d. Irrespective of the above sales the amount of remittances disposed of since the financial year began on April 1 has been Rs. 9,46,32,918, realising £7,721,175.

THE AFGHAN POLICY OF THE GOVERNMENT.—The following letter has been sent to a Manchester gentleman by the Under-Secretary for India:—"19, Eaton-square, W., Dec. 8, 1884. Dear Sir,—The 'Scientific Frontier' policy of Lord Beaconsfield and the Afghan policy of the present Government are based on fundamentally different lines. The foundation of the first was practically coercion of the Ameer through a British resident stationed at Cabul and supported by a native escort while our troops held the passes between Afghanistan and India. The latter policy is based upon agreement with the Ameer as an independent prince, acting loyally as our ally, accepting as a friendly adviser a native envoy from us, and defending himself against foreign aggression through our aid. These two policies have certainly a common object—viz., the defence of the north-west frontiers of India; but the means by which we are trying to carry out this object differ essentially from those employed by our predecessors. The means they used led to two Afghan wars. Those which we have used, have, we hope, secured to us beyond our own frontier the alliance of a strong and friendly and united Afghanistan. Our furthest outpost is in the Pishin valley, and the question of connecting our outposts with our great frontier line, the valley of the Indus, is a purely defensive one. In pursuance of this policy we are proceeding with the railway from Sibi to the Pishin valley, and perfecting the roads west of the Indus. At the same time, in conjunction with the Government of Russia and with the consent of the Ameer, we have appointed representatives on a commission, which will, we hope, be able to define the frontier of Afghanistan. Speaking generally, I may say that we have reverted to the policy of Lord Lawrence, Lord Mayo, and Lord Northbrook—a policy of non-interference with the internal affairs of Afghanistan.—I am, faithfully yours, J. K. CROSS."

LITERATURE IN THE PUNJAB.—On Thursday last, at a largely attended meeting of the National Indian Association, held at 1, Adam-street, Adelphi, Sir Barrow H. Ellis, K.C.S.I., in the chair, Mr. Thornton, C.S.I., read a paper on the literature of the Punjab. Among those present were Mr. Egerton, Archdeacon Baly, Lady Hobhouse, Miss M. Stokes, General MacLagan, General Macdonald, Mrs. Thornton, Mr. Lindsay, Mr. Vaux, Mr. Knight, C.I.E., Mr. Bouluois, Mr. M. M. Bhowanagur, Mr. V. M. Samarth, Rev. James Long, Dr. K. P. Gupta, Rev. James Smith. After giving a brief account of the Punjab, its physical features, races, and history, Mr. Thornton described the languages, ten in number, current in the province, the character of their literature, and the principal works of interest and importance. He complained of the neglect, until lately, of Punjabi literature, owing to its having been regarded by scholars as a patois, but rejoiced that Captain R. C. Temple, by his collection of the legends of the Punjab and the publication of Punjab notes and queries, was doing much to remove the reproach. Mr. Thornton then read specimens of the different classes of literature described, and concluded with some observations on the effect of British rule on the development of the vernacular literature and intellectual condition of the people. In the course of his lecture Mr. Thornton passed a warm eulogium upon Mr. Denzil Ibbetson's "Punjab Census Report," which was a mine of information, not only regarding census operations, but also concerning the history, races, languages, and literature of the province. In conclusion, Mr. Thornton said:—"Although there was now an incorporated University and several high schools, besides primary schools, and also many learned societies in the Punjab, out of every 1,000 males 920 were uneducated. In England, out of 1,000 persons of all ages, 120 were under instruction; in India generally 28; in the Punjab 15. The efforts that were being made were most praiseworthy, and the advance from one point of view was prodigious; but, after all, we had hardly touched the great mass of the population. In the sketch he had given of the Punjab, one fact at least had been established, and that was the ardent love of the Punjabi, whether from the hills or from the plains, whether Sikh, Hindoo, or Mussulman, for poetry and tales. Would it not be possible to utilise this love in the cause of education in the highest sense? Would it not be possible for the Education Department and the twenty-six literary societies to prepare and diffuse through schools, zenanas, and assemblies a better class of tale and poem and song, and thus develop in the early future, not for the few thousands of the better class alone, but for the entire population of a great province, a more wholesome, a more refined, and a more elevating literature of the Punjab?—Sir B. H. Ellis said that he hoped that what Mr. Thornton had said would bear some fruit, in the cultivation of poetry and the production of amusing stories. The Education Department had devoted itself too much to dry school-books, and it had made little or no attempt to reach the heart of the people by literature of an interesting and amusing kind. Votes of thanks to Mr. Thornton and to Sir B. H. Ellis terminated the proceedings.

HASTIE V. PIGOTT.—In the Privy Council on Saturday a petition was presented on the part of the Rev. William Hastie, B.D., a minister of the Church of Scotland, for special leave to appeal from a judgment of the High Court of Calcutta in an action for libel against him by Miss Mary Pigott. The Solicitor-General (with whom was Mr. C. W. Arathoon) appeared for the petitioner, and argued the case at some length. On the rising of the Court the further hearing of the petition was adjourned till to-day (Wednesday).

SILVER.—The discussion of the Silver Question in the United States, and the belief that sooner or later the coinage of silver in that country will be discontinued, have adversely affected the Silver Market, and the price of bar silver has fallen to the lowest point of the year, the present quotation being 49½d. per ounce. This is the lowest price of any time since 1879, when the quotation once touched 49d., and the Indian exchange rate was quoted at about 1s. 7½d.—Statist.

NOTICES, DIVIDENDS, MEETINGS, ETC.

BOMBAY, BARODA, AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.—The 58th half-yearly general meeting of the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway Company was held on Friday last at the City Terminus Hotel. Lieutenant-Colonel P. T. French presided, and in moving the adoption of the report congratulated them on the working of the undertaking. They were endeavouring to give every facility to the cultivators and traders in their district, and to a great extent they had succeeded, but further efforts would be made by their agent at Bombay to increase the advantages afforded by their line. During the half-year they had also carried 4,198,000 passengers, and this branch of their traffic they were trying to promote by making it as comfortable as possible. They had reduced their rates and fares, and further reductions or alterations might yet be made. The surplus dividend of £1 7s. 6d. per cent. was the highest they had ever paid in any half-year. As stated in their report, the traffic in mowra, half-pressed cotton, wheat, seeds, and sundries had been less in 1884 than in 1883. The importation of mowra berry, from which the French used to make brandy, had been prohibited in France, while the price of wheat had fallen to an exceptionally low figure in this country. They had acquired the working of the Rajputana Malwa Railway, bringing up the length of their line to 1,942 miles. The agreement would come into operation from the 1st of next month. With the authority of the Secretary of State, Major Bisset, who for some years was manager of the Rajputana line, had been appointed manager of this company. After referring to the retirement from the board of Mr. Hartridge, after twenty-six years' assiduous service, and to the election in the place of that gentleman of Lieutenant-General C. H. Dickens, he stated that, in accordance with a stipulation made in the course of the late negotiation with the Secretary of State, they proposed to add another director to the board, and they recommended the appointment of Major-General R. H. Keatinge, V.C., who was formerly Governor-General's Agent in Rajputana, and who knew the whole of that country. Their agent had written home stating that he required 200 more waggons for the salt traffic, and they were now building fifteen new engines, entirely for the broad gauge. The Prince of Jodhpoor was himself making a line of forty miles from his capital to Pali, one of the stations on the Rajputana line; and the Maharana of Maywar had applied to their agent respecting the survey of a line of eighty miles from Odyoor to Chittor, the ancient capital. They had also been surveying a line from Baroda to Rutlam of about one hundred miles, the construction of which he hoped would be in hand before their next meeting. It would go through a rich productive country, and they expected that the traffic from Guzerat to Malwa would be very great. Mr. S. J. Wilde seconded the motion. The Chairman, in replying to questions, stated that the agreement as to the Rajputana line was for sixteen years; its capital was about £9,000,000. He quite agreed that certain reductions in their rates and fares might be practicable. Hitherto there had been some friction in the matter as there had been their own agent and the agent of the Rajputana line, but the system was now to be under one head. The motion was then carried unanimously. The Chairman next moved the declaration of the dividend mentioned. In seconding the motion Major-General Trevor called attention to the great progress which they had made, observing that for 1879 their earnings were equal to £4 5s. 7d. per cent., while for 1884 they were equal to £5 5s. per cent. He thought very few railways had made such progress in six years. Of course they did not get £8 5s. per cent., as the Government had half of the surplus beyond five per cent., and their own moiety was greatly reduced owing to the depreciation of the rupee. For the past year, however, they would receive £6 9s. 7d. per cent. The motion was carried unanimously, and resolutions were afterwards passed awarding a piece of plate of the value of 30 guineas to Mr. Hartridge in recognition of his services; increasing the number of the directors from seven to eight; and electing Major-General Keatinge to a seat at the board.

ODDE AND ROHILKUND RAILWAY.—The report states that the increased earnings from goods traffic must be regarded as satisfactory, considering that trade was unusually inactive during the period under review, and that the exceptional traffic in wheat to the seaboard which prevailed during the first half-year of 1883 had entirely ceased. Both the outward and inward traffic with Calcutta, via Benares, was in excess of that carried by this route in 1883, and the average mileage of goods rose from 121·58 to 132·33. The results for the half-year, as compared with the corresponding half of 1883, show the following comparison:—Number of passengers, an increase in 1884 of 166,010, or 11·74 per cent.; receipts from passengers, an increase in 1884 of £11,573, or 11·17 per cent.; tons of goods, an increase in 1884 of 24,973, or 5·45 per cent.; receipts from goods, an increase in 1884 of £15,784, or 9·68 per cent.; gross receipts, an increase in 1884 of £18,948, or 6·44 per cent.; gross expenditure, a decrease in 1884 of £5,565, or 2·93 per cent.; profit, an increase in 1884 of £23,513, or 17·11; expenditure on gross receipts, a decrease of 4·69 per cent. A general meeting of the shareholders in the above company will be held at the Cannon-street Hotel on the 17th inst., at noon.

EASTERN EXTENSION (AUSTRALASIA AND CHINA) TELEGRAPH COMPANY.—An interim dividend for the quarter ended September 30th, 1884, of 2s. 6d. per share, free of income-tax, is payable on January 15th, 1885.

EASTERN TELEGRAPH COMPANY.—A dividend is declared, payable on January 15th, 1885, of 3s. per share on the preference shares, less income-tax, for the quarter ending 31st inst., and an interim dividend of 2s. 6d. per share in respect of profits for the quarter ended September 30th last, with a bonus of 1s. per share for the half-year ending that date on the ordinary shares, free of income-tax, also payable on the same date, making a total dividend for the half-year at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum.

GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY COMPANY.—The report of the directors of the above company for the half-year ended the 30th of June last, states that the gross receipts were £1,884,432, and the expenditure £826,045. Allowing for the payments to Government on account of leased lines there is a net profit of £1,044,839. The expenditure, including payments to Government on account of leased lines, is in the ratio of 44·55 per cent. of the receipts, against 41·87 in the corresponding period of last year. The gross receipts of the half-year were less by £169,251 5s. 2d., or 8·24 per cent. than in the corresponding period. The falling-off was in the goods traffic and in electric telegraph and sundries receipts, there having been an increase of £28,537 16s. 5d. in the coaching traffic. The lower receipts in the first and second classes are due to the reduction in fares made on the 1st of August, 1883, but the increase in numbers in those classes affords evidence that the reduction in fares is operating in the desired direction. As respects the third-class (ordinary) traffic, it is satisfactory to notice the continued increase both in numbers and money. The increase in the earnings from parcels traffic is, the agent explains, "due greatly to opium and piece goods, that were formerly sent by goods trains, now being booked as parcels, owing to the reduction in the rates for the latter made in 1882." After providing out of net receipts for the guaranteed interest of the half-year, and for the contribution to the company's provident fund, there remains a balance of Rs. 49,62,800 surplus profit, equally divisible between the Government and the company. The company's moiety amounts to Rs. 24,81,400, of which the portion required for the payment of dividend in this country has been remitted at the exchange of 1s. 7d. per rupee. Adding a balance of £779 from last account, the directors are enabled to propose that a dividend at the rate of 19s. 10d. per cent. be paid to the proprietors in addition to the guaranteed interest of the half-year, leaving a sum of about £600 to be carried forward. The total receipts on capital account at 30th of June, 1884, were £24,201,664. The expenditure at the same date, including the sum of £127,146 brought to account during the half-year, but excluding stores account, amounted to £23,364,023. The amount of expenditure at the debit of stores account was £678,199. The directors have the satisfaction of stating that an arrangement has at last been concluded with the Secretary of State for India in Council for the formation of a company (distinct and separate from the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company) to undertake the construction of a system of railways in extension of the existing line, from Bhopal via Jhansi to Gwalior and Cawnpore, with branches from Jhansi to Manickpore and from Etawah to Saugor.

company have issued a memorandum as to the working of the half-year ending June 30, 1884, stating that the total expenditure on capital account to June 30, 1884, was £4,358,271, or at the rate of £6,664 per mile of railway, including cost of rolling stock and amount expended on stores. The earnings for the half year show a substantial increase, and exceed those of any corresponding period. The net profits are at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum on the total capital expenditure. The percentage of working expenses has fallen from 64·53 in the first half-year of 1883 to 58·34 in the corresponding six months of 1884, or by 6·19 per cent.

ASSAM COMPANY.—The directors of this company have determined to pay an interim dividend of 5 per cent., or £1 per share to the shareholders on the 1st of January.

OBITUARY.

Major-General Charles Shuckburgh Hearn, C.I.E., late Inspector-General of Police at Madras, died on the 12th inst. at West Brighton, in the fifty-sixth year of his age. He entered the Indian army in 1846, and in 1848 was employed against the insurgents in the Golcondah Zemindary. He obtained a lieutenancy in 1850, became captain in 1861, major in 1866, lieutenant-colonel in 1872, colonel in 1877, and major-general in 1881. He served in the second Burmese war, and was present at the capture of Martaban in 1852. He served also with the Turkish contingent from 1855 to 1866 as assistant adjutant-general attached to the headquarters of the force. For these services he received the 4th class of the Medjidie, and was nominated a Companion of the Indian Empire.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

CHRISTMAS GIFT BOOKS.

To those of our readers who are looking about for suitable Christmas presents for their friends, old and young—and especially for the little folks now coming "home for the holidays"—we most heartily commend the beautifully illustrated and admirably written "works of the season," just brought out by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge. Here we have an ample variety, entertaining or instructive and generally both, of pure and wholesome literature, presented to us with all the most beautiful adornments of modern art, and got up in faultless style. Our readers will observe that one of the books for more advanced "young people"—that on the "Mechanicians" who deserve to be ranked among the "heroes of science"—is from the graceful pen of Professor Lewis of the Lahore Government College. In the more juvenile works, the charming illustrations of André and Caldecott will prove an endless source of delight to their young readers.

The following is the list of these admirable publications of the S.P.C.K. :—

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

THE Howrah Hydraulic Press, near Calcutta, has been destroyed by fire. The damage is estimated at Rs. 1,15,000.

It is announced that Mr. Irving, of the firm of T. E. Thomson and Company, of Calcutta, has been appointed a member of the Bengal Legislative Council.

THE Queen has signified her intention of conferring the honour of knighthood on Raja Sourendro Mohun Tagore, C.S.I., in recognition of his services in the cause of Hindoo music.

THE Soldiers' Industrial Exhibition in Calcutta was opened on Monday by Mr. Rivers Thompson, who enlarged upon the importance of encouraging soldiers to take to industrial pursuits in their leisure hours.

In the present day, when it is the fashion in some quarters to depreciate Anglo-Indian officials and to represent them as a body hated by the people, it is refreshing to read the following account of the funeral of the late Mr. Pawsey, of the Bengal Civil Service:—"Upwards of three hundred native gentlemen in mourning followed the coffin to the cemetery. The depth of the love and esteem earned by Mr. Pawsey in so short a time was painfully shown by the poorer classes of people residing in and about the town. Hundreds of them eagerly followed the procession to the gate of the cemetery, and being denied entrance into it, many of them climbed up the trees overlooking the wall of the small cemetery, and there remained breathless and patient until the ceremony was over.

INSTALLATION OF THE MAHARAJAH OF BETTIAH.—The Maharajah of Bettiah was invested on the afternoon of the 19th inst., with the title of Maharajah Bahadur by the Lieut.-Governor. At the Durbar after the presentation of a pearl necklace by the Lieut.-Governor, his Honour said:—"Your Highness, it affords me great gratification to place in your hands the sunnud which, on the authority of the Viceroy of India, confers on you the succession of the title and possessions of the Maharajah of Bettiah." After alluding to what the Maharajah had already done for the good of his fellow-creatures the Lieutenant-Governor said:—"I have only to reiterate my own felicitations upon this auspicious occasion, and to express the cordial gratification of all present. I trust you may have a long life, with health to enjoy the dignity and position to which you have now attained."

It is reported that Mr. Pope, the Inspector of Schools, in the Behar circle, has been making arrangements for starting a Hindi paper on the model of the Bengal Education Gazette.

It appears that the question of a new or enlarged Government House at Simla is still under discussion, and a despatch has been sent home recommending that either Peterhoff should be pulled down and a new house on a larger scale built on the same site, or that, as suggested during Lord Lytton's reign, an entirely new Government House should be built on Observatory Hill, plans for which have already been prepared by Mr. Irwin.

THE Private Secretary to H.H. the Maharajah of Benares recently made some inquiries regarding a preventive to white ants mentioned in the proceedings of the Agri-Horticultural Society of India for December, 1881. The preventive alluded to has recently been handed to Messrs. Octavius Steel and Co., who, in reply to an inquiry addressed to them by the Deputy-Secretary, regret that they have no report on the experiment, and that the manager through whom it was made is now in England. Messrs. Octavius Steel and Co. add—"There is in our experience no better preventive against white ants than the now well-known remedies of kerosine, phenile, and in a less degree charcoal dust."

THE Bengal Times says:—"Ha! ha! Our contemporary, the Pioneer, is wholly overcome by native demonstrations about Lord Ripon, and sums up the ridiculousness of all this fuss and nonsense in one remark, 'Lord Ripon now is swimming over the country in floods of flattery.' He is in his true element—hypocrisy."

THE latest news from Kumaon is that several lakhs of pounds of green tea are being prepared for, and despatched to, the Central Asian market.

THE NEW BENGAL COUNCILLOR.—A public reception was given to the Hon. Moulvie Abdool Jubbar on his departure from Patna, at the house, Bhiknapahari Nawab's on the 23rd ult. Shiah and Sunnees, Hindoos, Bengalees, and Beharis of all classes joined with enthusiasm. Nawab Willayet Alli Khan presided. Several eloquent speeches in English and the vernacular were made. One speaker said that the best that can be said of a man in an influential position is that he has no enemies, and this was literally true of Abdool Jubbar. Moulvie Abdool Jubbar, in a feeling speech, thanked the meeting for the reception given him. Pan and attar were distributed, and the meeting dissolved. The railway platform was crowded with the elite of Patna to bid Abdool Jubbar farewell.

A CORRESPONDENT writing to a Calcutta paper of the Viceroy's tour says:—"The addresses that have been read to the Viceroy during his progress from Simla form but an infinitesimal portion of the addresses that he has received. Every post that arrives here brings innumerable addresses from localities which he could not possibly visit, even if he had months of time at his disposal, while odes and poetry, in his honour, come in by the bushel. Each communication meets with a reply, so that you can well imagine what a strain there is upon the Private Secretary, and that Mr. Primrose is to be pitied at this moment.

TEA NOTES.—Tea is doing well in Nowgong. The cold weather has set in in Cachar. The crops are doing well in Goalpara. In Darrang tea has been doing very well. From Sibasagar the news is tea is doing well. Seasonable weather is reported from Sylhet. The prospects of tea are improving at Kamrup. Tea manufacture is still going on in Lakimpore.

MOZUFFIL NOTES.

MR. WALKER'S case is fixed to come off at Mozuffarpore on 4th proximo.

THE Purneah outrage case is fixed for hearing at Mozuffarpore on the 4th proximo.

PACKING is going on throughout the Behar concerns, but no one seems anxious to sell. An offer for the entire batch of the Jaint-pore concern has been refused.

AMONGST the recent arrivals of our district planters from England are Mr. Lawrie of Nevada, Chupra, and Mr. F. O. Vipan, who takes charge of the Dine Chupra concern, North Tirhoot.

WE hear that Mr. Charles Webb has returned to Tirhoot, and the result of his visit to Calcutta has been anything but satisfactory. But notwithstanding his dislocated collar-bone, he will be in the pigskin again very shortly.—Indian Planter.

MADRAS.

MADRAS LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.—About one thousand Hindus have petitioned the Governor not to reappoint Rajah the Hon. Gajapathie Row as a member of Legislative Council. His Excellency has appointed S. Subramanya Aiyer as a member.

THE DESTRUCTION OF THE MADRAS WATER SUPPLY.—A cyclone has swept over Madras, doing great damage to property. The Red Hills Tank, which supplies the greater part of the city with water, was breached, and the whole of the water escaped into the sea, washing away several villages and drowning six persons. The loss of life consequent on the breaching of the Red Hills Tank is about thirty-five and the loss of cattle one thousand.

PRIVATE MCCORMACK, of the 1st Battalion Oxfordshire Regiment, has been found guilty of wounding Corporal Forde of the same regiment.

MR. B. MALABARI's paper on "Infant Marriage" and "enforced widowhood" seems to have attracted the attention of the Government of India, for a copy of it has been sent by that Government to the Governor of Madras, with a request that he will make such observations on it as he may consider advisable. The consequence is that the Governor of Madras has resolved to consult several well-known native gentlemen on the subjects contained in the letter, and amongst those whose opinions have been asked are Mr. Justice Muthuswami Aiyer, Sir T. Madava Rao, and Messrs. A. Seshaya Sastri, P. Ohintra Rao, Ananda Charlu, and R. Roghannatha Rao. The opinions of any other native gentlemen who may be suggested by Mr. Justice Muthuswami Aiyer will also be gladly received.

PROSPECT OF ACTIVE SERVICE.—It is expected that the 12th Royal Lancers will be selected for active service in South Africa. Should they go, a detachment of the 14th Hussars from Secunderabad will be detained for duty in Bangalore. A service depot, consisting of recruits and sickly men of the Lancers, will remain in Bangalore. All horses considered unfit for field service will be replaced by a similar number from the 14th Hussars.

BOMBAY.

THE Bombay Corporation on the 27th ult. passed, with only two dissentients, a motion, proposed by Mr. Geary, that a lakh of rupees should be expended in the surveys for the Tansa water-works, which will cost a million sterling.

THE Bombay Corporation have passed a resolution requesting Lord Ripon to lay the foundation-stone of the new Municipal Hall which it is proposed to erect in Bombay.

THE Syndicate of the Bombay University have recommended the Senate to confer on Lord Ripon the first honorary degree ever bestowed by the University.

H.E. THE GOVERNOR has again had a busy week. He has been visiting some of the principal States in Kattywar, distributing prizes and laying foundations of public institutions.

MR. JUSTICE WEST, of the Bombay High Court, has been appointed Procureur Générale in Egypt in succession to Sir Benson Maxwell.

THE Hyder Printing Press and a carriage factory in Byoulla have been destroyed by fire. The damage is estimated at about Rs. 3,500,000.

THE following gentlemen have been appointed members of the Bombay Civil Service in the order named:—Mr. Muncherjee Pestonjee Khareghat, Mr. John Wm. Allen Weir, Mr. George Moore Urquhart, Mr. Stuart Mitford Fraser, and Mr. Ramond Knight.

MR. E. C. OZANNE, Director of Agriculture in the Bombay Presidency, has just spent a few days at Hyderabad (Sind), and has, a Kurrachee paper states, been most favourably impressed by the flourishing condition of the model farm at that station, and by the excellence of the revenue arrangements now obtaining in Sind.

SULTAN NAWAZ JUNG, the Arab chief whose retainers created the recent disturbance at Hyderabad, has forwarded a petition to the Nizam's Government protesting against the composition of the commission of inquiry appointed to investigate the matter, and urging his right to be represented by counsel at the sittings of the Commission.

LORD RAINSTOCK arrived in Bombay by the last mail on an evangelistic mission. His lordship has addressed several meetings in the city during the week.

A MEMORIAL, signed by upwards of 5,000 mill labourers, has been presented to the Factory Commission, praying that certain concessions, such as periodical holidays and shorter hours of work, may be granted.

THE Government of Bombay, like that of Madras, has, at the suggestion of the Government of India, asked the opinions of the principal members of the Brahmin, Prabhu, Sonar, Selvi, and Bania communities in the Bombay, Puna, Surat, Nassik, and Solapur zillahs, as to the questions raised by Mr. Malabari on infant marriage and enforced widowhood.

BURMA.

KING THEEBAW is reported to have said that he is glad now to hear of the late demonstration in Rangoon anent the condition of Upper Burmah, as he is longing to test British strength. He has been assured by foreigners that he need fear nothing from the English, who have their hands very full already.

THE Ministers continue to urge King Theebaw to send an Embassy to India on Lord Dufferin's arrival, but the King is still opposed to such a step, on the ground that there is nothing to fear.

THE Kakhyens are massing in the vicinity of Bhomo with the object of attacking the town.

A FOREST overseer named Mounng Soe, stationed at Twalatay, in the Hanthawaddy district, is under arrest on a charge of misappropriating about Rs. 2,000, the collections made by him on account of salvage some time last year, when he escaped to Mandalay, though a reward of Rs. 200 was offered for his capture. He returned the other day, however, and voluntarily surrendered himself to Mr. Hill, Conservator of Forests; he at the same time made a written confession of his guilt, and prayed to be leniently dealt with.

CEYLON.

THE Rev. E. E. Jenkins, M.A., Ex-President of the Wesleyan Conference, and himself an old Indian Missionary, is receiving a very enthusiastic reception from the Sinhalese Christians during an official visit he is now paying to the south Ceylon Mission.

ARABI, the Egyptian exile, has been acting in a new rôle, viz., that of peacemaker, having succeeded, at a meeting in connection with a Muhammadan school founded by Mr. Siddi Lebbe, in reconciling rival Muhammadan factions who had been long opposed. Arabi and his colleagues also manifest considerable interest in education.

THE bachelors of Colombo gave a ball on the 21st ult., at the Assembly Rooms, which was a success. The Governor and Lady Gordon were not present, owing to the slight indisposition of the latter. They were able, however, to witness the Jymkhana sports on Saturday.

A CEYLON cricket team has been formed to proceed to Calcutta to play with a Calcutta Eleven; several matches are expected to take place during December, commencing on the 15th. A Boating Crew of four good oars will also go to pull once more on the Hooghly in pleasant rivalry.

"A CASE OF HANGING."—The portrait of Sir James Longden late Governor of Ceylon, was hung up unostentatiously in the Town Hall, Colombo, on the 23rd ult. There were present during the hanging up the following persons:—Mr. J. W. Ebert, Head Clerk, M.C.; W. Mack Fernando, Head Overseer; William Mendis, second clerk, P.W.D., M.C.; J. G. Rodrigo, third clerk, M.C.; and Abraham Appu and Sinho Naide, the two carpenters who did the hanging of the portrait.—Observer

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

MAJOR-GENERAL A. A. BAYLY, Inspector-General of Ordnance, Bombay Presidency, is at present in Lahore, en route for Southern Afghanistan and Sind, on his annual tour of inspection.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL A. W. CAPEL, of the Cavalry, doing general duty at Agra, is about to retire from the service.

THE appointment of Major-General H. N. D. Prendergast, C.B., V.C., R.E., commanding the British Burmah Division, to the command of the Hyderabad Subsidiary Force, vice Major-General Sir C. P. Keyes, K.C.B., who has resigned that appointment, is gazetted.

THE Englishman says that the Calcutta Volunteers number several distinguished men who have served in the regular forces, and whose services have met with recognition at the hands of their respective Governments. The war services of a German gentleman are given as follows:—"Franco-German war from beginning to end; was present at the battles of Saarbrücken, Metz, Gravelotte, the siege of Metz, and other minor engagements."

HIS EXCELLENCY GENERAL HARDINGE arrived in Bombay on the 20th ult., from Poona, and left again for Mhow on a tour of inspection from the Boree Bunder station on the 25th. His Excellency was accompanied by General Hogg, Quartermaster-General, and Captain the Hon. A. Hardinge, A.D.C. Amongst those present at the station to see the General off were Colonel Beville, Acting Commandant, Bombay Garrison; Colonel Rivett-Carnac, Military Secretary to his Excellency; Captain Sheppard, A.D.C.; Major Creagh, Brigade Major; Captain Watling, Assistant Quartermaster-General; and Captain Anderson, Deputy Assistant Quartermaster-General. The attendance of a guard of honour and of the heads of departments was dispensed with. A salute of fifteen guns were fired from the land battery at sunrise on Wednesday to announce his Excellency's departure. His Excellency will return to Bombay on Sunday.

THE Commander-in-Chief in India, accompanied by the Adjutant and Quartermaster-General, the Military Secretary, and Captains Stewart and Owen, Aides-de-Camp, arrived at Cawnpore on the 22nd ult., and among other engagements made a minute inspection of the Government Saddlery and Harness Factory during the day. The programme for Monday included a parade of all the garrison, a visit to Cooper, Allen and Co's Army Boot Factory, and the Cawnpore Woollen Mills Company's Army Blanket Manufactory. His Excellency was to dine at the mess of the Scottish Rifles in the evening. Generals Wilson and Sir Herbert Macpherson were expected to reach Cawnpore on Sunday night. The Commander-in-Chief was to leave for Allahabad by Monday night's mail and to spend Tuesday and Wednesday there. Colonel Chapman is indisposed, and Captain Stewart suffering from a slight sunstroke.

ANTWERP INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.—Exhibitors from the North-West and other Provinces have applied to the Bombay Committee for permission to send their samples through that body. The superintendent of the Agra jail and the superintendent of the Lucknow jail are among the number. Mr. Ebdon, the acting collector of Ruttanagerry, has obtained funds for buying specimens of Viziadurg hornwork. The Pant Sachiv of Bhor has sent a collection of raw products. H.H. the Maharaja of Baroda proposes to send samples of pottery from Pattan. The superintendent of the Hyderabad jail (Sind) is engaged in preparing a collection of woollen carpets, cotton carpets, and bed covers. The Cambay Durbar intends sending carpets, textile fabrics, and cornelion and agate jewellery. Mr. Ramji Bhagwan of Bombay, who obtained a silver medal at the Calcutta International Exhibition for his collection of silver ornaments, proposes to send ornaments and plates for sale at the Antwerp Exhibition. At a meeting of the Bombay Committee for the Antwerp International Exhibition, which met on Wednesday under the presidency of the Hon. F. Forbes Adam, it was reported that Major Portman had commenced working in right earnest in collecting specimens of art-ware for the Exhibition. He had visited the establishment of Mr. Maganbhai Hathising, of Ahmedabad, and had induced him to send a good collection of his celebrated wood-carving, consisting of vases, picture-frames, and brackets. The man who makes the well-known Ahmedabad shields has also promised Major Portman that he will send a number of them for sale. It was resolved that funds should be placed at the disposal of Dr. MacDonald and Mr. T. Leith for models and ethnological collections respectively. Major Portman has secured good specimens of printed cotton from Ahmedabad and Broach. The President has induced some millowners to send their manufactures to the Exhibition. Mr. Vrijbhukhandas promises to secure specimens of Benares brass-work and Moradabad damascened ware. Mr. Jamsetjee Nowrozjee and Messrs. Jaffer Suleman and Co. will send specimens of carved furniture. Major Portman visited Surat, and has induced Mr. Mulharao Kashiram, who obtained a bronze medal at the Calcutta Exhibition to send specimens of sandalwood carving and inlaid work.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1884.

LORD RIPON AND THE BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION.

WE think that the British Indian Association may fairly be congratulated on the result of their farewell interview with Lord Ripon last Tuesday, December 9. That Association, as is of course well known, is in an especial degree the representative and the guardian of the landed interest of Bengal. Its uniform loyalty and its public spirit have also for many years past enabled it adequately to represent the general interests of the Native community. In its former and more restricted capacity it would have been difficult for its Executive Council to harmonise, in a farewell address to Lord Ripon, its natural and proper desire to show courtesy and loyalty to a retiring Viceroy, and its equally natural and proper regret at the hostility which Lord Ripon has shown towards the important interests confided to its protection. But the difficulty has been gracefully, and at the same time honourably, overcome. The Association has duly presented its address of farewell to Lord Ripon; and its President has judiciously taken advantage of the auspicious occasion, and put before his Excellency, and the world in general, "a bit of his mind," and the views of the Association as to the mischievous character of the Bengal Tenancy Bill. This is exactly as it should be; and we have no doubt that the combined action of the Association and its President will commend itself to the public at large. Lord Ripon has every reason to be satisfied with, and indeed grateful for, such a practical and courteous solution of a knotty problem; while the earnest representations of the British Indian Association will, we doubt not, carry very great weight with Lord Dufferin and those of his advisers who will now be called upon to deal with the Bill. The question is clearly one in which, in an especial degree, Native authority and Native opinion ought to have a decisive influence; and we are still very confident that the able and experienced officials by whom Lord Dufferin will be surrounded—such as Sir Stuart Bayley, Mr. Hope, Mr. Rivers Thompson, and Lord Ulick Browne—who know the country and its requirements well, will rally to the support of what they know to be the honest and intelligent opinion of every Native authority, and will aid the new Viceroy to do substantial justice to the important interests concerned.

The President of the Association frankly pointed out to Lord Ripon that the Tenancy Bill contains provisions which render it "injurious to the interests of landlords, while it bestowed upon tenants rights which they never before held, and which they in no way desire." It is a fortunate fact for the people of Bengal, ryots as well as zemindars, that there is probably no living statesman better qualified, by personal knowledge and experience, to appreciate the entire justice of this statement than Lord Dufferin. His Excellency knows full well what have been, in Ireland, the results on the condition alike of landlord and tenant, of some of the fatal gifts of late bestowed on the latter by our "remedial" legislation. He knows something of the way of the "gombeen man" with the improvident Irish tenant; and even if his views of the political exigencies of Ireland lead him to forgive the violation of all the laws of political economy in the recent Irish land legislation, he will soon learn that the political condition of Ireland and the political condition of Bengal are "far as the poles asunder."

We entirely agree with the President of the British Indian Association that it would have been a gracious act on the part of Lord Ripon if his Excellency had been able, while bidding them farewell, to "tell them that the measure which benefited no one, while it was obnoxious to all, had ceased to exist." That, we venture to think—after the clear proofs that have been presented to his Excellency of the disastrous consequences that are attending even the mere continuance of the controversy—would have been the courageous and patriotic course for Lord Ripon to have taken. He has elected, however, to leave to his successor what, in weaker hands, might well have proved a damnosa hereditas. The decision is to be regretted from many points of view. But there is at least one countervailing advantage of very great weight. We may reasonably hope that the vexed question of the relations between landlord and tenant in Bengal, and the inviolability of the Permanent Settlement—subjects that have long been the happy hunting-grounds of greedy financiers and doctrinaire politicians in India—when once thoroughly investigated and settled by such an authority as Lord Dufferin, will be allowed to rest in peace for at least a generation. In that case, the staple industry of the country will once more be allowed a fair chance of prosperity, and we shall be spared the disgrace of seeing frequent and reasonable doubts cast on the credit of British promises.

MADRAS RAILWAY.—The half-yearly report shows a gross revenue of £337,957, against £308,541, the coaching traffic having produced £141,481, against £125,258, while the amount realised by the carriage of goods and materials was £188,304, against £175,540. The expenditure was £193,097, against £193,941; and the net revenue £144,860, as compared with £114,600. The total number of passengers carried, exclusive of troops and police, was 2,619,569, against 2,216,617; the gross tonnage of goods, irrespective of materials and stores, 310,155, against 255,074 tons; and the number of train-miles run, 1,078,469, against 941,719. The half-year's capital outlay was £10,335, making a total to June 30th of £10,251,572, there being a balance of £206,585 in stores, &c., and £214,474 in cash. The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders in the above company will be held at the Cannon-street Hotel on the 17th inst., at one P.M.

VINER—Dec. 6, at Wavendon, Woburn, Thomas Viner, aged 76, formerly of Ceylon.

By the death of Miss Fuller, which took place on the 14th ult. at Ferozepore, the Indian Female Normal School and Instruction Society loses a valuable and devoted missionary. Miss Fuller had resided for many years at Lahore, where she was well known and much respected by both natives and Europeans.—Daily News.

Not even all the native papers approve of the selection of Mr. Lalmohun Ghose as a candidate for Parliament in the interests of India. The Rast Goftar, of Bombay, which is edited by a Parsee gentleman, thinks that the Baboo is an unsuitable candidate, and that the experiment would have a much better chance of succeeding if a less irrational person had been chosen.

THE "VOICE OF INDIA."

INDIA.

THERE are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing MONTHLY (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native journals throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally docile and conservative; and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth; but it is a policy of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is specially desired to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE

 CHOLERA.

We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a deliberate breach of faith on the part of the chemist to prescribe and patient alike.—We are, Sir, faithfully yours, SYMES & CO., Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain, His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the TRUE PALLIATIVE in NEURALGIA, GOUT, CANCER, TOOTHACHE, RHEUMATISM.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a liquid medicine which assuages PAIN of EVERY KIND, affords a calm, refreshing sleep WITHOUT HEAD-ACHE, and INVIGORATES the nervous system when exhausted.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE rapidly cuts short all attacks of EPILEPSY, SPASMS, COLIC, PALPITATION, HYSTERIA.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.—The IMMENSE SALE of this REMEDY has given rise to many UNSCRUPULOUS IMITATIONS. Be careful to observe Trade Mark. Of all Chemists, 1s. 1d., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. SOLE MANUFACTURER, J.T. DAVENPORT, 33 Gt. Russell St., W.C.

COUGHES,
COLDS,
ASTHMA,
BRONCHITIS.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Dr. J. C. BROWNE (late Army Medical Staff) DISCOVERED a REMEDY to denote which he coined the word CHLORODYNE. Dr. Browne is the SOLE INVENTOR, and, as the composition of Chlorodyne cannot possibly be discovered by Analysis (organic substances defying elimination), and since the formula has never been published, it is evident that any statement to the effect that a compound is identical with Dr. Browne's Chlorodyne must be false. This Caution is necessary, as many persons deceive purchasers by false representations.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was UNDOUBTEDLY the INVENTOR of CHLORODYNE, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to. See The Times, July 15th, 1884.

DIARRHŒA, DYSENTERY. GENERAL BOARD of HEALTH, London, REPORT that it ACTS as a CHARM, one dose generally sufficient. Dr. GIBBON, Army Medical Staff, Calcutta, states: "2 DOSES COMPLETELY CURED ME OF DIARRHŒA." From SYMES & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Simla, Jan. 5, 1889. To J. T. DAVENPORT, London.

DEAR SIR,—We congratulate you upon the widespread reputation this justly esteemed medicine has earned for itself all over the East. As a remedy of general utility, we much question whether a better is imported, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to their native bazaars, and, judging from their sale, we fancy their sojourn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances ad infinitum of the extraordinary efficacy of DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE in Diarrhœa, and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Choleraic Diarrhœa, and even in the more terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power.

COCOATINA,

Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder.

GUARANTEED PURE SOLUBLE COCOA.

Is of the Finest Quality, with the excess of fat extracted.

The Faculty pronounce it "the most nutritious, perfectly digestible beverage for Breakfast, Luncheon, or Supper, and invaluable for Invalids and Children."

Highly commended by the entire Medical Press. Being without sugar, spice or other admixture, it suits all palates, keeps for years in all climates, and is four times the strength of Cocoas THICKENED, yet WEAKENED with Arrowroot, Starch, &c., and in REALITY CHEAPER than such Mixtures.

Made instantaneously with boiling water, a teaspoonful in a Breakfast Cup costing less than a Halfpenny. COCOATINA A LA VANILLE is the most delicate, digestible, cheapest Vanilla Chocolate, and may be taken when richer Chocolate is prohibited.

In tins at 1s. 6d., 3s., 5s. 6d., &c., by Chemists and Grocers.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1884.

Notes of the Week.

Our advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, December 5th; Madras and Allahabad, December 3rd; Calcutta, December 1st; Ceylon, November 26th; Burma, November 28th.

THE tardy amende offered by Lord Ripon at Bombay on Saturday to Lord Lytton and Sir John Strachey—in the full and frank confession that “the discredit which had been thrown on Indian finance in 1880 was in a great measure unfounded and unjust”—will be read with mixed feelings by most Anglo-Indians. By those, like ourselves, who have earnestly striven to maintain this view, through good report and evil report, during all these years of misrepresentation and unrebuked slander, this confession will be received with the same sense of relief and satisfaction as that which must be experienced by one who has long been imprisoned on a false charge when the real criminal confesses. But this satisfaction will be modified by a feeling of bitterness at the thought that the confession has been so long delayed as to be of little practical value. These and similar falsehoods not only drove Lord Beaconsfield from office—that were a little matter—but they broke that great heart; and now Lord Beaconsfield is no longer alive to learn that the nation's ingratitude to him was only due to the nation's credulity and to the base malignity of his traducers.

THE telegrams of the Calcutta correspondent of the Times show that Indian public opinion is being fully aroused as to the insulting treatment that is being accorded to the British officers who have been sent on a fool's errand to mark out the Russo-Afghan frontier, and to the general futility of that experiment. We have already dwelt on the various disquieting rumours on the subject that are flying about.

THE Civil and Military Gazette of Lahore, always well-informed on frontier matters, makes some astounding disclosures—so the telegrams inform us—as to the presence at this moment of Russian officers in Kabul. These enterprising friends of Mr. Gladstone have the pleasant and amusing task, so it seems, of supervising the correspondence that passes between the Ameer and the Government of India! This is really inspiring news; and would doubtless induce the Gladstone Government seriously to consider what further scuttling might be possible, so as to conciliate the powerful intruders—if it were not for one awkward fact, and that is the presence of Lord Dufferin at Calcutta. Will Lord Dufferin be able to get over the invincible tendency of the Ministry to scuttle?

THE intrigues of the French on the borders of Siam and Cambodia are causing the natural alarm that might be expected in the former kingdom. Everywhere we find the weakness of the present Government in England accentuated by the aggressiveness of our rivals.

THE great meeting of the opponents of the Bengal Tenancy Bill in the Town Hall of Calcutta on Friday last, under the presidency of his Highness the Maharajah of Darbhanga, is most opportune, and will doubtless have due weight with Lord Dufferin. We are glad to observe that the so-called “amendments” proposed by the Government of Bengal were unanimously condemned by the meeting, as tending to make the Bill, if possible, even worse than it was before.

WE shall deal at length next week with the arguments brought forward at this great and important demonstration. Meanwhile, we would draw prominent attention to the undoubted fact, that the ryots and middlemen are now everywhere heartily joining the zemindars in showing the most uncompromising hostility to this most pernicious Bill.

It is now admitted that there is no section of the agricultural interest in Bengal that does not regard the Tenancy Bill with dismay. Under these circumstances we trust that it will not be long before Lord Dufferin will be able to announce its withdrawal. As the Calcutta correspondent of the Times observes, “it is sincerely to be hoped that it will not be allowed to agitate the public mind much longer.”

It is worthy of note that the principal European landholders of the province came forward on this occasion, to support their Indian brethren and the cause of justice.

The Times' correspondent this week tells us one of those pleasing incidents—and most of those who have lived long in India could give parallel ones—which ought to do so much to bring together in close bonds of amity the English and Indian subjects of Her Majesty. The tomb of a British officer, General Conway, who died of cholera fifty years ago at a remote village in the Nizam's territory, has ever since been tended with affectionate care by the people of that village. We are glad that General Roberts has gone out of his way prominently to acknowledge to his Highness the Nizam the gratitude which Englishmen feel for simple acts of kindness and appreciation like this. One touch of nature makes the whole world kin.

That the great and influential meeting of Friday last of zemindars and others opposed to the Bengal Tenancy Bill, was justified in objecting most strongly to the nineteen propositions of the Government of Bengal, is sufficiently proved by one consideration. Mr. Macdonnell proposed, among other things, to give “compensation for disturbance” to the “ordinary ryot,” that is, to the tenant-at-will! This suggestion had been denounced as unjust, even by the Select Committee of the Viceroy's Council!

Nothing could be better than the spirit of Lord Ripon's remarks at Bombay on Friday, so far as they have been telegraphed. He said “England was bound to labour for the material advantage of the natives, but not for that alone; she must devote herself yet more to their political training and moral elevation.” We most heartily agree. But how does Lord Ripon harmonise these sentiments with the tendency he has shown to subordinate high education to the claims of the three R's?—or again, with the contemptuous disregard for native political opinion shown in the abolition of the cotton import duties?

The Daily News announces the decision of the “Roorkee resolution” with great glee. And at the same time it shows its familiarity with Indian subjects by speaking of it as “the Koorkee resolution;” and heads the telegram “Native appointments in India!” The telegram states that “all students under the statutory definition of natives of India are eligible to compete,” according to the Gazette of India. Of course this simply means that henceforward Eurasians, and Europeans born and domiciled in India, are to be allowed to compete, in addition to those gentlemen of pure native birth who alone have hitherto been eligible. Whilst we altogether approve of this measure—because we object to all invidious distinctions between the two races, whether they are disqualifications of Indians for the Civil Service, or disqualifications of Europeans for the Public Works—we regret the attempt to make political capital out of it. For it is obviously one of those measures which is either unjust—in which case it ought not to be thought of—or it is a mere matter of justice and right, and ought not to be taken credit for.

Mr. Thornton, C.S.I. (late acting Foreign Secretary), and Mr. Roper Lethbridge, C.I.E. (late Press Commissioner), spoke at Exeter Hall on Wednesday last, at the meeting of the East India Association, in favour of extending the limit of age for the Civil Service of India to twenty-three. Mr. Lethbridge objected to the proposed abolition of the "Statutory Civil Service," though he thought that improvements might be made in the mode of making appointments; and he concluded by saying, "It is clear that our educated Indian fellow-subjects would be much gratified by the extension of the age for competition for the ordinary Civil Service to twenty-three; and since that extension seems desirable for many reasons, whilst the main objection to it is only the financial one of slightly enhanced pension-charges, I earnestly hope that we shall soon see it carried out."

The Indian Daily News says:—

It is probable, we hear, that Mr. Croft, the Director of Public Instruction, will be appointed Minister of Education, or chief Educational Officer, under the Indian Government, and his successor in the Bengal Education Department will be ex-officio Secretary to Local Government in the Education Department. These will be some of the changes to take effect when the new educational scheme comes into operation.

A telegram to the Englishman, dated Khulna, November 20, runs as follows:—

A meeting of over 200 landholders held here to day carried the following resolutions:—That this meeting records its strong protest against the principle and the provisions of the Amended Bengal Tenancy Bill, as it aims at depriving the zemindars, and therefore all tenure-holders, of their vested rights; that the Bill if passed into law would revolutionise the relations between landholders and tenants, create a wide breach between all classes interested in land without benefiting the actual cultivators, subject all sections of landholders to an endless flood of litigation, and vest valuable rights of property in a class of professional money-lenders, thereby utterly ruining the very class of peasants whom the Bill professes to protect; that the Bill is gravely objectionable, on the ground of not providing measures for speedy realisation of rent.

The London correspondent of the Liverpool Courier writes:—

The "Roorkee resolution" is not so well known in England as Lord Ripon's other act of criminal folly—the Ilbert Bill. But in its way the Roorkee edict was an irritant of nearly as noisome a quality, and made no end of discontent in India. Lord Dufferin has signalled his entry into office by rescinding it. The injustice of the resolution was that under the pretence of placing native students on an equality with the European at the Roorkee Engineering College it actually placed the Europeans at most unfair disadvantage. Lord Dufferin's first public act in Council has been to indicate a return to the policy in India of his best predecessors.

THE Times of India has the following obituary till the departure of the mail, December 5:—

Mr. John Gordon, Secretary of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce; Colonel William Morgan Frazer, Superintendent of Police, Bellary; Mr. Munjakupum Sadasiwa Pillay, retired Chief Justice of Travancore; the Rev. Charles Egbert Kennett, D.D., of Madras; Lieut.-Colonel Edward G. G. Hastings, C.B., Deputy Commissioner, Punjab, and officiating Civil and Sessions Judge at Peshawur; Major W. C. Morris, officiating second in command, 22nd Bombay Native Infantry; Captain A. B. Hibgame, 1st Battalion Leinster Regiment; Lieutenant H. W. Hughes-Buller, officiating squadron commander and adjutant, 2nd Central India Horse.

THE statement of the Pioneer that Dr. W. W. Hunter, is preparing a review of Lord Ripon's administration for publication, is, we believe, erroneous. It is probably founded on the fact that at Lord Kimberley's request, Dr. Hunter has really written a draft report to be presented in Parliament next session, containing a general review of each department of Indian administration, from its foundation to the present day. Thus the Foreign Office section begins with Warren Hastings's order of 1784, erecting that department into a separate branch of the administration. The history of the Home Department shows the gradual separation of the Financial, Legislative, Revenue, and Agricultural functions from what was originally one great central bureau. The draft report runs, we hear, to nearly 200 pages, and has been left in the hands of Dr. Hunter's assistant at home, Mr. Cotton, to complete and work up to about 400 pages. The report is almost entirely historical and statistical, but is in no sense a review of Lord Ripon's administration.—Indian Statesman

Telegraphic Intelligence.

The following is the usual weekly telegram from the Times' correspondent at Calcutta, dated Dec. 21st:—

"Cordial and enthusiastic as were the rejoicings with which the native community in Calcutta received Lord Ripon, they appear to have been quite thrown into the shade by the demonstrations made at Bombay on Thursday and Friday last. The public streets were densely crowded and profusely decorated, flowers were showered upon the ex-Viceroy's carriage, and the cheering was continuous, while bands stationed at frequent intervals played appropriate music. The Europeans seem to have held aloof on Thursday, but next day the clubs and chief English mercantile houses were draped with flags.

"The principal ceremonies in which his lordship took part were those of his public entry into the city, the laying of the foundation-stone of a new municipal hall, the reception of some sixty addresses, and his attendance at a Convocation of the University, where he received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. The most important feature of his visit was the delivery of a speech in reply to all the addresses collectively. In this he took the opportunity of speaking freely on various questions connected with the policy of his viceroyalty.

"He might, he said, be justly proud of the appreciation of his policy which that day's occurrences showed. Passing on to general topics, he referred to the friendly relations existing with Afghanistan. He dwelt at greater length on financial questions, saying that the discredit which had been thrown on Indian finance in 1880 was in a great measure unfounded and unjust, and that there was no proof of the grave charges which had been brought against the financial administration of Lord Lytton and Sir John Strachey. Hard facts, he said, contradicted the statement, so commonly made, that the reduction of the salt tax had been of no benefit. He alluded next to the vernacular Press, the progress of female education, and the release of the Salem rioters, which last step was, he remarked, chiefly due to the exertions of the Madras Government.

"Then, turning to one of the deputations present—that of the Eurasian Association—he spoke at some length regarding what for the last two years has been the standing grievance of that community—namely, the closing of the Engineering College at Roorkee to all save pure Asiatics. He gave the history of the correspondence on the subject which had passed between the Indian Government and the Secretary of State, showing that the former had steadily pressed the claims of the Eurasians as well as of the natives, and expressed his gratification that this view had now prevailed, and that the next Official Gazette would contain orders increasing the number of engineering appointments to be given in this country, and throwing them freely open to all persons whom the law described as natives of India irrespective of descent. He concluded with some general remarks on the duty of England towards India. England was bound to labour for the material advantage of the natives, but not for that alone. She must devote herself yet more to their political training and moral elevation. It was in this spirit that he had tried to discharge his duties. Although only too well aware how little he had succeeded in reaching so high an ideal, still he was not inclined to acquiesce in the opinion of those who said that no substantial work had been done during his viceroyalty. He appealed from such criticisms to the verdict of the audience before him, and with that verdict he would rest content.

"Lord Ripon left Bombay yesterday evening by the Indian Government steamship Clive, his departure being marked by ceremonies similar to those of the preceding days."

"In Calcutta the past week has been quiet and uneventful, in view of the excitement of the previous fortnight; but it has been by no means an idle one for the new Viceroy, who has been busily engaged in making acquaintance with the departmental chiefs, receiving the visits of native Princes and nobles, and taking up all the various threads of his official work. On Friday he presided for the first time at a meeting of the Legislative Council, when he opened the proceedings with these words:—

"I cannot take my seat for the first time at this Council board without desiring to express the extreme satisfaction I feel at being assisted by so many distinguished persons in the government of this great dependency. I feel that for a very long time I must be little more than a learner in the details of many important questions which will come before us. But it is on that very account that I am happy to think I shall have for colleagues and advisers men who are so thoroughly acquainted with everything connected with the administration of India, and in whom Her Majesty's Government and the general public possess confidence. I only hope that on my side I shall be able to do what is incumbent on me in expediting the public business to your satisfaction."

"Last evening Lord Dufferin commenced the social part of his duties by holding a levée, which is said to have been one of the most crowded that ever took place in Government House.

"A great meeting of those who are opposed to the Tenancy

Bill was held in the Town-hall on Friday last, the Maharajah of Durbungah presiding. About one thousand persons were present, including the principal landholders of the province, European as well as native. There was not much novelty in the speeches or resolutions; the former being for the most part a repetition of the arguments and objections which have been enunciated from a number of platforms during the last two years. It may, however, be mentioned that one resolution described the nineteen modifications recommended by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, a summary of which I telegraphed about two months ago, as likely to make the Bill more objectionable than before.

"Meanwhile the Select Committee continues to work steadily and quietly, and will probably lay a further report before the Council shortly. Whatever be the ultimate fate of this much-discussed measure, it is sincerely to be hoped that it will not be allowed to agitate the public mind much longer, but that it will be either dropped or passed before the end of the current session.

"The Commission which the Lieutenant-Governor lately appointed to inquire into the manner in which the Calcutta Corporation had discharged its sanitary duties continues at work. Several witnesses have been examined, whose evidence would seem to show that there is much room for improvement in the sanitation of the city. But perhaps the most important contribution yet made to the controversy is a long and able memorial just laid before the Commission by Mr. Justice Cunningham, a gentleman whose untiring efforts to arouse the Corporation to a proper sense of its duties deserve the best thanks of the community. In this paper he goes thoroughly into the question of the measures which have been taken to promote the health of the town, and condemns the Corporation by quotations from the reports of its own engineer and health officer. He shows that the most obvious and necessary measures have been staved off or entirely neglected in the eagerness to reduce municipal taxation. He calculates that in Calcutta and its suburbs seven or eight thousand persons die yearly from preventible causes, being killed no less distinctly (though in a less humane manner) than if they had been taken out and mowed down with grapeshot. He concludes what is perhaps the most damning indictment ever brought against any municipal body by denouncing the policy which prefers a continuance of this needless mortality to a slight rise in taxation as both a folly and a crime, and by stigmatizing the apologies with which that policy is concealed or defended as delusive and disingenuous.

"This matter, as I have before pointed out, is one of more than local importance. The interests of Europe demand that cholera should be stamped out in its birthplace, and it is to be hoped that the labours of the Commission now sitting will result in the taking of some effectual steps towards that end.

"Yesterday's Government Gazette contains a further addition to the literature of the cholera in the shape of a short paper by Dr. Klein, one of the members of the English Cholera Commission, throwing fresh discredit on Dr. Koch's comma bacillus theory. Dr. Klein examined three houses in Calcutta wherein a severe outbreak of cholera had occurred in November. He found that all three were supplied with good water. At some distance from these houses, and never used by their inhabitants, were three tanks full of dirty water, and containing the comma bacilli in large numbers. Various families lived in the huts round these tanks and used their water for washing and drinking purposes; yet only one case of cholera had occurred among them in November.

"One of the most remarkable features in recent Indian history has been the gradual but steady growth within the last few years of public opinion among the natives, especially in Bengal. This has been chiefly evidenced by the development of political or quasi-political associations, one or more of which now exist in almost every considerable town of the province. These associations for the most part concern themselves chiefly with matters of local interest, but occasionally desire to express their views on questions of Imperial policy. Their memorials to the Government have hitherto been submitted through the district officials; but an Order just issued by the Lieutenant-Governor points out that as such memorials generally deal with the shortcomings of local municipalities, and as these municipalities are now for the most part elective, representations affecting them should henceforth be forwarded through the municipal officers, who, when sending them on, may append any remarks which they wish to make. This is another important step in the application of the local self-government policy.

"Yesterday the Duke and Duchess of Connaught went on a short visit to Lahore, where they received Royal honours. The city will be en fete during their stay.

"It is believed that there is no longer any reason to apprehend a failure of the water supply of Madras.

"A striking instance has lately transpired of the reverence sometimes shown by natives for an Englishman's grave. Fifty years ago General Conway, of the Madras Army, died of cholera at Makrykul, a little remote village in the Nizam's dominions. Ever since his tomb has been carefully tended by the villagers who have eagerly pointed it out to passing Englishmen. A correspondent of a Madras newspaper having lately mentioned this fact, General Roberts has written to the Resident in Hyderabad, requesting him to convey his thanks to the Nizam for the respect shown to the last resting-place of a distinguished officer.

"The delay of the Russian Commissioner in joining the British Afghan Frontier Commission is a matter of general and unfavourable comment. It is commonly believed, that this delay is neither accidental or unavoidable, but that it is either meant to give time for some fresh advance, or contrived in the hope that something may occur to the advantage of Russia. Stories, too, are circulated to the effect that Colodet Alikanhoff and other Russian officers on the spot have treated the British officers with a marked want of courtesy."

"The latest idea of the Ameer of Afghanistan is to illuminate Cabul by the electric light. It is stated that he has sent some officers to Bombay to make the necessary arrangements."

The following extra telegram has been received from the Times' correspondent, dated Calcutta, Dec. 23:—"The report of the Select Committee on the Bengal Tenancy Bill is not likely to be ready before the middle of January. It is believed that the departure of the Government from Calcutta may be delayed until April, so as to enable the Council finally to dispose of the measure. Telegrams received from Madras report the occurrence of serious floods in Southern India, and several deaths by drowning. The railways are much damaged. A portion of the Palais de Justice at Pondicherry has fallen, and all laud communication with that place is interrupted."

"GOOD OLD HENLEY."

TO THE EDITOR OF "VANITY FAIR."

SIR,—Let me, by indicting this paragraph, contribute a trifle toward that "Debt of Honour," now overdue, but often acknowledged, towards the late venerable Member for Oxfordshire laid to his rest the other day. It was by his own wish that his obsequies were simple in form; but in hundreds of Anglo-Indian families his name will ever be held in grateful remembrance, and I am yet in time to suggest that on his tomb shall be inscribed:—"It was he who secured the insertion, in the Government of India Act of 1858, of the Henley Clause."

In this notable incident of Joseph Henley's Parliamentary career striking evidence was given of that combined quality of shrewdness and uprightness which was so marked a characteristic of him as an English gentleman. Section 56 of the Bill provided that "the military and naval forces of the East India Company" (do not let it be forgotten that the Company had a Navy) "should be under the same obligations to serve Her Majesty they had been to serve the Company;" but Mr. Henley perceived that there ought to be another side to that bargain. He saw that the rights and claims of men who had served the Empire—nay, had in the direst straits just saved the States—were about to be left to the tender mercies of departments and Secretaries of State, the shifty ways of whom he knew full well. Thereupon he proposed the additional clause which became to the then servants of the Company the priceless boon of a Parliamentary guarantee. This addition to the section ran, and still runs, thus:—"And be entitled to the like pay, pensions, allowances, and privileges, and the like advantages as regards promotion and otherwise, as if they had continued in the service of the said company." The story goes, as I have often heard it referred to in India, that Mr. Henley having explained his object to his friend, the then rising lawyer, Hugh Cairns, the Orange Member of Belfast, the clause just quoted was written out fair on the crown of the capacious hat worn by the Oxfordshire squire, and then handed to the clerks at the table. That Henley clause has stood firm as a rock. Time would fail to tell of half the desperate attempts made to override or outflank that clause by War Office and Horse Guards cabals, by scheming Members of Select Committees, by tuft-hunting recalcitrant departmental heads in the India Office itself—in short, by all the powerful and encroaching social and political sappers ever on the watch to exploit the revenues of India on behalf of patronage and favouritism. But the priceless Parliamentary guarantee has proved an act of safety to all officers of the H.E.I.C.S. who trusted to it. Too many of them allowed themselves to be beguiled by the prospect of immediate promotion offered under the Staff Corps warrants of 1861 and 1866; but when, later on, they saw those who, trusting in the constitutional right secured for them by "good old Henley," had remained "Local," passing them in the race, they learned too late that he who leans on a Secretary of State's promise leans on a broken reed that shall pierce him.—Your obedient servant,
ANGLO-INDIAN.

THE PRESENT QUESTION.

WE received some weeks ago from Simla a private request that we would ourselves indicate the steps that we thought the Government should take for the settlement of the Rent difficulty in these provinces. The request came from an influential quarter, and we made the following reply, which we asked our readers to be good enough to peruse, as we believe it points out the only wise course open to the State, with the Settlement of 1793 to be reckoned with:—

OCTOBER 19.

I have been trying in vain for the last ten days to find time to reply to your note of 6th instant at some length. Perhaps you will forgive my stating my views as to Mymensing by treating broadly of Bengal as a whole.

My conviction is absolute, that what Lord Cornwallis sold to the zemindar was the khiraj, and that the intention of all parties was that the zemindar should continue the levy on his own account, on the very same principles that were laid down for his guidance, under ordinarily good native administration.

That khiraj we know to have been one-half the produce, by the constitutional law of the Empire, the Futwa Alumghere.

The pergunnah rates, so much insisted upon, were simply the commuted khiraj. So long as no change in prices, or in the money value of the harvest occurred, the rates were not disturbed; but there was no fixed permanent money rate of khiraj, as so many of our civilian officers have erroneously supposed.

The zemindar could not by Mahomedan law raise the pergunnah rates, unless the rates represented less than one-third of the produce. In that event, it was his duty to raise them up to any limit that did not exceed one-half the produce.

I believe, at the same time, that such proportions as one-half, or one-third, were never practically taken, and I have held that belief for the last twenty years.

Lord Ripon and his Council have been grievously misled by being assured—

1. That the ryot is rack-rented, and
2. That he is subjected to the "horrors of eviction."

There is no rack-renting or evicting in Bengal that I have ever been able to discover.

The zemindar has so timidly asserted his rights under the Settlement that his rents have ever been very mischievously low, and it is this practice of letting at unduly low rentals that has produced the vast system of sub-letting that exists in Bengal.

As a fact, I am satisfied that rents are lower practically now than they were in 1793—far lower. It is the immense increase in the acreage under tillage that has raised apparently the zemindar's claim.

The zemindar has a full right to get what rental he can out of this increased acreage of cultivation, but he has used the right with a very mischievous moderation.

The notions entertained by Mr. Mackenzie and Mr. O'Kinealy as to the weight of the zemindar's exactions are grotesquely absurd. The ryot is the real landlord over greater part of Bengal.

The Tenancy Bill having been framed under utterly erroneous impressions as to the facts cannot be made the sort of Bill that is really required. The Bill should be withdrawn as radically bad. A new Bill should be drafted by the Government, frankly taking the zemindar into co-operation with itself. So alarmed is the zemindar, and so moderate are his expectations, that if the Government will but patiently seek his co-operation, in solving equitably the difficulties between him and the ryot, I believe success would attend the effort.

The first thing to do is to fulfil the promise to the zemindar—so long and so dishonestly withheld—of giving him the legal power to recover the present moderate rentals he is unable without that assistance to obtain. To me it seems shameful that we have put the zemindar into the position he now occupies, and there left him.

The Permanent Settlement has never been respected by us. Act X. of 1859 was in my eyes a violation of its terms, very manifest. But I do not think it possible now to respect it absolutely. We have ignorantly brought matters to such a pass that the fulfilment of the contract is impossible. The zemindar must, I think, see this himself.

I say that the Government should withdraw its charges against the zemindar. They are false, unjust, and mischievous in the highest degree. The zemindar would, I am certain, co-operate with the Government, to make such a settlement with his tenantry, as would remove all difficulty but such as arises from the unreasonable demand of the ryot to engross the profits of cultivation.

My remarks are written currente calamo, and have special reference to Bengal. I began the inquiry into land tenures in Behar ten years ago, and all I can say is that I advise earnestly they should be left untouched for the present, and until the Government has settled with the zemindars how to go about the enormously difficult task of reconciling the two interests of zemindar and ryot in the province.

Until the Government takes the zemindar into cordial co-operation with itself, on the ground that the zemindar has not been an oppressor, but a very mild and timid landlord, we shall never get the right sort of Bill framed. Mr. Thompson's proposal to put the Khas Mehal estates under the Bill is insanity itself. It is to throw the remaining rights we (the State) have in the soil of Bengal into the gulf of the Permanent Settlement. Had the Permanent Settlement never been made, we might with nothing but advantage have got thirty crores land revenue from Bengal to-day, where we are getting less than four. Our Civilian administration succeeded to an inheritance in the Mogul khiraj that would have made the State independent of taxation for all time had it been but properly nursed.

We have but one source of revenue in India that we can count upon for all time, to which no objection whatever lies. And this is the revenue which our administrators have ever been tampering with, from 1793 down to this wild proposal of Mr. Thompson's to throw up the Khas Mehal estates.

We are spending 500 millions sterling upon the land for railways only, and the land revenue is vital to us.

The best solution to-day of the zemindar versus ryot question would be to buy up the zemindar's rights, and get back the khiraj into our own hands were it practicable.

What I see clearly is the prospect of great trouble with the tenantry all over Bengal. They have been allowed for so long a period to pay only nominal rents that great difficulty will attend the raising them to reasonable rates, either in the Khas Mehal or zemindar properties; but this is the legislation, or action to be taken, as every one but an Indian Civilian can see clearly enough. Let the Government make common cause with the zemindar, to check the sub-letting that is going on by gradually raising the rates to a proper level. This Bill goes in the very opposite direction to the right one, and if it become law will practically make the ryot the owner of the soil.

And yet we are not violating the Permanent Settlement!

(Sd.) R. KNIGHT

II.

We said some days ago that the framers of this Rent or Tenancy Bill were signing judgment against the land revenue all over India, without really knowing what they were doing. It is this consideration, indeed, that invests the Bill with its most disastrous aspect. For if we are really to decree throughout these provinces that the zemindar to whom we have sold that revenue is never to increase it beyond 13 crores, which he is now levying out of a gross harvest of 250, with what possible face can the State attempt to claim a larger share of the produce in the other provinces of India? We are now exacting 22 crores a-year as the State share of a gross harvest of not less than 500 or 600 crores, having administered the inheritance left to us by our mogul predecessors with such fatal incapacity, that whereas the State ought to have been independent of all other resources whatever, it has been driven to all kinds of shifts and devices to obtain a revenue commensurate with its liabilities. No more pitiable story of administrative incompetency is to be found in modern history than the story of civilian mismanagement of the Indian land revenue. The Mahomedan land system to which we succeeded is positively the economist's "ideal." At this moment less than five millions of fellaheen, cultivating five millions of land of almost precisely the same quality as the deltaic soil of these provinces, are steadily paying, and without any difficulty, five millions sterling of land revenue (khiraj) to the Egyptian Government. They do so without any difficulty, their late sufferings arising from the cruel barbarity with which "forced loans" have been wrung from them to the extent of £20,000,000 sterling in seven years only, under what is known as the Law of Moukobalah, the infamous instrument by which Ismail Khedive attempted to meet the demands of the bondholders. We beg our readers, we beg the Government to observe carefully what we say. Possessing the very same share in the produce of the soil of India as the Khedive possesses in that of Egypt, we have so vilely mismanaged the legacy we inherited from our mogul predecessors, that we are obtaining to-day but 22 crores of rupees as land revenue from the harvests of 200 crores of people, while the Egyptian Government, without the least difficulty and without oppression of any kind, collects five crores from less than five crores of people steadily every year. To this hour the civilian administration of India, as a whole, has never opened its eyes to the fact that this land revenue of our mogul predecessors is the ideal tax of the political economist, and that in tampering with it perpetually, as our civilian Government has ever done, it is itself the parent of all our so-called financial difficulties. So impressed with this fact was Mr. Baillie, author of the well-known essay on "The Land Tax of the Mahomedans," that the very first sentence of the preface to his work runs thus:—

"The most important of the rights acquired by the East India Company by cession or conquest from its predecessors in the Government of India is the khiraj, or land tax, which has existed in that country from early times, and was probably imposed upon it soon after its conquest by the Mahomedans. In Bengal the right to this tax was conferred on the Company by an express grant from the mogul Emperor Shah Alum, under a firman bearing date 12th August, 1765, and neither in that presidency nor in any other part of India have the East India Company or their local governor ever pretended to any greater rights in respect of this particular tax than belonged to the preceding governments under the acknowledged law of the country."—Page 1."

It is this khiraj that to-day belongs to the zemindars of these provinces under the Settlement of 1793, and in decreeing by this Rent or Tenancy Bill that the zemindar shall henceforward be restricted to exacting the 13 crores of revenue he is now deriving therefrom—for practically that is what the effect of the Bill will be—we are violating the Settlement by an act of the grossest fraud, and are signing judgment against any future enhancement of the land revenue by ourselves in the other provinces of India. So absolutely true is our statement that we have seen Mr. Rivers Thompson, within the last few weeks only, deliberately propose to the Government of India that the Khas Mehal estates of these provinces—the land which still belongs to the commonwealth therein—shall be brought under the operation of this Bill. Mr. Thompson sees the invidiousness and impropriety of enacting one law for the zemindar-landlord and another for the State-landlord, but incapable, with the whole service to which he belongs, of seeing anything more—he makes the insane proposal that in tying the hands of the zemindar we shall tie the hands of the State too. In other words, we are to keep the fraud we are perpetrating upon the zemindar in countenance by perpetrating the same fraud upon the commonwealth, leaving the generations who come after us to obtain the revenues they require in the best way they can. Such incapacity is too deep for words.

When the Mogul Emperor Shah Alum invested the East India Company in 1765 with the Dewanship of these provinces, the sunnud which he conferred upon them required them to administer the revenues in strict accordance with the Mahomedan law, as settled in the great work of his predecessor, Aurungzebe, known as the Futawa-ool-Alumgheri. In 1784 the Parliament formerly enacted that the Company should administer its territories in conformity with this law, and, when Lord Cornwallis, nine years afterwards, improvidently sold the "land revenue" to the zemindars, forcing them to be it remembered to buy it, it was not in his power to do more than simply transfer the khiraj to the zemindars in perpetuity. It was beyond the power of Lord Cornwallis or the East India Company to do anything more than make a permanent settlement of the khiraj with the zemindar. Now that khiraj was one-half the produce, and had been so for more than a century. The testimony to this is so explicit that no well-informed man will venture to question it. Under Akbar it had been one-third of the produce, and as a fact—the tradition of the people throughout India is that the proper State share is this third of the produce. The pergunnah rates upon which so much wild nonsense has been written were simply the commutation of this third share into money; and so long as there was reason to believe that these money rates represented the value of a third of the produce no change was allowed to be made therein. It is this regulation that has led so many civilian writers into the belief that these pergunnah rates were of the same fixed and unalterable nature as the demand made by us upon the zemindar under the Settlement of 1793. They were nothing of the kind. The value of money changed very slowly down to the middle of this century, and the commutation once made in any pergunnah seldom needed to be revised. It was the positive duty of the amil (amilgooza malgoozar) if he saw reason to believe that the pergunnah rate represented less than one-third of the produce to increase it, but as this rarely happened the rates seldom changed. Mr. Reynolds, not discerning the origin and precise nature of these rates, imagines—like so many others of his service—that they could not be raised, and that enhancements were never legal until Act X. of 1859 made them so. It is all utter delusion. The Mahomedan law is very peculiar, and is framed with singular wisdom. It is impossible under that law to fix a money rental in perpetuity upon the cultivator. The State right can be limited in one way only—and that is, by decreeing the money rental perpetual, so long as it represents one-third share of the produce. It was beyond the power of the Mogul himself to limit the State right in any other way, and the student of these laws is constantly lost in the admiration of their wisdom. Full of the insular belief that English laws and customs must necessarily be better than Mahomedan, it was not until two generations had passed away that we began to understand in India the real value of much that we had ignorantly destroyed. Our worst achievements were the changes we made in the land system of our predecessors. The veil has been lifted partially at times within the last thirty years; and, for a few months together the civilian body has been made to understand the true nature of the problem with which they were dealing. But the darkness has settled down again, within a year or two, over almost all minds, and it is a "darkness that may be felt," when we find that the Lieutenant-Governor of these provinces at this hour deliberately proposing to throw the Khas estates into the gulf of the Permanent Settlement. Let him—let all hear what the Times wrote in 1862 upon this very subject, when the controversies of that period had for a little while kindled a fire and threw light upon what we were then doing:

"Lord Canning's famous Land Resolution" is the surrender of a radical principle of our Indian policy. [It is the sacrifice of the one single opportunity left in the world of carrying out in practice the essential principle of political economy in the maintenance of a community with entire justice and without waste. From the first hour when the philosophy of administration has been understood, it has been admitted that the true source of State revenue is the land, and the only sound policy is to preserve the land as the property of the State. The land is the one species of property which necessarily and perdurably increases in value, by the mere growth of society, and which therefore can be charged with the support of the State, precluding all burdens upon individuals, and precisely adapting itself to the demands upon it. The misfortune of all the Western kingdoms of the world has been that this discovery was not clearly made till the practical application of it had become impossible, through the appropriation of the soil as private property; and when India came into the hands of our fathers, they found themselves in possession of the one opportunity left in the world for carrying on government without taxation, and without the necessity for ever instituting taxes.]

It was our own writings that elicited this powerful statement from the great English newspaper. And to-day we are in the same conflict with darkness once more. That the zemindar may be defrauded without scruple, the State "rights" in the soil are to be made victim, upon the same altar that consumes his own. And we are engaged in an expenditure of £500,000,000 sterling upon railways to improve the land, the value of which is yet in its very infancy! And this is Indian statesmanship. Not an acre of its land should the State part with, but come to a wise arrangement with the whole zemindar body of these provinces, to redeem the interests sacrificed in 1793, by a just and generous compromise with the zemindar, for sharing the rights which, unaided, he has no power to enforce.

III.

May we suggest to the Lieutenant-Governor—as we have already done privately, but we regret to say ineffectually—that it is very desirable that the public should see the Administration Reports that are coming in from the various divisions of the presidency for the year 1883-84. They are unusually late in making their appearance this year, and the Secretariat "resolutions" thereon, which have appeared in the local Gazette up to the present, are so unsatisfactory, alike from what they disclose and manifestly suppress, that the Lieutenant-Governor would act wisely in ordering the reports themselves to be published in the Gazette in extenso. We suggested to Mr. Ilbert a month or two ago that it was very desirable that the Supreme Government should see these reports, and the British Indian Association, in common with ourselves, made a formal application for them. They have been supplied no doubt to Mr. Ilbert, but as they are the private property of the "official" body, according to the views which prevail amongst those gentlemen, they have been refused both to the Association and to ourselves. And yet it will be remembered that it is these very reports of past years that Mr. Mackenzie, as Secretary of the Local Government, at once declared to be the "evidence" upon which the Rent Bill was drafted, when the B. I. Association very justly complained that the Bill had been drafted without "evidence" of any kind, as to the relations between the zemindars and the ryots therein. From the meagre extracts which have been quoted in the Government resolutions published recently, it is certain that they contain matter of great importance at this juncture of affairs, and it is very difficult to reconcile the withholding of them from the public, with the existence of a single-minded desire on the part of the Local Government to disclose the true state of matters in the districts. From our own personal familiarity with these "reports," some years ago, we find it impossible to account for their being withheld, but upon the supposition that they disclose much concerning the relations between the zemindar and the ryot, that the Government thinks it inconvenient to make public, with this Bill upon the Legislative anvil. In reply to our application for them we were officially informed that the "reports contained comments on persons and affairs of a confidential character which could not be made generally public." But every one knows, we presume, that it is customary for the Commissioner of each division to state confidentially to the Government in these annual reports the estimate which he has formed of the character and abilities of every member of his divisional and district staff; and it is a mere pretext to say that the reports are withheld from the public for any such reason as this. As a fact, all matter of this kind is carefully eliminated from the Reports before they are filed with the ordinary records of the Secretariat; at all events, this used to be the practice some years ago, and we presume for obvious reasons it still is so. We are forced to the conclusion that the Reports are withheld, because of the growing clearness of their testimony to the fact that this Tenancy Bill has been brought forward under a total misapprehension of the true state of matters in the districts. It cannot be forgotten, as we have already said, that when the zemindars most naturally and justly complained, in 1881, that "execution had preceded inquiry, and a foregone conclusion had taken the place of unbiassed investigation," Mr. Mackenzie, as Secretary to the Local Government, appealed instantly to a long tring of extracts from these very Administration Reports for the years immediately preceding the Bill, as the "evidence" upon which it had been drafted. If the Government really intended to rely upon these Reports, as evidence of the necessity of the Bill, common justice required that the Reports should have been placed in extenso before the public. In 1881 we were asked to receive a series of selected extracts from the Reports, as the evidence that justified the measure, and to-day we are told in reply to our formal application to be allowed to see the Reports of the last year that the Government cannot publish them, because they contain certain matter that is "confidential." When we assure the public that this confidential matter ordinarily consists but of a few lines, commending or disapproving the conduct of the Commissioner's subordinates during the year, it will see the justice of our conclusion that the Reports are withheld, because they contain unpleasant disclosures affecting the Tenancy Bill. In spite of our desire to do justice to Mr. Rivers Thompson's administration, we are forced to say that it is wanting in that robustness and manliness that are the very first virtues of an Indian ruler. Suppose the Administration Reports to be of the order we believe them to be, the withholding of them from the public excites suspicion more damaging to the Bill, in unbiased minds, than any disclosures whatever would be that the Reports are likely to contain, while if our inferences are hasty, the publication of the Reports would indefinitely strengthen the promoters of the Bill. Apart from these special considerations altogether, however, it is so manifestly injurious both to the public and to the Government to treat documents of this nature as "confidential," that we cannot speak too strongly the sense we have of the unwisdom of the practice. The Reports are withheld, not because there is anything in them that is calculated to injure the Government, but from the old and mischievous tradition that the public has no right to know anything whatever of the course or proceedings of the Executive Government.

The jealousy with which the "public archives" of India are guarded from the eyes of the vulgar and profane herd, to which of course the Press and such bodies as the Chamber of Commerce or British Indian Association belong, has proved one of the most injurious peculiarities of civilian rule from the very first. Masses of the most important information, and reports of the utmost value, lie buried to-day in the recesses of the various Local Secretariats, that are for ever lost to the public. Instead of popularising its information as the only safeguard against error, and insisting upon the public knowing all that the Government itself does, the tradition of the service is to administer everything in secrecy and in silence, while the non-official community are then scornfully reminded on occasions of their ignorance. It is quite true that the non-official community are ignorant of almost everything concerning our administration of the country. It has been our own mission for many years to try to lift the veil upon it, and it has not been wholly fruitless—witness the Rupee Loans a few months ago, and the childish and unworthy effort to hide from the public Mr. Westland's note upon the subject, as though it were a cobra to be let loose amongst our merchants. We have made three distinct efforts to get these Administration Reports for the last year—where none whatever ought to have been needed—and we have been refused them. Is it any wonder that we say Mr. Rivers Thompson's administration is altogether wanting in manliness, or that we conclude that the Reports do not bear publishing, with the Tenancy Bill in hand!—Indian Statesman.

KOWAR JOWALA PRASAD, B.A., at present a deputy collector in Allahabad, has been appointed a probationer in the Native Civil Service in the N.W. Provinces. He is a son of Raja Jai Kishan Das, C.S.I., who was ennobled for distinguished services rendered by his brother, Chauba Gansham Das, and himself in the Mutiny.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL G. LUCK, C.B., commanding in Sind, accompanied by Major Stopford, Assistant Quartermaster-General, proceeded on the 19th ult. from Kurrachee to Hyderabad and Jacobabad for the purpose of inspecting the troops at those stations. During the absence of Brigadier-General Luck, Colonel Nicolson, 13th Native Infantry, will command the Kurrachee station.

A MINOR army reform which, this time, is to benefit the private soldier, is, the Lahore paper says, under the consideration of the authorities. The "dry canteen," at which soldiers may purchase supper and stores is in most regiments under the charge of a native contractor, who pays so much a month for the privilege of running it, and makes his profit thereon after his own fashion. Naturally, the tea, coffee, &c., supplied by him is not of the best, and complaints as to quality are numerous. One or two free-thinking corps have done away with the native contractor altogether, and are conducting the "dry canteen" as a regimental concern, on the co-operative store principle, with much success. This fact has been duly brought to the notice of the Commander-in-Chief, and, since nothing in India can be done without a report, his Excellency has called upon commanding officers to give the matter their consideration, and to "report on the advisability of the system indicated being adopted by all corps and batteries."

Home News.

THE Marquis and Marchioness of Ripon are expected to reach home from India about the middle of next month, their house in Carlton-gardens being ordered to be ready for their reception by the 15th proximo.

INDIA COUNCIL DRAFTS.—The tenders for Rs.20,00,000 in bills on India and telegraphic transfers were received on Wednesday last at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were:—In bills on Calcutta, Rs.11,82,000, on Bombay, Rs.4,35,000; and on Madras, Rs.3,83,000, the average rate in all cases being 1s. 7d.; in telegraphic transfers, Calcutta, Rs.4,00,000, at an average rate of 1s. 7-03d., making a total allotment of Rs.24,00,000. Tenders for bills on all Presidencies at 1s. 7d. will receive about 19 per cent. and for telegraphic transfers on Calcutta at 1s. 7 1-32d. in full. Subsequently bills for Rs.240,000 on Bombay and Rs.1,50,000 on Calcutta were sold at 1s. 7 1-32d., and transfers for Rs.1,00,000 on Bombay at 1s. 7 1-16d. Up to last week the total sold since the financial year began was Rs.9,75,09,415, realizing £7,948,691.

THE PROSPECTS OF THE IRON TRADE.—India, according to Iron, is essentially the country to which English capitalists and manufacturers must look in the future, and our exports have been on a fair scale during the year. The English Government at home virtually rules India, and protects the population against the extortion they suffered under their native rulers. Without the support of Great Britain, the administration of India could not be carried on. It seems, therefore, but fair that the interests of British manufacturers and traders should have some preference over foreigners in that market. In 1881 the East India Famine Commission reported that during the famine of 1877-78 the excess mortality was estimated at 5,280,000 human beings. Food there was in abundance in neighbouring provinces, sometimes not more than 100 miles from the stricken districts, but unavailable for want of means of transport. This is still the case; and India, with her population of 200 millions, needs more railways and tramways to prevent the recurrence of such calamities, and also to provide more outlets for her produce. If we create these her productions and exports will increase, and she will take more from us in return.

THE INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE.—Under the auspices of the East India Association (General Sir Orfeur Cavenagh presiding), a meeting of officers and gentlemen interested in the affairs of the British Empire in the East was held on December 17th at Exeter Hall, for the purpose of considering the reforms required in the Indian Civil Service to meet native demands. Mr. Roper Lethbridge, C.I.E., formerly Press Commissioner of India, read an elaborate Paper by Mr. N. S. Ginwalla, of Broach, in which, after referring to the monster meetings lately held in all the chief cities of India to procure the extension of the present limit of age for the admission of natives to the Covenanted Civil Service, he suggested the adoption of a middle course, which might be satisfactory to all parties and tend to soothe the ruffled spirit that pervades India on the subject. He proposed to shut out the natives of India altogether, so far as their examination and admission in England are concerned, and that a separate and independent branch of the Covenanted Civil Service be organised and established in India solely for the natives, and that all the lower grade appointments be reserved for them, to the exclusion of Englishmen and Eurasians. Successful candidates, immediately after passing their examinations in India, should be required, without exception, to make a short sojourn in England, say for two years, to finish their education. Appointments to the service should be made under the same rules and conditions as are now in force in regard to the statutory civilians, and the limit of age should be extended to twenty-seven years. The number of appointments to be thus competed for should be one-third of the Civil Service. A discussion followed, closing with the customary votes of thanks.

NOTICES, DIVIDENDS, MEETINGS, &c.

OUDE AND ROHILKUND RAILWAY COMPANY.—The half-yearly meeting of the above company was held at the City Terminus Hotel on Dec. 17, Mr. J. Pender, M.P., in the chair. The Chairman said that the net receipts of the company had been the highest yet obtained since the line had been opened for traffic, and it must be borne in mind that they had to pay upon £1,600,000 unproductive capital represented by the expenditure on the Northern Extension and the Benares Bridge. The amount payable by the Secretary of State and Government for India for interest on capital stock and debentures for the half-year to June 30 last was £100,010, to which had to be added £338 interest on overdraft of capital account, making £100,348. The net earnings had been £160,935. The passenger traffic continued to greatly develop, particularly that of the lower class, from which they principally derived their profits. Referring to the negotiations pending for the settlement of the dispute between the company and the East India Railway Company in reference to the through booking arrangement, he stated that he anticipated a satisfactory issue would be come to. The working expenses had been further reduced, they having been only 48 45 per cent. for the half-year. The only increase had been in the cost of maintenance, the line being kept up in as efficient a state as possible. The proposed extension southward from Benares to Calcutta was of the greatest importance to the company, as it would open up a new district rich in coal and minerals. The Northern Extension works were being rapidly pressed forward, and every effort would be made to complete the line as early as possible. The current half-year was not so encouraging as regarded the earnings, the goods traffic having considerably fallen off, but he was in hopes that the cycle of bad years would be followed by good ones, and the railway would, no doubt, share that prosperity. The report was adopted.

SCINDE, PUNJAB AND DELHI RAILWAY.—The fifty-seventh half-yearly meeting of the shareholders in this railway was held yesterday afternoon at the Cannon-street Hotel, Sir W. P. Andrew in the chair. The report of the directors showed, during the half-year ending the 30th of June, as compared with the corresponding half of last year, a decrease of £44,854. The net revenue fell short of the guarantee by £75,263, or  $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. The Chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, reviewed the report of the directors at length. Mr. Shepherd characterised the conduct of the directors as such as made him unable to give them that unlimited confidence which they might desire. (Hear, hear, and applause.) The directors had borrowed money from the Council of India without the authority and against the expressed wishes of the shareholders, and he, for one, objected to the existence of such a state of things. (Cheers.) He hoped the meeting would reject the report, because in it were figures which were illegal, and which should have been expunged from the report by calling in the unpaid capital. (Cheers.) Mr. Samuel Montague endorsed the remarks made by the last speaker, on the ground that when opposition appeared at the former meetings of the shareholders the Chairman dissolved the meeting, as his proxies could not be used, as they were irregular in form. (Cheers.) He asked the meeting not to sanction the action of the board of directors, because they had shown themselves as rather considering the interests of the Government than that of the shareholders. Mr. Thornton defended the action of the directors. Mr. M'Andrew said he was ashamed of the manner in which some gentlemen had spoken of the Chairman and directors. The Chairman said he had proxies for £2,079,000, and contended that he had the confidence of the proprietors. The motion for the adoption of the report was carried, and a cordial vote of thanks to the Chairman concluded the proceedings.

MADRAS RAILWAY COMPANY.—The half-yearly meeting of the above company was held at the City Terminus Hotel on Dec. 17, Mr. G. Noble Taylor in the chair. The Chairman said the gross receipts showed an increase of about £29,500, and the expenses were £844 less than in the corresponding period of 1883. The net receipts for the six months ending June 30 last amounted to £145,000, as against £115,000 in the corresponding period of last year, or an increase of £30,000. To make 3 per cent. on the whole of the guaranteed capital stock and debenture they must raise £150,000, and to make 5 per cent. £250,000, so that the earnings of the past six months nearly appropriated 3 per cent. With 861 miles opened, the same as in the corresponding half-year of 1883, they had earned £31 per mile more, and though the number of train miles run greatly exceeded that in 1883, the receipts per train mile had been only 3½d. less, while the expenses were less by about 6d. per train mile. The coaching traffic showed a very satisfactory increase in every item, or a total of over £16,000. With regard to the passenger traffic, they had carried 492,952 more passengers, with an increased receipt of £4,270, of which 400,000 were third-class, producing £5,400 of that increase. At first doubts were expressed as to the policy of reducing the third-class return fare to 1½d. per mile, but the results had of late years been most encouraging, and the parcel traffic since the reduction of tariff had also increased. The line had been worked at a lower percentage than at any former period. No heavy works had been constructed during the past half-year. They had agreed to sell to the Government the Bellary branch, about thirty miles in length, at its original cost, about £360,000, and the money so obtained would be expended on other branches as feeders to the company's line. With regard to the Beypore and Calicut line they were providing the materials as rapidly as possible; but it was not expected that the necessary bridge would be completed for two or three years, but in the meantime it was hoped that they would be able to make use of ferries. The Government had, he might mention, no option to purchase the line before April, 1907, so that the proprietors had still twenty-two years' possession from April, 1885. In conclusion, he referred to the satisfactory condition of the permanent way, rolling stock, &c. The report was adopted.

SCINDE, PUNJAB, AND DELHI RAILWAY.—The report states that the net receipts for the half-year ending June last were £201,618 17s. 10d., against £246,473 1s. 6d. in the corresponding period of 1883, being a decrease of £44,854 3s. 9d.. The coaching traffic showed an increase of £11,948 13s. 5d., but there was a diminution in the goods traffic of £63,591 2s. 4d. The report also states:—"Intimation has been received by the Board that it is the intention of the Secretary of State for India in Council to purchase the company's undertaking in the terms of the contract at the end of the next year. Upon the receipt of this the directors deemed it right to give notice of an application to Parliament for powers to enable the company to make such altered arrangements as may be considered advantageous to the proprietors, subject to their approval. The best attention of the directors will be devoted to promote the interests of the proprietors in any negotiations that may take place." The chairman has, it is stated, taken the unprecedented step of issuing a circular inviting the shareholders to entrust him with their proxies for the half-yearly meeting on December 23, even before the publication of the half yearly report.

SOUTH INDIAN RAILWAY.—The directors have issued a memorandum as to the working of the half-year ending June 30, 1884. The earnings for the half-year show a substantial increase, and exceed those of any corresponding period, being £208,287, against £183,419 in 1883. The net profits are at the rate of four per cent. per annum on the total capital expenditure, which was £121,525, against £118,419 in 1883. The per-centage of working expenses has fallen from 64·53 in the first half of 1883, to 58·31 in the corresponding six months of 1884.

NIZAM'S STATE RAILWAY.—The comparison of earnings since July is given below (120 miles open in both periods):—Earnings from July 1st to November 15th, 1884, £31,611; ditto in 1883, £30,150; increase, £1,461.

OBITUARY.

Sir H. V. Stonhouse, Bart., died on November 13, at Trial, in the United States, aged forty-seven. The deceased baronet was the only son of the late Sir T. V. Stonhouse, of the Madras Civil Service. He married in 1851, Charlotte, fourth daughter of the late Mr. John Beatty West, M.P. for Dublin, and granddaughter of the Hon. Judge Burton, and by her, who died in 1857, had issue three sons, of whom only the youngest survives, namely, Ernest Hay, who was born in 1855, and who now succeeds as 16th baronet.

Mr. Charles Philip Brown, at his residence in London. This gentleman, who was a son of the Rev. David Brown, Provost of the College at Calcutta, entered the Honourable East India Company's civil service as far back as 1817, and served until the year 1845 under the Government of Madras. Among the offices he is recorded as having held is that of Persian translator to the Government, and he was afterwards for many years Postmaster-General of Madras; but it was as a profound scholar of Indian languages that he became widely known in India and to many in England. In addition to a thoroughly practical knowledge of Persian, Hindustani, and Sanscrit, he devoted himself to the language and literature of the people of the Telugu country among whom his first official duties lay, and among European gentlemen he has probably been surpassed in familiar and literary knowledge of a native language only by the Jesuit Father Beschi who was in India in the beginning of the last century. In addition to miscellaneous contributions to Indian journals he was the author of a grammar of the Telugu language, of an "English-Telugu Dictionary," of 1,400 pages, and of Telugu-English in 1,300 pages, of an analysis of Sanscrit prosody printed first in 1837, of laborious and valuable tables of Hindu and Mussulman chronology, and of many translations from and editions of Telugu and Sanscrit manuscripts. It is noted in the preface to a catalogue raisonnée, published in three volumes, by the Rev. W. Taylor, in 1857, that in 1847 Mr. Brown made "the munificent donation" of 2,440 manuscripts to the Madras Literary Society, which it is believed afterwards became the property of Government. He also translated into Telugu the entire Holy Scriptures, passing his work under the criticism of the best native Pandits.

PUBLIC HEALTH ASSOCIATION.—The prospectus is published of a new association called the Public Health Society, for Calcutta and its suburbs. On the Council are the Hon. A. B. Miller, Messrs. Keswick, Landale, C. E. Buckland, T. Jones, Caithness, Irving, Simmons, Morrison, F. Aitchison, Major Wace, Mr. Saunders, and others. Mr. E. Reilly is the secretary. The objects of the society are to promote public health by means of improved sanitation, by diffusing information on sanitary topics, by lectures, meetings, the publication of the society's journal, to provide a convenient opportunity for the discussion of topics of general municipal interest as such, to secure such amendments in the Municipal Act or alterations in municipal taxation as experience may show to be desirable, to promote the election as municipal commissioners of persons interested in sanitation, to call attention to particular sanitary evils, and assist private persons in their efforts to secure efficient sanitation throughout the city and suburbs, &c. The subscription of members is proposed to be fixed at Rs. 8 per annum. Meetings are to be of two kinds, ordinary annual meetings, and extraordinary meetings.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

THE Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has ordered that an inquiry shall be made into the condition of the Bengal jails, in reference to the charges of ill-treatment made against the managers of those institutions.

THE Anglo-Indian and Eurasian Association of Calcutta are appealing to the public for assistance to enable the association to erect model kintals in suitable localities in Calcutta.

SIR DONALD STEWART arrived in Calcutta on the 28th ult.

THE Municipal elections in Bengal have now been generally concluded. They appear to have excited no great interest.

MR. A. J. R. BAINBRIDGE is permitted to resign the Bengal Civil Service, with effect from the 1st of September last.

A CALCUTTA paper regrets to learn that some days past Mr. Croft, Director of Public Instruction in Bengal, has been confined to his room by illness.

THE Maharajah of Durbungah has expressed his intention of subscribing liberally to the fund now being raised for the purpose of sending an Indian team to Wimbledon next year.

DR. R. POWER, Civil Surgeon, Simla, leaves on thirteen months' furlough. His place is taken Dr. O. Duke, lately of the Political Department.

THE official judgment on the causes of the accident at Aranghatta on the Eastern Bengal Railway has been made public. Mr. Tayler, the magistrate, considers that the only way to account for the accident is to suppose that both the driver and fireman of the mail train were asleep at their posts and disregarded the danger-signals. The charge made by a native paper that the wounded were robbed and neglected is declared baseless.

THE Government are about to recognise the services of Major Bell, V.C., R.E., in connection with the Intelligence Branch of Quartermaster-General's Department, by promoting him to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel.

MR. ST. JOHN KNELLER, to whose good services the Maharajah of Cooch Behar owed so much during his minority, has returned to India and taken up the duties of Private Secretary to the Maharajah of Durbhunga.

THE Cabul Envoy reached Calcutta on the 29th ultimo, making this capital his head-quarters as usual during the cold weather.

MADRAS.

CAPTAIN TAYLOR, Master Attendant of Madras, has been appointed Sheriff of that city for the ensuing year.

MR. S. SUBRAMANIAM IYER has been appointed to a seat in the Madras Legislative Council in the place of Rajah Gajapatee Rao.

H.E. THE GOVERNOR OF MADRAS presided at the St. Andrew's dinner at Madras on the 29th ult.

THE Government of Pondicherry have decided to place an increased grant of about 30,000 francs per annum at the disposal of the Educational Department in the French Settlements.

ON the 26th ult. Captain Philp, the commander of the s.s. Clan Grant, which was caught in the recent cyclone off Madras, and had to proceed hurriedly to sea to avoid being washed ashore, was presented by the passengers with a purse of sovereigns and an address bearing testimony to the coolness, promptitude, and seamanlike ability he displayed on that occasion.

THE Madras Government have decided that, so far as the Public Works Department of that presidency is concerned in regard to the Colonial Exhibition to be held in London in 1886, it will be best represented by models of some of the principal irrigation works within the Presidency, inasmuch as such works constitute the chief engineering speciality of Southern India.

RAJAH SIR T. MADAVA ROW has received the following letter from Mr. Cowen:—"On the last day that Parliament sat, in August, I received a letter from you informing me that you had sent a petition signed by European, Hindoo, and Mahomedan subjects in the Presidency of Madras, complaining of the removal of the Government offices from the town of Madras to the Nilgiri Hills. It was impossible to present the petition before the House rose; but I have had pleasure in presenting it to Parliament to-day. You will see in the newspapers that I send you herewith intimation of the presentation. I have also given notice that I will call attention to the subject at the first opportunity. That opportunity, unfortunately, may not occur during the present short session, as the Government have taken possession of all the time of the House, and private members have no means now of initiating debates. But if I should not succeed in getting an opportunity before the House rises you may rely that I will avail myself of the first occasion that presents itself when Parliament reassembles in February next. I entirely sympathise with the memorial. I think the people of Madras have a serious grievance, and, as far as my ability and opportunity will allow, you may rely upon me putting it before the Legislature."

BOMBAY.

H.E. SIR JAMES FERGUSSON arrived in Bombay on the 1st inst. from his tour in Guzerat, Kattywar and Cutch, and the same evening held a levee at the Secretariat, which was very numerously attended.

MR. JOHN GORDON, the Secretary of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, died of dysentery at Bandora on the 28th ult. Mr. Gordon's petition in bankruptcy had only been filed the same day, his liabilities being estimated at six-and-half lakhs of rupees.

INFORMATION has been received in Bombay that Taria Topun, a wealthy Khoja merchant, well known in Bombay and Zanzibar, was robbed and ill-treated by Bedouins between Mecca and Medina recently. Other outrages on British Indian subjects are also reported to have occurred.

H.E. VICE-ADMIRAL SIR W. HEWETT, the Naval Commander-in-Chief, replying to the toast of his health at a Freemasons' banquet in Bombay, the 29th ult., drew attention to the unsatisfactory condition of the defences of the Bombay harbour, and expressed a hope that steps would be taken to supply the shortcomings of the city in this respect.

THE news of the death of Sir Alexander Grant, Bart., late Director of Public Instruction, Bombay, has been received with great regret in this city, where the deceased was well-known and highly respected.

H.E. GENERAL HARDINGE, who has been to Mhow on a tour of inspection, returned to Bombay on the 30th ult.

AT a meeting of the Bombay Municipal Corporation on the 27th ultimo it was agreed to sanction an expenditure of one lakh of rupees to defray the cost of a survey of the Tansa scheme for an increased water supply to the city.

THE Bishop of Bombay consecrated St. Mary's Church, Parell, on the 4th instant.

COMMENTING on the meeting held in the Bombay Town Hall on the 30th ultimo, for the purpose of voting an address of thanks to the retiring Viceroy for "the eminent services rendered by him to this country during his tenure of the high office of Viceroy," the Indian Spectator says:—"The demonstration of yesterday may be fairly taken as the gauge of the cordial and enthusiastic reception that is in store for Lord and Lady Ripon during their brief stay here before bidding farewell to this great country and its people. Altogether we cannot help remarking that if the meeting that was held in the Town Hall last year was in every sense 'historical' for the constitutional manner in which our citizens claimed there the rights of a nation, the meeting of yesterday was no less 'historical' for their demonstration of gratitude to the ruler who had declared them worthy to exercise those rights in the teeth of the most powerful opposition that courage and magnanimity yet encountered in the administration of England's magnificent empire."

BURMA.

ARRANGEMENTS are being made to start a glass manufactory at Rangoon.

A CONSIGNMENT of Andaman tea put into market at Rangoon is reported to be equal to Indian tea in quality and flavour.

A RANGOON telegram, dated the 27th ult., to a Calcutta paper, says:—"The Municipal elections have passed off without any serious disturbances. The excitement was intense yesterday, which was observed as a general holiday, at the Chief Commissioner's request. There was great opposition amongst the European and Burmese candidates. The town was everywhere placarded. The result of the poll was declared this evening in the presence of a large assembly. Two English, one German, one Armenian, one Eurasian, one Bengalee, one Marwarree, five Burmese, and two Chinese candidates have been returned. Strong bodies of police were kept in readiness to maintain order, as a fight amongst the Burmese was expected."

CEYLON.

THE Rev. E. E. Jenkins, M.A., Deputation from the British Wesleyan Conference and Co-Secretary of the Missionary Society, is having a most satisfactory inspection of the work of his Mission in Ceylon, and the amount of interest which his visit has drawn forth from the Sinhalese all along the Western Coast from Hambantota to Negombo as well as in Kandy, shows the real hold which Christianity, as taught by the Wesleyan agents, has got upon the affections of the people. The importance of the Ceylon Mission among a people who are likely to be all English speaking and reading in the next generation, and whose destiny it is to trade and commingle to some extent with all the nations of the Eastern and indeed Western world, cannot fail to be impressed on Mr. Jenkins's mind.—Observer.

MR. JUSTICE SCOTT, of the High Court, Bombay, visited Ceylon lately; but he did not care to go and see Arabi or his colleagues! It will be remembered that Mr. Scott was the Egyptian Correspondent who wrote so strongly against the "National" party led by Arabi. As Sir Wm. Gregory used to say "it is all Mr. Scott's doing that English opinion is led away." Arabi is, however, much happier and better off in Ceylon than in troubled Egypt. He has lately been taking a special interest in the progress of education among his fellow-Muhammadans; and he has now got several members of his family about him.

CEYLON is becoming a favourite place of resort for civilians, merchants and others from India with short furlough. The trip to and fro by steamers and the easy railway communication with our hill towns and stations and the comfort of local hotels, cannot fail to make such trips increasingly popular.

SIR ARTHUR GORDON is blamed for taking no interest apparently in the Local Volunteer movement, which has proved such a decided success. Sir John MacLeod's testimony shows the practical value of this corps of defenders; while, from a social point of view, the movement has done more to promote good feeling and to give most needful physical exercise to different classes than anything in the history of the British occupation of Ceylon. Sir Arthur Gordon is supposed to be inclined to look at several matters through the spectacles of his brother-Scotchman, Mr. Campbell, Inspector-General of Police (and Prisons with Rs.3,000 extra), who naturally has no love for the Volunteers.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

H.E. GENERAL HARDINGE, who has been to Mhow on a tour of inspection, returned to Bombay on the 30th ult. by the Jubbulpore mail train. His Excellency was accompanied by Brigadier-General Hogg, Quartermaster-General, and Captain Hon. A. Hardinge, A.D.C. Brigadier-General Edwards, commanding the Bombay District, and Captain Sheppard, A.D.C., were present at the Boree Bunder station to receive his Excellency. The attendance of the heads of departments and the usual guard of honour was dispensed with. A salute of fifteen guns was fired at sunrise on Monday to announce the arrival of his Excellency.

THE Chief Commissioner of Assam, in order to encourage volunteering in that province, has granted two prizes of Rs. 25 and Rs. 50 to be shot for by the volunteers of the Surma Valley. The first prize of Rs. 25 is to be called the "Running Man Match," and the second, of Rs. 50, the "Running and Rapid-firing Match."

IN cases where judicial proceedings are instituted by a British soldier, with the permission of the commanding officer of the regiment to which he belongs, in view to securing a legal separation or divorce from his wife, the grant of passages by railway or sea, or both, at the public expense, when necessary, is authorised for the soldier as well as all parties to the suit.

THE Indian Government has ruled that as officers of the Army Medical Department, who were formerly treated as regimental officers, are now classed as departmental, a surgeon-major of that department, when proceeding on duty of a permanent nature by sea, is entitled to free conveyance for one charger under the provisions of paragraph 454, Transport Regulations, Part I.

UNDER the Military Pay Regulations a hospital assistant, who may be placed in charge of a detachment of troops less than a wing, is granted an allowance of Rs. 5 a month when the charge is held in conjunction with his own legitimate duty. It has recently been decided that the above-mentioned allowance is not admissible if the detachment numbers less than twenty-five men.

THE rule rendering necessary three years' home service between the tours of Indian duty of officers of the Royal Engineers has been relaxed, each application to resume Indian duty being in future dealt with on its merits, the rule being suspended when considered desirable.

A DEFINITION of the rules which regulate the grant of passages to discharged soldiers of the British army who are desirous of proceeding to the colonies has recently been given by the Government of India. It appears that soldiers who are discharged on the termination of their engagement are only allowed free passages to the Australian colonies so far as the steamers proceed, and not to their intended place of residence. Soldiers who enlisted in the colonies prior to the introduction of the Army Discipline Act of 1879 are entitled to free conveyance to the place where they were attested.

ABOUT 100 rifles have been lost on the Peshawur Frontier by British and native troops and Militia during the last four years; and about one-half of these have been stolen from British infantry, principally at Peshawur and Nowshera, and in the adjacent encamping grounds. This, the Lahore paper remarks, is a large proportion, when one considers how few British troops are at Nowshera and Peshawur compared to the native force on the frontier, and how small a share of detached escort and outpost duty they take. The fact is that officers and men of British regiments preparing to cross the Indus, and encamping on the north-western border, have no idea of the nature of the country they are approaching, and of the difference that prevails in regard to security of life and property between trans-Indus territory and the more civilised parts of the empire. They should be warned to observe extra precautions from the moment they come within sight of the Indus.

H.E. SIR FREDERICK ROBERTS distributed the prizes at the Soldiers' Industrial Exhibition at Secunderabad on the 24th ult. His Excellency in the course of some remarks said that he looked with great favour on exhibitions of this kind, as they not only afforded present useful and profitable employment for the soldier who had a deal of spare time on his hand, but under the "five years' service system" they were calculated to be of ulterior benefit to the men, who might thus be induced to learn some trade or calling, to be followed with advantage after leaving the colours. The Government also approved of these soldiers' industrial exhibitions, and had just sanctioned one on a larger scale to be held at Bangalore, and which would be open to the whole of the command, and at which he hoped Secunderabad would be well represented. This, however, would not be in the way of Secunderabad having its own annual exhibition, and he trusted this, the first, would not be the last, and only wished that the lead given by Secunderabad would be followed in other places in the command. These local exhibitions, he said, would serve to encourage the less skilled workmen in their attempts, as they would not be so backward in exhibiting their handiwork in a small exhibition as they would in a large one.

Miscellaneous.

THE Judges of the High Court have, in accordance with the practice that obtains at Calcutta and Madras, rescinded the rule by which it was obligatory to look up juries at night in certain cases. In future the question of allowing juries to separate will be left entirely to the discretion of the judge presiding in the Criminal Sessions Court.

MR. Kaikhosro N. Kabraji is preparing four musical recitals in Gujarati to be given in a fortnightly series. He will be assisted by the members of his family and a few other amateurs. The Hon. J. B. Peile has consented to take the chair at one or more of these entertainments.

THE SOLDIERS' EXHIBITION.—Amongst the regiments which will compete at the Soldiers' Exhibition to be held at Bangalore for the Madras Presidency next year the Queen's Own Sappers and Miners are likely to stand conspicuous. In 1872 the Queen's Own Sappers and Miners carried off the best prizes and highest medals in most of the exhibits both at Madras and Mean Meer. They are already setting to work preparing exhibits for October next, and probably will again be to the front. In carpentry, fret-work, pottery leather-work, cutlery, photography, lithography, and other industrial manufactures, the Sappers excel and will take a good deal of beating. The fret-work turned out by Lieutenant Jones, Quartermaster of the Corps, is of the most exquisite design and finish, and promises to form a very attractive feature of the forthcoming exhibition. A class has been formed to instruct lads of the regiment in fret-work carving.—Bangalore Spectator.

THE ARTILLERY CAMP OF EXERCISE.—The Camp of Exercise arranged to come off at Kristnarajpuram, near Bangalore, next January, will be confined to manoeuvres in high-angle firing with artillery, the object being to endeavour to throw shot into the interior of fortifications or defences thrown up by the Sappers and Miners, and which will be protected by the new traverses. Another interesting feature of the operation will be the experiment of using palmirah trunks in the construction of gabions, instead of iron. Some authorities allege that palmirah stems, being soft and tough, has more power of resistance than iron, which being hard is more easily broken and smashed up by shot and shell. Palmirah, if it answers, will, besides, be much cheaper, of course than iron—in this country at all events. Five thousand rupees have been sanctioned for the Camp, and Sir Frederick Roberts will control all expenditure on account of the same.

THE ANTWERP INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.—Mr. Woodward, the Collector of Nassick, sends the Antwerp Exhibition Committee a list of the brass and copper pots and figures which he expects from Gyanu Pandu, who obtained a silver medal at the Calcutta Exhibition. Mr. Papu Moreshwur, of Poona, who has a shop in Bombay, intends sending brass and copper figures, pots and lacquered ware of the value of about Rs. 1,000. Messrs. Bana and Co., of Nowsaree, who obtained a gold medal at the Calcutta Exhibition for their Indian essences, soap, and specimens of perfumery, intend sending a similar collection. Messrs. Raosaheb Sitaram Damodhur, the mamedar of Callian, has sent photographs of the aboriginal tribes of the Tanna district for the ethnological collection. In addition to their specimens of artware, the Cambay Durbar will also send a collection of ethnological objects, and his highness the Raja of Dhurmpore is engaged in collecting objects of ethnological interest.

WHY LORD RIPON FAILED AS A VICEROY.

THE events of the past few days, and the incidents of the closing scenes of Lord Ripon's Viceroyalty, serve to put in a very clear light the reasons why his administration has been such a disappointment to his friends. He started with opportunities never vouchsafed to any other Viceroy. The sacrifices and the achievements of Lord Lytton's reign had cleared the way for an era of peace and prosperity; for a terrific cycle of famines had been met with such resolute determination as to render all minor financial difficulties easy to cope with, whilst a successful war on the Afghan frontier had been fought once for all, in such a way and with such results as to dissipate all further disquietude in regard to those regions. For great and permanently remedial measures, such as the foreign and financial reforms pluckily carried through by Lord Lytton, we all know that great unpopularity has to be faced, large immediate expense has to be incurred, onerous responsibilities have to be fearlessly undertaken. But all this price—a sort of ready-money payment for future quiet and future prosperity—had already been paid by Lord Lytton. The very virulence of that party-spite, which struck at Lord Beaconsfield through Lord Lytton, combined with the natural results of his own courageous policy to make Lord Lytton the scapegoat, to carry off the odium that must always be attached to a thorough reformer; and in this way it happened that Lord Ripon took up the reins of empire at a moment when he had only to sit down quietly and reap a rich harvest of renown and popularity for which all the seeds had already been sown. Other men had laboured, and all Lord Ripon had to do was to enjoy the fruits of their labours.

And this is what, undoubtedly, he would have done, if he had been animated by that spirit of wisdom which induced Lord Dufferin at Belfast to hope, for himself, that his Indian administration might be an "uneventful" one—and if, further, he had resolved from the first not to be hampered or compromised by the base falsehoods and malicious slanders so busily invented and circulated by the Midlothian propaganda of 1879-80. Unfortunately, he had not sufficient self-restraint for the one effort, nor sufficient moral "backbone" for the other. On the one hand, he could not content himself with such a modest rôle as would have been involved in the mere fruition of the results of Lord Lytton's financial and frontier reforms; on the other hand, he had not the moral courage at once frankly to avow that all the slanders of Midlothian had been "unfounded and unjust"—as he confessed on Saturday that the worst of them had been.

Lord Ripon's speeches at Bombay, coupled with the fact of his enthusiastic reception by the Native community there, show how much better it would have been for the success of his administration if he had been less of a popularity-hunter and more of a statesman. His speech on Municipal Reform, confirmed as it was by the Governor of Bombay in regard to the success attained by the Bombay Municipality, reads like a wail over a grand opportunity lost. The question of Local Self-Government had been left by Lord Lytton exactly in such a condition that a judicious and modest successor might easily have carried it on, gradually but surely, to a high development. But gradual and careful building on other people's foundations was by no means to Lord Ripon's taste. He must needs have a brand-new scheme of his own that should bring in all the newest Radical patents, and all the fads of all the faddists. The scheme is launched with flourishes of trumpets that put the empire into convulsions; and then naturally follow the results of lack of steadfastness and want of "backbone," when (as usually happens) these negative qualities are coupled with excessive vanity and self-assertion. These results may be written down in two words—failure and disappointment. And so it has happened with all Lord Ripon's plans and schemes. They go up like a rocket, in a great blaze of fire and expectation; they come down like the stick, in darkness and silence. So it was with the Education Commission—a great "hullabaloo" at first, vast sums of the "poor ryots'" taxation spent, able and highly-paid officers taken off important work for the purposes of the Commission, and then—a fizzle! So with the stock-notes and other financial proposals. So with the reforms of the law of Criminal Jurisdiction. So with the land law reforms. So with local self-government. So with every other question. It has been nothing but a series of philanthropic fireworks—a rushing, blazing, flaring, catherine-wheel of good intentions, and for performances nothing but darkness and burnt paper.

A similar mournful lesson is enforced by the alarming rumours which gather consistency every day, of Russian emissaries in Kabul, of Russian military advances on the frontier, and of Russian insults to the unfortunate British officers employed there. In every line the characteristics of Lord Ripon's policy and its effects have been the same—defiant recklessness and bluster at first, followed by surrender and humiliation.

THE "INDIAN STATESMAN" ON THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

IN our last number we promised to give a further notice of the admirable articles on the Bengal Tenancy Bill which have appeared in the Indian Statesman in Calcutta. It may be said that the writer of those articles has carried the war into the enemy's territory. For, as it was admitted by Mr. Secretary Mackenzie that the object of the Bill was to protect the ryots against the horrors of eviction, and to secure to them a reasonable share in the profits of their cultivation, the Indian Statesman now undertakes to show that eviction is most rare, and that the cultivator is already appropriating nearly the whole of the profits, instead of only a reasonable share of them. It is unnecessary to dwell on the question of evictions, as all statistics show that the zemindars' policy is not to evict. But it was convenient for Mr. Mackenzie when introducing the Bill to speak of the "horrors" of eviction, much as other greater men have brandished the flag of imaginary "atrocities," so as to try and attract sympathy and pity. The Indian Statesman alleges that although it is common in Bengal to talk of the rent as absorbing half the produce of the land, his own study of the subject had long convinced him that such rentals were impossible; and that so far from rent in these provinces representing half the gross produce, he doubted if they had represented one-fifth of the produce. In a controversy with the Bombay Government in 1862-3 upon the weight of the assessments in Western Indian, inquiry showed that instead of being one-fifth of the produce, the assessments were commonly not one-thirtieth or fortieth part of it. The Bengal Tenancy Bill is brought forward on the pretext that the rents which the zemindars are exacting from their tenants are so oppressive that it is absolutely necessary to fix a limit to their exactions, and to declare that they shall not in future exceed one-fourth the value of the gross produce. But the Members of Council evidently have no idea what a fourth of the gross produce means. Mr. O'Kinealy, one of the godfathers of the Bill, complains that the zemindar is rackrenting the provinces by a rental of thirteen crores, and therefore proposes to teach him moderation by limiting him to one-fourth of the produce. But Mr. O'Kinealy cannot have understood that one-fourth of the produce would mean sixty crores instead of only thirteen crores. The Statesman alleges that the statistics which the Bengal Government publishes from time to time indicate that the money value of the gross harvests of Bengal cannot be of less value than 250 crores. According to Mr. Justice Field and the highest authorities, such as Galloway, Briggs, and Baillie, on the Revenue law of Bengal under the Mahomedan Government, the zemindar is entitled to take one-half the harvest as khiraj; so that, in strict right, the zemindar might claim a rental of 125 crores. But Mr. O'Kinealy and Mr. Mackenzie, and Mr. Macdonnel, in their crass ignorance of the true state of affairs, propose by their Bill to award to the zemindars 62½ crores, or one-fourth of the produce; and he is at the same time denounced as an oppressive tyrant when he is asking for only thirteen crores, which the Government cynically refuses him legal power to recover. The Bill, says the Statesman, is really an outrage upon the zemindars, who are ignorantly denounced for imaginary oppression which have found a voice in the young lions of the Bengal secretariat, who would tear the zemindars to pieces in their noble rage in behalf of the poor ryots whom the landlords are seeking to devour. Because they will not inquire into the facts, but evolve everything out of their own inner consciousness, they have undertaken a measure of the utmost dishonesty towards the zemindars, and fraught with mischief to all classes.

In another article the Statesman comments upon the impropriety of the mode in which the opinions of the district officers of Bengal have been taken by Government upon the revised Tenancy Bill. This is a point which has already been noticed in these columns, and we have again and again argued that full inquiry should have preceded legislation. When it became evident to the Government itself that some further inquiry must be made, in consequence of the disclosure of so much complete ignorance, or want of knowledge, in the proceedings of the Select Committee of the Legislative Council, the Government adopted a form of inquiry, which was prima facie objectionable, by professing to consult its own subordinates, instead of appointing an independent Commission representing all classes and opinions, and empowered to take legal evidence. The Statesman goes further back, and objects that the Bill should never have been drafted so as to assume a specific form until the report of the Rent Commission, on which it is avowedly based, had been submitted to every district officer in the province, both revenue and judicial, for a careful expression of his opinion. Had this obvious and proper course been followed, while the measure was still inchoate, and before the Bengal Government and its truceulent secretaries had committed their reputation to the measure, the Statesman ventures to say that not one single officer of experience in the districts of Bengal would have approved of its provisions. But when the Government at different times, and in different forms, had put forth its own opinions on the most prominent points of the Bill, the opinion of the district officers was sought, only to obtain their approval to what had already been mischievously decided upon. "The district officers know well what sort of report is really required of them in these after references, and that they are made simply to wring from them a semblance of approval or assent, one man to one part, a second to another, and a third to yet another, so as to give some general colour of justification to the measure. Submit the measure honestly, and as a whole, even now, to every district officer in the Presidency, and to all the judges therein, and demand of them, shall it pass? Yes or no? And a full chorus of condemnation will echo—No!" The Statesman goes on to illustrate the working of this system of after reference by quoting the opinions of Mr. Lewis, the Commissioner of the Chittagong division. When asked for his opinion upon the measure, in the first instance, he condemned it absolutely, and affirmed that it would work only harm in the Chittagong districts. "Upon the renewed reference made to him in May last, he saw that the Government had determined to pass the measure, and that it had become a point of honour with it to do so. Wise in his generation, therefore, Mr. Lewis, on this renewed reference to him, found that the Bill was urgently required, in the very same districts to which its provisions were altogether inapplicable, by his own testimony but a little time before."

Well may the Statesman ask, if this is really the way that the well-being of sixty millions of people should be trifled with? Without undertaking to endorse without reserve all the Statesman's facts and calculations, he has our strongest sympathy and support in the bold front and determined opposition which he is presenting to the Bill.

SUB-OVERSEERS FOR THE MADRAS P. W. D.—The Government of India has sanctioned the introduction of a permanent establishment of Sub-Overseers for the Madras Public Works Department. As regards the proposal to form a permanent graded establishment of of maistries it has not been found necessary elsewhere to grade such men in permanent pensionable service, and the Government of India considers that men of this class should be employed as they were required, and be borne on the temporary or works establishment. This decision has been communicated to the officers of the Public Works Department for information and guidance. The pay and qualifications of the lower subordinate establishment to be now entertained are laid down in paragraphs 519 and 520 of the Public Works Code; but, as far as practicable, vacancies will be filled by men who have passed out of the Civil Engineering College, and who have had some practical experience.

THE COMING VICEROY.—Lord Dufferin is not likely to have a very easy task before him, succeeding the "ideal" Viceroy. Native journalists warn his Lordship on no account to deviate from the lines laid down by his predecessor, and not a few of them urge that he should be formally acquainted with the wishes and requirements of the native population before he takes up the reins of office. The apprehension does not seem to have abated as to a new Viceroy succumbing to the pretensions of the dominant interest, and especially to the influence of the official class. His kindly reference in a recent speech to the character and position of the Civil Service has confirmed the fear of some of the writers; but the majority seem to be still free from the feeling and prepared to give him a fair trial.

THE LATE "MEMBER FOR INDIA."—The untimely death of "The Member for India" has caused universal grief. It is looked upon as a national loss, a calamity to our unrepresented millions. Mr. Fawcett's manly efforts for the more equitable administration of India, especially in its financial relations, his independence, impartiality, and, above all, the persevering zeal with which he loved to show to the British public the value of their Eastern possession, are gratefully acknowledged by the Press of India. It is not unlikely that his services may be practically recognised to some extent.—Voice of India.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

INDIAN TEA.—The following is from Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson's Fortnightly Circular:—Since the 4th inst. upwards of 41,000 packages have been placed on the market, 1,000 packages of these being Ceylon tea, and 1,300 packages reprinted and second-hand parcels. This large supply has severely taxed the powers of buyers, and last week, when the pressure was heaviest, prices again gave way for inferior kinds of Pekoe, Pekoe Souchong, and Souchong, the poor quality of the bulk of recent importations tending to depress the market. This week the prospect of cessation of sales for a fortnight has given buyers more confidence, and there has been a decidedly better competition, which has brought back prices very nearly to the previous level, except for Broken Pekoes, which hitherto have not shared in the general decline, but have now fallen from 1d. to 2d. per lb., upon all but the finest lines. Broken Teas have been in fair demand throughout, and have shown no quotable change, probably owing to their superiority in cup to low leafy sorts. Several invoices from Darjeeling showing improved quality have realised much better rates than the earlier shipments, and prospects for the late manufacture from this district are encouraging. Nearly 33 million lbs. of the current crop have now been sold, as compared with 30 million lbs. sold at the same time last year; and 39½ million lbs. have arrived, against 36 millions to same date last season. Importers, therefore, hold 6½ millions this year as compared with 6 millions last. Conflicting estimates as to the total shipments continue to be received, but in view of the ascertained shortness in the yield over a large area, it is unlikely that the anticipated increase will be fully realised.

MR. LALMOHUN GHOSE'S CANDIDATURE.—The Bombay Guardian says:—"We are afraid Babu Lal Mohun Ghose would not make a very good representative of India in the House of Commons. The Times of India gives an account of a speech of his in London, which seems to indicate that he is marvellously ignorant of the past history of India, and incapable of recognising the beneficent elements in the present administration. Every thoughtful person must recognise that it is vain to think of expediting the elevation of this country, if the many advantages conferred by the present régime are not acknowledged. If there be not sagacity and generosity enough to appreciate these, there is little encouragement for those who wish to widen the pathway for Indian patriots."

REPORT ON TRADE BETWEEN ASSAM AND THE ADJOINING FOREIGN COUNTRIES.—This short report contains something that will be interesting to those who care to go into what may be termed the minor matters connected with the great work of Indian administration. Mr. Darrah, its author, informs us in the first place that the external trade of Assam is carried on with seven states, or groups of states, which may be designated under the convenient terms of foreign countries. The principal of these, so far as bulk of trade goes, is Hill Tipperah, but both Manipur and Bhutan present more interesting features. On the whole perhaps the trade can be scarcely called satisfactory, for although the exports of our produce have increased by 3 per cent. the imports have decreased by 11 per cent., which implies that there has been a decline instead of a development of commercial activity among our little neighbours on the North-East Frontier. The result is thus summarised:—"The only important changes occurred in the trade with Towang, Manipur, and the Looshai hills. Trade with Towang decreased by nearly 43 per cent., while commercial transactions with the Looshai Hill tribes fell in value by over 60 per cent. Trade with Manipur, on the other hand, was much more active than in 1882-83, the total value rising by 63 per cent." With regard to Bhutan the Deputy-Commissioner of Kamrup considers that much reliance cannot be placed on the figures obtainable. He believes that the statistics for 1882-83 were far below the truth, and that the increase for the last year is not as great as it seems to be. The Akha disturbance, which interfered with commercial transactions immediately north of Darrang, compelled the traders to carry their goods to the more western fairs of Kamrup. With Towang the important trade of rubber showed a falling off, which may be explained by the fact that much of this escapes registration. Perhaps the most curious passage in the whole report is the following on the consumption of China tea in the Himalayas:—"It is a curious fact that the Bhutias bring with them Chinese tea in Chinese papers, and with the Chinese mark on the packets. The contents are the old leaves and ends of twigs imperfectly cured. The liquid for drinking purposes is produced by churning up an infusion of this stuff with salt and butter in a bamboo churn till the butter gets thoroughly incorporated with the mixture. The Deputy-Commissioner sent a packet of this tea to the Syndicate at Calcutta, and suggests that a similar article similarly made up might be appreciated by the Bhutias, and would be a good way of disposing of garden refuse." It must be hoped that no Indian merchant will do anything so discreditable and short-sighted. Chinese tea is being ruined by the haste and inferiority shown in its manufacture, just as Indian tea owes its present position to the care and skill with which it has been made hitherto.

THE JOURNAL of the NATIONAL
PROGRESS IN INDIA.

This Journal contains records of unsectarian educational work in India, Articles by Englishmen of Indian experience and by cultivated Indian writers; Reviews of Books, Correspondence on questions of the day, &c.
Increasing circulation. Advertisements received
London: C. KEGAN PAUL and Co. Bristol: J. W.
ARROWSMITH.

THE "VOICE OF INDIA."

TO THE PUBLIC OPINION OF THE PEOPLE OF INDIA.

THERE are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing MONTHLY (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native journals
throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally docile and conservative; and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth;
but it is a policy of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is specially desired to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

THE DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS.

W. THORNHILL & CO., Sole Agents.

The Reputation of the "DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS," originally introduced into England by W. THORNHILL and CO., is now permanently established. The success of their enterprise has surpassed their most sanguine expectations. "DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS" afford the only instance hitherto attained of the absolutely perfect representation of the real diamonds by artificial means. These remarkable stones, by their purity and brilliancy, support comparison with diamonds of the first water, and are undistinguishable therefrom. They are infinitely superior in every respect to real diamonds of inferior quality. DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS were exposed side by side with real diamonds of great value in the Paris Exhibition, 1878, and were awarded a Prize Medal and the highest recompense awarded to imitations. They attracted universal attention and admiration, and forthwith became much in vogue with the grande monde and elite of society. They are now worn at the Court balls, and upon all occasions in London, Paris, and St. Petersburg. They are invaluable for intermixing with and replacing parures and other costly diamond ornaments. DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS can be worn at all times, even by daylight, with confidence and absolute security. They possess the penetrating brilliancy and lustre peculiar to real diamonds, and the concessionaires guarantee the surprise and pleasure of purchasers. The perfection thus attained is the result of investigations and experiments extending over two generations. The cost, nevertheless, of the DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS is about 1-800th that of real diamonds.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1884.

Notes of the Week.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, December 12th; Madras and Allahabad, December 10th; Calcutta, December 9th; Ceylon, December 9th; Burma, December 5th.

THE telegrams this week from the Afghan Boundary Commission are most disquieting. The St. Petersburg Zeitung of Dec. 28, calmly announcing the "recent" departure of the chief Russian Commissioner from St. Petersburg, informs us that nothing can be done for "at least" two months!—and goes on to say that the interval will be occupied by "negotiations" between the Cabinets of St. James's and St. Petersburg! This, be it observed, at the very moment when the British Envoys have already been some time kicking their heels about at the appointed meeting-place!

AND then—we get a telegram in the Times from Bala Murghab, announcing that the Ameer has "strongly remonstrated against the continued occupation of Pulikhatun"—near Herat—"by Russia"! We are not told whether Lord Granville has also "strongly remonstrated"—or whether he has been laughed at for his pains. But here is the undoubted and undeniable fact—that Russia has chosen the very time when Sir Peter Lumsden and Colonel Ridgeway are "playing Patience" on the Afghan frontier, for this further outrage on Afghanistan and humiliation of England in the advance on Pulikhatun. Those Englishmen, who like eating leeks, and love to have their noses rubbed in the dirt before the whole world, are having a happy time just now, what with Angra Pequena, New Guinea, Egypt, and the Afghan Frontier. But to the rest of us, who can remember the days of Palmerston and Beaconsfield, all this sort of thing seems rather a heavy price to pay for the privilege of being governed by a Radical Ministry.

NEXT in importance to the news from the Frontier comes the telegram that gives us a very brief summary of Lord Dufferin's reply to the address of the British Indian Association, setting forth the objections entertained by all those concerned against the Bengal Tenancy Bill. We deal with this subject in our leading columns.

Is it possible for the Gladstone Government to throw off the miserable traditions by which it has hitherto been bound, and boldly seize an opportunity for advancing British commercial interests? If so, no more magnificent occasion for such a change of front can possibly be conceived than that which is afforded by the official communication just received from the authorities of Tibet, in reply to the letter sent by Mr. Colman Macaulay from the frontier through the Governor of Kambajong. The Regent of the Tashu Lama as Shigatze has now sent "a most cordial reply" to this letter—and also a letter to the Viceroy. The possibilities of the Central Asian trade through Tibet, which we all know fired the imagination of Warren Hastings, are, in sober earnestness, of the most splendid character. Happily, Lord Dufferin is the very man to rise to such an opportunity as this; and everyone will feel assured that nothing will be left undone, so far as India is concerned, to secure for our maimed and depressed commerce this grand new outlet.

THE formal annexation of Khiva seems to be a part of the scheme now being matured by Russia for her big coup in Asia. Of course it is, as usual, "that wicked Khan" who is doing what he ought not, and must therefore be gobbled up.

For those who require a trustworthy handbook of Indian and Colonial statistics, history, and general information, nothing could be more valuable than the excellent Manual which Messrs. Wheeler, of 182, Strand, have just brought out, bound up with an excellent quarto Diary. We entirely agree with a contemporary that this work is likely to be of the greatest use to merchants and business men in the far East and the equally distant South. The diary itself offers no scope for remark, being the same as those with which we are all of us familiar in the old country, but very readable matter is prefixed. This consists of a series of brief descriptions of each country and colony, of its exports and imports, its religion and education, its railways and its postal system, its climate, its flora and fauna, its products, its agriculture, and its commercial tariff. The early history of the discovery and "settlement" of India is carefully epitomised; and the same may be said, mutatis mutandis, of the chapter which relates to the discovery of Australasia, and of the foundation of our first penal settlements on its shores. In fact, we do not know where the same amount of information, useful alike to the man of business, the politician, and the statistician, can be found. Perhaps the most interesting of all the chapters in the book at the present moment is that which treats of the discovery and settlement of Cape Colony, and its early history under its Portuguese and Dutch masters before it passed into the hands of our countrymen nearly eighty years ago. The latter part of this chapter, treating of South Africa under British rule, is one which ought to be read, marked, and inwardly digested by those who would get at a correct view of our connection with those colonies and the lands adjacent to them.

THE Standard says:—

Considerable speculation is being indulged with reference to the approaching changes that may be expected in the composition of the India Council. By the Act of 1869 members appointed after that date retain their seats on the Council only for a period of ten years, unless specially reappointed for a further space of five years by right of a privilege vested in the Secretary of State. It so happens that although this Act has come into operation for six years, only one case has arisen under its provisions—viz., that of Mr. A. Cassels, in the spring of the present year. Those members of Council whose term of service would have expired in the interim, have either died or have received other appointments, as, for instance, Sir William Merewether, Sir Henry Norman, and Lord Wolseley. Two of the present members of Council reach their allotted term next year, viz., Sir Barrow Ellis and the Hon. Edward Drummond; and it remains to be seen whether they will make way for new-comers, or whether in one or other of these two cases the Secretary of State will carry into effect the power vested in him by the Act of 1869.

THE Indian Planters' Gazette says:—

The Bengal Tenancy Bill may ruin landlords, but it promotes sports among the masses. Pony racing is looking up in Eastern Bengal, as will be seen from the following extract from a correspondent to the Englishman:—"In a district in Eastern Bengal several rayats had been to Faridpur and purchased ponies for three hundred and for four hundred rupees each, for racing. They have no bets on these races, they make no books, but spend (to them) such large sums, simply that it may be noised abroad that Sheikh so-and-so had won the race and beat every other pony. They have no scales; carry no weights; no saddle; but bare-backed ride over the maidan or plain, with legs and arms going like a windmill; and for this excitement they spend a fortune, but never think of paying their rents, until forced to do so." Here is a virgin opening for Messrs. Miller and Britain. These rayats would be satisfied with very short prices.

THE Englishman has the following account of the Calcutta Freight Market, corrected to December 9:—

With a fair demand for steam tonnage to London for this month's shipments, rates have improved 2s. 6d. per ton for rough cargo during the last week. Sailing vessels have not shared in this improvement, and remain comparatively neglected, whilst our unfixed tonnage by recent arrivals stands increased to 35,000 tons.

WE take the following on the Calcutta Indigo Market from Messrs. W. Moran and Co.'s Report:—

During the past week four public sales have been held, at which 3,716 chests were offered, and 3,224 chests sold; of this quantity 246 chests were Bengal, 1,490 chests Tirhoot, 350 chests Benares and 538 chests Oudes. We have very little change to report in the tone of our market; prices have receded about Rs. 5 for defective and coarse pasted parcels, while good and desirable lots have maintained their previous values. Really good Oudes are remarkably scarce, and the very few lots that have been offered have fetched fancy prices, while the more ordinary and mixed parcels have sold irregularly and occasionally rather cheaper. The quantity out of the market is about 26,000 maunds, as against 62,500 at same date last year. So far we do not hear of any sales by private contract either on the spot or for arrival.

THE same firm gives the following account of the Calcutta Tea Market:—

On Thursday last, the 4th instant, 10,936 chests were offered and 10,886 sold, averaging 8 annas 10 pies per pound. There was an improved demand, but prices showed no quotable change. The sales advertised for the 11th instant will comprise about 12,000 chests.

THE Times of India has the following obituary till the departure of the mail, December 12:—

Telegraphic Intelligence.

The following is the usual weekly telegram from the Times' correspondent at Calcutta, dated Dec. 28th:—

"The excitement which attended the departure of Lord Ripon and the arrival of Lord Dufferin has now quite calmed down, while the general cessation of business for the Christmas holidays and the fact that the new Viceroy has hardly got fairly into harness yet, have produced a lull in politics which made the past week uneventful, and has left few matters of interest or importance to chronicle. The newspapers are occupied for the most part in discussing the probable course of Lord Dufferin's administration; and it is gratifying to see that some of the more influential organs of the native Press are showing a disposition to drop the violent tone of race animosity and the habit of heaping personal abuse on all opponents which have done so much to discredit them during the last two years. Lord Dufferin has already succeeded in making himself respected and liked by all who have been thrown into contact with him, and there is every reason to hope and believe that his Viceroyalty will be marked by a complete effacement of the recent unhappy differences, and by that cordial union of all classes and races which is essential for the peace and prosperity of India.

"Further news regarding the disastrous floods in the Madras Presidency shows that serious damage was done to the South Indian Railway. About three miles of the railway was washed away in one place, while several smaller breaches were also made in the line, and some bridges destroyed; the traffic was much interrupted. Pondicherry suffered severely; whole quarters of the town were inundated. In some places the people were obliged to escape in boats. The front of the Palais de Justice has fallen; the telegraph line to Madras was destroyed, and no mails were received for two days. A number of people in the surrounding villages are rendered homeless, and several lives must have been lost, but there are no details on this point. Distress is sure to follow among the homeless people, but it is impossible yet to estimate its extent.

"The Bombay Government has found it necessary to take steps with reference to the scarcity which seems likely to follow the failure of the crops in Sholapore, Koladje, and the adjoining district. A remission of revenue has been ordered, but it is believed that relief works will not be necessary, as the railways bring ample supplies of food.

"The death is announced, at the early age of 25, of the Maharana of Udaipur or Mewar, a chief who, if he did not rank as one of the great feudatories of the Indian Empire, had the distinction of being the head of the house which is universally admitted to be the oldest and purest among Rajpoot princely families, the origin of which is lost in antiquity, which is the only Indian dynasty that has held its present territory for eight centuries, and which boasts that it alone of Rajpoot families refused to give its daughters in marriage to Mogul Emperors. The deceased prince succeeded about 10 years ago. He is described as a young man of great promise. One of the most notable events in his short life was that he succeeded in putting an end to the historical feud between two great Rajpoot houses, Udaipur and Jodhpore. The news of his death appears to have been received with great regret throughout Rajpootana.

"A deputation of the British Indian Association presented an address of welcome to Lord Dufferin on Monday, and took the opportunity of calling attention to their objections to the Tenancy Bill. The Viceroy's reply was cautious. After thanking them for their friendly welcome, he went on to say that for some time it would not be prudent for him to reply otherwise than in very general terms to the addresses with which loyal and kindly-hearted people in this country were in the habit of welcoming successive Viceroy. For a long time his only claim on their respect and attachment must rest in the fact that England never yet sent forth a public servant to represent the Queen in India who was not actuated by a strong sense of duty. In time he hoped to convince them that he had not broken the traditions of his illustrious predecessors. It would not be convenient to take this opportunity of entering into the subject of land legislation. All he could say was that the necessity of some such legislation had long been recognised. He would carefully study the Bill now before the Council, and would not fail to pay the most conscientious attention to everything urged by the various classes whom the measure affected. A deputation from the Calcutta Trades Association was received on the same day, and was answered in an equally general and cautious manner.

"The Bengal Government is said to be contemplating a gigantic project of cadastral survey and a complete record of rights for the entire province. A preliminary step will be the introduction in the local Legislature of a Bill reviving the system of putwarees, or village accountants.

"The result of eight sales of Bengal opium held since the beginning of the financial year shows an improvement on the estimates of 15,32,435 rupees, while there is an improvement of 16,33,000 rupees in eight months in the past duty on opium exported from Bombay. These figures show that the Franco-Chinese war has not yet affected the opium revenue.

"The Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal and of the North-West Provinces meet at Sonapore early next month for the purpose of formally opening the Bengal and North-Western Railway."

"Further news from Mandalay confirms the report of the capture of Bhamo, but now it is said that it was first taken by a body of 300 Chinese. The report goes on to state that Leeseetabi was expected shortly at Bhamo. This man, regarding whom it seems doubtful whether he be a Chinese general or a mere robber chief, will be remembered in connection with the murder of Margary in Yunnan and the honourable reception which was accorded him by the Burmese monarch soon after that event, which reception provoked the Indian Government to send Mr. Douglas Forsyth on a special mission to Mandalay. It is added that the Kachyens entered the town after the Chinese, and that the latter give out that Bhamo will now be tributary to China. The whole story, however, is very vague, and requires confirmation."

"The anticipations regarding the opening of Tibet to trade expressed in a leading article in the Times on December 2, have been amply verified, and the success of Mr. Macaulay's mission is now assured. The Regent of Tashu Lama at Shigatze has sent a most cordial reply to the letter which Mr. Macaulay despatched to him from the frontier through the agency of the Governor of Kambajong, and has also addressed a letter to the Viceroy. With these letters, besides the silk scarves which ordinarily accompany Tibetan correspondence, I understand he has sent some relics of the late Tashu Lama himself, and I hear he has asked Mr. Macaulay to send him a Tibetan-English dictionary and phrase book and some scientific instruments. This is the first official communication received from Tibet for about a hundred years. Now that the Regent of Shigatze has shown not only willingness to enter into communication with us, but also a desire to learn English, it would be preposterous to allow the opportunity to escape; and it is to be hoped that the Government will put our relations on a firm footing by sending at once a friendly mission. The infant in whom Tashu Lama is supposed to have been born again will be identified next year, and if the Government will mark the event by sending an envoy with congratulations, it will have taken an important step towards securing a new ally and opening a vast market for English and Indian goods."

"The Ameer has strongly remonstrated against the continued occupation of Pul-i-Khatun by Russia.

"In this direction all is quiet. The Sariks of Pandjeh are orderly and willing subjects of the Ameer. The climate is perfect, and all are in excellent health."

The following extra telegram is from the Times correspondent at Calcutta, dated Dec. 29:—

"The news of the capture of Bhamo is confirmed, but the connection of the Chinese troops with the affair is still vague. If, however, Leeseetaki or any other Chinese general was engaged, it would seem he was acting on his own responsibility, and not under orders from Peking. Still, the subject demands the attention of the Government, for the establishment of the direct authority of China over any part of Upper Burmah would further complicate an already complicated situation."

THE FOREIGN TRADE OF BRITISH INDIA.

Mr. O'Connor's annual survey of the foreign sea-borne trade of British India for the twelve months ending March 31, 1884, is not less interesting than any of its predecessors, and its contents will well repay perusal and consideration at the hands of those who are anxious to watch and measure the position and progress of our great Indian dependency. The increase in that trade has been consistent and regular of late years; in fact, ever since the famine of 1877-8 caused a depression which threatened to imperil the prosperity of India for an indefinite period. The returns for the year under consideration show an increase of 457 per cent. over 1882-3, which was again as much in excess of the previous period. This result is the more satisfactory as the increase in the exports has been greater than that of the imports, with the necessary consequence that Indian industries are expanding and developing fresh energies. That the increased quantity of Indian articles exported is a sign of wealth, and not a drain of national resources, is proved by the fact that the import of treasure, which is the return to India for her produce, shows a large increase. The significance of this is still further revealed by the fact that the import of gold now far exceeds and quite overshadows that of silver. With regard to the imports of Government stores, several interesting facts may be gleaned from the following passages:—

"The imports of stores on account of Government were considerably larger (Rs. 25,754,569) last year than in 1882-3 (Rs. 20,926,701), the increase amounting to close on 24 per cent. The imports were smaller, however, than in 1880-1. About three-fourths of the whole increase are limited to railway plant and rolling stock, which were imported to the value of Rs. 12,376,589; the value in 1882-3 was only Rs. 9,119,144. Under some other heads, too, there was an increase which causes some surprise. Thus, the imports of boots and shoes doubled, malt liquor increased by 37 per cent., printing paper quite, and woollen goods very nearly, doubled in value. All these are articles that can be made in the country, and to some extent are so made now."

The conditions under which trade is carried on with India necessarily vary not only in accordance with its requirements, but also in proportion to the interest taken in the subject by the great producing and purchasing markets of the world. Evidence on this point is furnished in the present report. A large proportion of the trade of India was carried on in old days in vessels of moderate burden, but latterly, and principally since the opening of the Suez Canal, through which passes 65·8 per cent. of the trade of British India, the tendency has been to employ large vessels. As the natural consequence, there has been a decrease in the number of the vessels and a large increase in the amount of tonnage employed in the trade. For instance, in 1883 nearly 500 fewer vessels were employed than in 1879, but the tonnage had risen from 5,700,000 to 7,250,000 tons. It is satisfactory to learn that 81·6 per cent. of the tonnage was British. Nor is it less gratifying to be assured that every province shows an increase of trade except Burmah, where the hostility of King Theebaw has arrested the growth of the most promising branch of the external trade of India. One of the most pleasing features in connection with Indian commerce is that the trade between India and England grows at a more rapid rate than that with other countries.

Mr. O'Connor summarises the course of the trade during the year with those countries. Some of these show a large falling-off; others exhibit a not less remarkable increase. Among the former are Austria, Holland, Italy, Arabia, and Ceylon; among the latter may be named Belgium, France, and Germany. Of these the most striking increase was in the case of Belgium, in which an increase of not less than 60·5 per cent. was recorded during last year. Mr. O'Connor evidently believes that it admits of further expansion, as may be judged from the following passage taken from his report:—"It may be remarked here that there is abundant room for the development of a considerable and permanent trade between India and Belgium. As a port, Antwerp is already to some extent, and will become to a greater extent hereafter, with the extension of works there, a convenient commercial centre for a great part of Northern Europe. The industrial resources and capacity of the Belgian people and the free-trade policy of the Government enable them to produce well and cheaply many articles which are in great and constant demand in India. The exhibition to be held at Antwerp next year offers an excellent opportunity for making known Indian products to this thriving and industrious people, and it is to be hoped that the opportunity may not be lost. It may be predicted with confidence that the better the resources and wants of each country are made known to the other the closer and more extended will their commercial relations become."

The tea trade of India is perhaps the branch which is expected to attain the largest dimensions in the future; but, while there are several reasons to feel confident upon its extension with England, Mr. O'Connor has to record that "the trade with Australia, from which much was hoped, has practically collapsed." So far as our Australasian possessions were concerned, he considers that the removal of the obstructing causes "must be the work of time, and that they will not disappear until the Australian colonies become much more largely a manufacturing country than they are now, and until the fiscal policy of the colonial Administrations is radically altered." We cannot close our notice of this valuable report more appropriately than by reproducing in extenso Mr. O'Connor's review of this branch of Indian foreign trade:—

"Of this quantity of close on 60,000,000 lbs. exported last year, only 686,514 lbs. were sent elsewhere than to London, that market taking as nearly as possible 99 per cent. of the whole exports. Many efforts have been made to open out new markets in the United States, in Australia, and in Holland, with very poor results. The trade with Australia, after promising well for a time, has practically collapsed for the present. One cause of the decline in the trade was that the London market was very favourable for Indian tea, and prices, on the whole, were so well maintained that shippers of tea from Calcutta looked at other markets as being of quite secondary importance, and not worth the trouble of considering. On the other hand, stocks of both China and Indian teas in Australia were very large, importations from both countries in 1882 having been made on an extensive scale. Prices consequently fell to so low a point that in some cases shipments of Indian tea were actually bought in Melbourne to be reshipped to London, where they were sold at a profit to the colonial shipper. Transactions of this kind naturally irritated the shippers of these teas from India, for they had been shipped for the purpose of establishing a colonial outlet for Indian tea; and that colonial traders should in this manner make a profit, which would have gone to the Indian owner if he had not deliberately preferred Melbourne to London in order to found a trade, was displeasing to the exporters, who regarded the business as sharp practice, of which they were the victims. The outcome of this feeling and of the good prices in London was that the Melbourne market lost favour, and some men declared that they would never ship tea to the colonies again. On the other hand, some persons in the colonies who were interested in the introduction of Indian teas employed injudicious methods to extend consumption. By lectures, by pamphlets, by newspaper articles, by reports of chemical analyses they sought to prove that the China tea imported for colonial consumption was adulterated rubbish, unfit for human consumption. Importers of that tea and grocers who dealt in it saw their reputation and trade imperilled, and defended themselves vehemently, and certainly with some success, for the reckless and sweeping assertions of the advocates of Indian tea could not be satisfactorily proved. Strong feeling was aroused, and the controversy has been the reverse of advantageous to Indian tea. That there is a very wide field with increasing capacity for the consumption of Indian tea in the colonies is a fact of which there can be no question. But tact and discretion are required to work a new trade."

IDEAS ABOUT INDIA.

He has travelled from Dan to Beersheba
And back from Beersheba to Dan;
He has seen, he has pried, penetrated,
He's such an intelligent man!
He has found out that India is barren,
The peasantry wretched and poor,
That the governing race need instruction
And many things more.

He speaks of the Musalmán classes
Whom he saw in a couple of trips.
He saw, and he learned, and he knew them!
And hung on their innocent lips.
He knew them far better than others
Who had lived in the country for years;
And he saw the mistakes these were making,
At least it appears.

III.

He points out with generous kindness
Race feelings and channels of thought
Which he in his trips has discovered

He teaches us how to make loyal
The miserable millions that teem,
And in the Fortnightly discloses
The gist of his dream.

But yet as we read these his warnings,
A reflection unconsciously steals,
How can an itinerant griffin
Have knowledge of what he reveals?
He would seem to have gone through the process
That is known as the pulling of legs,
While he teaches his parent maternal
The suction of eggs.

ANGLO-INDIAN ADULLAMITES AND THE VERNACULAR PRESS.

In dealing with the Vernacular Press question we have now and then had our attention drawn to a kind of relationship subsisting between certain coteries, of exceptional Anglo-Indians on the one hand, and the writers in native newspapers on the other. Very often, it may be shrewdly suspected, the so called Voice of India is in reality nothing of the sort, but merely a second-hand version by some glib Babu, or departmental subordinate, of what he has heard in the course of a morning's interview with some talkative European patron or superior. One result of the spread of our language in this country is that now-a-days the freshly-landed Englishman finds himself all at once vis à vis with an audience such as formerly those only who spoke several vernaculars could command. Long ago, when we were making ourselves masters of the country, we were not above studying its languages and peculiarities. In these days the Indians study ours. Whatever "philosophical radicalism," as it is called, may amount to in Europe, it seems to be, in India, pretty nearly synonymous with not merely disability, through lack of the requisite knowledge and experience, but downright disinclination to realise the essential circumstances and conditions in which the foundations of the Empire are laid.

If we err not, the late Finance Ministry, in one of his budget speeches, struck clearly the keynote of the whole policy then distracting India, when, in the ripeness of his wisdom, he laid down that there was no essential difference between the Bengali and the Anglo-Saxon doctrinaires like that, too wise in their own conceit to admit the necessity or advantage of acquiring any knowledge beyond what they already possess, must always be out of touch with men whose lives have been spent in personal contact administratively with all classes of the Indian people. Extreme views would almost appear to be among the pains and penalties to which the mere theorist is foredoomed. Caution and moderation come only when years of actual experience have revealed the danger of accepting copy-book headings in lieu of the lessons of real life. No wonder therefore the "philosophical radical," when he comes to India, forms for himself, if a personage, some great cave of Adullam; or, if of smaller note, joins one already formed. If only he, and those who think with him, could have had the making of the world, or at all events the ordering of the affairs of the Indian Empire, how very much better it would all have been to be sure! When the Adullamite happens to be a mere exploiter, like Mr. Seymour Keay, manifestly fighting for his own hand, his influence can seldom reach very far. A cave with an ogre of that type forming its central figure may have a serious look at a distance. But here in India the hideous noises proceeding from it are pretty generally understood, both by natives and Europeans to be the veriest cat-calls, something like those with which Mr. Tittlebat Titmouse came to the rescue of his party in the House of Commons. When, however, it is one of the "green-bay trees" of the Government of India's own planting and tending that is seen to be turning away from it, the effect produced may prove more mischievous. It is one thing to hear the Government of the country and the constituted order of things scouted by a mere professional agitator, and a very different one to hear the same strains indulged in by a District Magistrate, or a Professor in a Presidency college. That the officers of the educational department should have a kind of natural leaning toward caves of Adullam is not inexplicable. Distinguished as many of them are by intellect and culture, their views in general perhaps grow jaundiced, when this mediocrity and the other, who in no department of public or professional life in England could ever have made an honest £500 a year, are advanced to situations of high dignity and salary, because members of a close and favoured service. Then, too, they generally arrive in India, saturated with mathematics and metaphysics, at an age when teaching comes more natural to one than learning, even if their intercourse with natives were less restricted than it is to their own English speaking pupils, whose lives have been passed in Presidency towns. What wonder, therefore, that they occasionally amuse us with excursions into the region of practical affairs resembling those ornate essays which Professor Wordsworth of Bombay went out of his way to contribute to the Albert Bill controversy?

We are far from attaching too much importance to our present theme. The Beaconsfield policy as developed in India by Lord Lytton, pointed so impetuously all in one direction, that an equally well-marked reaction formed perhaps only a necessary consequence. Many of our countrymen have come to regard with so much fear and hatred the red-painted image of "Imperialism"—even if for the most part a creature of their own imagination—as to be in danger of forgetting that England has an empire to keep outside the limits of the British Islands. By all means let the Adullamites have their caves, here in India, as in other places; and let those of us who heed not the fable about the bundle of sticks repair to them to their hearts' content: only let us not be wholly blind to this view of the situation. Let us peruse every utterance of the Vernacular Press with the consciousness that one of our own body, who, from whatever cause has fallen out with his fellows may possibly be at the bottom of it. Let us remember that the people of this country, when not born or professional members of the criminal classes, are not naturally very well fitted for the part of ringleaders or head centres. Whatever their general aptitude in this respect may be, when it comes to regular wire-pulling, they generally need a European to give them a lead. If this holds good of mere working the Press, it is still more applicable to the getting up of addresses, and the calling of public meetings. Every step in connection with such may show, on paper, as purely and entirely the work of natives, and yet be nothing of the kind. Regis ad exemplar is a greatly prized principle all over the East. And with so many of the writing and haranguing class of natives having salaries always open to increase, it should not surprise us that the set purpose and ramified influence of even one official Englishman who has ensconced himself in a cave of Adullam should serve to draw a very considerable number of gregarious Hindu orators and rhetoricians after him.—Pioneer

HONOUR TO WHOM HONOUR IS DUE.

"Gold medal for best natives" was a Whistable advertisement re oysters. "For Natives only, though not open to all comers" was Punch's comment in a recent issue; and the remark might be applied to the question of honours to Europeans, both official and non-official, in this Presidency. Every Queen's Birthday or January Gazette contains some such announcement as "Ahmed Khan, Talookdar, to be C.S.I.," or "Chaterjee Jeheboy merchant, to be C.I.E.," though in the Madras Presidency honours even to natives are awarded with a grudging hand. In the Madras Civil Service there is now but one C.S.I. in the Local Army five; in the same Army, including the Medical Department, there are but five officers decorated with the C.I.E., while the Civil Service is unrepresented; and non-official Europeans are conspicuous by their absence. What a contrast is this to the state of things in England, where honours are freely bestowed for more or less merit, on all classes. Army, Civil Service, Navy, Press, Bar, Science, Medicine, are all represented, while painting and music are not left to mourn alone in the cold. The policy adopted in India seems to be to exclude Europeans almost entirely, and it must lead to lessening the value of Indian decorations in the eyes of natives whom it is desired to conciliate and attract to their bestowal. For natives are astute and observing, and the value of the glittering little baubles would be enhanced in their eyes if they saw the Commissioner, General, Judge, Collector or leading European of a district wearing and prizing the same. Yet there has been no lack of good service of late years in this Presidency, notably during the late famine, which might have been rewarded. Local officers and many private individuals worked nobly and indefatigably, and what was their reward? Neglect, snubbing, the cold shoulder, and in some cases unjust blame, partly because the Madras and Supreme Governments could not agree, and there was in consequence no fixed policy, and, yet more, because "no good thing can come out of Madras" is the received Bengal dogma.

The Duke of Buckingham made a serious mistake in touring away to the Andamans and Delhi Assemblage at the moment of the first outbreak of that calamity, but he afterwards retrieved his error, and nobly stuck to his capital and his duty through an exceptionally severe season "till the bitterness was overpast." The Supreme Government endeavoured to ignore the fact of the famine, and continued to do so—at the sacrifice of thousands of lives—until the Press here and at home compelled it to intervene. Forced at last to belief, Lord Lytton poured officers from all parts of Northern India into this presidency, and assistance came with an almost lavish hand, but, alas! too late to save many who might have been rescued from starvation had help come earlier. To satisfy public outcry, Lord Lytton came himself—after deputing Sir Richard Temple to rush through the land "booted and spurred"—but he came only to fault-find, and to criticise the health and condition of the convalescents in the camps who would have been under the sod but for the exertions of Madras officials. The rations of the famine coolies on the works, though not to Madras eyes more than enough to keep body and soul together, were weighed, carped at, and condemned as too liberal. The Sanitary Commissioner stood boldly in the breach, and gallantly fought and won the battle for the convalescents. His services were grudgingly recognised long months after by a C.I.E. The late lamented Colonel Drever well earned his C.S.I. by his untiring exertions in this city; the strain on mind and body being so great that he never entirely recovered from its effects. With the solitary exception of Mr. Davidson no head of a famine district received any recognition whatsoever, and he—more for his self-abnegation in giving up the Famine Secretaryship for hard work in stricken Kurnool than for his district service. Yet collectors bore the burden and heat of the day during this fearful crisis, and but for their independent action, in the face of a vacillating policy, the loss of life would have been even more terrible. Mr. Barlow, Collector of Chingleput, worked side by side with Colonel Drever, and by his cordon of camps round Madras broke the wave of destitution surging on to flood the city with starvation and disease. Mr. Whiteside in North Arcot, Mr. Price in Cuddapah, Mr. Longley in Salem, Mr. Grose in Nellore, formed an outer barrier, and nobly did their duty. But it is needless to multiply examples, when all did well and all went unrewarded. The District Engineers were also ignored, yet they were the Collectors' right-hands throughout. They toiled night and day, and were ever in saddle or in camp.

But we are wrong in saying there came no reward. Years afterwards appeared a Government Order in which the names of a score of officers Civil, Military, and Department of Public Works, who had taken a leading part in the famine were lumped together, and a few curt words of thanks appended. The subordinates, we are glad to say, fared a little better than their chiefs, some of them being allowed to add a year's service for pension, and some even getting a bonus of a few months' extra pay. Well earned indeed were these small recognitions; but the Collector or Engineer recommending them must have had a keen sense of humour if he appreciated a successful campaign in which the leaders were ignored. The great famine was indeed a campaign in every sense against starvation, cholera, and other fell diseases in every form. No one who witnessed the huge camps filled with gaunt skeletons, the hospitals, the death patrols, can ever forget those ghastly sights, happily now like a hideous dream. Mr. Grant Duff seems to have apprehended the shabby way in which this Presidency has been habitually treated. He has been outspoken as to the unfair allotment of provincial grants to Madras, and his words have already had good effect. Further representation to a Viceroy of the calibre of Lord Dufferin may lead to this Presidency having honours and grants bestowed upon her to atone for the neglect she has experienced during the past quarter of a century. "Fortunately there is always hope at the bottom of the basket."—Madras Times.

ARRIVAL OF LORD DUFFERIN.

(Times of India, Dec. 8.)

Lord Dufferin, when he lands this afternoon on that best known acre of ground in India, the Apollo Bunder, will receive such a welcome as has been accorded to few Viceroys. He is coming at a critical time, after a period of ferment and unrest, when all parties are anxious to forget the animosities and heartburnings of the last four years, and eager to welcome an interval of national repose. Never in our time have the English Press, both in England and in India, been so unanimous in their approval of a great public appointment. The organs of every party have without one single exception declared that Lord Dufferin is of all living statesmen the one man best fitted for his new post. The only regret is that he did not come here when Lord Lytton departed. The native papers are still somewhat divided on the subject. But the real leaders of native opinion, such as the Hindoo Patriot in Calcutta and the Rast Goftar in Bombay, have expressed themselves in terms of unmistakable content. Some of the minor journals are inclined, without the slightest reason, to regard Lord Dufferin's appointment as a sort of reflection upon what they still call Lord Ripon's policy, and the fear, therefore, of the reaction that may set in has rendered their words of welcome singularly lukewarm. One of these journals tells Lord Dufferin that unless he is convinced of the selfishness and aggressiveness of the Indian bureaucracy he can never make a worthy successor to Lord Ripon. Another warns him that the Indian Civil Service are India's most tyrannical masters, and that a Viceroy who sympathises with them will be out of sympathy with the people; and many of the minor papers echo the same strain. Nothing could well be more untrue or more untimely. The welfare of the governing classes is inextricably bound up with that of the governed, and the gradual transfer of power from one class to the other must be a work of time and caution. But of all the questions of public moment this is essentially a question that may be permitted to rest in the background for some years to come. A national disturbance, such as we have just experienced, should not be allowed to occur more than once in a generation. With Lord Dufferin's arrival, then, the Ilbert Bill disappears from the scene. The only legacy he really receives from Lord Ripon will be the new Local Self-Government regulations, and in the emasculated form in which they have passed into law they should not be hard to deal with. In all other directions Lord Dufferin will find a perfect tabula rasa. It is, we are sure, the earnest hope of all interested in India that he will not attempt too much. Some questions that have been "hung up," so to speak, for the last two or three years, must, of course, be treated at once, and we would instance the perilous state of things at Mandalay, the adoption of a definite Russian, and some change in the English, and perhaps, the Native armies. But with none of these is Lord Ripon's name identified. There are no traditions. Lord Dufferin will be able to adopt whatever policy he chooses; and difficult as these questions no doubt are, they should not be impossible of solution by a diplomatist who has already represented England in the European capitals where politics are most tortuous, by a Governor-General who has already held a charge only less important than that of India itself. In all other directions but these India requires a quiet and ostentatious policy. The glitter of Lord Lytton's was as fatal to the prosperity of the country as the futile promises of Lord Ripon. What we need is rest, rest alike from reform, from legislation, from excitement. And with rest we shall hope for a great increase of national prosperity, for the wide extension of our railway system, the encouragement of our grain products and all our national industries, the silent education of our masses, the reduction of taxation, and the abolition of the iniquitous licence tax. We have elsewhere sketched Lord Dufferin's interesting career; and what he is and what he has done augur most favourably for his future work in India. Trained in courts, and with the eloquent blood of Sheridan in his veins, he is skilled, of course, in the important arts of ceremonial, and he is an orator whom England can ill-afford to lose. Of late, far too little attention has been paid to the pomp and state that should, in India especially, surround a ruler of men. No one probably knows how much Lord Mayo's reputation owed to his stately presence, his fine manners, his love of sport, and his princely hospitality. We have spoken elsewhere also of the qualities that rendered Lady Dufferin so exceptionally popular in Canadian society, her rare grace, her untiring industry, her tact, and charm, and brightness. These are the very qualities by which Anglo-Indians and Indian society can best be won, and we are sure that every section of both communities will unite to-day in wishing that the next five years spent by the Earl and Countess of Dufferin may be prosperous, useful, and happy.

The Bombay Samachar says:—"Though the enthusiasm displayed by the native population was less yesterday than what we have been accustomed to, there was a general impression in favour of the new Viceroy. The people of India have now learnt to do honour to sterling worth after it has been tested. We observed also another change in the attitude of the multitude yesterday, which was that when on former occasions the lower classes turned out simply to witness the tamasha, they now come out in force with political views. Now Lord Ripon is going, the interest is all centred in Lord Dufferin. We think the new Viceroy has seen by this time what kind of a ruler the natives of India wish to have.

The Jam-i-Jamshed says:—"The good things said by the Viceroy-elect in praise of his illustrious predecessor will be hailed by the whole native community with satisfaction. No Viceroy who has come to India has more completely gained the goodwill of the inhabitants of this great country. Unfortunately Lord Dufferin comes immediately after Lord Ripon, which will render the work of the former more arduous, for the simple reason that the natives of India will expect more of the new Viceroy than what they got from the old."

The Akhare Soudagar says:—"Lord Dufferin seems to be a man of firm resolution. The loud cheers which greeted him on his way to Government House are indicative of the goodwill of the people. They evidently expect much of him."

MUSEUM OF ORIENTAL CREEDS.—M. Guinet, a rich burgher of Lyons, having spent some years of his life and £200,000 of his money in the erection and furnishing of a museum, recently opened in his native town, intended to illustrate the religions of the East, has further applied to have the establishment transferred to Paris, where it would be likely to interest and instruct a larger number of visitors. He has, in addition, offered to consign the whole into the hands of the Government under certain conditions, an offer which has been accepted. A number of priests belonging to the Buddhist and Brahminic religions are to be brought to Paris, and at fixed salaries, employed in translating historical and liturgical books connected with their respective faiths.

LORD DUFFERIN'S JOURNEY.—Bhusawal, Dec. 11.—Wherever the Viceregal train stopped to-day the stations have been prettily decorated, and crowds assembled outside, none but officials being permitted on the platforms. An address was presented by the Municipality at Callian, but time did not permit Lord Dufferin to make other than a simple acknowledgment. At Nasik the wife of the station-master was personally thanked by Lord Dufferin for the preparations which had been made. His Excellency having expressed a desire before leaving the Presidency to inspect a typical Bombay native village and the villagers' dwellings, the train was stopped at Pachora at half-past five to enable him to do so, this being the last opportunity, as the train enters the Berars and Central Provinces before morning. The whole Viceregal party walked to the gaum near Pachora station and back, accompanied by Mr. Richey, Chief Secretary, and Colonel Wise, Superintendent of Railway Police. Sixteen of the Municipal Commission awaited the train's arrival at Bhusawal.—Burhanpur, Dec. 11.—At Burhanpur, where the train stopped for dinner, the station was elaborately ornamented, mottoes being displayed welcoming the Viceroy-designate to the Central Provinces. A guard of honour was furnished by the police. Mr. Howell, Commissioner of the Nerbudda Division, and Major Brooks, Deputy Commissioner of Khandwa, met the Viceregal party, and, with Mr. Swan, Passenger Superintendent, dined with them.

COUNCIL DRAFTS.—The tenders for Rs. 25,00,000 in bills on India and telegraphic transfers were received on Tuesday last at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were:—In bills—on Calcutta, Rs. 12,45,000, average rate 1s. 7-031d.; on Bombay, Rs. 8,40,000, average rate 1s. 7-031d.; and on Madras, Rs. 4,15,000, average rate 1s. 7-031d.; in telegraphic transfers—on Calcutta, Rs. 1,00,000 average rate 1s. 7-093d., or a total of Rs. 26,00,000. Tenders for bills on all Presidencies at 1s. 7-1-32d. will receive about 83 per cent., and above in full, and for telegraphic transfers on Calcutta at 1s. 7-3-32d. in full. Thirty lakhs will be offered next week. Between April 1st, and last week the amount of remittances sold reached Rs. 10,08,99,418, realizing £8,217,358.

H.M.S. "JUMNA."—The Indian troopship Jumna, Captain W. C. Singleton, sailed from Portsmouth on Sunday afternoon for Bombay. She takes the 2nd Battalion of the South Yorkshire Regiment to Malta to relieve the 2nd Royal Irish Regiment. The latter will embark in the Jumna at Valetta for conveyance to Bombay, for Bengal. The Jumna also took on board at Portsmouth sundry drafts for regiments and corps stationed in India, and calls at Queenstown to complete her complement. A few officers will join the ship at Suez.

On Monday the India Council sold four and-a-half lakhs of telegraphic transfers on Bombay at 1s. 7½d. per rupee.

It having been determined to appoint three additional members of the High Court at Calcutta, the Queen has been graciously pleased to approve the appointment of Mr. William Macpherson, Bengal Civil Service; Mr. Ernest John Trevelyan, Barrister-at-Law; and Baboo Chunder Madhub Ghose, Pleader of the High Court, Calcutta, to be Puisne Judges of that Court.

THE EMPIRE CLUB.—At the committee meeting, held at the Club-house on the 22nd inst., Major-General Hodgson in the chair, the following candidates, amongst others, were elected members of the club:—The Earl of Carnarvon, Major Sir Bartle Frere, Mr. H. C. Beeton (Agent-General for Columbia), Mr. A. Staveley Hill, Q.C., M.P., Sir Algernon Borthwick, Mr. H. M. Woodhouse, Mr. William Nordheimer, Mr. R. G. Leckie (of Canada), Mr. B. Globensky (of Canada), Mr. G. C. Belleruche, Mr. R. R. Dobell, and Mr. F. B. Scott. This was the last committee meeting for 1884, being the fourth year of the club's existence. The club-house is now closed for the usual annual cleansing, and will be reopened on the 15th of January, when the first monthly house dinner for 1885 is to take place. Viscount Bury is announced to preside.

SILVER.—Since the resumption of business after the holidays, the silver market has been fairly brisk. On Monday, £37,000, which was brought by the Handel, together with some other small parcels, found Spanish buyers at 49 13-16d. per ounce.

REORGANISING THE INDIA OFFICE.

The Home News says:—"The departure of so well-known a statesman as Lord Dufferin to assume the Viceroyalty has naturally quickened the public interest in India. Much, however, must be done before the general ignorance which obtains at home about our great possession can be enlightened. There is, nevertheless, a growing feeling that Indian affairs should be considered a more integral part of English political responsibility. Acting on this, the Secretary of State and his Council have just remodelled the India Office, and attempted to place it on the same level of efficiency as the other departments of State. For years the India Office has been enfeebled by lingering traces of the Company's nepotism, and by an inadequate rate of salaries, which, after the irregular allowances under the Company had been abolished, failed to attract intelligence into its service. The scale of salary has now been raised towards that of the Treasury, the staff is to be gradually reduced, the greater efficiency is contemplated throughout. A distinguishing feature of the time is the tendency for the permanent officials of the country to gather power into their hands, and virtually carry on the administration of the country. It is perhaps less so with an office continually recruited by Anglo-Indians, but the tendency remains."

The Standard says:—"Considerable speculation is being indulged with reference to the approaching changes that may be expected in the composition of the India Council. By the Act of 1869 members appointed after that date retain their seats on the Council only for a period of ten years, unless specially reappointed for a further space of five years by right of a privilege vested in the Secretary of State. It so happens that although this Act has come into operation for six years, only one case has arisen under its provisions—viz., that of Mr. A. Cassels, in the spring of the present year. Those members of Council whose term of service would have expired in the interim, have either died or have received other appointments, as, for instance, Sir William Merewether, Sir Henry Norman, and Lord Wolseley. Two of the present members of Council reach their allotted term next year—viz., Sir Barrow

Ellis and the Hon. Edward Drummond; and it remains to be seen whether they will make way for new-comers, or whether in one or other of these two cases the Secretary of State will carry into effect the power vested in him by the Act of 1869."

NOTICES, DIVIDENDS, MEETINGS, &c.

LAND MORTGAGE BANK OF INDIA (LIMITED).—An extraordinary half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the above company was held on Monday at the City Terminus Hotel. Mr. J. R. Boyson presided, and, in moving the adoption of the report, regretted that the result of the past year had not been so satisfactory, on the whole, as they had anticipated at the outset. As regarded the realisation of current loans, he thought, looking at the position of the bank's loans and the comparatively narrow compass within which its outstanding loans had now been brought, that perhaps there was no very great reason for disappointment. The satisfactory feature in connection with this portion of their affairs was that they believed that every rupee of the loans now outstanding would be fully recovered, with the accruing interest upon it in the meantime. Their financial requirements were provided for, and they apprehended no difficulty during the current year in financing for up-keep and other purposes. The bank's liability upon its debentures was being steadily reduced. Since the 1st of January last, and including the debentures which would be paid off on the 1st proximo, that liability had been reduced to the extent of £32,300, and of course there would be a reduction in the amount of the bank's liability for interest during the current year. They had not been successful in affecting as many sales of the bank's property as they had hoped. The properties which had been sold had realised more than the amounts at which they were valued in the balance-sheet. Their current revenue from interest was rapidly dwindling down as the necessary consequence of the payments of their loans from time to time, and they would doubtless realise that this reduction increased to a very material extent the call upon the profits from their tea to meet the bank's general expenditure. Since the report was issued they had received a telegram from India giving the result of the season's yield, which might be taken at 1,648,000lbs., which was a decline upon the estimated crop of 109,600lbs., but an excess over the crop of 1883 of 109,000lb. The fall in the average proceeds of the tea they had sold hitherto was the most unsatisfactory feature of the present season, their average having been only 1s. 2d. against 1s. 3-339d. per lb. for about the same quantity of crops at the corresponding date last year. This fall represented a gross loss on the season's yield of between £9,000 and £10,000. What the remainder of the crops was likely to produce they were not prepared to say, but they were unable to point to any indication of an improvement in the market. The quality of their teas from all sources had been quite up to the produce from similar undertakings. Their estimated crop for season 1885 was 1,850,000lbs., or an excess, if it were realised, of 203,000lbs. over the crop of 1884. They had now 628 shareholders, against 664 at December, 1883. Mr. R. P. Harrison having seconded the motion, Mr. H. G. Bainbridge amplified the details given by the chairman relative to the working of the tea estates, referring especially to the fall in prices. Matters, he said, looked more hopeful for the coming season, as with an increased yield it was anticipated that the tea could be produced at a cost of five annas per pound, which would represent tea laid down in London at from 10d. to 10½d. per pound. A short discussion followed, and in reply the Chairman stated that it was true that their anticipations of the crop had generally not been realised, but it would be most injudicious not to accept the estimates of their managers. As to getting rid of their blocks of property, years ago it was impossible to put any market value on them. They had been valued at very moderate amounts in their books, but their managers had ample discretion as to taking lower prices. They had no intention of making a call. By-and-by it was more than probable that they would have to raise funds for the up-keep of the tea estates, but he believed they would be able easily to obtain the amount they required on short-dated debentures at a much less costly rate than those which were at present current. Their opinion was that no practical benefit could or would arise if they had other gentlemen at the Board who had been practical tea-planters. Other tea companies were on the same footing in this matter as they were themselves. They had managers whose interests was bound up with the successful working of the estates, which were visited periodically by an inspector who reported at length the results of his examination to the directors. If the Board could find an eligible and practical man he would be invited to join them. He then put the motion, and declared it carried.

Leave has been granted from the 26th ult. to the Hon. Rao Saheb Vishwanath N. Mandlik, C.S.I., Government Pleader, High Court, to enable him to proceed to Calcutta in order to take his seat as an additional member of the Viceregal Legislative Council. Mr. Pandurang Balibhadra has been appointed to act as Government Pleader during the Hon. Rao Saheb's absence.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &amp;c.

At the meeting of the Viceregal Council on the 5th inst., Mr. Ilbert introduced the Panch Meha's Bill and a Bill to amend the Sea Passengers Act, and Sir A. Colvin's Bill to amend the Tariff Act. The Viceroy as President took farewell of the rest of the members, thanking them for the valuable services and assistance they had rendered him during his viceroyalty.

At a meeting of the Bengal Council on the 6th inst., the Lieutenant-Governor laid before the members the programme of the work likely to be laid before them, which includes the Local Self-Government and several other important Bills.

The Lieutenant-Governor has appointed the undermentioned gentlemen to be members of the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations in the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William:—Mr. C. B. Garrett, and Mr. G. Irving; and the Hon. C. P. L. Macaulay, and the Hon. Colonel S. T. Trevor have been re-appointed to the Council.

The opening ceremony of the Bengal and North-Western Railway by the Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal and the North-West Provinces has been fixed for the 12th and 13th January.

The Hon. G. H. P. Evans has been reappointed a member of the Viceregal Legislative Council.

MR. CLEMENT E. ELLIS has been appointed Consular Agent for the United States of America at Chittagong.

WHEN Mr. Blandford, Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India, goes on leave, Mr. S. A. Hill, Reporter in the North-West Provinces, will officiate for him, but will retain his office at Allahabad.

ACCORDING to the Lahor paper the Governors of Kandahar, Herat, Girishk and Farrah have received strict orders to take every care of the Afghan Boundary Demarcation Commission, and to keep the Amir regularly informed regarding its movements and progress. In order to carry out this last order, sowars are despatched regularly every day with letters to Kabul.

It has been decided to hold the next Inter-regimental Polo Tournament at Mirat, beginning on Monday, the 9th of March next. The rules will be those in use in the meeting at Ambala this year.

JOREHAT STATE RAILWAY.—The opening of the Jorehat State Railway was to take place on the 10th instant by the Chief Commissioner of Assam. This is the first State Railway in Assam, and is about twenty-five miles long, and of two foot gauge. It was originally meant to carry tea from the gardens to the river, and supplies and stores from the river to the tea gardens. It will also act as a feeder to the future Assam Railway from Chittagong to the Bramaputra Valley. The cost is about five lakhs, or twenty thousand rupees per mile. It is expected that the traffic will be large, and the prospects of success are great. It will probably be followed by other similar short feeders at right angles to the river and the main railway. A large body of tea-planters are expected to attend. The Sibsagar Volunteers will supply the guard of honour. Great enthusiasm prevails.

THE Sessions Judge of Mozufferpore has acquitted the native Sub-Inspector of Police who was charged with wrongfully arresting and insulting Mr. Walker, Indigo Planter, in the Purneah District. There will be an appeal to the High Court.

LORD RIPON attended his last meeting of the Viceregal Legislative Council on the 5th inst., and made a short speech, thanking members, past and present, for the attention they had always given to their duties.

A PAINFUL sensation has been created in Calcutta by a disclosure of the positive tortures to which prisoners in the Bengal Jails are systematically subjected. The scandal has led to a private inquiry being instituted by the Lieutenant-Governor in the Presidency Jail, but the inquiry ought to be made in public. There is little room to doubt that the terrible mortality in the Bengal Jails has been directly produced by the inhuman treatment which the prisoners have received, without the knowledge of the public or of the Government.

It is not unlikely that the Nizam will come to Calcutta this cold season to receive his G.C.S.I. from the hands of Lord Dufferin.

SILLIGORIE races are fixed for the 6th, 7th and 9th January.

THE Judge of Sarun left Chupra on the 28th ultimo to open the sessions at Motihari.

THE carriage, horse, and animal tax allowed by the Bengal Municipal Act is to be introduced into the Municipality of Durbunga.

It is about time a Lieutenant-Governor's tour necessitated travelling along the road from Motipore, Tirhoot State Railway, to the river Gunduck.

THE only result of the Zhob expedition is a statement by one of the warriors that he never before experienced weather Zhobloom-ing cold.

IN Bhaugulpore planters are busy packing and despatching their indigo. Weather has become very cold, and coughs and colds are the order of the day. Mr. Giles, the D. S., is out on tour to the North.

THE sporting adjutant of the Behar Light Horse has been instrumental in introducing ten first first-class polo ponies from the North-West. Such specimens are rarely seen in Behar, and, of course, they were sold almost as soon as seen.

THE election of Municipal Commissioners was held at Chupra on the 25th ultimo. Nearly all the candidates were members of the local Bar, and all, save two or three, were elected. The proceedings passed off quietly, and seemed to be understood by the people.

THE meeting of the Lieutenant-Governors of the North-West and Bengal at Sonapore will take place on January 12th, in Mr. Rivers Thompson's camp. The foundation-stone of the Gunduck Bridge at Hajipore will be laid that day, and on the 13th the two Lieutenant-Governors will journey together by rail to the boundary between Bengal and the North-West, when after some ceremonial proceedings in connection with the railway they will separate the same evening.—Planters' Gazette.

MADRAS.

GOVERNMENT FROM THE HILLS.—The Mail regards the debate on Government from the hills as unsatisfactory, but not fruitless. It contends that General Roberts, whose approval is quoted by Lord Kimberley, has not been just to Madras in this matter and selfish. The debate in the Commons is as yet to follow.

THE RED HILLS TANKS DISASTER.—Mr. P. S. Ramasamy Moodelliar, a wealthy Madras debash, having given one thousand rupees and a large number of cloths to the sufferers by the Red Hills disaster, Mr. Price, Collector of Chingleput, has appealed to the wealthy natives for assistance for the sufferers.

At a meeting of the Municipal Commissioners, on the 4th ultimo, the President said a supply of water for a part of Black Town, the native quarters of the city, had been secured from four of the seven wells hitherto used solely by the military of Fort St. George. Arrangements for a supply for the rest of the city had yet to be made by utilising the water of the irrigation tanks.

THE FIRST PRINCE OF TRAVANCORE.—The first Prince of Travancore arrived at Madras from Bangalore on the 8th inst., on a fortnight's visit.

LORD RADSTOCK.—Lord Radstock arrived at Madras on the 10th inst.

THE THEOSOPHIST EXPOSURE.—The December number of the Christian College Magazine has some smart strictures on Madame Blavatsky's critique on its first articles giving her letters. The editor hopes the matter will go into court, as it is by a judicial verdict alone that Madame Blavatsky can ever clear her character.

THE Maharajah and suite arrived at Bangalore on the 11th inst. from Mysore.

THE new Masonic Lodge at Bangalore was opened on the 11th inst. A large number of masons and guests sat down to breakfast.

A GRAND fair is to be held at Bangalore during the Christmas week.

THE bestowal by the Governor of the widely coveted appointment of the Shrievalty of Madras upon Captain J. H. Taylor, R.N.R., the Master Attendant, is a suitable recognition of the public services and general capacity of a gentleman whose acquaintance off and on with that port and Presidency must have extended to well-nigh forty years. "Captain Taylor," says the Madras Mail, "is not merely the popular 'Ancient Mariner' of Madras society, who appears on State occasions in the blue and gold, not to speak of buttons and epaulettes, of a Lord High Admiral; but he is also a man of very wide information. He has now a choice of cocked-hats, of swords, of official coats, and unmentionables; but he will doubtless remain a public-spirited Municipal Commissioner and a vigilant Superintendent of Marine. He would perhaps have been appointed Sheriff several years ago, at the instance of his brother-in-law, Mr. W. Hudleston, had it not been that his predecessor in office, Mr. H. D. E. Dalrymple, having already held the Shrievalty for the two years 1854-55 and 1861-62, was again appointed thereto by his relative, Lord Napier, in 1866, and then held it for nine more years."

BOMBAY.

THE Earl and Countess of Dufferin, Lady Helen Blackwood and the Hon. Miss Thynne arrived in Bombay by the mail steamer Tasmania on the 8th inst., after a pleasant and uneventful voyage.

THE Viceroy-elect, on landing at the Apollo Bunder in the afternoon, was presented with an address from the Bombay Municipal Corporation, to which his lordship replied in a brief but eloquent speech.

On the 9th inst. Lord Dufferin received deputations at the Secretariat representing the inhabitants of Ahmedabad, the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, the Anjuman-i-Islam, the guarantors of the Bombay International Exhibition, and the Eurasian and Anglo-Indian Association. Subsequently in the day his lordship laid the foundation-stone of the Indo-British Institution, and visited the Prince's Dock. In the evening a reception was given at Government House in honour of the distinguished visitors.

EARLY on the 10th the Earl of Dufferin opened the Bai Sakarbai Hospital for Animals at Parel, and his lordship spent the afternoon in visiting various local institutions. In the evening there was a grand ball at Government House.

ON the 11th the Earl and Countess of Dufferin and party left Bombay by special train for Calcutta, at which city they expect to arrive at 4 p.m. on Saturday.

As the party drove through the streets of the city to Government House, Parel, they were warmly cheered by large numbers of people who had assembled there.

MR. RAHIMTOOLA MAHOMED SAYANI, a solicitor of the Bombay High Court, has been appointed Sheriff of Bombay for the ensuing year. Mr. Sayani is the first Mahomedan who has ever held the post of Sheriff in this city.

LIEUTANT H. K. STOTHERT, of the Royal Engineers, while in a fit of depression caused from severe illness, committed suicide by shooting himself at Kurrachee.

It is stated that Mr. Cordery, the Resident of Hyderabad, will shortly proceed on two years' furlough.

A SUIT for damages for libel brought in the Bombay High Court by Mr. P. F. Gallagher, lately a sub-conductor in the Commissariat Department, against Colonel Swinhoe, Deputy Commissary-General of the South Afghan Field Force, has been dismissed with costs.

SIR LEPEL GRIFFIN arrived at Mhow on the 7th inst. and resumed charge of the Agency on the 8th inst. from Colonel Bannerman, who reverts to Gwalior. Sir Lepel was met by the Maharaja Holkar at Barwai and by Bala Sahib at Bawara. The Maharaja of Rutlam and the Maharana of Barwani were at Indore station to welcome Sir Lepel.

In consequence of the conduct of the inhabitants of the village of Budaole, in the Malwan taluka of the Rutnagherry district, in suppressing evidence of a murder which occurred in their village, it has been decided to employ, for a period of one year, at a cost of Rs. 483-14, a punitive police force, consisting of one-fourth class head constable and three third-class constables.

ON the 5th inst. H.E. Sir James Fergusson presided at the distribution of prizes at St. Xavier's College. As usual a dramatic performance was given by the pupils of the institution. The piece chosen, Sheridan's Critic, was exceedingly well played by the youthful actors. At the conclusion of the performance his Excellency shortly addressed the assembly, and bade them farewell in a very kindly manner.

BURMA.

MR. BUCKLE succeeds Captain Butler as Deputy Commissioner at Henzada.

MR. T. C. Hill, Chief Superintendent of Telegraphs, arrived at Rangoon on the 4th inst.

THE poll, which it had been arranged to take, of the inhabitants of Prome, for the purpose of ascertaining the voice of the people on the question of local self-government, opened on the 28th ult. at 10 o'clock and closed at 4, and, on the votes being counted, it was found that 1,143 voted, 695 for elections and 448 in favour of Government nomination.

HENZADA was all agog on the 28th ult., for that was the day of the municipal elections. One candidate for municipal honours, who was specially put forward by the employes of the Municipality itself as their nominee, treated the town to a great feast. This individual held court in the Municipal school, opposite the Municipal office, where the polling was taking place. It appears that the building was specially lent to him for the occasion, and right royally did he treat his supporters to the best that our local wine merchants could produce. When it became known that this popular (?) candidate had won his seat at the Board in a canter the cheering was immense. Several other wards were hotly contested, too, and several old members who had sought re-election were defeated. One "defeated" candidate has already appealed to the Chief Commissioner against the election of the candidate supported by the servants of the Municipality.

A PERSON, going under the name of Campbell, visited the timber revenue station at Mytcho, and informed the Burmese subordinate in charge that he was the forest officer about to relieve Mr. Hauxwell, and, as he was on his way to Shwegyeen, he would take charge of the revenue that had been collected. How the sub evaded putting his foot in it is not easy to ascertain, but somehow he avoided making over the cash as it struck him the man did not appear exactly as he should expect a forest officer of that position would. But the steam sawmill owner was not so cute, for he lent him his watch and chain immediately Mr. Campbell intimated to him that he was the new forest officer, and had unfortunately dropped his watch into the river. The police have laid hands on this gentleman, and Mr. Pusey, the Inspector of Police, has identified him as the same individual who once personated him as Inspector of Police when at Rangoon, so the matter is pending the arrival of some witnesses from Rangoon.—Cors. Rangoon Gazette.

CEYLON.

SCOTCHMEN have commemorated Saint Andrew's Day by dining together in Colombo, and at Hattton, where the Scotchmen of the districts of Dikoya, Maskeliya, and Dimbula gathered in great force, Sir Arthur Gordon being present and proposing the usual loyal toast.

At a general meeting of the Royal Asiatic Society of Ceylon the Bishop of Colombo read a very interesting paper on the first fifty stories of the Jataka book. One of these was a Buddhist version of the adventures of Ulysses.

THE Galle Municipal elections for the different wards were held on December 1st. A spirited polling took place for the election of a member of the Fort ward, resulting finally in the return of Mr. De Vos.

The Legislative Council proceedings continue to occupy the greater part of public attention. The taxing proposals of the Government have now been so generally and strongly condemned that if we had the power of changing "Ministers" there could be no doubt of the fate of Sir Arthur Gordon's Cabinet. His Excellency, however, will no doubt for the time abide by his advisers; but it is clear there must be a change of plans. The Chamber of Commerce has come to the official rescue in the most sensible and business-like criticism yet offered on the proposed Stamps and Customs Duties, and has clearly shown how, if the revenue has to be increased, this may be done with the minimum of inconvenience and most general acceptance, namely, through an inappreciable increase in the import duty on grain (affecting mainly the planting enterprise and if anything "protecting" local rice cultivation) and by a slight increase to existing stamps. The new mode of stamping Law Proceedings, after a system apparently condemned in India, and such an objectionable revival of the dark ages, as Customs Duty on Paper and Stationery has been condemned by the Chamber of Commerce as much as by the general public. But the really sore point is found in the nature of the expenditure to which the product of increased taxation is to be devoted. The opening speech of Governor Gordon, in which he expressed a wish to place the General Revenue on a sound footing and to endeavour to "embark progress" with some useful works excited general sympathy, and the intelligent public were prepared to acquiesce in some sacrifices, even in these hard times, in connection with increased Postal, Customs and Stamps Duties. But it really was too much for a community that has been economising in every possible way—living from hand to mouth for some years, and especially since the O. B. C. collapse—to find that with the new tax, money which they could so ill-spare, the Government proposed "improving" to the tune of Rs. 114,000, the Anuradhapura-Trincomalee-road, for which there is neither traffic nor population; and spending as much as Rs. 439,000 on Irrigation works, or nearly double the vote given in the years of our great prosperity. It was at once seen that Sir Arthur Gordon, with all his independence, had fallen under the glamour of the North-Central provincial agency, and that other districts of the country with far more population, traffic and stronger needs and claims, were to be ignored or put out of sight and remembrance in favour of the much-vaunted region in the North and East.—Observer.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

MAJOR J. M. TULLOCH, General List, Infantry, has been transferred from general duty, Meen Meer, to Umballa.

THE services of Surgeon H. C. Henderson, Indian Medical Department, have been placed at the disposal of the Foreign Department.

MAJOR C. M. ESKINE, S.C., 2nd Squadron Commander, Poona Horse, has been allowed furlough to Europe for one year on private affairs.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL E. TEMPLE, second in command of the Meywar Bheel Corps, will on return from furlough be employed in the Civil Department.

WE regret to learn that Lieutenant H. K. Stothert, of the Royal Engineers, while in a fit of depression caused from severe illness, committed suicide by shooting himself at Kurrachee on the 5th inst.

EXTENSION of leave has been granted to the following officers on account of illness:—Colonel B. H. Mathew, R.E., 182 days; Major A. M. Hogg, S.C., two months; and Lieutenant G. C. Cox, Staff Corps.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL S. BECKETT, Bengal Staff Corps, Officiating Assistant Commissary-General for Transport, Bengal, is at present attached to the Central Accounts Office, Calcutta, for account instruction.

LIEUT. ELISON, Loyal North Lancashire Regiment, having been obliged to take leave to England for twelve months on medical certificate, has in consequence been removed from the list of Probationers for the Bengal Staff Corps.

LIEUT.-COL. AND BREVET-COL. R. M. ROGERS, V.C., 2nd Battalion Scottish Rifles, Cawnpore, will be placed on half-pay on the 14th inst., on completion of five years' service as a Lieut.-Col., and will proceed to England.

AN officer of the Warwickshire Regiment, Fort William, is under arrest for a gross breach of military discipline. He has been given the chance of retiring to avoid trial by court-martial, which he has accepted, but nevertheless remains in arrest.

MAJOR MELLISS, of the Bombay Staff Corps, Deputy Assistant Quartermaster-General, at present on special duty at Baroda, has been appointed Assistant Quartermaster-General, vice Lieut.-Col. Jopp, whose tenure of the appointment expires on the 18th ult.

COL. HASTINGS, C.B., Sessions Judge of Peshawur, has died suddenly at that station. Col. Hastings served throughout the latter part of the Afghan war, and differed from the majority of Political officers in warmly advocating the side and cause of Ayoub Khan.

SANCTION has been accorded by the Government of India to the formation of a Volunteer Corps at Coorg. This corps will be associated with and form part of the Bangalore Volunteer Rifle Corps.

It is reported that the station of Kamptee, at present included in the Madras military command, will in future receive its supply of Barrack Department stores from the Bombay Circle of the Ordnance Department.

SEVERAL cases of Loodiana disease have occurred in H Battery, Royal Horse Artillery, at Rawul Pindee. It is probable that the Battery will be moved into camp.

DURING December the commands of the 2nd Battalion, Scottish Rifles, and the 2nd Battalion, Liverpool Regiment, fall vacant; the former on the 25th, when Colonel Rogers, V.C., completes his five years' tenure of command, and the latter on the 24th, when Colonel Cochrane reaches the age of fifty-five years.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL THE HON. A. B. DE MONTMORENCY, R.H.A., proceeds from Rawalpindi to Umballa to command the artillery division, and Lieutenant-Colonel Straker, from Morar, relieves him.

THE ceremony of trooping the colours was performed in front of the Dalhousie Barracks, Fort William, Calcutta, on the 29th ult., in the presence of General Wilkinson and numerous other officers.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

ABBOTT'S MISSION TO KHIVA.*

A fresh edition of General Abbott's narrative of his famous mission and journey (when a captain) from Herat to Khiva, and thence into Russia, was much needed. Previous editions have become very scarce, and at the present time it is most valuable to have some authority as to the inner ways of thought or sentiment of the Muhammedan denizens of Central Asia. This is not easy to get in the present day. Civilisation in its first steps has brought with it separation between Christian and inner Muhammedan life, which may be congenial, but is apt to lead to untrustworthy conclusions. Schuyler and Burnaby, for instance, had vastly superior opportunities of viewing the country than Abbott had; but they were, fortunately for themselves, not forced into so close and unpleasant proximity and intimacy with the tribes. How Abbott escaped with his life is a marvel, and yet more marvellous is it that through such constant dangers he contrived—though alone—to keep up semblance of the dignity of his mission, and eventually to succeed. It is very curious that the route from Merv to Kulduk, or the Dead Bay, on the Caspian, to Kungrad and Khiva, which is described by Mr. Marvin, in the October number of the Army and Navy Magazine, as a route put forward by the Russians as newly discovered and of great importance, now that dearth of horses seems to prevent the free use of the Orenburg route, should nearly coincide with those taken by Abbott, and afterwards by Shakespeare.

ARMY REFORM.†

Legislative history is so rapidly made in these days that it is well occasionally to turn back and review the position. As "An * "Journey from Herat to Khiva, Moscow, and St. Petersburg," by Captain James Abbott, Bengal Artillery. Third Edition. W. H. Allen and Co., London, 1884.

† "Fifteen Years of Army Reform," by An Officer. W. Blackwood and Sons, Edinburgh and London, 1884.

Officer" states, "one thing is very noticeable in connection with those changes in systems or institutions which are glorified with the title of Reforms—namely, that after a time there is a general tendency to take for granted that all such changes, though effected in the face of temporary resistance, had been, on the whole, wise and beneficial as well as necessary; while those persons or parties who had resisted them are assumed to have been, in comparison with the reformers, dull-witted and stupid, or, in short, fools." The author, who is thoroughly acquainted with his subject, having been himself probably one of the subjects of the changes called reforms, shows, by quoted documents and speeches, the failure of the short-service system and of the localisation and territorial schemes as applied to our army. As Colonel W. Mare, a Liberal M.P., tersely put it, in his evidence—"Short service was founded on a total misconception of the ordinary duties of the British Army; miscalculation of the rate of increase of Reserve; miscalculation of steady absorption of recruits; mistaken estimate of popularity of short service, founded on experience of foreign nations having national conscription." The best commentary is that now not only are soldiers allowed, at their option, to exchange short service for long service with pension, but the system of bounties—which reformers most loudly boasted of having abolished—has been necessarily reintroduced, as much as £12 being now offered to men in India and £2 at home, as an inducement to extend their service to twelve years with the colours. As to the territorial scheme, the most amusing instance of the utter sham about it is that we have twice as many Highland regiments as the whole of Scotland can produce recruits for, and that regiments notoriously Lowland as the North British Fusiliers, the King's Own Borderers, and the Cameronians are arrayed in tartans; though in the parts where they were raised hatred and terror of Highlanders and tartans were generally the prevailing sentiments. No wonder we see in a late number of a service paper an officer asking why he and his brother officers should be weighted with a claymore instead of a handy sword, and hear of another officer protesting against having to wear what he calls a railway rug, fastened with a quoit, on his shoulder.

COMIC SKETCH-BOOK.‡

Colonel Seccombe's military sketches are well known and appreciated. "Comic Sketches from English History," which are very much in Leech's style, will be found most amusing and well-executed.

INTERNAL DEFENCE.—The question of the internal defence of India is, we are glad to say, receiving the most earnest attention of the authorities at the present moment. As regards these provinces we may state that plans are being considered in connection more particularly with Lucknow, Allahabad, and Benares. Some time ago a scheme was drawn up for a chain of forts at Lucknow, where there are now no heavy guns, the Machi Bhawan fort having been abandoned. It is found that if the forts were built they would be so blocked in and masked by the trees in cantonments that their practical value would be very small except as places of refuge. One proposal is to build them all the same, and to leave the trees to be cut down by hand or dynamite when an emergency arises, and the other is to build the forts and clear away such trees at once as would interfere with the fire from the ramparts. A report has been called for on this second proposal, with a view to ascertaining exactly how many trees would have to be removed. The timber could be used for abattis and entanglements to guard the sunken roads linking the forts together. At Allahabad some Rs. 30,000 are being spent on improvements in the fort at the junction of the Ganges and Jumna, and a careful survey has been made of the ground on the right bank of the Jumna above and below the railway bridge over that river. There is a small eminence near the village of Arail, whence the fort is commanded, and the old idea was to have a redoubt here, and thus prevent the point being seized by an enemy. It is now thought that the better plan would be to have a blockhouse at each end of the railway bridge and to build a redoubt some little distance away which would command the road from Naini to the bridge, and also the village of Arail and the land adjacent. The point of vantage at Arail would thus be brought under a cross-fire from the guns of the fort and the redoubt and would be quite untenable. At Benares the Rajghat plateau, which commands the city, has also been carefully inspected. The idea is to build barracks there and to locate two companies of Europeans in that defensive position. As regards expense, the barrack at Benares itself will have to be renewed at once, and it is argued that it would be better to spend the money on buildings at the Rajghat plateau than on the old lines. We cannot say what conclusions will be arrived at regarding the various works we have spoken of, but it is at least satisfactory to know that the long-neglected question of internal defence is being taken up in earnest by the military authorities.—Pioneer.

LORD DUFFERIN ON THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

THE many Anglo-Indians, who care for the sanctity of British faith pledged in the Permanent Settlement, and who object to confiscation and injustice however speciously veiled, will scan with keen anxiety the first Indian utterances of our new Viceroy on the Bengal Tenancy Bill, as briefly summarised in the Times telegram of Monday. Lord Dufferin's words were spoken in reply to an address of the British Indian Association, the embodiment of the agricultural community of Bengal, in which the Native nobility and gentry of the Province stated at some length their objections to the Tenancy Bill, as a measure cursed alike by landlord and tenant.

The Times' correspondent characterises his Excellency's reply as exceedingly guarded and "cautious." We think that every fair-minded man will agree with us that the new Viceroy is quite justified in assuming an attitude of the utmost caution when making any public utterances on such an important subject—until such time as he can speak with the authority of one who has mastered the subject by investigation on the spot. Under these circumstances, we do not wish to attach too much importance, either to what Lord Dufferin did say, or to what he did not say. We confess to a little disappointment at not finding, in the Times summary of his Excellency's speech, any repetition of those assurances, which were given before Lord Dufferin left England, that his "open mind" would approach the subject without any bias on one side or the other. Now that Messrs. Ilbert, Hunter, Mackenzie and Co. have already had an innings with his Excellency—and have doubtless piled on the agony about the wicked zemindar, and the oppressed ryot, and the other familiar figments of the Bengal Spoliation school of politicians—a repetition of those earlier assurances would have been received, by all those who object to confiscation, with greater pleasure than ever. However, we have so much confidence in the robust manliness of Lord Dufferin's character that we are very certain he will investigate for himself, by direct reference to and actual examination of the classes concerned, all the statements put before him by doctrinaire councillors, and "smart" officials anxious to make a name for themselves without regard to the public welfare.

His Lordship frankly stated that, in his opinion, "it would not be convenient to take this opportunity of entering into the subject of land legislation." He added, however—"All he could say was that the necessity of some such legislation had long been recognised." It is evident that, in this very important statement, everything depends on the precise meaning which is to be attached to the word such. If "some such legislation" were taken to mean "some legislation in the direction of the Bengal Tenancy Bill," then we should respectfully venture altogether to doubt the accuracy of the statement; and, further, we should regard such a conclusion as a fatal error to start with, and as being logically preliminary to a concession of all Mr. Ilbert's false premisses and faulty arguments.

We are very confident, however, that when we get the full report of Lord Dufferin's words, it will be found that the words "some such legislation" simply mean "some legislation on the relations between landlord and tenant." Every one will admit that "the necessity of some legislation on this subject has long been recognised"; for ever since Act X. of 1859, and still more since Sir George Campbell's Road Cess Act, landlords have suffered in pocket, and tenants have suffered in credit, by the difficulties attending the realisation of the rent (see Mr. Mackenzie's speech in the Bengal Council in 1877) with sufficient promptitude to enable the zemindars to meet the inexorable demands of the Government under the terrible Sunset Law. We would, however, venture to point out that the necessity for "some such legislation," to meet these difficulties, has now been met by the Bill recently introduced into the local Bengal Council—so that it cannot fairly be pleaded as any excuse for prolonging the mischievous controversy on the Bengal Tenancy Bill. We earnestly hope that the next telegrams on this subject will bring the happy news that the measure which has produced so much agitation and alarm has been withdrawn. We entirely sympathise with Lord Dufferin's delicacy in carefully avoiding anything that might look like a reflection on the unwisdom of his ill-starred predecessor. But both the Viceroy and the Secretary of State will, we are sure, feel that such delicacy may easily be carried too far. Salus reipublicæ summa lex; and even the amiable desire to throw a veil over poor Lord Ripon's mistakes must not be allowed to prolong a controversy that is most pernicious to the well-being of India.

OUR INDIAN FRONTIER POLICY.

THE Times of Christmas Day contained a long and graphic account of the doings of the Zhob Valley Expedition. The Englishman and the other leading Indian journals have already made us acquainted with the incidents of the campaign; and the Times narrative is chiefly valuable because of the comments of the writer (who is clearly an independent thinker—probably an officer attached to the Force) on the general policy indicated by the expedition. The letters were evidently not intended for publication, and consequently these comments are made with a freedom often wanting in the writings of a regular correspondent, whose identity is well-known.

The letter-writer states positively that the main object of the expedition was to find and survey a good road from India to Kandahar, and "other political reasons." Some instructive lessons as to the Frontier policy of the present Government—who, when in Opposition, held up Lord Beaconsfield and Lord Lytton to the execration of the country for defending the British name in Afghanistan from Russian insults—may be derived from the following extract:—

I am disgusted with our treatment of frontier tribes, and believe that, just because we want to find a good route to Candahar from the Punjab and secure our railway, and for other political reasons, we find an excuse to come and treat in the roughest way people many of whom are peaceful cultivators. It is quite true they would cut any of our throats if they got the chance; but that they are brought up to, and I do not think it justifies our action. That day we blew up—or the Sappers and Miners did—several mud forts, &c., and it was determined to remain here some days on purpose to eat up the valley with a view of putting pressure on the chiefs to come in. The same evening some ten of these native levies, who entered a village to loot, were set upon by the villagers, and three or four killed and five wounded; but that had nothing to do with soldiers. Except one of our shepherds, previously killed at Limi for his sword, this was the first blood shed. On Thursday a reconnoitring party of Lancers were fired on to the north side of the valley, and reported some 100 fighting men assembled, who were determined to fight. The next morning early half the troops in camp paraded and marched across the valley, some ten miles or so towards the place. The fighting men were still reported there, and were seen to be in what would have been an exceedingly strong position had they been decently armed. A flag of truce was sent to try and induce them to yield, but it came to grief in some way, so it was determined to force them out. Some Punjabees were started off to turn their left, and shortly after the guns were sent towards their right (our left) to shell them at long range. We accompanied the guns, and soon got an order to ascend the hills to our left and try to cut off some of them who were making off in that direction. Our lads were very keen to get at them and we got up the hill quickly, but to our chagrin found the Punjabees, who had had an hour's start of us, had crossed our front and were on a ridge ahead of us; also the Pathans were bolting in every direction like rats from a hole. It is true they were men who were armed and who intended to fight, and who would not accept quarter; but it seemed to me murder, and I was thoroughly ashamed of the whole affair. Happily, our share in it was slight, and I draw a veil over it. With our superior arms the poor wretches could do nothing. A party of them got up hand-to-hand with the Punjabees, and wounded six of the latter; also two of the Bombay Lancers were wounded. These were all our casualties, and it was officially estimated that some sixty or seventy Pathans were killed. Native report since says this is much beneath the mark, and that probably upwards of 100 were put hors de combat. It will be said, no doubt, there were several hundred fighting men opposed to us; but I doubt if there were much more than 200, and my feeling about the whole affair is one of disgust and shame.

It is the same everywhere. In Afghanistan, as in South Africa, in Egypt, in the Soudan, on the Red Sea, and elsewhere, the cowardice and incapacity of the Gladstone Cabinet have involved us in the guilt of endless massacre—either of allies whom we have left to be butchered for their friendliness to us, or of innocent tribes who have been entrapped into hostility by the hypocritical cant of a Peace-at-any-price Government. Here, for instance, on the Kandahar frontier, the mad folly of the Midlothian programme has had to be kept up in outward appearance, and by various pretences and shifts—hence the scuttle out of the fertile and friendly province of Kandahar, hence the abandonment of the whole of the “northern section” of the Quetta Railway to the plundering Pathans, with the dishonest “writing off” of its cost as a “military charge,” and the equally dishonest sale of its stores and rolling stock at a heavy depreciation to the Northern Punjab State Railway. And all the time, in reality, every one has known perfectly well that all this has been simply “fudge,” designed merely to conceal the absurdities of Midlothian; and so, while we have been lavishly sacrificing English interests and the money of the Indian taxpayers to save Mr. Gladstone from ridicule, we have had to “find excuses”—as the Zhob correspondent of the Times somewhat bluntly puts it—to carry out, in a sneaking and underhand fashion, and with the disgrace of having to shoot down poor “innocent and peaceful cultivators,” those purposes of Imperial policy which might have been attained with infinitely more effect by the honest and straightforward methods of Lord Beaconsfield and Lord Lytton.

It is needless now to recur to the humiliating circumstances of the Afghan Boundary Commission, whose English members are now helpless spectators of further Russian aggressions, whilst awaiting the leisurely approach of their Russian colleagues, and forced to pretend rather to like their treatment than otherwise. If the news telegraphed from Berlin and Paris to the Times is true—that the Russians have all their plans matured for the seizure of Herat, which is only delayed by a desire not to do anything just now that might endanger the popularity of the Gladstone Ministry—we fear it is only too likely that we shall hear a good deal more of this Boundary Commission business before we have done with it. Meanwhile, all that can be said of it is, that the work of the Commission seems admirably adapted for the purpose of keeping the British public amused and befooled, until our rivals can reap the full benefit of our scuttling policy—that is, until it may no longer be a matter of convenience at St. Petersburg to shield a discredited English Ministry from the consequences of its own unpatriotic acts.

THE NEW LAW FOR THE RECOVERY OF RENTS IN BENGAL.

THOSE who have carefully studied Mr. Knight's paper, from the Indian Statesman, which we reprinted last week, will doubtless have noticed the following important recommendation which he puts forth:—“The first thing to do is to fulfil the promise to the zemindar, so long and so dishonestly withheld, of giving him the legal power to recover the present moderate rentals which he is unable, without that assistance, to obtain. To me it seems shameful that we have put the zemindar into the position he now occupies and there left him.” It is hardly necessary to remind our readers that when the Bengal Tenancy Bill was first introduced into the Bengal Council in 1877 by Mr. Secretary Mackenzie, the avowed and principal object of the Bill was to give the zemindars due facilities in collecting their rents. Although Sir George Campbell, as Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, was notoriously hostile to the Permanent Settlement and the zemindars of Bengal, he had a sufficient perception and sense of justice to see that he was bound to give them some aid in collecting the new cesses which he had imposed on them. His successor, Sir Richard Temple, who had pledged himself to carry out his predecessor's policy, was equally convinced that to enable the zemindars to collect their new cesses they must have additional help to collect their rents. It is not necessary to repeat the thrice-told tale how the original Bill, as introduced by Mr. Mackenzie in the Bengal Council for the benefit of the landlords, reappeared in its new form in the Imperial Legislative Council, under the auspices of Lord Ripon and Mr. Ilbert, in a shape most hostile to the zemindar, and only adding to the difficulty of collecting his rents. However, whilst this new Tenancy Bill is still under the consideration of the Imperial Council, another change seems to have come over the spirit of the Government of Bengal. From the Calcutta correspondent of the Times we learn that a Bill is to be introduced into the Bengal Legislative Council, which will facilitate the collection of rents by the zemindars, at least up to a certain point. This Bill has been absurdly described as the corollary of the Tenancy Bill, but, as we have pointed out in a previous number of this journal, it comes back in spirit, if not in the actual letter, to the principles of the original Rent Bill which was introduced into the Bengal Legislative Council by Mr. Mackenzie in 1877.

Mr. Knight has very pertinently observed that the Permanent Settlement has never been fully respected by the Government; and in his eyes Act X. of 1859 was a manifest violation of its terms. A brief review of the system of collecting rents in Bengal will enable us to show this clearly. It must be remembered that in the Permanent Settlement there were two separate regulations, or enactments, of 1793, one concerning the Government revenue, the other concerning the zemindar's rent. In both these regulations a pledge was given, in almost identical words and phraseology, that the Civil Courts should not be used to collect the Government revenue or the landlord's rent. Lord Cornwallis and his colleagues were too sensible to expose either the Government or the landlord to the risk and delay of a formal civil suit, ending perhaps with a paper decree, but with a still remote chance of any money payment. Let us see what has happened. The Government in collecting its revenue still carefully avoids the Civil Courts. The collector's auctioneering hammer ruthlessly knocks down every lot, as a zemindaree is often now called, which has defaulted in payment of revenue. But what has become of the landlord and his rent? The reader must note that there is a great difference between undisputed but unpaid rents, and rents in which the amount due or the title of the landlord are questioned. Under the old laws, Reg. 7 of 1799 and Reg. 5 of 1812, the personal arrest of the defaulter, or the distraint of his property provided only too cogent a machinery for the collection of rent actually due; but so long as the rent was paid it was open to the parties to dispute questions of title, by a more formal sort of suit, before the collector or one of his deputies or assistants. By the Act X. of 1859 personal arrest was abolished, and the landlords were forbidden to use their own servants in summoning defaulters to their local cutcherries. The powers of the collectors and their deputies were taken away, so that they could no longer adjudicate rent suits; and the landlords were told that if they could not get their rents paid spontaneously, they might sue their defaulting ryots in the Civil Courts. Ex illo ruere. Let any English reader who has been engaged in litigation in this country remember what he has had to endure, either in the County Courts or in the higher courts of justice, with all the law's delays and the protracted delights of the Appellate Courts. In Bengal, where the rent to be recovered is seldom more than a few shillings from each defaulter, it may easily be imagined how the zemindar hates the idea of suing a ryot in the Civil Court, where it will take weeks, if not months, before he can get even an ex parte decree; or, if the ryot resists the claim, the money with which the rent should have been paid is spent in retainers to lawyers, and in fees, legitimate and illegitimate, to the process-servers and other Court officials. A civil suit is almost equally ruinous to the zemindar and to the ryot. The former has to pay his own law-costs, and take the chance of recovering them with his paper decree for rent. The latter has to pay the rent, with law-costs added, which are usually double or treble the amount of the rent. We have said nothing of the ill-blood and bad feeling which such a course of litigation seldom fails to engender. It would be difficult to devise a system more hateful and vexatious to all classes than that by which landlords and ryots are driven to a civil suit.

It is not possible at present to do more than foreshadow the outline of the new Bill which is to be introduced into the Bengal Council; but so far as our information goes it seems to be based on the analogy of the law, by which the land revenue of Government, and the rents of Putnee tenures, are at present collected. What is needed is some simple self-acting machinery, by which the ryot who does not pay his rent by a fixed date will be in the wrong, and liable to coercive measures. It is thirty years ago since a scheme of this kind was put forth by that very competent Indian lawyer, Baboo Ramapersad Roy, son of the great Rammohun Roy. In later years the Rajah Jotendromohun Tagore has brought forward recommendations for a legislative enactment of a similar kind. It is to be hoped that the Government of Bengal may now be able to devise a practicable scheme to prevent unnecessary litigation regarding rents, as a substantive law, and not merely as a corollary of the objectionable Tenancy Bill.

THE "VOICE OF INDIA."

TO THE PUBLIC OPINION OF THE PEOPLE OF INDIA.

THERE are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing MONTHLY (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native journals
throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally docile and conservative; and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth;
but it is a policy of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is specially designed to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE

COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Dr. J. C. BROWNE (late Army Medical Staff) DISCOVERED A REMEDY to denote which he coined the word CHLORODYNE. Dr. Browne is the SOLE INVENTOR, and, as the composition of Chlorodyne cannot possibly be discovered by Analysis (organic substances defying elimination), and since the formula has never been published, it is evident that any statement to the effect that a compound is identical with Dr. Browne's Chlorodyne must be false. This Caution is necessary, as many persons deceive purchasers by false representations.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was UNDOUBTEDLY the INVENTOR OF CHLORODYNE, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to. DIARRHŒA, DYSENTERY. GENERAL BOARD OF HEALTH, London, REPORT that it ACTS as a CHARM, one dose generally sufficient. Dr. GIBBON, Army Medical Staff, Calcutta, states: "2 DOSES COMPLETELY CURED ME OF DIARRHŒA."

From SYMES & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Signa, Jan. 5, 1880.

To J. T. DAVENPORT, London.
DEAR SIR,—We congratulate you upon the widespread reputation this justly-esteemed medicine has earned for itself all over the East. As a remedy of general utility, we much question whether a better is imported, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and, judging from their sale, we fancy their sojourn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances ad infinitum of the extraordinary efficacy of DR. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE in Diarrhœa and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Choleraic Diarrhœa, and even in the more terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power.

We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a deliberate breach of faith on the part of the chemist to prescriber and patient alike.—We are, Sir, faithfully yours, SYMES & CO., Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain, His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the TRUE PALLIATIVE in NEURALGIA, GOUT, CANCER, TOOTHACHE, RHEUMATISM.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a liquid medicine which assuages PAIN OF EVERY KIND, affords a calm, refreshing sleep WITHOUT HEAD-ACHE, and INVIGORATES the nervous system when exhausted.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE rapidly cuts short all attacks of EPILEPSY, SPASMS, COLIC, PALPITATION, HYSTERIA.

CONTAINING THE MINUTE OF SIR RICHARD GARTH,
KT., CHIEF JUSTICE OF BENGAL, ON THE BENGAL
TENANCY BILL, &c.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1884.

THE TREATMENT OF INDIAN HIGH COURT JUDGES BY THE GOVERN- MENT.

THE MINUTE OF SIR RICHARD GARTH, CHIEF JUSTICE OF BENGAL, ON THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL, 1884.

If I were to consult my own wishes, without regard to what I consider to be my duty to the public, I should decline to offer any further advice to the Government with reference to the Bengal Rent Bill.

But the measure appears to me to be one of such vital importance to the agricultural community, which forms the mass of the population of this Province, that I feel, in justice to them, that I ought to say what I think about it.

It is a great satisfaction to me, that my good friend Mr. Justice Field, who has made the land laws in this and other countries his peculiar study, and who is probably as well acquainted with the Bengal Rent Law as any living man, has addressed the Government so fully upon the subject.

I could wish that every Judge of the Court had done the same. The Civilian Judges, especially, who have had a large experience in the Mofussil, besides that which they have gained in the High Court, might, I believe, have given the Government the most valuable assistance; and my learned colleague, Mr. Justice Mitter, who is also a thorough master of the subject, would, I am sure, have done good service to his countrymen by affording to the Government the benefit of his knowledge and experience.

But we can hardly be surprised, in the present state of things, that any Judge of the High Court should hesitate to advise the Legislature upon this or any other subject, when his advice is likely to be opposed to the wishes of the Government.

There was a time when the opinions of High Court Judges, however adverse they might be to those of the Government, were invariably treated with respect. I am sorry to say this is not so now.

I feel this so painfully, and I consider that the interests of the public are likely to be so seriously affected by it, that I cannot help taking this opportunity of saying a few words upon the subject, more especially as it is in some sort connected with the Bill which I am about to discuss.

Since His Excellency the present Viceroy arrived in this country, there have been two principal measures, which have excited a more than usual amount of public interest and attention. One of these is the Rent Law, now under consideration, and the other what is generally known as the "Ilbert Bill."

Upon both these measures, the Judges of the High Court have been consulted by the Government.

They were first consulted upon the Rent Bill in March, 1881, when it was in the form usually known as "Mr. Reynolds' Bill." They were again consulted upon it in March, 1883, when it had been amended under the orders of the Secretary of State. And they have now been consulted upon it for the third time, in the shape that it has assumed under the hands of the Select Committee.

I suppose that there hardly ever was a measure which has undergone, from time to time, more numerous and important changes than this Bill. I had twice nearly completed what I wished to say upon it in 1882, when, in consequence of these changes, I was obliged to commence my labours afresh.

At length, however, I completed a Minute, and submitted it officially to the Government of India as well as the Government of Bengal in October of that year. I was of opinion, and did my best to explain, that the Bill was in great measure unwise and uncalled for; that its effect would be to deprive the zemindars of the rights and position which they had acquired under the Permanent Settlement; that it would be productive in many ways of injustice and litigation; and, above all, that it would do more harm than good to the class of persons whom it was especially designed to benefit, namely, the cultivating ryots.

Whether I was right or wrong in this view of the matter is a question which still remains to be solved. Suffice it for my present purpose to say that I gave the Government the best advice I could. I had studied the subject with a great deal of care and attention; and although I was quite aware that my views were opposed to those of Government, they were at least, I need hardly say, thoroughly honest and disinterested.

No sooner, however, was this Minute published, than a most bitter and scurrilous libel, in connection with it, was circulated by one of the secretaries to the Government of India, who had been an active member of the Rent Commission, and who had advocated some of the views which the Bill was intended to carry out.

This libel will, of course, be in His Excellency's recollection. It was commented upon very freely in the public papers, and, so far as I can judge from those comments (for I never read the libel itself), it consisted for the most part of a succession of personal attacks upon myself, imputing to me not only gross ignorance and incapacity, but even a want of good faith in the advice which I had given to the Government.

Now, if this were a matter which merely concerned myself I should not have thought it worthy of remark. I took no notice of it at the time; I was by no means desirous of inflicting upon the author a heavier penalty than he had brought upon himself; and I was still less desirous of placing Lord Ripon in a difficulty, which I believe I should have done if I had called his attention publicly to the subject.

But the matter is not one which merely concerns myself. Its real importance and significance, especially having regard to what has since occurred, seems to me to consist, not in the libel itself, but in the fact that the Government allowed it to be published, under these circumstances, without the slightest sign of disapproval.

I was asked to advise the Government upon a legislative measure. I advised them to the best of my ability. My advice was strongly opposed to the Government policy; and forthwith this libel was printed, at the Government Press, by one of the Government Secretaries, and, although marked "private," was circulated freely amongst some of the highest officials, without any rebuke or apparent disapprobation on the part of the Government.

Let us now see what happened on the occasion of the Ilbert Bill. The Judges were asked in the month of May of last year to give the Government their views upon the Bill. And they accordingly did their best to explain them in a letter, dated the 23rd May, 1883, which contained the unanimous opinion of the European members of the Court.

If this document had no other merit, it was at least a faithful exposition of what we believed to be the truth.

Our advice was asked as Judges of the High Court; and we gave it in that capacity, and in no other, and yet so little respect is shown to us or our opinion, that Lord Hartington, the late Secretary of State for India, well knowing that our advice had been asked by the Indian Government, denounced our Minute publicly in the House of Commons, "as not being invested with any judicial authority, but rather as the offspring of partisanship."

Now it is perfectly true that at the time when Lord Hartington used these words, he had ceased to fill the office of Secretary of State for India. But it is equally true that the Ilbert Bill had been brought forward under his auspices, at a time when he did fill that office, and that it was in defending his own policy and that of the Government of India, that he thought fit to insult the Judges in these terms.

Here, again, the Government of India, when their attention is called to the subject, receive our remonstrance in silence; and, for aught that we know to the contrary, are perfectly content that we should be thus insulted.

This is the treatment to which Judges of the High Court are now subjected, when the views which they think it right to express are opposed to the Government policy.

When our views are in accord with the Government policy, the treatment we receive is very different. I have myself, before now, been fortunate enough to approve of Government measures; and my advice has then been not only received with gratitude, but referred to in the Council Chamber with the utmost respect.

Now I cannot help thinking, that in the interests of the public, (entirely without regard to what may be the feelings of the Judges), this mode of dealing with the advice of the High Court upon matters of deep concern to the State is open to grave objections.

I believe there is no country in the world in which the Government, and especially the Legislative branch of it, is more dependent upon its officers, both executive and judicial, for information and advice, than it is in British India.

In measures which involve any material changes of the substantive law, I believe it would be difficult, if not impossible, for the Legislature to proceed safely, without first consulting the High Courts. As a matter of fact, those Courts always are consulted upon measures of that kind. And I do most respectfully submit to His Excellency, that it does not tend to encourage honest advice, or indeed any advice at all, from the Judges, nor to improve the confidential relations which ought to exist between the High Courts and the Government, if, when their views are opposed to the Government policy, they are to be treated with open disrespect.

There has always, since I have been in Calcutta, been some difference of opinion amongst the members of the Court as to how far it is the duty of the Judges to advise the Government upon Legislative measures. Whether it is our duty or not, I have always myself endeavoured to give them the best advice I could; and so long as His Excellency is pleased to ask my advice, I shall continue, so far as my time and other duties allow me, to give it.

But I cannot help thinking, that it would be better for the Government not to consult us at all, unless they really desire to have our honest advice; and I think, moreover, that it is hardly fair to consult us, if our advice is to be received with favour or disfavour, as it may be more or less in accord with the Government policy.

INTRODUCTORY.

I now proceed to discuss the subject of the present Rent Bill; and I must preface my remarks by saying, that in the main the opinions which I expressed in my former Minute of 1882 remain unchanged.

In some few respects I think the Bill has been improved; but on the whole, I regret to say, I consider that the alterations which have been made are not for the better.

There are two very remarkable features about the Bill, both of which have been observed upon, and as it seems to me, with truth, in the protest of the late lamented members of the Select Committee, the Hon'ble Kristo Das Pal.

One is, that notwithstanding the many differences of opinion which arose in the course of the controversy, upon what were obviously questions of fact, no witnesses were examined before the Select Committee, except a few zemindars, upon the subject of sub-letting.

It is true that the rules by which the Select Committee were governed did not admit of the examination of witnesses. But why should that be the rule? This is just one of those cases which shows how necessary it is, in order to obtain proper materials for the purpose of legislation in India, to appoint Select Committees with power to take evidence as is constantly done in the House of Commons.

When a measure, which involves disputed questions of fact, comes before the House of Commons, it is constantly referred to a Select Committee; and the very best evidence that can be procured is examined before that Committee upon both sides of the question. It is surely only just that a tribunal of that kind should be constituted here. A Committee composed of an equal number of gentlemen on either side of the question, with a chairman selected for his moderation and fairness, would, I believe, give more satisfaction and confidence to the public, than any number of Select Committees, such as that which was constituted in this instance.

The large majority of that Committee were entirely in favour of the main principles involved in the Bill; and it was hardly likely that the great body of agriculturists, who were so deeply interested in the matter, who had held crowded meetings all over the country, and sent up to the Government the most earnest memorials, should have been satisfied with a discussion, where the native gentlemen who represented their views were completely overborne by numbers.

I heartily wish, in common, I believe, with thousands of others, that Committees such as I have suggested were appointed in this country.

The other remarkable feature about the Bill, to which also the Hon'ble Kristo Das Pal alluded, is that although it professes to restore the ancient and customary law of Bengal there is hardly a single particular in which that principle is adhered to.

In paragraph 38 of the despatch from the Government of India to the Secretary of State, dated the 21st March, 1883, we find two main proposals, which had been made by the Government of Bengal to the Government of India, embodying the leading principles upon which, in the opinion of Sir Ashley Eden, the new Rent Law ought to be based.

Those proposals were—

1stly,—That the great body of cultivators should be restored to the position which they held under the ancient land law and custom of the country, and 2ndly,—That the beneficial interest of the settled ryots, who formed the mass of the cultivating classes of Bengal, should be determined by authoritatively establishing renewed or revised rates on a system analogous to that of the old pargana rates.

The spirit of these proposals was approved at that time by the Government of India, as well as by the Secretary of State; and although in paragraph 108 of the despatch their spirit was to some extent departed from, yet still there were two intelligible principles to work upon, which showed what Sir Ashley Eden's intentions were, and of which, if they had only been carried out fairly, the zemindars might have had no reason to complain.

I would now invite attention to the provisions of the present Bill; and I would ask, whether any reasonable man, looking at those provisions, can say that the principles, which I have mentioned, have been adhered to with even tolerable fairness.

It seems to me that at least three-fourths of the provisions of the Bill are entirely inconsistent with the rights, both of the cultivators and of the zemindars, at the time of the Permanent Settlement.

I would ask, how many of the provisions contained in chapters II., III., IV., V., VI., VII., VIII., IX., X., XII., XIII., XV., XVI., XVII., or XIX. were ever known or thought of in the year 1793?

Whatever Sir Ashley Eden's original intentions may have been, it seems to me that the principles which he laid down have been virtually ignored.

It will be observed that from the category of chapters which I have above enumerated, I have omitted chapter XI. I agree that it is most desirable, although no doubt very difficult, to devise some effectual means of reviving the old pargana rates. I sincerely hope that what is proposed in this chapter will be a success. I know so little of that branch of the subject that I will not presume to give my opinion upon it. But I fully believe, that if it only works fairly well, it will be an improvement upon the present state of things.

And now, as to the Bill itself, I regret that I have neither the time nor the knowledge to deal with it in detail, as Mr. Justice Field has done.

I propose to confine myself at present to certain salient points, which are within the range of my own knowledge and experience, and which appear to me to be especially deserving of the consideration of the Legislature.

GOVERNMENT NOT BOUND BY THE PROVISIONS OF THE BILL.

The first point, to which I desire to call attention, is that the Government do not appear to be bound in any way by the provisions of the Bill.

The rule is, that the Crown is never bound by an Act of the Legislature, unless it is expressly named; and I find no definition or expression in this Bill, which extends its operation to the Crown.

Now why should this be? The Government are some of the largest landlords in Bengal. They hold a vast number of estates in their own hands, which they have not been able to settle with zemindars; and they also hold a number of estates, which belong either to minors or lunatics, in their character of the Court of Wards.

The tenants and ryots upon those estates are entitled, I presume, to as much consideration as the tenants and ryots of ordinary land lords; and if it is right to protect the latter by the stringent rules and conditions which are contained in this Bill, it seems also right to protect the former in the same way.

Let us refer once again to the avowed principles upon which the Bill was originally based.

The object of it was to restore the tenantry to the position which they occupied at the time of the Permanent Settlement. If it is just to restore the tenantry to this position on estates held by ordinary landlords, is it not equally just to restore them to that position on estates which are in the hands of Government?

A case, or rather a batch of cases, which has lately come before the High Court on appeal, tends to illustrate, in a very remarkable way, the extraordinary powers which the Government possess over their tenants in this Province, and the severity with which those powers may be exercised.

The facts will speak for themselves.

There is a very old family of zemindars in the district of Midnapore, who have been the "maliks," or proprietors, of some large estates there, called the Jellamutta estates, for upwards of a century.

These estates consist of thirteen parganas; but only three of them have been permanently settled, because the terms offered by the Government for a permanent settlement of the other ten parganas were higher than the zemindars could prudently accept; and consequently those ten estates have been settled by the Government from time to time upon temporary settlements, either with the zemindars or with strangers; and sometimes they have not been settled at all, but have been taken by the Government into their own hands.

When the Government takes possession of an estate under such circumstances, or settles it for a time with strangers, it is customary to allow the zemindars a certain share or percentage of the profits, which is called Malikana.

And as each succeeding settlement comes to an end, or when, after the expiration of a settlement, the Government thinks the circumstances will warrant an increase in the rental, they are in the habit of making a fresh estimate of the rents, which each tenant or ryot upon the estate ought to pay, and then offering to settle it, first with the zemindars, and then, if they so please, with other persons, at a revenue proportionate to that estimate.

The last estimate of this kind made upon the estates in question was in the year 1877. The Government had undoubtedly since 1840 carried out some expensive embankments along the coast, in order to keep out the salt water. But these benefits were common to the district, and not confined to the estates in question.

The new estimate of the rental was, however, so largely out of proportion to the rents which had been previously paid, that it at once gave rise to the utmost consternation.

The ryots were almost all admittedly occupancy ryots, described as old khudkasht ryots in the settlement of 1845.

The rents had been raised by this estimate in very many cases to 50, 100, and 150 per cent. beyond what had been paid before; and in some instances as high as 200 and even 300 per cent.

The average increase expected was about 63 per cent.; and the result was, that in one comparatively small estate the rental of about 6,000 ryots was raised from Rs. 43,000 to Rs. 73,000.

This estimate having been made, the Government proposed to the zemindar to take a settlement on the basis of it. But the zemindar declined the proposal. He was as much startled as the tenants at the severity of the enhancement; and he knew that it would be utterly out of the question for him to attempt to realise from the tenants anything like the amount.

A settlement therefore having been found impossible on these terms, the Government resolved to take the estates into their own hands, rather than reduce the assessment to any sum which the zemindar could enforce by law.

It appears from the Administration Reports that the whole 75,000 ryots on the estates repudiated the settlement; and that the Government in one year issued 25,000 Collectors' certificates against them, and proceeded to execution and sale. These certificates are summary proceedings taken under the Public Demands Act (Act VII. of 1880, B.C.), by which a mere certificate recorded ex-parte by the Collectors that a sum of money is due from any person for a public demand, is capable of execution as a decree.

The only remedy for the person against whom such a certificate is made is by a regular suit in Court to recover the money from the Government by proving that it was not due. The suits of ryots on estates held or managed by the Government are considered to be public demands within the meaning of this Act.

It now becomes necessary to explain the state of the law, which regulated at that time the enhancement of tenants' rents on estates in the hands of Government.

The earliest statute upon that subject is Regulation VII. of 1822, under which the settlement officer was at liberty to enhance the rents of the tenants and ryots upon such estates (other than those holding at fixed rates) up to any amount he thought proper, subject only to the sanction of the Board of Revenue.

This arbitrary power had been in great measure controlled by the Rent Law of 1859, under which (in the case at least of occupancy ryots) it became necessary for the Government, as it was for other landlords, to specify and prove in each case the ground upon which the rents were sought to be enhanced; and the provisions of this Act of 1859 were afterwards continued by the Act of 1869.

This was the state of the law at the time when the rental estimate, which I have mentioned, was made upon the estates in question; and having regard to the temper of the ryots, the Government saw very plainly, that in the teeth of that law it would be impossible for them to realise from the tenants anything like the estimated rental.

They determined, therefore, to have recourse to some legislative measure, which would remove, or tend to remove, their difficulties. And accordingly Act III. of 1878 (B. C.), which was introduced in that year, in effect provided, that where, in the course of any settlement proceedings under Regulation VII. of 1822, a higher rent had been recorded by the Government, as demandable from any tenant or ryot, than had been previously paid by him, such rent should be deemed to have been correctly enhanced, until the contrary was proved; and there was a further provision, that any suit which might be brought by a tenant or ryot to contest the correctness of the enhanced rent should be brought within four months of a notice of enhancement.

After this Act was passed, the Board confirmed the settlement of 1877; but it was found that it would still be necessary to specify in the notices of enhancement not only the particular occupancy holding to be enhanced, but also the old rent and the reasons why Government contended that the enhanced rent was demandable in each case; and it was feared that some trouble would be caused to Government by having to go into these details, and that the enhancement could not be enforced even with the aid of Act III. of 1878.

Accordingly in 1879 Act VIII. of that year (B. C.) was passed, with retrospective effect upon all settlements confirmed by the Government after the passing of Act III. of 1878. This Act (which was substituted for Act III. of 1878) contained (in addition to throwing the onus on the ryot) provisions enabling the Government to publish a rent-roll or jumabandi of a whole estate with certain formalities, and provided that the amount of rent recorded against each ryot should be payable by him, unless by a suit instituted within four months from the publication of the rent-roll he should prove that the rent had not been assessed in accordance with the Act.

This Act was made retrospective, for the very purpose of legalising ex-post facto the enhancement which had been made on the estates in question, and throwing upon the tenants and ryots in all cases the burthen of proving that the estimated rent recorded against them was incorrect. In fact, instead of the onus of proof being thrown upon the Government, to show that their enhancement was correct, this Act threw upon the tenants the onus of proving that it was wrong; and it obliged the tenants to bring their suits to try the correctness of the estimate within the short period of four months from the time when this notice of it was given in the village.

No doubt this short limitation and the ignorance of the great majority of the ryots of the change which had thus suddenly been made in the law, prevented a good many of them from contesting the enhancement. But no less than 2,654 suits were nevertheless brought against the Government for that purpose.

Having brought these suits, it was necessary, of course, for the tenants to ascertain the grounds upon which their rents had been enhanced; because, the onus being upon them to prove that the enhancement was improper, it was impossible to launch their cases without knowing upon what grounds the enhancement had been made.

But this was very difficult, because the Government had not given any particular grounds in respect of particular holdings, but had in their notice claimed to assess all the ryots on all possible grounds, and thus imposed on them the burthen of proving the negative of each of those grounds.

The Government also attempted practically to cut down the four months allowed for suing to two, by objecting that no suit could be instituted against the Secretary of State without two months' notice under section 424 of the Civil Procedure Code; and they insisted also that such notice should specify the grounds of the action in detail.

Many of the ryots served their notices on the Collector, but the Collector declined in his written statement to admit or deny the receipt of those notices, and put the ryots to strict proof of them. He was, however, compelled to produce these notices in the course of the trial.

The consequence of these overwhelming difficulties thrown in the way of the tenants was, that in a large number of suits the ryots were literally helpless. They knew not upon what grounds their individual rents had been raised; and as the Government refused to give them any information, the Munsiff who tried their cases decided that they had not proved that the enhancement was improper, and dismissed all the cases, with extra costs for having interrogated the Collector.

The Judge on appeal set aside the enhanced rents upon ponds dug by the ryots themselves, and upon homestead lands, but declined to interfere with the rest of the enhancement.

A good many of these decisions have been appealed by the ryots to the High Court upon points of law; and the result of the appeals is not yet known; but that result is unimportant for my present purpose.

Now here is a very remarkable history, which tells its own tale too plainly to need any comment. This same Government, which takes these large estates out of the hands of the zemindar, in order to impose upon the ryots this extraordinary enhancement, and which, for the purpose of enforcing that enhancement, passes two retrospective Acts, which virtually render it impossible for the ryots to resist the imposition—this same Government, I say, is endeavouring by this Bill, in the case of permanently-settled zemindars and other landlords, to restrict the enhancement of rents to 25 per cent., and to allow that enhancement only on certain specified grounds, which grounds must be strictly proved by the landlords before any enhancement can be made.

Now why should this be? The tenants and ryots are surely entitled to the same rights and to the same consideration, whether their landlord for the time being is the Government or a permanently-settled zemindar, or a temporarily-settled zemindar. Government officers may make mistakes like other people; and they are probably not less likely to make mistakes because they are unfettered by the control of the law.

For myself, I fail to see the slightest reason why the Government, when they are in the position of landlords, either by taking revenue-paying estates into their own possession, or managing the property of minors and insane persons in the character of the Court of Wards, should not be placed under the same wholesome restrictions with regard to the exercise of their powers, as any other landlords.

It seems to me a most fortunate thing, in the interest of justice and of the Bengal tenantry, that the facts of this Jellamatta settlement should have been brought before the public while the Rent Law is under discussion.

I am one of those who consider that the powers of Government over their tenants should not be greater than those of other landlords. And I think, moreover, that the certificate system, by which the mere fact of a Government officer recording a debt against a person behind his back is made equivalent to a decree against that person, so as to subject him to execution, without his having had any opportunity of answering the claim is cruelly unjust.

The Government, as it seems to me, ought to be bound to prove their claims against tenants or any other debtors; and if the discussion of the Rent Bill should bring about any wholesome reform in that respect, it will be attended, in my opinion, with at least one good result.

SECTION 3 (7).

The next point which I wish to observe upon, and which I consider of great importance, is that the various kinds of tenancies should be properly defined.

I see that in the report of the Committee they say that they do not consider it expedient to attempt any such definitions. But considering that this new law would have the effect of readjusting the whole system of agrarian holdings, it seems to me that the great aim which the Legislature ought to have in view is to prevent, as far as possible, confusion and uncertainty in the future.

They are proposing to deprive landlords of a number of rights and privileges which they have hitherto possessed; they are conferring rights upon tenants which they have never yet enjoyed, and changing the status and relations which these different classes of agriculturists are to occupy in the future. It seems to me, therefore, that in justice to the agriculturists themselves, and to prevent confusion and uncertainty, the least they can do is to define as nearly as may be what a tenure-holder or a ryot is according to their own view of his position; and I think it would be extremely hard to impose that burden upon a number of judicial officers, the large majority of whom disapprove of the proposed changes, and probably, like myself, are unable to comprehend the principles upon which they are based.

SECTION 5.

Having said this much, and in the hope that in this respect the Bill, if it is to pass, may be reconsidered and amended by the Legislature, I will just notice in passing how misleading and inaccurate the description of a tenure-holder is in this section.

A tenure-holder is described as a person who has acquired from a proprietor or from another tenure-holder the right to collect rents.

Now it seems to me that it would be just as correct to describe a tradesman, who has bought a shop, as a person who has acquired a right to collect debts, as it is to describe a tenure-holder as one who has acquired a right to collect rents.

It may be generally true of tenure-holders that they have a right to collect rents; because most of them have tenants (introduced either by themselves or others) by whom rents are payable.

But it is by no means of the essence of a tenure-holder's interest that he should have a right to collect rents; and still less that he should have acquired that right from his immediate landlord.

His right to collect rents is merely one of the incidents of his position when his land is let to tenants; as it is one of the incidents of a tradesman's position that he has a right to collect debts when he has customers from whom they are due.

A more correct description of a tenure-holder would be, "one who holds a tenure, mediately or immediately, under a proprietor, and who is not himself a ryot." But this, of course, leaves the important question open—what is a ryot? and what is the true distinction between a ryot and a tenure-holder?

The description which I have suggested is correct as far as it goes; and it is at any rate not calculated to mislead; whereas the description proposed in this section would be wholly inappropriate to a large class of tenure-holders.

Suppose, for instance, that a settlement were made with a zemindar at the present day of a tract of waste in the Sundarbans. I have now before me a grant of this kind, which was made very lately. Such a proprietor would be at liberty to grant any leases he may think proper of any portions of that tract.

He may grant mokurrari leases, either permanent or for life; he may grant putni leases or jungleburi-tenures; and in each of these cases, the object for which he makes the grant, and the object of the lessee in taking it, would probably be the cultivation of the soil.

But each of these grantees would be at liberty (subject, of course, to any special conditions which his lease may contain) to cultivate or not, as may suit his convenience; and each would be at liberty to grant his land for sub-tenures, or to let it out to ryots, or to cultivate it himself with his own coolies. But whether he does one thing or the other, I take it he would be equally a tenure-holder; and that any ryots to whom he lets the soil for purposes of cultivation would be capable of acquiring occupancy rights.

And yet to describe any one of these grantees "as a person who has acquired from the proprietor a right to collect rents" would be a manifest misdescription.

The truth is that each successive tenure-holder is to all intents and purposes as much an owner of the soil, to the extent of the interest which he acquires in it, as a tenant of land in England.

He is, of course, bound, as every tenant is, by the conditions which are imposed upon him either by the general law or by custom having the force of law, or by the contract which he makes with his superior landlord on the one hand or his sub-tenants on the other; but subject to those conditions he may deal with the land as he pleases.

If when he acquires his tenure the land is occupied by ryots he can, of course, only deal with those ryots as the law, or the contracts under which they hold, allows him; but if the land is waste, or partly waste, when he acquires it he may either leave it so or utilise it in any way he thinks proper.

It seems to me, therefore, that the description of a tenure-holder in this section is utterly misleading. It may, no doubt, be a difficulty to define the line which is to separate the two great classes of "tenure-holders" and "ryots." But I think it is a duty which the Legislature should take upon themselves, even though they may perform it imperfectly, rather than to place several hundred judicial officers in a difficulty, which they may each attempt to solve in a different way.

SECTION 26.

I might with reason congratulate the zemindars that the Secretary of State had retained the 12 years' occupancy rule, if the effect of his decision had not been rendered almost nugatory by sub-section 2 of section 26.

It may be interesting to review shortly the history of this question, since the amendment of the Rent Law was first proposed in 1879.

By the present law a ryot can only earn his occupancy right by renting his land for 12 successive years.

The Committee of 1879 recommended an alteration of this rule; and by the Bill which was prepared by the Government of Bengal, it was proposed that a 3 years' occupation, instead of 12, should be sufficient to acquire the right.

I believe that the Government of India were in favour of a still shorter period. But be this as may be, the Secretary of State in Council, after much consideration, determined that the 12 years' rule should be adhered to.

The Government of India were dissatisfied with that decision, and begged the Secretary of State to reconsider it. But notwithstanding this protest the Secretary of State would not alter his decision.

Accordingly, by the amended Bill, which was framed in the year 1883, the 12 years' rule was re-enacted. But by the same

Bill the penalty imposed upon a landlord for ejecting a non-occupancy ryot was made so cruelly severe, that it virtually would have given all ryots the occupancy right, and so have neutralized the decision of the Secretary of State.

This was pointed out very forcibly by several gentlemen who were consulted upon the Bill; and the penalty clause was consequently withdrawn.

Now, again, by section 26 of the present Bill, the 12 years' rule is re-enacted. But we find in connection with it sub-section (2), which will be at least as effectual in neutralizing the 12 years' rule, as the penalty clause which was withdrawn.

That sub-section provides, that instead of a ryot acquiring his occupancy right by a 12 years' occupation of his land, the law is to presume that he has acquired it, and the presumption is to be made under such circumstances, that in the great majority of cases, it will be practically impossible for any landlord to rebut it.

Whatever, therefore, the intention of the Legislature may have been in framing this sub-section, it is certain that the rule which it lays down will defeat the wishes of the Secretary of State; and its effect will be to place landlords in an infinitely worse position, than if the proposed 3 years' rule had been accepted.

Now, here I would ask, why should the Select Committee have gone out of their way to lay down a rule in violation of all the principles of evidence, in favour of the ryot, and to the prejudice of the landlord?

One leading rule in such cases, which is substantially adopted in section 101 of the Indian Evidence Act, is this:—

"The burthen of proof lies on the party, who substantially asserts the affirmative of the issue."—(See Taylor on Evidence, Section 268.)

And this accords with the rule of the civil law, "Ei incumbit probatio, qui dicit, non qui negat."

And another rule of evidence which is equally well known is this:—

"Where any fact is especially within the knowledge of any person, the burthen of proving that fact is upon him."—(See Section 103 of the Evidence Act.)

The justice and good sense of these rules must be apparent, even to those who know nothing of law; and one looks, therefore, for some explanation, why the Select Committee in this instance should have so completely reversed it. I suppose we may consider that the explanation, such as it is, is given in the following passage of the Committee's Report.

Speaking of the presumption which is proposed by that sub-section, the Committee say:—

"It (that is, the presumption) appears to be warranted by the existing state of things in the Lower Provinces, and whilst it tends to simplify litigation, it is a presumption, which a landlord ought to have no difficulty in rebutting, in any case in which it does not hold good."

We are not informed what the state of things is in the Lower Provinces, which is supposed to justify such a departure from the established rules of evidence; but I presume the reason is, that because the large majority of ryots in the Lower Provinces have already rights of occupancy, it is fair to presume, as against landlords, that all ryots have the right of occupancy, until the contrary appears.

If so, I suppose upon the same principle it would be equally fair to presume, that in any part of the country, where putni leases are the prevailing form of tenure, all tenure-holders are putnidars until the contrary appears.

Or to bring the illustration nearer home, I believe that most of the large houses in Calcutta are let upon a four years' lease. If so, it would be fair to presume upon the same principle, as against the owners of houses, that every tenant in Calcutta who occupies a large house has a four years' lease.

There are several parts of England, where tenant-farmers as a rule have leases for seven or fourteen years. I wonder what landlords there would say to a presumption of law, that every tenant in these parts of the country had a lease for seven or fourteen years?

The truth is, that any presumption against a proprietor, that a tenant of his has acquired as against him a permanent right or tenure, is an obvious injustice.

And it becomes a still greater injustice, when according to law the only way in which a tenant can earn or acquire such a right is by an act of his own. Why should it be presumed as against a landlord that his tenant has done an act, which is to confer a benefit upon himself to the prejudice of his landlord?

And, again, when we look at the facility which the tenant has of proving this right, as compared with the difficulty which a landlord has in disproving it, the injustice becomes still more glaring.

To the ryot himself it should be a very easy matter to prove, if the fact is so, that he or his father, or the person under whom he claims, has occupied land for so many years.

It must be a matter within his own knowledge, or that of his family and his neighbours, and no one (as a rule) can be so capable as himself of proving it.

To the landlord, on the contrary, it might, and would in the great majority of cases, be a task of the greatest difficulty to prove the negative of the proposition. I really can hardly believe that the gentlemen, who constituted the Select Committee, could have considered the difficulty in which a landlord would be placed, when they proposed this sub-section.

Let us take a case by way of illustration, and see what a landlord under such circumstance would have to prove.

We must bear in mind, that by sub-section (3) of the same section a person is to be deemed, for the purposes of that section, to have held land continuously in a village or estate, notwithstanding that the particular land held by him has been different at different times in such village or estate.

And we must also bear in mind, that by section 27, sub-section (b), "where two or more estates have been created by one or more partitions taking place, whether before or after the commencement of the Act, but since the 1st day of January, 1853, the area comprised in the parent estate, of which they would have formed part, if no such partition had taken place, shall be deemed to be a single estate."

Now we will suppose an estate to have been partitioned between ten different shareholders in the year 1870; and that a ryot is found occupying a piece of land in one of the partitioned portions in the year 1884.

A question arises between him and his landlord, whether he has an occupancy right in the land which he holds; and an issue having been raised upon that point, the presumption according to section 26 is in favour of the ryot.

The ryot therefore at the trial says nothing, and does nothing; but leaves it to the landlord to prove the negative of the proposition.

Now what has the landlord to do in order to rebut the presumption?

He must first call his own patwaris or gomasthas to prove that the ryot or those under whom he claims have not occupied the particular piece of land in question for 12 years. But that proof would not be enough; because although the ryot or those under whom he claims may not have occupied the piece of land in question for 12 years, they may have occupied some other land or lands on the same portion of the estate; and if so, that would answer the ryot's purpose quite as well as if he or his predecessors had occupied the land in question.

So the landlord must proceed to call every patwari or gomastha upon his portion of the estate (which may consist perhaps of 3,000 or 4,000 acres), to prove negatively, that the ryot, or those under whom he claims, have not occupied any land in any portion of the estate for the last 12 years.

But even that proof would not nearly suffice in the case which I have supposed; because as the parent estate was partitioned in 1870, the landlord must needs go on to show that the ryot has not occupied, during the last 12 years, any land in any of the other nine partitioned portions of the parent estate.

He would therefore have to call all the persons who have acted as patwaris or gomasthas in all the other nine portions of the parent estate during the last 12 years.

Some of these would most probably be hostile to his interests; and unless all these people prove to the satisfaction of the Court the negative proposition, that the ryot has not occupied any land on any portion of the parent estate for the full period of 12 years, the presumption in favour of the tenant's right of occupancy will prevail.

It seems to me, that to place landlords deliberately in such a difficulty as this would be a cruel injustice. The time occupied, and the expense involved, in a trial of this kind, would be out of all proportion to its importance; and this burthen is to be thrown upon the landlord, directly in opposition to the ordinary rules of evidence, merely for the purpose of relieving the ryot from proving a case, which, if it is an honest one, he ought to be able to establish without the least difficulty.

The ryot, as a rule, must know perfectly well where he and his forefathers have lived; and if they have changed their residence, he or his family or his neighbours ought to know best how to prove it.

I repeat, that if sub-sections 2 and 3 of section 26 are to become the law of the land, the decision of the Secretary of State as regards the 12 years' rule will become a dead letter.

SECTIONS 37 AND 38.

I have not the least doubt that these sections, which are designed for the purpose of preventing sub-letting, have been proposed with the very best intentions. But I cannot but think that they are unwise; and I am satisfied that they will lead to a torrent of litigation.

I have already expressed my opinion that one great aim of this Bill, if it is to become law at all, should be to distinguish the various kinds of agricultural holdings, so as to prevent confusion in the future; whereas these sections, as it seems to me, are fraught with confusion and uncertainty.

It may be doubtful, as the Bill now stands, whether the occupancy ryot himself will gain or lose by becoming a tenure-holder.

He would free himself, by becoming a tenure-holder, from the law of pre-emption and distraint; but, on the other hand, he would not have the power over his tenants, as he would if he were an occupancy ryot.

Whatever his own interest may be, however, it will clearly be the interest of his tenants to make him a tenure-holder if they can; because they may then gain occupancy rights under him, and secure themselves other privileges, which as sub-ryots they do not possess.

There will therefore be perpetual disputes upon this point. The occupancy ryot, if he chooses to retain that status, and yet does not wish to cultivate the land himself, will endeavour to prevent the arrangements which he makes with his cultivators, coming within the category of sub-lettings.

If he makes his bargains cleverly with these people, it will be difficult for any Court to say, whether the cultivators are servants or sub-tenants.

He may allow them to cultivate his land, and give them a portion of the produce as wages, or he may pay them a sum by way of wages, and take a portion of the crop as his share, leaving them the rest.

Then the provisos in these sections will give rise to interminable differences.

Are women, on account of their sex, to be allowed to under-let the whole of their jotes, without becoming tenure-holders? If so, a man who acquires such a jote will acquire it in his wife's name.

Is a woman to be considered disabled merely because she is a woman? and at what age is a man to be considered disabled? Some men may be disabled at 50, whilst others can work perfectly well at 70. It will be very difficult for any Court to decide whether a man is really disabled.

And so with regard to illness, what amount of bodily ailment or infirmity is to be a sufficient excuse for a man's under-letting? Doctors' certificates, especially those of native doctors, are in my experience very easily procurable.

Again, suppose that a man absent from home on military or domestic service lets the whole of his jote to sub-tenants; and when he returns, takes immediate steps to put an end to their sub-tenancies—How long is he to be allowed for this purpose? Is he liable to be registered as a tenure-holder as soon as he returns home, or will he have a reasonable time to determine his tenants' interests? and if the latter, what will be a reasonable time? The questions which will arise under these provisos will be endless; and the result, I am satisfied, will be constant litigation.

I quite agree with Mr. Field, and many others, that it would be an excellent thing to prevent sub-letting; but I don't quite see how it is to be prevented.

TRANSFERABILITY OF OCCUPANCY TENURES.

As regards the transferability of occupancy tenures, I have already said a good deal in my former Minute; and I am still of the same opinion as I was then.

It is admitted that occupancy tenures were not transferable at the time of the Permanent Settlement, and the only arguments which are advanced now in favour of the right of transfer are—

- 1st—That the custom of transferring tenures has become much more general of late years; and
- 2nd—That if the right of transfer were allowed, it would render occupancy rights more valuable.

With regard to the first of these arguments, it may be true that in some districts the customary right of transfer has become more general; but that only means, that in those districts the landlords have either openly permitted transfers, or, at any rate, have allowed the practice to continue unchecked during a long course of years.

But no one goes so far as to deny that the landlords in these districts had a right to prevent the practice, if they had chosen to do so; and if so, it is difficult to see why other landlords, who have adhered to and protected their rights, should now be arbitrarily deprived of them.

This is only another illustration of the way in which the law has been strained in favour of the ryot, and to the prejudice of the landlord, entirely regardless of what was the state of things at the time of the Permanent Settlement.

As regards the second argument, I quite admit that to make the occupancy-right saleable would increase its value in the market. But it does not at all follow that this will be beneficial to the ryot himself. On the contrary, I consider that there is no surer mode of exterminating occupancy-ryots as a class than by permitting them to transfer their tenures; and I believe it would be found, on inquiry, that in those districts where occupancy-rights have become transferable by custom, a large portion of them have already found their way into the hands of mahajans, planters, and others, whilst the original owners of those tenures have become non-occupancy ryots.

If the Government really mean to benefit the occupancy-ryot, let them take every possible means of preventing him from ruining himself by parting with his ancestral jotes, and becoming the prey of those whose interest it is to deprive him of his status and property.

The men who are most interested in making occupancy-rights transferable are land-jobbers, mahajans and above all so far as I can understand, planters. So long as a planter can make himself complete master of the soil without actually cultivating it himself, he cares not whether the position which he occupies is that of a zemindar, or a tenure-holder, or an occupancy-ryot. And if the law makes occupancy-rights saleable in the market, and confers upon the owners of those rights larger powers over their sub-tenants than it gives to zemindars and tenure-holders, the occupancy-right is the position which it will best answer the planter's purpose to secure. And secure it he will; and who can blame him?

Sooner or later occupancy-ryots will want money. Their families will increase in number; discord and partition will sever the ancestral holdings; marriages and shrads become more and more expensive; Brahmins will have to be fed; and good seasons and prosperity will not last for ever. If the occupancy right can be sold and mortgaged, most assuredly it will be sold and mortgaged; and that in a very few years. The man of money will buy up all the occupancy-rights, which are to be made the most valuable in the soil, and the occupancy-ryots of the present day will become in a few short years either non-occupancy-ryots or coolies.

Only see what has happened within the last 150 years in our own country. How many of the old yeoman families, who were the copyholders and customary tenants of former days (answering as nearly as may be to the khudkhasht ryots here) are in existence now? How many of the old country gentleman's families retain their ancestral property? The few of each class who are now to be found owe the slender remnant which still belongs to them to the law of entail. The rest has gone, and to whom? To those, for the most part, who answer to the land-jobbers, the mahajans, and the tradespeople of India, that is to say, land agents, bankers, merchants, tradespeople, and the other money-making classes. The land finds its way sooner or later into the hands of the man who makes money; and it is so, and will be so, in British India.

Amongst other interesting papers which I have read upon the subject of the Rent Bill, I have been especially struck by a paper written by Mr. Herbert Reilly, the manager of the Chanchal Estates. He has had a long experience of these estates, and has studied and watched attentively the condition of the tenantry. I would especially call attention to the remarks made by this gentleman upon the mischief of allowing occupancy-ryots to sub-let or to transfer their occupancy jotes. (See especially paragraphs 6 and 10 of his Minute.) He describes the state of indebtedness to the mahajans in which these poor people live, and what he says of Chanchal is true, I believe, in all parts of Bengal. A very large proportion of the ryots, even the better classes, are in this unhappy condition; and there can be no reasonable doubt that a little adversity or extra pressure would compel them to sell their little properties. I say therefore again—and I say it far more in the interest of the ryots than in that of the zemindars—"If you want to ruin occupancy-ryots, give them the power of transferring their interests." If you want, on the other hand, to do them a real benefit, prevent those interests from being transferred, even on estates where they are transferable now.

There never was, as it seems to me, a more fallacious argument, than that the ryot must needs be benefited, by making his interest transferable, and, consequently, more valuable.

No doubt you may thus make the estate itself more valuable in the market; but that is only when the ryot parts with it. To the ryot himself, its value is never so great as when he retains it in his own hands, and gets a good crop out of it.

By making it more valuable in the market you tempt the man to turn it into money, and transfer its value to other people.

By preventing its transfer, you oblige him to keep its value for himself and his family.

In my opinion, therefore, by making the occupancy-right transferable you not only do the zemindar a wrong, but you do the occupancy-ryot a much greater wrong. You are taking away the best, and indeed the only safeguard which is calculated to preserve him from ruin.

CHAPTER XIII.—DISTRRAINT AND EJECTMENT.

It is needless to remind His Excellency, that one of the principal objects of the new Rent Law was to provide more effectual means of enabling landlords to realize their rents.

That was the avowed purpose of the Bill which was introduced into the Bengal Council in 1877; and it has been admitted over and over again, that the landlords are fairly entitled to all the assistance in this respect which Government can reasonably afford them.

Now, what has this Bill done for the landlords? Absolutely nothing. On the contrary, it has taken away from them two of their most effectual remedies, namely (a) the right of ejectment, given by the Act of 1859, if the rent is not paid within so many days from the date of the decree, and (b) the right of distrain.

Now, why should landlords be deprived of these remedies? The ryots themselves have never complained of one or the other. There is surely nothing unjust in ejecting a man from his holding, who, after subjecting his landlord unjustly to the expense and delay of a lawsuit, is unable or unwilling to pay the sum decreed; and as for distress, the complaints, such as they are, which have been made about it have been greatly exaggerated.

I believe that the most oppressive exercise of the right of distress, which we have ever heard of, occurred upon the estates of the Durbhungah Raj during the minority of the present Maharajah, when the estates were under Government management.

And there is a special reason why a large portion of the rent of these estates can only be realised in that way. The Durbhungah property for a long distance lies on the boundary of Nepal. The tenants cultivate one plot in one year, and another the next year; and unless the landlord watches his opportunity, and puts in a distraint upon the crops, the ryots carry them off across the Nepalese boundary, and the rent is never realised at all. The only way of getting the rent from these people is to make a distress upon the crops; and if the landlord is to be put to the delay and expense of an application to the Court, before he can use his remedy, he may as well not apply at all.

The best proof that the remedy by distress is reasonable, and that it is not, generally speaking, exercised illegally, is shown by this incontestible and significant fact, that suits for illegal distresses are very rare. If the right were improperly exercised, the tenants would be only too ready to bring suits against the landlord; whereas the fact is, that of late years, there are hardly any such suits.

I find from the High Court Reports, that in 1881 the number of suits for arrears of rent was 144,127, whilst suits of all kinds relating to distraint were only 330; and in 1882 suits for arrears of rent numbered 155,668, whilst suits for distraint were only 282!!!

This really seems a complete answer to the charge that the right of distress has been improperly exercised; and as for the right of ejectment, if it is considered that the time now given to the defendant to pay the rent is too short, make it longer; but do not take away one of the few remedies, which have proved effectual to the landlord.

RENT SUITS.

As the High Court has already addressed the Government upon the subject of Rent-suits, I will say nothing more about it here. I only trust that what the Court has recommended with regard to additional Moonsiffs, and relieving landlords from the payment of stamp fees, may be favourably considered by the Government.

KHAMAR AND NIJ-JOTE LANDS.

I have now only a few words to say with reference to Khamar and Nij-jote lands. I agree in the main with what is said in the protest of the late Rai Kristo Das Pal upon that subject. I cannot see why any attempt should be made to contract the right of landlords to lands of that description, or to leave the determination of those rights to the executive authorities, instead of to the Courts of law. Here again is an instance, as it seems to me, in which an attempt is made to strain the law unduly to the prejudice of the landlord, and in favour of the tenants.

PROPOSED REGISTRATION LAW.

Having thus considered it my duty to criticise unfavourably some of the most important points connected with this Bill, I am glad to be able to express my sincere satisfaction at the prospect which is held out by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, of a registration law being passed in aid of or in connection with this measure.

I have already, over and over again, expressed a strong opinion in favour of the extension of the registration law. I have called the attention of the Government to it on several occasions; and notably, in my Minutes on the Transfer of Property Act, and in my former Minute upon the Rent Law.

I believe that a good Registration Act would be the means of preventing in great measure the attempts at fraud and forgery which disgrace our Civil Courts; and that if the advice which I ventured to give the Government in my former Minute were carried out, it would be the means of checking, if not entirely preventing, the objectionable practices to which I referred in pages 11 and 12, and which operate as a sad injustice upon tenants generally, and especially upon the poorer class of ryots.

Let the proprietors and tenure-holders of every estate be duly registered, either in the zemindar's sherishtah, or in any Government office; let no one but the registered landlords be entitled to recover rent from the tenants or ryots; let the tenants or ryots, on the other hand, be bound to pay their rents to the registered landlords, and to no one else; and let the receipt of those landlords be a good discharge for the rent.

A law of this kind, well devised and enforced, would, I am satisfied, be the greatest possible blessing to the agricultural community; it would relieve landlords from most of the difficulties under which they now labour in collecting their rents; and it would relieve tenants, and especially ryots, from the hardship which they continually undergo of having to pay their rents twice over.

A registration law such as this would, of course, for the first three or four years, be productive of some litigation, because it would compel claimants to enforce their claims at once in an honest way, instead of waiting for years, in the hope of some fortunate chance turning up in their favour.

The Registration Act of 1876 has been productive of litigation for this very reason; but claims under that Act are now becoming settled; and titles, as time runs on, will be more and more secured.

I would invite the attention of the Governor-General in Council to what I said upon the subject in page 12 of my former Minute.

CONCLUSION.

In dealing with the Bill in its present shape, I have confined myself, as I proposed to do, to the discussion of some of its leading features. I have done so, partly from lack of time, and partly, because I cannot help hoping, that both the Government of India and the Secretary of State, after giving due weight to the numerous and very important memorials which have been presented against the Bill from all parts of the province, and to the opinions of the large body of Government officers, who, like myself, are opposed to the measure, may think fit, either to withdraw, or very materially to modify, the present Bill.

Whatever may be the form which it may assume at a later stage, if the Secretary of State should approve of the Bill, I shall consider it my duty to address the Government again on such of the details as I consider objectionable.

I thought it right in the year 1882, and I think it right now, to warn the Government as earnestly as I can against a policy, which in my opinion, will ruin, or seriously injure, the large majority of the zemindars, and will be scarcely less injurious to the cultivating ryots.

It seems to me inconsistent with the good faith of the British nation, which the native community have hitherto had reason to respect, to deprive the zemindars of the rights and position which they have acquired under the Permanent Settlement.

I believe it to be not only unjust but impolitic to sacrifice the fortunes of the zemindars in order to enrich a large body of mahajuns and middlemen, who will neither be responsible to the Government for the revenue, nor be likely to prove as good landlords to the ryots, or as faithful servants to the Crown, as the ancient landed aristocracy of the Province.

FROM ASSAM TO BURMA.

TO THE EDITOR.

SIR,—With reference to the letter in ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL of the 15th of November last, permit me to invite the attention of our merchants to a book published this year at Calcutta by the Government of India on the hill tribes living between Assam and Burma.

In page 87 the Secretary to Government has quoted from the Report of Captain Butler in 1873. That officer was deputy-commissioner of the Naga Hills, and eleven years ago he advocated the opening of a road, where the only dangers to be encountered are from the attacks of wild beasts, or the danger of starvation which merchants may have at present to encounter by losing their way.

There are no hostile Nagas to be feared—the village of Niinu, where Lieutenant Holcombe was murdered in 1875, is far to the east, and Konoma, the capital of the Angami Nagas, captured by us in 1880, is far to the west.

If the readers of ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL will glance at the map they will find Sebsagor (near Rungpoor) in latitude 27° 2' and longitude 94° 39'. This will probably be the future capital of Upper Assam—the railway from Chittagong through Sylhet is to be taken past it. A broad commercial road, in a south-easterly direction, by an easy pass over the Patkoi Hills, will, in ten easy marches, enable traders to reach the great Khyendwen River, second only in volume to the Irrawadi, and from 750 to 900 feet broad, in latitude 26° 20' and longitude 95° 30'.

Is it possible that the Government can fear to open a great commercial route through an uninhabited country from dread of wild animals? The route is clearly marked by the secretary in the map which accompanies his book, and which was published in February last under the authority of the Survey Department of India. The line of road is continued to Mogovng, 182 miles south-east of Sebsagur, where the Chinese Shans have recently given so much trouble to the Mandalay King.—Your obedient servant,

October 7th.

LORD DUFFERIN AND THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

TO THE EDITOR.

SIR,—Will you allow me to offer a few remarks regarding the deputation from the Indian Reform Association which waited on Lord Dufferin on Tuesday last. From the notice of the interview published in the Times it appears that Dr. Clark was the only member who spoke on the Bengal Tenancy Bill; and that he supported that measure simply by a reference to the very reports on which the Indian Government had founded the Bill. The papers referred to, therefore, represent only the views of the promoters of the Bill. Did Dr. Clark not know that, after a careful perusal of those very reports, the Secretary of State unhesitatingly condemned the principle of the measure; and that the reports of the district judges and officials and of the Chief Justice of Bengal, whom the Indian Government consulted on the subject, contain an equally strong condemnation of the Bill in question?

It may reasonably be hoped, however, that Lord Dufferin will not be influenced by one-sided representations in the decision of a question which involves the peace and prosperity of an entire province and the welfare of sixty millions of our Indian subjects.

I am told that Dr. Clark is unacquainted with India, and that the other members of the deputation, who spoke on the occasion, personally know little, if anything at all, of Bengal, beyond what one may learn from books.—I am, sir, your obedient servant,
FAIR PLAY.

THE AFGHAN FRONTIER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "ARMY AND NAVY GAZETTE."

SIR,—The appointment of a joint Anglo-Russian Commission for the delimitation of the Afghan Frontier again gives prominence to the Eastern Question. As an old writer on this subject, and a former contributor to your journal,* I would invite attention to the late Gen. Skobelev's project for invading India, as detailed in his letters to Prince Tcherkassky, reprinted in the Royal Engineers' Journal of Sept. 1884. Whatever may be the ulterior designs of Russia, the invasion of India has long been the dream of her statesmen, the ambition of her generals, a goal desired by her troops, and the bait to be offered to the savage hordes of Central Asia, who will be found ever ready to attempt a repetition of history, in following the banners of a northern conqueror, for blood, rapine, and plunder, across the frontiers of India. The idea took possession of Skobelev's mind during his service in Turkestan and in Trans-Caspia; and he, being held in memory as one of Russia's best generals and a first-class military statesman, his views will find adoption in any future operations of Russia in the direction of India. Skobelev's project may be very briefly summarised in the following passages:—Possession of the Balkan Peninsula and the command of the Bosphorus being a permanent object with Russia, any diversion she could create in the direction of India, by drawing the armies of England for employment in that country, would materially facilitate her own designs and operations in Europe. In short, India should be used as a lever to assist in effecting the purposes of Russia in Europe. While Persia and Afghanistan in their present integrity are ramparts protecting India, they should be used by Russia as parallels of approach for the invasion of India. Russia having secured a preponderance in Persia, the latter Power should secretly be encouraged to renew her pretensions to Herat, which would soon afford the pretext for Russia's advance in that direction. With the completion of her strategic lines in Trans-Caspia, from the shores of the Caspian through Askabad to Merv, and dominant in the rich province of Khorassan, Russia could bring 30,000 troops from her Trans-Caucasian garrison, and lead them into the valley of the Heri-rud, Khorassan being rendered a base for supplies, Trans-Caucasia, Trans-Caspia, and Persia finding the transport. In Afghanistan, efforts should be made to foster an alliance with the Amir, and to secure the reception of a Russian mission in Cabul, from whence communications would be entered into with disaffected elements in India. In return for the co-operation and alliance of the Amir Russia would promise the restoration of the Peshawur Valley, so much coveted by the rulers of Afghanistan. If the Amir should resist the overtures of Russia, and remain an ally of the British Government, then the claims of some pretender should be supported, and civil war created in Afghanistan, Russia, too, in the name of her ally and vassal, the Amir of Bokhara, reviving Bokhariat claims for a portion of Afghan-Turkestan to the slopes of the Hindu Koosh. For operations in Afghanistan the Turkestan districts would be strengthened by several regiments of Cossacks and other troops from Western Siberia, thus collecting a force which, while providing a sufficient garrison for Turkestan, would admit of 20,000 Russian troops, with corresponding artillery, and independent of feudatories, being moved into Afghanistan. "Finally," writes Skobelev, "it would be our chief duty to organise masses of Asiatic cavalry, and hurling them on India, as our vanguard, under the banners of blood and rapine, thus bring back the days of Tamerlane." Such, in the briefest outline, are some of the salient points of the late General Skobelev's project for the invasion of India. When, in my article of February last, I advocated the appointment of a joint commission for the delimitation of the Persian and Afghan frontiers, I suggested that it was the only possible peaceable solution of a grave and pressing question. How far the labours of the Commission may frustrate the ulterior designs of Russia against India seems problematical, but they will assuredly retard her progress, and delay any attempt at the dismemberment of Persia and Afghanistan. While calling for the exercise of considerable diplomatic skill, the work of the Commission will afford British officers great opportunities for acquiring a knowledge of provinces and people now but little known, of proving the sincerity of the British Government in its desire for peace, with the integrity of the dominions of Persia and Afghanistan, and of showing the reciprocity of interests that really exists between those Powers and the British Government of India. The disaffected and the disloyal in India, and those who look with satisfaction to the approach of Russia towards India, should mark well the utterances of General Skobelev, and, studying the past history of their own country, should consider how far it would be desirable to exchange the just, peaceable, and beneficent rule of the British Government for a revival of the inroads of northern conquerors, and a renewal of the periods of rapine, plunder, and devastation that marked the advent of Mahmud, of Ghuzni, of Tamerlane, and of others whose examples Russian Generals of this century wish to follow.—I am, &c.

EDWARD H. PASKE,
Colonel.

THE GOA TREATY.—A treaty unique of its kind has been concluded between our Government and that of Portugal, and with it we are reminded of the great change which two centuries has wrought in the relative positions of Britain and Portugal in the East. About 220 years ago Portugal gave us our first foothold on the western coast of India. Now we have a great Indian Empire, and Portugal has but the town and dependency of Goa; it is such a poor little place that we need not covet it. But it has been troublesome to the Bombay Government on account of salt smuggling, and the treaty of 1879 not having worked well in every particular, the Government of India sent Mr. Arthur Crawford to Europe to act as their representative, under Lord Kimberley, in procuring a satisfactory revision of the treaty. Prior to the treaty of 1879 the smuggling of salt into British India entailed a loss of revenue to the amount of from £50,000 to £75,000 per annum. The treaty of 1879 allowed the Indian Government to appoint British agents in Goa to supervise the manufacture of salt, with authority to purchase or continue on lease the existing factories, on condition that they would supply a certain quantity of salt at cost price for the use of Portuguese subjects. This system not having worked well, our Government has arranged to deliver over to the Portuguese authorities a few selected salt works that they may manufacture the salt required on its own account. Several small concessions are made on both sides, but we have by far the best of the bargain. Perhaps the most important provision of the revised treaty is the authority given to the British to make arrests within one hundred yards of the salt works.

A STATISTICAL ABSTRACT OF INDIA.—A singularly complete and instructive statistical abstract, made on the basis of the reports and returns from India, has been compiled by Mr. Charles Prinsep, statistical reporter to the India Office. The period covered is from 1873-4 to 1882-3. In little more than 250 pages there are condensed the figures and statistics of the whole of our Indian Empire for the above period. Some of the facts which these figures reveal are striking and significant. They speak volumes in favour of the progress which India has made under our rule, and they refute the sweeping and self-contradicting representations as to the impoverishment of the country. In these ten years £25,734,092 of gold have been imported, and £74,768,086 in silver. During the same years there has been £5,972,923 in gold, and £15,607,210 in silver exported. By this we see that India was richer in 1883 than what she was in 1873 by not less than £78,922,045 in treasure. In 1883 the import trade of India, excluding treasure, amounted to the value of £50,003,041, whereas in 1874 it was only £31,628,497. The export in 1883 amounted to £83,400,865, while in 1874 it was not more than £64,960,786. The number of persons brought to trial in the Indian provinces in 1882 was 1,223,104, a greater number for any year since 1878. The number of convictions, on the other hand, has steadily decreased since 1877, beyond which the figures are not given, the last number being 642,233. The average cost of maintenance in all the prisons was, according to the latest accounts, £5 7s. 1d. The results of the last census are given, and it is ascertained that in 1881 there were in India 77,188 British-born male subjects. The reader will find ample statistical information in the Parliamentary return on every subject connected with the Indian Empire, and we may say that the tables relating to the army are particularly interesting. Although figures can in skilful hands be made to mislead, they furnish none the less the best material for ascertaining the present position of a community, while the comparison of the same statistics for different periods affords a sure and easy indication of whether there has been progress or retrogression among the people to whom they refer. The abstract will be shortly published and procurable for a very moderate sum. To all interested in the welfare of our Indian Empire we recommend this work.
